Missionary's Rescuers Tell Story For CBC

Paratroopers And Airmen, Back
From Far North, Heard On Two Programs

All Canada was stirred by the news of the rescue of Canon J. H. Turner from the far northern missionary post at Moffet Inlet in Baffin Land, by men of the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Canadian Army Paratroops. The CBC reports the event to its listeners in two broadcasts.

On Saturday, November 22, the plane carrying Canon Turner reached Winnipeg, after a flight of more than 1,700 miles. The wounded missionary, victim of a gun accident, was taken immediately to the Winnipeg General Hospital, where his condition was reported as "fair."

An R.C.A.F. plane dropped the paratroopers on the treacherous terrain around the mission post on October 4. For seven weeks afterwards, Dr. Ross Willoughby of Toronto, paratroops medical officer, fought a grim battle for Canon Turner's life. Captain D'Artois of the Army Paratroops, once of the French underground and a legendary figure in the Canadian Army, was in charge of the ground force, and with him were Sergeants H. C. Cook and W. A. Judd. The tale of their landing and subsequent struggles with snow, wind, ice, and freak radio conditions, is described as an epic of the far north. The radio sets upon which the success of the expedition depended were both damaged in falling, one of them dropped in the sea. They were salvaged and repaired, and not only served their purpose in Canon Turner's case, but enabled Captain Willoughby to transmit a diagnosis which may have saved the life of a Hudson's Bay factor's wife.

The pilot of the rescue plane was F.O. Robert Race of Edmonton. F.O. Clifford MacMillan of Melfort, Sask., was the navigator, and F.L. Tony Morabito of New Westminster, B.C., the wireless operator.

Mrs. Turner and her two children, June, two and a half years, and Grace, 14 months, were also brought out by plane, and with them an Eskimo girl, Rebecca, 15 years old.

Sydney and Beatrice Webb.—They were anti-revolutionary, against all forms of violence. . . . The great Webb partnership was a life partnership of mutual love and unceasing work and joint activity. . . . I never knew anyone wiser or better informed than Sydney Webb—the most reasonable, the most generous, and the most disinterested of men. — Kingsley Martin, on BBC.

Canon Turner's Rescuers

Intolerant Loyalties

Security of Human Race Indivisible, says Dr. Brock Chisholm

Absolute and intolerant loyalties to one or the other geographical, social, economic, national, fiscal, political, religious, racial, or other groupings have been characteristic of the human race throughout all history. These narrow loyalties have everywhere produced unassimilable and unco-operative masses of people; the result has always been war.

There is only one human race; its security, indeed its survival, is now indivisible. It is absolutely essential to any real hope of our own children living out their normal span of life, that enough people in enough places recognize that they cannot go on living by the old patterns. We cannot continue to hate, talk aggressive

Lord Selkirk Guest On CBC Broadcast

Descendant of Fifth Earl Carries on Colonizing Tradition of Red River
Founder

The guest on the Tuesday, December 2 broadcast of Canadian Cavalcade will be George Nigel-Hamilton, tenth Earl of Selkirk. The program will be heard over the CBC Trans-Canada network at 7:30 p.m. (See Late Program Notes, page 8).

Lord Selkirk is a descendent of Thomas Douglas, the fifth Earl of Selkirk, who founded the Red River settlement which has now become the City of Winnipeg. Selkirk, Manitoba, is named after him.

The present Lord Selkirk is a director of Scottish Aviation, an organization which is not only bringing people to Canada every week, but operates a world-wide freight and passenger service. When he is interviewed on Canadian Cavalcade on December 2, Lord Selkirk will tell of the work of his organization, which also includes seeing that ships stranded in far parts of the world receive necessary repair parts by air direct from point of manufacture in Britain.

Kitty Marcuse Wrote CBC Series In Mexico

Vancouver.—Kitty Marcuse, who writes the CBC children's series, Magic Adventures, heard from Vancouver on Mondays at 6:45 p.m., wrote most of the present series in Mexico, during a "holiday," made possible by proceeds of a story sold to a United States magazine. She visited Mexico City, Taxco, and Vera Cruz. She reported that her young son Rickey, whose O.K. is necessary before the Magic Adventure scripts go into production, learned a good deal of Spanish during the holiday.

Mrs. Marcuse is an Ottawa girl who married a Montrealer and is now domiciled in Vancouver. She is a regular contributor to several Canadian and United States magazines, including Child Life.

