SHOWCASE PREVIEW

Coming Fast: June 24-25 ... the time is coming fast and the program is taking shape nicely. Remember, we're celebrating The Good Ol' Days with our theme and approach. It will be a relaxed and peaceful time concentrated only on Friday and Saturday at The Seattle Center complex.

Originals in original roles: Whether you were major fans of a particular radio show or not, isn't it fun to hear and see actors re-create roles they did "back then"? Every year at Showcase, we have various opportunities to do that — 2005 will be no exception.

BILL IDELSON will join us for the first time. Some may best remember Bill as Rush on Vic and Sade. And, he'll be doing that with us. But, you'll be fascinated to learn about the many other things he has done in his career.

HAL STONE, BOB HASTINGS and ROSEMARY RICE would rather not do Archie Andrews because they have done it at other conventions. But, because we've never done it in Seattle, three of the originals have agreed to jump right back to Riverdale High. They will also be doing other roles at Showcase.

Then comes ART GILMORE announcing, as he did in the Golden Age, The Adventures Of Frank Race. Many OTR actors worked on Romance and we'll have a rollicking time at sea in a comical, pirate romance story. Sounds different, doesn't it? It's a fun program.

Other Program Pieces: A highlight again will be a new Imagination Theatre, written around old time radio professionals. Locally based JIM FRENCH writes just as well as any Good Ol' Days writer and is syndicated throughout the country. One more show is being selected for recreation and will be announced on the website: repsonline.org.

In a segment called Twos on Radio, there will be time with Bob and Ray, Ethel and Albert, The Bickersons plus Abbott and Costello.

The Showcase committee is also anticipating that we'll be able to experience Improv Radio, with actors led by FRANK BUXTON taking ideas from the audience and creating a show right on the spot.

Panels and interviews are being arranged for freshness and entertainment value. Nostalgia vendors will be on hand with intriguing items for sale.

The Stars: In addition to the folks mentioned above, REPS is honored to welcome Golden Age actors GIL STRATTON, JR., ANNE WHITFIELD PHILLIPS, JOANNA MARCH, RAY ERLENBORN, HERB ELLIS, DICK BEALS and ALICE BACKES.

Professionals ESTHER GEDDES McVEY, PAUL HERLINGER and LARRY ALBERT will round out the performers with other talented folks helping out as needed.

Registration information can be found on the REPS website: repsonline.org.

WHAT DO YOU WANT?

The Saturday afternoon monthly meetings are designed to bring you up close and personal with the best of Old Time Radio. Now, with your help, your newly elected Board would like to move things up a notch or two.

So far you've heard first hand true stories from a veteran actor. Then Larry Albert presented a detailed history of Sherlock Holmes, the actors, the stories, and snippets from the actual broadcasts, collector items all.

Next, celebrating April Fool's Day, you will get a once in a lifetime opportunity to compete in a Quiz Show. It will be the Gentlemen vs. the Lovely Ladies, with prizes galore.

Now it's your turn. Tell us what kind of programs are your favorites. The sky's the limit. Who are your favorite radio performers? Do you want them to recreate shows, or just chat a bit and answer your questions? How about listening to vintage, one of a kind recordings and receiving a copy?

WHAT DO YOU WANT? We all have mailboxes, e-mails, telephones, and cell phones. Let us know.

LIBRARY NEWS

You will find another 4 pages of new CDs in our library. The CDs may duplicate other programs in the Cassette part of the library — remember they do have a different numbering system. Be sure to indicate Cassette or CD when ordering from the library. Check the web page for more not listed here. Among those not listed in this issue are 104 Sherlock Holmes episodes and all 125 X Minus One episodes. We have tried to include entire runs of a series if it is possible. Some series such as Suspense, Gunsmoke, and Dragnet go on for many years. For these series we are putting in a half year to a year at a time. It is hard to make a choice of what to work with first, vintage radio is so widespread. We believe you will find a good sampling now, and if it is not here yet, let us know, it may be available. Almost everything in the CD library is coming from the original source, not simply redubbed existing cassettes. Of course there are exceptions when a particular episode is not available otherwise. There is no plan to put MP3 CDs in the library at the present time.

