This Is Indeed the Golden Age of Music

WE ARE indebted to Viva Liebling, our music editor, for calling our attention to the unparalleled number of fine music programs now available to listeners. One look at our renewed "March of Music" department is abundant confirmation. Turn to page 14 now and see for yourself.

Those names may mean little as yet, but read them through. The Cincinnati Symphony offers "The Swan of Tuonela," "The Marriage of Figaro" comes from the Metropolitan Opera Company, the NBC Symphony offers an all-Sibelius show in honor of the great composer's birthday, Radio City Music Hall brings another Sibelius celebration, so does the New York Philharmonic; "The Ford Sunday Evening Hour," the new Coca-Cola hour, "The Telephone Hour," the "Voice of Firestone"—these are weddings of commerce and art which give much satisfaction.

Perhaps you have not yet learned to like fine music—and it is something to be learned, as we have discovered for ourselves. We beg of you a favor, then. Tune to either the NBC Symphony or New York Philharmonic's playing of "Finlandia," by Sibelius. The time and hour are on page 14. This is classical music, but I feel certain that it will thrill you right down to your toes. Let your heart, not your head, enjoy that moving anthem which is the last movement and you may begin to understand why Finlanders fought so furiously and so patriotically against Russia, for out of the spirit of brave Finland grew such music.

Fine music does not always mean fancy music. Viva Liebling's comments can guide you to many new pleasures on your radio dial.

THE BATTLE BETWEEN ASCAP AND BMI continues toward a knock-down-and-drag-out struggle. What is this fight all about? The public doesn't know. Probably the public doesn't care. As in most fights, however, the public suffers.

Kay Kyser

It all started years ago when Victor Herbert had an operetta playing on Broadway. One evening he went into a restaurant and heard his own tunes being presented in an elaborate musical revue. He ordered them to stop using his music, but they refused. Herbert sued for damages.

When he won his suit, he organized his friends who were authors, composers and publishers into a group, the purpose of which was to collect money for the use of music owned by those authors, etc.

None will quarrel with the fact that every songwriter is entitled to payment for the use of his works. With that principle, none among the embattled broadcasters of today is in disagreement. What broadcasters do object to is the monopoly which they allege ASCAP (the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers) has become. They object to high-handed methods of doing business, of dictatorial decisions, of like-it-or-lump-it attitudes. Last year they got sick and tired of it. They organized BMI, which means Broadcast Music, Incorporated. BMI was to find new songs and develop new song-writers and make new arrangements of all the old tunes for which the copyrights had expired. All that BMI has been doing very successfully.

THE REAL DIETRICH—which is she? Hell-cat or hothouse ("box-office poison") glamour girl? Movie-Radio Guide tells next week

What may happen soon is this: On January 1 the networks may throw all ASCAP music off the air. The networks want to pay for ASCAP music by the piece—so much for every time it is used—which sounds fair enough to us. ASCAP wants a lump sum, a percentage of all the money taken in by a radio station. Right now, ASCAP and the broadcasters aren't speaking.

If ASCAP music goes off the air, it will mean a new crop of popular music for our ears. Which isn't a bad idea. It will mean the loss of a lot of old theme songs. Well, theme songs are a hangover from radio's diaper days, anyhow. It will mean that Kay Kyser's musical quiz show may have to be reorganized, because he will be prohibited from playing most of the favorites of the last fifty years. Which may not be such a hardship as ASCAP apologists believe, either.

MARLENE DIETRICH is a new woman, and that fact led us to one of the most interesting stories in years. Remember the glamorous glacier who slunk like a contented tiger through hundreds of feet of overstuffed film in the early Dietrich days? Recall the legend of her inscrutable face and her irresistible charm for anything wearing pants? Compare them, above, with the Dietrich of "Destry Rides Again" or "Seven Sinners." Here is a tigress with her hair down, a rootin'-tootin' one-woman riot. Clearly, one of the two Dietrichs was a phony. We wanted to know which. We got the story the hard way—by talking to everyone but Dietrich herself. We were right; one of the Dietrichs was a phony and nobody knew it better than Marlene herself. But which? The story will be in next week's Movie-Radio Guide. Better reserve your copy.

BOY ON THE COVER: When Gerard Darrow was six months old he said his first word, "pretty"; when he was three, he could identify three hundred birds; when he was four he could tell you the difference between "Polypemus Moth" and "Parnassius Smith-eus." Just before this personable young gentleman passed his eighth birthday he became a pioneer star of "Quiz Kids" when this junior "Information, Please" made its bow on NBC last summer. Since his mother's death, when he was four months old, Gerard has lived with his engineer-father, Joseph A. Darrow, his aunt "Bessie" and his grandmother in Chicago, where he now attends public school. He likes swimming, roller-skating, comic strips. His hobbies include collecting birds' nests, marine life specimens, other natural phenomena. His most unusual hobby: Collecting the hair of his pals. His favorite dessert: Ice-cream soda, to which his dad treated him after each "Quiz Kids" broadcast on which he appeared. Natural-color photograph is by M. L. A. Studios. —C. M.