Mrs. Marcuse has announced the following titles for forthcoming broadcasts in the Magic Adventure series: The Princess Who Lost Her Voice, The Magic Jumping Bean, Michael and the Monster, William and the Magic Bottles, Peter and the Witch, The Adventure of the Magic Elephant, and The Adventure With the Tree People.

Edible Gold.—Farming must go on whatever tumult arises in the city. You cannot stop the ripening of the wheat. . . . The gold of oats must be gathered, whatever happens to the other inedible gold. — Ralph Wightman, on BBC.

INTOLERANT LOYALTIES—Conc.

sively, stimulate international or inter-group antagonisms, or engage in any other of our common socially irresponsible practices without seriously risking our own and our children's lives.

We must now recognize, and show clearly that we recognize, that there are many current social and economic experiments, many "ways of life" going on in the world, that ours, whoever we are, is only one of them, that no one way of life has yet shown itself to be perfect, acceptable to all kinds of people in the world, or capable of solving all the problems of human relations. Poverty, hunger, discrimination against minorities, threats to civil liberties, inflations, recessions, depressions, unemployment, are some of the problems. No social or economic system in the world has met all these effectively.

To Live Without Killing

Our minds and those of our children must be open to examine without prejudice the results of these experiments. There is still much to learn in many fields, but the one primary need of the race is to learn to live with each other without killing; the alternative is, literally, extinction.

The human being, very effective in his relations with almost all other aspects of nature, has not yet learned how to deal effectively with his own nature. It is astonishing that his own nature, his emotional requirements, the conditions under which he can expect to live pleasantly and without hurting himself or other people, are not yet commonly taught to children in homes, schools, or churches. These conditions are, however, reasonably well known now, and there is no reason why the new generation growing up in all countries cannot learn how to be understanding, tolerant, and "world-minded" to a degree that has never been approached by the present or past generation. The very old injunction "know thyself" has never been carried out in any considerable groups of people, yet the self, the personality which includes intelligence, is the only instrument by which members of the race may survive to develop the human being to whatever his great evolutionary goals may be. That survival and development cannot be accomplished by people whose personalities are such as have been standard throughout almost all the human race up to now. Survival demands that a new type of personality become the human standard. This new type of personality, the only type of capable of ensuring survival of the race, will not suffer from irrational anxieties arising from shame, guilt, fear, conviction of sin, social inferiority, and all the other imposed burdens which we and all the generations before us have had to carry.—Dr. Brock Chisholm, on CBC October 22.

Notes

THE ENCHANTED PINE (T-C 5:30 p.m.)

A daily (Monday to Friday) pre-Christmas series for children by Mary Grannan. From Toronto. Katie and Kim find a pine tree sprinkled with magic dust, and are drawn into exciting adventures. The author of "Just Mary" at her best.

MAGIC ADVENTURES (6:45 p.m.)

Children's series by Kitty Marcuse. From Vancouver. This series shared with CBC's Cuckoo Clock House in winning a first award at the Ohio State University Radio Institute last year. The stories are like conventional fairy tales in spirit, including beautiful princesses, roaring lions, a three headed dwarf, a giant's daughter, and a magician who can capture sounds and keep them in a bag, but they deal with the adventures of Canadian boys and girls in a modern world. Talented child actors will be heard with the regular cast of Vancouver professionals, during the series.

RHYTHM AND ROMANCE (7:30 p.m.)

Parks and Burdett, duo pianists; Maxine Ware, vocalist; from Winnipeg. Miss Ware: Winter Wonderland; If My Heart Had a Window; White Christmas. Pianos: Lazy Countryside; Chickasaw Limited; The Stanley Steamer, from Summer Holiday.

Plotless Comedy Is Nicol's Newest Idea

According to Eric Nicol of Vancouver, who wrote the script of Oh Please, Louise, which the CBC will produce in its Vancouver Drama series on Thursday, December 11 (11:00 p.m.), this musical comedy for radio introduces a new idea. The idea is that the comedy has no plot. "Usually," said Mr. Nicol, "it takes a good part of an hour to get a plot moving, and then nobody cares how it works out anyway. By abolishing plot altogether we are able to give just that much more time to gags and dialogue."