Great News!!! Early last year, Sharon Brown donated a number of transcription disks that had been saved by her father, Harry Bryant. This is a rare and wonderful thing for REPS because they are mostly choice uncirculated programs. They include Jack Benny, Vic and Sade, Jimmie Durante, Red Skelton, and many more. Of particular note among these uncirculated programs are fifteen Archie Andrews episodes that have not been heard since their original broadcast. We will have a formal unveiling of the Archie Andrews episodes at the Showcase this June. After Bob Hastings, Rosemary Rice, and Hal Stone, original cast members, re-create one of the episodes for us picked from one of the fifteen, all fifteen 'new' episodes will be available to us REPS members on CDs and cassettes in our library.

MARCH 5TH MEETING: SHERLOCK HOLMES REDEAUX

by Larry Albert

Due to a blind moment of weakness involving an over active ego and a strong desire to get REPS meetings back to being about old time radio and the programs and people therein, I agreed to host the March meeting. I didn't even have to mull over my choice of topic since I felt that Sherlock Holmes on radio was a natural for me. I'd already done one program on the subject several years ago and had covered what I thought was everything there was to talk about regarding the show. Time and a deeper involvement then I'd ever imagined in the audio world of Conan Doyle's gas-lit sleuth and his Boswell have shown me the error in my original thinking. Rarely, in my view, have the radio interpretations of Holmes and Dr. Watson come close to representing the characters as created by Sir Arthur. This fact was barely covered in my first presentation those long years ago and I decided to take the opportunity the March meeting offered to amend that omission.

Over the years there have been many audio incarnations of the Baker Street duo beginning as far back as October 20, 1930. According to lore and some OTR logs this was the date of the first broadcast of a Holmes adventure in the United States. The story was "The Speckled Band" and the star was William Gillette, the man most associated with the role at the time. He'd written and played the title character in what to this day remains the most famous and most performed play regarding the exploits of the great detective Sherlock Holmes. There is no surviving record of that first program but I doubt that Gillette's performance strayed too far from the characterization he perfected in his more than 4,000 performances of the stage play. How close was he to the Holmes of The Strand

How close was he to the Holmes of The Strand Magazine fame? Well, since he wrote the play and since he was renown as a romantic matinee idol, I seriously doubt he would have played the part with the high strident voice and cold calculating manner that Doyle used to describe his invention in the very first published story "A Study in Scarlet." And what of Watson, how was he done in this premier radio program? No one, including me, knows so let's move on to the first of the long line of actors to play the parts for any length of time on the air, Richard Gordon and Leigh Loval.

These two men were Holmes and Watson respectively from 1930 to 1933 over the NBC Red and Blue networks, and at least one of their shows is available to collectors. In this episode we find that Gordon's voice is probably the nearest any actor ever came to achieving the unpleasant high-pitched quality Doyle attributed to his creation. The actor also establishes the quick and clipped delivery that has come to be a part of the best of the interpreters of the role. In short, he could be the Holmes of the canon except for one major flaw — he sounds far too old for the role as does Loval as Watson. I ask the reader to understand that according to the original continued from previous page stories both the good doctor and his more famous roomy were in their twenties when they began sharing the dangers of Holmes' cases and that Holmes himself was either forty-nine or fifty when he retired to raise bees on the Sussex Downs. However, in his favor Loval does at least come across as intelligent, which cannot be said for the next actor to take on the part.

Watson as Mushed Mouth Mental Midget

Nigel Bruce has a lot to answer for. It is largely through his interpretation of Doctor John Watson that at least two generations of radio and movie goers in the forties and television viewers in the fifties and sixties have come to view the character as a well meaning bumbler and a rather stupid and silly individual. His portrayal along side Basil Rathbone in the films and on the air, was for years thought to be, by those who've never read the stories, the exact way Conan Doyle had written the man — a mushed mouth mental midget who was lucky to be able to dress himself in the morning. Through fourteen movies at Universal and around 250 radio shows Bruce perpetuated this abomination. Only in the two films pictures he made at Twentieth Century Fox, "The Hound of the Baskervilles" and "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes," did he curtail the idiocy and give the public a Watson to admire. It goes without saying that he was far too old for the role.