BBC's Canadian Representatives

Visitors to CBC's Prairie Region headquarters in Winnipeg last week were JOHN POLWARTH (left) and MICHAEL BARKWAY, the BBC's Canadian representatives, whose offices are at CBC Programme Headquarters, Toronto. Mr. Polwarth, who assists Mr. Barkway in covering this rather extensive territory, arrived from England about six weeks ago to replace Gilbert Harding, former assistant. Mr. Polwarth is a northerner, from Northumberland.

Murder in the Cathedral

T. S. Eliot's Play To Be Heard In CBC Wednesday Night Program

Despite all his peculiarities of style — his bad riming, and his worse ignoring of the patterns of rime and the rhythms of English speech—T. S. Eliot does succeed in posing an important question even though an old one—in "Murder In The Cathedral," which, in a radio —be he pope, or cardinal, or archbishop—can presume to speak with the voice and under the authority of a power higher than that of kings and statesmen and even of himself. Whether, assuming such authority, he is merely exhibiting his own very profound egotism, or whether he does indeed speak with the voice of God.

The popularity of Eliot's play rests in part upon the circumstance that he posed this question in an English setting, about the life and death of a famous character of English history, Thomas A. Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury, whose dispute with King Henry II resulted in his assassination before the high altar of Canterbury Cathedral in the year 1170.

The whole play revolves about the personality of Becket, who is, indeed, the only character actually named in the play, the others being in effect all anonymous priests, knights, women, and heralds, and the bodiless voices of four "tempters." Only in the final scene are the knights given an opportunity to state the king's case, and then they do it in rather dull prose.

The question is not answered in the play, although the author does seem to have a bias in favour of the Archbishop and his pretensions to higher authority. But it is clearly and satisfactorily stated in a play of dramatic power, and that may be half the battle. T. S. Eliot has been described as "one of the most influential of twentieth century poets." His recent critical work on Kipling, in which he offers high praise of the older poet, has won a wide circle of readers. His earlier poem, The Waste Land, is one of the first heralds of the modern idiom. Mr. Eliot is an American domiciled for many years in England.

Mr. Allan will perform the play with a cast of Toronto radio actors. It will be its first radio performance in Canada.

T. S. Eliot

adaptation by Lister Sinclair, Andrew Allan will direct during the CBC Wednesday Night program on December 10 (10:00 p.m. T-C and 11:00 p.m.). To clear up the historical details, the play was first produced at the Canterbury Festival of June, 1935, and has had many performances since.

The question, which has been discussed at least since Gibbon and Voltaire, but has plentiful echoes in the works of the Christian fathers of Roman times and their pagan contemporaries, is whether any man

Romeo and Juliet

Shakespearean Drama Of Young Love To Be Repeated On Stage 48

In repeating Mr. Lister Sinclair's radio adaptation of Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet (Stage 48, CBC Trans-Canada network, Sunday, December 7, 9:00 p.m.), Mr. Andrew Allan re-tells a very ancient story. The tale was known in Italy as early as 1303. Shakespeare probably took it from a poem by Arthur Brooke, written in 1562.

But to say that Romeo and Juliet is an old story is inaccurate, because the tale of this "pair of star-crossed lovers" is timeless and deathless. Nothing like the winged passion of this song of youth had been heard on the English stage, or any stage, before, and there are many critics to say that nothing to compare with it has happened since. It is not merely the deathless two. The play teems with magnificent characters—Mercutio, the Nurse, Friar Laurence, Paris, Tybalt. Says Coleridge, speaking of Mercutio:

"How shall I describe that exquisite ebullience and overflow of youthful life, wafted on over the laughing waves of pleasure and prosperity, as a wanton beauty who distorts the face on which she knows her lover is gazing enraptured, and wrinkles her forehead in the triumph of its smoothness!"

Mr. Sinclair's adaptation will retain all the great moments of the play—the tremendous line at the end of Act I, when Juliet, trembling with the imminence of fate, first sees Romeo, and the world stands still—"What's he that follows there, that would not dance?"; Romeo's celebrated outcry in Capulet's orchard, beginning "But soft!, what light through yonder window breaks? It is the east, and Juliet is the sun!", and the equally celebrated serena, or evening song, spoken by Juliet on the balcony—"Gallop apace, you fiery-footed steeds; the alba, or dawn song, spoken by the lovers at parting—"Night's candles are burnt out, and jocund day stands tip-toe on the misty mountain tops." Such passages, in which words burst into flame, have kept Romeo and Juliet for three hundred years in the forefront of the English stage. In the radio version, it loses little. A former high officer of the CBC, a man of many years experience in radio, once said: "Shakespeare is the best of all radio writers, because his stage had few props or scenes, and he had to tell all his story in words."

BBC Celebrating Silver Anniversary

Daily broadcasting in Great Britain began on November 14, 1922, and recently the BBC has been celebrating the silver anniversary of the event. Publicly-owned, non-commercial radio in Britain has become firmly established in 25 years, and there are now 11,000,000 receiving sets licensed. This, despite the gloomy predictions of newspaper editors in 1922, that the new fad could not hope to last more than a few months.

The BBC itself, the public corporation which controls all broadcasting in Great Britain, came into existence at the New Year, 1927, by royal charter.

Growing Older.—Whether you are 66, or 36, or 16, you are ageing. Don't let that alarm you. . . . We are all doing that, and at the same rate—60 seconds every minute, 365 days every year. . . . The important point is, are we ageing well?—Mae Smith, on CBC, August 29.

CBC Wednesday Night

CITIZENS' FORUM (7:15 T-C and 10:00 p.m.)

Discussion series, a joint project of the CBC and the Canadian Association for Adult Education. From London, England, on this occasion. Once a month the Forum deals with an important current issue under the heading In the News. Tonight's speakers, whose names have still to be announced, will speak from the scene of the present meeting of foreign ministers dealing with the future of Germany. The ministers' subject will be the subject of the Forum. The speakers will consider the determination of Germany's future and its possible effects upon the rest of the world.

CONCERT ORCHESTRA (8:00 p.m. T-C and 8:30 p.m.)

Orchestra conducted by Bernard Naylor. From Montreal. Symphony No. 5 in B Flat by Franz Schubert. Bernard Naylor is a former conductor of the Winnipeg Philharmonic Choir, and founder, in 1936, of the Montreal Little Symphony. He is a native of Cambridge and graduate of the Royal College of Music. Schubert's popular B Flat Symphony is an early work, composed at 17 when the boy was an assistant master in his father's schoolhouse in Vienna.

Witold Malcuzyński, pianist, from Vancouver. Malcuzyński was born in Warsaw and is 37. He left a course in philosophy at Warsaw University to take up piano, and became a pupil of Paderewski. He won the grand prize at the International Chopin Competition in 1937. The pianist had two narrow escapes from the Germans during the war, and made his North American debut in 1942, after a tour of South America. His performance is described as "pianism of the leonine order, given to great fortes and sweeping breadths of interpretation."

Mr. Malcuzyński is at the west coast on concert tour after appearing with the Toronto Symphony and other leading musical organizations in the east. He came to this continent following a recent concert tour of Europe. His program will be all-Chopin: Waltz in C Sharp Minor; Nocturne in C Minor; two Mazurkas; two Etudes; Scherzo No. 3 in C Sharp Minor.

Nylon

(John Fisher on CBC, November 16)

This glamour child of chemistry has excited the imagination of women throughout the world. No other inanimate object in a space of nine years—six of them lean war years—has been picked up so quickly in boudoir and salon, discussed so much over teacups and behind typewriters.

Why this excitement? I don't know. Men don't understand these things. They are all wrapped up in the mystery and whim of women. And this exciting wonder child comes from such fundamental and dull things as a lump of coal, air, and water. That's all! . . .

We make more nylon in Canada than all other countries put together, outside the United States. While I walked through the ($8,000,000) plant in Kingston, Ontario, in four hours they made enough nylon yarn to go round the world four times. And still nylon is scarce. A pair of stockings takes about one mile of yarn.

From coal, air, and water they make a substance which looks like soap chips. I saw millions of these chips being fed into giant hoppers and melted under pressure until they became thick and gummy. Then I saw them forced through tiny holes of a spinnerette until they came out in stringy filaments which hardened in the cold air. They looked just like a spider's web. The spider's web is then gathered by a bobbin and spun . . . strange things happen to the molecules. They straighten out, become parallel to one another. This makes nylon stronger than silk or rayon or any other fibre.

The word nylon was plucked out of the air. It means nothing to the chemist. They asked the public for a handy word that would end in "on" as rayon and cotton do. The real chemical name for nylon has 25 letters. I can't pronounce it, but I can spell it for you, Polyhexamethylenadipamide. Anyhow, it won't stretch or shrink, and it won't mildew.