(On a side note, when I gave my original presentation I said, matter of factly, that although he had announced during the 1945-46 season, Harry Bartell had never appeared on the program in an acting role. I was proven wrong the very next day when, while playing a tape of a show from that time period, I clearly heard the voice of my friend in the part of the villain.)

Now to continue ... in the fifties the British BBC finally decided to air a radio series of their own devoted to the exploits of Sherlock Holmes. Did they make any attempt to correct the errors of their American cousins? No, in fact, they compounded them by casting two actors who could not have been more ill suited for the characters — Sir John Gielgud and Sir Ralph Richardson. Sir John's portrayal is lifeless for the most part, without fire and Richardson's Watson carries none of the youth and vigor so vital to the man. However, at this point I must admit that these shows as well as episodes of the Rathbone/Bruce series are eagerly collected by those in the hobby, but I hope it's because they are representative of the period and not as true representations of Sir Arthur's heroes.

Who Got It Right?

The longest reigning Holmes and Watson over the airwaves belong to English performers Carleton Hobbs and Norman Shelly. They portrayed Holmes and Watson over the BBC from the 1952 to 1969. These are perfectly adequate adaptations of the original stories but they are marred by the fact that Hobbs and Shelly sound much, much too old and, in Shelly's case, far too stuffy.

So has anybody ever got it right? Yes, they have ... in the eighties the BBC began the ambitious project of producing for broadcast the complete canon, fifty-four short stories and four novels with the same two actors in the lead roles throughout and playing the parts as Doyle had envisioned them. With Clive Merrison as Sherlock Holmes and Michael William as Dr. Watson the public at last has the truest audio version of these stalwarts ever done. And when combined with the writing, production and acting of the supporting players, it makes these shows the finest radio adaptations of the original stories to date. Merrison's Holmes is erratic in behavior and a man who clearly sees himself as a giant among pygmies, intellectually speaking, and Williams' Watson is the lover, story-teller, medical man and more than competent partner that Doyle created him to be. If you haven't heard these programs and you love Sherlock Holmes; then buy or borrow copies as soon as you can.

Part of the History

For the past eight years I've played Dr. Watson, as Doyle wrote him, along side two of the finest actors to ever bring the Great Detective to life — John Gilbert and John Patrick Lowrie. Together we have, in conjunction with the fine writing of series creator Jim French, done our best to bring to American radio the first U.S. produced version of Sherlock Holmes and to get it right. Our show is broadcast over the internet and picked up in the U.K. and Canada. We now have four British scriptwriters and one Canadian sending us scripts all of which you have either already heard or will hear in the near future. Sherlock Holmes has been on radio almost as long as there has been audio drama and for the most part, while the shows have been entertaining and fun they have not been true to the characters so loved by the millions who know the stories of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Now, in our time we see things have changed for the better; and since I'm convinced that as long as there is audio theatre there will be an audio Holmes somewhere, let's hope we never go back to the old incorrect versions.

OZZIE NELSON ...

from vaudeville, to law school, to radio, to film, and TV

by Frank Rosin

Ozzie Nelson, born in 1907, was the son George and Ethel Nelson. They were minstrel entertainers, the children growing up under this influence at engagements around Jersey City in New Jersey.

Ozzie's first paying job was with a friend in 1921, when at age 14, they were each paid $5 to play for the local Women's Club Dance in Ridgefield Park.

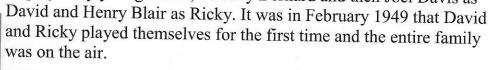

Ozzie became an Eagle Scout shortly before his 14th birthday, one of the youngest at that time. He was active in football at Ridgefield Park High School and while attending Rutgers continued in football. During this time period, 1923-1927, he was also a boxer and diver. The athletics were brought to a halt due to an injury sustained while doing a half gainer in competition against Syracuse University.

He entered New York Law School but by 1930 his music career was going so strong that he post-poned law in favor of being a full time orchestra leader. More and more, Ozzie patterned his saxo-phone-banjo playing and singing after Rudy Vallee. In 1930 he became a part of WMCA's lineup in New York City, part of Roemer's Homers. Roemer's Homers featured a dance band and orchestra which Ozzie soon replaced. Milton Roemer's promotion and publicity was good for Ozzie, and his was the first group to play coast to coast on CBS from the Glen Island Casino.