Farm Broadcast Notes

Weather Terms

(From the Prairie Region Farm Broadcast daily dramatic sketch, The Jacksons)

Dollar Dick Jackson: You don't usually talk about a meetin' in the tone o' voice Quincey was usin'. Did yuh hear him? Wonderful! He's like a radio announcer sighin' over a cake o' soap.

Colleen: My goodness, you're down on radios this morning, aren't you, dad?

Dick: Not specially. You know how I am about radios. Outside the news and the weather—and some o' the music—and a few talks—

Quincey: You're compiling quite a lengthy list there, Mr. Jackson.

Dick: Well, yuh could leave out the weather for that matter.

Colleen: Dad, you know very well you never miss the weather forecast.

Dick: Oh, I turn it on, but I don't take too much stock in it.

Colleen: The trouble with you is, when it's right you never notice it, and when it's wrong you mention it and remember.

Quincey: The complaint I've always had about weather forecasts is that they seemed a little general. Of course, I realize there isn't time for anything very detailed.

Dick: If it comes out somewhere near right, that's all I ask—if it does!

Quincey: When it is necessary to make a general statement, the margin for error is that much greater. I quite realize there isn't time for involved detail.

Dick: The forecasts are plenty long enough now.

Quincey: But as I say, you're going to get more errors. You have to make allowance for that or else they would have to be longer.

Colleen: I don't know, Quincey. The more details you get, the more technical the terms would have to be.

Dick: Sure and I don't know what they're talking about half the time!

Quincey: Oh, Mr. Jackson—really!

Dick: I don't! Here's a fella the other day says, "Overcast, becomin' cloudy." Does that make sense to you? "Overcast, becomin' cloudy!"

Colleen: It means just what it says.

Quincey: I believe, Mr. Jackson, the confusion exists in the definition of the term "cloudy." "Overcast" means that the sky is completely clouded. "Cloudy" means it is only partially covered by clouds, and—

Norman Campbell, originally written for the CBC's summer series Summer Romance, will be included in this production. The titles include: Are You My New Romance, Summer Romance, and A Kiss In A Railway Station.

Dick: Hold on—hold on—

Colleen: What it amounts to is this, Dad: "Cloudy" means that there are clouds, but that there is sky visible. When it's "overcast," there is no sky visible.

Quincey: Exactly.

Dick: So when the "overcast" sky starts to break up, and you get a little blue here and there—then it's starting to be "cloudy." Yeh! I get that. Maybe I'm stupid. And then again, maybe there's other people that don't know about terms like that either.

Royal Winter Fair.

Apparently there was a lot of excitement at the Toronto Royal Winter Fair during the judging for the grand champion steer.

In this class were the champion and reserve champion steers from all the different classes judged earlier this week, and it included the champion Shorthorn steer exhibited by Harold Reddy, of Dessford, Man.; the champion Hereford owned by Bob Smith of Brandon, Man.; the champion grade steer exhibited by Ed Noad of Olds, Alta.; and the champion Angus shown by an Ontario exhibitor, Lloyd Mack of Rockwood, Ont. Altogether, there were ten steers in the ring for the judge, a representative of an Ontario packing plant, to choose from. None of the Boys' and Girls' Club calves placed in this class. The judge finally picked out two of the top ones—the Ontario Angus and the Manitoba Shorthorn—and awarded the grand championship ribbon to the Ontario Angus and the reserve championship to the Manitoba Shorthorn exhibited by Harold Reddy. — Broadcast of November 21.

Horrible Mixtures.

I like some classical music; I like the gay, old-fashioned dances and songs; and I can even stand some jazz. But it's when the CBC orchestras and singers mix these things up that I really get sick. Some things mix well, like roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, liver and onions, and bread and butter. But when you mix fine, rugged music like Beethoven and Bach with sentimental tripe like Irving Berlin and George Gershwin, it's like mixing good roast beef with sickly saccharine junk—and the result is horrible. I know some so-called artists preen themselves on being broad-minded, and being able to play or sing both classical and popular music. But there is such a thing as being too broad-minded. The man who tries to be all things to all men, succeeds in being nothing to anybody. — H. M. G., Winnipeg, Man.

MAIL BAG—Concluded

Even Homer Nods.

Congratulations on the Royal Wedding items. I was one of the listeners to the early morning program. Everything was clear, and to one knowing London it was easy to follow the cavalcade all the way to Westminster and back to Buckingham Palace.