On December 31, 1931, Niles Granlund, the announcer and MC, was unable to be at the program. He was replaced by a young lady who did a specialty dance and announced the various numbers. This young lady from Des Moines Iowa, was Harriet Hilliard, daughter of Roy Hilliard, a dramatic stock actor and director. Her mother was Hazel McNutt who had begun a stage career at age 14 in musical and dramatic stock companies.

Harriet became a permanent part of Ozzie's orchestra as singer and dancer; they were married on October 8th 1935. She signed a contract with RKO and they appeared in several films from 1935 to 1940. David was born in 1936 and Ricky in 1940. This took the family to California to settle. In 1941 Ozzie and Harriet signed with Red Skelton to do a bit of banter, singing, and music on his radio program. This was successful but when Skelton went into the Army in 1944, they were adrift. This did not last long, however, as International Silver put them on the air in the Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet in 1944. The sons were played by young actors, Tommy Bernard and then Joel Davis as

After the International Silver contract in 1949 they signed a 10 year contract with ABC which included a television show after the second year. In 1951 they made a movie called Here Come the Nelsons.

There are not many of the radio episodes available but we do have a copy of many of the early television episodes. These early television episodes and the movie are among those that will be in our DVD library when it is up and running. Many of the people we know appear such as Janet Waldo, Mary Jane Croft, Lyle Talbot, Don DeFore, and Parley Baer. Watch for them on the www.repsonline.org web page.

FORECAST: Is There a Sponsor in the House?

by Martin Grams, Jr.

The trial-and-error system being an old if frequently painful institution in the show business (else all stage plays would be hits, and all radio programs would have an Amos and Andy average in the Crossley ratings), the Columbia Broadcasting System's Forecast series shrewdly dramatized the fact that there is no such phenomenon as a sure thing. For two particular seasons, the CBS people enlivened summer's somewhat lethargic air waves with a schedule of experimental entertainments which, to tell the truth, aren't experimental in the exact sense of the word, but have nevertheless a refreshing air about them, if only for the ideas they represented.

The idea is that neither CBS nor anyone else knew, until they were produced, whether the programs were any good or not, though they were of course, hoping for the best. And, very sensibly, they made a game of it. Whereas the listener during the busy season was told to take what he got and, if possible, like it, Forecast invited criticism. Listening to the various episodes, one could not help but applaud for Marlene Dietrich in "The Thousand and One Nights," and convulse with laughter as they listened to the amorous antics of "Mischa the Magnificent." (Mischa Auer, that is.) Whatever it was that made people bet on horse races or write letters to the editor, they could file an honest opinion about the programs and then sit back to await the verdict.

If the public, in sufficient numbers, liked a Forecast sample – as they liked Duffy's Tavern during the first season – the chances were that the fully developed product would be on the air after the fall semester opened. On the other hand, a negative response or some hearty, candid disapproval would prevent a lot of headaches, save a good many dollars, in the months to come.

Speaking of dollars, it is giving away no trade secret to say that the producing company did not do all this out of sheer altruism. It probably believed in health, but was not in the business for it. It was looking for program sponsors as well as for new writing and acting talent. To a potential sponsor, it said, in effect, "Here is a show and here is the public reaction to it, and perhaps with a little play-doctoring and some recasting . . ." A tryout is a tryout, almost anywhere, what this radio's audience enjoys over the theater's . . . it paid nothing at all, and it sat comfortably at home. There was a good deal to be said for that.

How much was to be said for the Forecast broadcasts, and the public response cannot be found. Still, if the program did make it to the airwaves for a regular run, say the highly successful Duffy's Tavern, we can only suspect the reviews favorable. Take the episode "The Thousand and One Nights." According to the New York Times:

"It had its points, to be sure. It had Miss Dietrich, whose sultry voice fitted into the pattern of enchantment evoked by the Rimsky-Korsakoff music; and Miss Dietrich's is a voice that can all but live up to even the gaudy introduction arranged for her in a script not notable for its understatement. ("Let her name echo from the furthest mountain top," said a lackey after a proper roll of drums.) But what is virtually a monologue, by Miss Dietrich or anyone else, is hard to take for an hour, or even the half hour which the successful Forecasts will have for running-time."