By the way, did you notice Matthew Halton's slip. We smole a smile when in the excusable excitement of describing the golden plate on the altar, he mentioned "golden plate and dishes." I am positive there were no dishes on the altar, golden or otherwise. — R. J. de B-Copin, Benito, Manitoba.

The Prairie Gardener

Summary of Broadcast of November 30, 1947.

December Activities for the Gardener

Gardening, as every ardent gardening fan knows, is definitely a twelve months job, with plenty of things that need doing each month of the year. Here are a few suggestions for December activities:

1. Checking Storage Conditions:
    - (a) If beets, carrots and parsnips show signs of shrivelling they are giving off water too rapidly and require (i) more moisture in the air and packing medium (ii) a lower storage temperature secured by admitting more cold air, or (iii) they may need to be repacked and given more insulation against dry air circulation.
    - (b) Dahlia and begonia tubers are subject to the same storage difficulties as vegetables such as beets and may be handled in much the same way.
    - (c) If sprouts are developing on beets, carrots, turnips, parsnips, dahlias, etc., it is an indication of too much moisture and probably too much heat in the storage room. Lower the temperature by ventilation and dry air by placing trays containing two or three inches of lime in the storage room.
    - (d) If rot is developing in stored material frequent checking and prompt removal of fruits, tubers or roots, is necessary. Modification of ventilation and temperature may also be needed.
  2. If interested in growing Michaelmas Daisies (perennial fall asters) or hardy Border Chrysanthemums write to Mr. H. F. Harp, Head Gardener, Dominion Experimental Station, Morden, Manitoba. The Morden Station has done some fine work in selecting varieties suited to the prairie region garden.
  3. Subscribe to a horticultural magazine. Two good ones are: The Flower Grower, and Your Garden and Home. Any news company or stationery store will place your subscription. Your Garden and Home is a new Canadian publication that shows considerable promise.
  4. Your gardening friends will appreciate Christmas gifts related to their hobby.
  5. Prepare now for spring activities. Make up seed boxes, garden stakes, plant labels, etc., during the winter. You will be too busy to do these things when seeding time comes along.
- Literary Hair-Cut.*—I shall tell you . . . what I think of the present state of literature in general, and of story telling in particular. . . . I think it is falling to pieces and going to the dogs. It is decaying, neglecting itself, going wrong. It wants to go and get its hair cut. I cannot think of many contemporary writers who will squeeze one tear or twist one smile out of your great grandchildren. — Gerald Kersh, on BBC.

Notes

METROPOLITAN OPERA (1:00 p.m.)

Metropolitan Opera matinee. From New York. Madame Butterfly, by Giacomo Puccini. Puccini, a millionaire sportsman and Bohemian, died in 1924 in his 66th year. His famous opera about the love affair of a fickle lieutenant of the United States navy and a Japanese girl was first produced by the well-known Metropolitan impresario Gatti-Casazza at La Scala in 1904, and was booed and hissed off the stage. It was based on a story by John Luther Long. Mussolini nominated Puccini to the Italian senate, and gave him a splendid state funeral at his death.

RED RIVER BARN DANCE (10:00 p.m.)

Light orchestra conducted by Eric Wild; Marjorie Diller, cowgirl yodeler; Wilf Davidson, baritone; Pete Couture, violinist. Orchestra: The Blackthorn Stick, High Level Hornpipe, Pepper Polka, Devil's Dream; Medley: Bless 'Em All, Idaho, The Kiss Waltz, Whistlin' Rufus, Teviot Bridge, Liverpool Hornpipe. Marjorie Diller: Take Me Back To Your Heart; Wilf Davidson: Blue Tail Fly; Pete Couture: The Assiniboine Breakdown.

Mae West in London.—Mae West has arrived in London to produce a play.

"Who is this guy Big Ben?" Miss West is reported to have asked newsmen. "I'd like him to come up and see me some time."

Big Ben is the Houses of Parliament clock, whose chimes are heard throughout the world on BBC transmissions. He stands 320 feet above street level, and there is no lift; so if the two are to meet it looks as if Miss West will have to do the coming up.—BBC London Letter.

Trees.—The world today makes 4,000 articles from the common tree. Tomorrow it will make many more. Canada is a land of trees. We own more acres of forest per capita than any other people on earth. Our whole economy is tuned to the song of the saw.—John Fisher, on CBC.