But not everything was new. One of the Forecast broadcasts, "51 East 51" raised a curtain toward an audience that no doubt, found it difficult to see anything experimental about it, unless it was that no one else has heretofore presented a radio sketch called "51 East 51." Otherwise, things were as they usually were in fables about nightclubs, including the song cues introduced as with a sledge hammer. It was described in advance as "a new musical show with comedy and vice-versa" (whatever that meant), but it sounded rather like vaudeville in its last, unhappy phase, with no more for a plot than Kay Thompson ("our midnight girl of music") tormented by a couple of practical jokers, while she poured out her unhappy heart in song. Seems I've heard this before somewhere.

Another déjà vu was the "Hopalong Cassidy" entrance without William Boyd playing the role of Hoppy. Clarence E. Mulford, the creator of the fictional character, sat within listening distance of his radio set the night Hopalong Cassidy first rode on to radio, originating from the New York studio. "I found it interesting," he was quoted of saying. "I naturally hope there are more of them." Mulford's agent worked actively to land a sustaining series, possibly over NBC stations, according to researcher Bernard Drew, but without success. It wouldn't be until William Boyd took over the Cassidy property for television that the radio market was exploited. After this Forecast broadcast, Hopalong would not grace the radio waves again until 1950. (They were working on pre-production of the series in 1946, but it still took four years till the show became a reality.) The only thing I have yet to solve is the script itself. Having heard the broadcast years ago, I recalled, half-way through the program, that the same script was later used for another western radio broadcast (or perhaps a B-class western picture) because the plot was not only familiar, but I knew in detail how the ending was going to turn out without hearing it. Would anyone know if this script was later done on another Hopalong episode?

The opinions varied, the critics were pleased or disgusted (whichever viewpoint the readers of their columns accepted), but one thing definitely stood in stone. Forecast was a good idea. Though most were not really experimental – The Columbia Workshop presented more experimental dramas than Forecast – they were highly entertaining. With many Hollywood stars backing some of the productions with their appearances, Burgess Meredith, Herbert Marshall, Duke Ellington, and even Hedda Hopper, the program entertained and dazzled listeners. NBC even began their own summer audition/pilot series in 1950 entitled Advance Release offering various stars in various dramas and musical presentations. Imitation is often the sincerest form of flattery.

Keep in mind that the program had a full-hour time slot and many of the airings offered two half-hour programs. A majority of the broadcasts do exist and are in circulation among collectors, but remain individual recordings. For the July 29, 1940 broadcast, as an example, the Duffy's Tavern presentation stands alone on cassette and CD.

Both Forecast series were summer replacements for The Lux Radio Theatre, heard over the CBS network, Monday evenings from 9 to 10 p.m., EST. [Editor's note: Martin then gives a log of all the shows ... here are three.]

EPISODE #1 "BATTLE OF MUSIC" Broadcast on July 15, 1940. Starring: Arlene Francis, Freda Gibson, Frankie Hyers and Raymond Paige and his orchestra. Written for Forecast by George Faulkner. Directed by George Zachary. Plot: An entertaining battle of the bands as some people call such a broadcast, using a symphonic orchestra and a swing band to play one-on-one, vying for the title of "the better band." Albert Spaulding supplies the violin music. Gordon Gifford and Joe Venuti also perform. George Zachary, who was presently directing the weekly mystery, The Adventures of Ellery Queen, also directed this broadcast. This program never made it as a regular series. (30 m.)

EPISODE #3 "WHEN YOU WERE TWENTY-ONE" Broadcast on July 22, 1940. Starring: Jane Cowl, Joan Edwards, Rush Hughes and Danny Kaye. Plot: This broadcast, a comedy-variety show, a forerunner of that "wonderful year" idea, presents a nostalgic look back at 1919. What makes this broadcast interesting is that three people wrote the script: Sylvia Fine, Nathaniel Curtis, and Ed Forman. John Tillman was the announcer. Brewster Morgan was the director. Lyn Murray composed and conducted the music. (30 m.)

EPISODE #12 "JUBILEE" Broadcast on August 26, 1940. Starring: Duke Ellington, Wonderful Smith and Ethel Waters. Plot: This all-star Negro musical variety revue wasn't successful the first time around, but when it was redone the year after, the second time was a charm. (30 m.)