COMING SOON TO YOUR FAVORITE THEATRE

Too many stories are full of fluff and fine phrases. Too many publications go out of their way to present fine writing. Quite often this obscures personality and truth.

Hereunder, straight from the pen of the man who made it his business to learn about Hollywood's most popular leading man, is the forceful and dynamic story of a celebrated favorite of yours.

We hope you will like it as it is—stark, realistic, and as close to Cary Grant's real self as the hair on his head.—Editor.

KEYNOTE to the character of Cary Grant, Hollywood's most eligible bachelor, is the fact that he still knows everyone who knew him "when," and while he doesn't make friends now as easily as he did in his stage days, friendship is a game he plays for keeps. If Grant were entered in a sweepstakes among the people who know him to select the "greatest guy" in Hollywood, he would win the competition hands down. And when both those who knew him on his way up and those who know him now unanimously agree on the kind of guy he is there must be something to it. Grant is six feet two inches tall, weighs 172 pounds, has unruly black hair and brown eyes. Official records give his name as Archibald Alexander Leach, his birthplace as Bristol, England, his birthdate as January 18, 1909. All of this is correct with the exception of his birthdate, and as far as his exuberance and enthusiasm are concerned, he might just as well be the thirty-one his records give him instead of the over-draft age, which he really is.

LAUGHING BACHELOR

The Cary Grant who plays the effervescent, moody, impulsive husbands in pictures such as "The Awful Truth" and "My Favorite Wife" is a good picture of Cary Grant off the screen, except that he isn't married. Along that line, the smart money boys will lay odds of five to one or better that Grant won't marry in the near or even the distant future, in spite of stories to the contrary. He's having too much fun living life as it is to want to change it.

People who know Grant well also claim his eyes are a dead giveaway to the way he is feeling, and if you watch them you can tell exactly what kind of mood he is in. That mood will change oftentimes as quick as he blinks. And there is no half-way in between with Grant. He is either riding on top of the world or meaning around in the depths of despondency. The only things that remain constant are his impulsiveness and his sense of humor.

Grant is a serious and conscientious workman. When he is on a picture, he walks around in something which might be called "a daze," and it is this habit which has given rise to occasional stories and rumors that he was "going high-hat." Fact of the matter is, Grant has a terrific memory for faces and names and seldom forgets them—or fails to acknowledge and cordially greet people whom he has met before.

He is an extremely sensitive individual—and this sensitivity, his exuberance and moodiness are his three most observable characteristics. He is easily hurt, will carry an imagined slight around in his mind for many weeks.

ABOUT the best word to describe Grant is to call him explosive. The best way to get along with him is to talk right back to him. He has a habit of shouting when he becomes enthusiastic and uses this same trait oftentimes as a defense mechanism by which to get out of things he does not want to do. Those who know him watch his eyes when he starts his yelling technique and if there is still a twinkle there (which is most of the time) they shout right back at him. Result is he usually becomes highly amused and breaks into his infectious, bellowing laugh. (More about this laugh later.)

Grant is pretty much of an individualist and has definite ideas on what he wants to do and what he doesn't want to do. People who have worked with and for him seem to he simply shrugged his shoulders and never did anything about it. Speaking of other times when his "pals from the old days" took advantage of him was the case of one actor who came in from New York and was given a lift by Grant. This chap hung around his place and lived off him for months, finally wrecking his automobile twice. Grant decided that that was just about enough, so out he went.

Together with Grant's characteristic of not making friends easily but sticking to them when he finally decides they are real guys is a trait which is rather unusual for Hollywood. He simply will not listen to gossip of any kind, shape or description about anybody, and he himself will not talk about anyone whom he knows or anyone who might be the subject of any discussion. If you wanted to gossip with Grant about someone, and took pictures along to prove what you had to say was true, Grant probably would give you an argument and couldn't be convinced—if your story was uncomplimentary or harmful.

Perhaps the most characteristic example of Cary's impulsiveness was the manner in which he and Randy Scott teamed up and established bachelor quarters together. These two lived to-agree that he says "no" more graciously and still more firmly than any other actor in town. In other words, if Grant refuses to do something, a publicity man asks him to do (or publicity girl—his attraction for women is phenomenal) he makes his refusal in such a way that no one's feelings are hurt—and while they oftentimes do not accomplish what they are supposed to, they nevertheless feel kindly toward Grant anyway and get right in and pitch for him the next time they are assigned to do some work on him.

FAMOUS AS A COMEDIAN, Cary (with Martha Scott) had to be eased into his serious portrayal in "The Howards of Virginia." The performance he gave is proof of his amazing versatility

Grant is very methodical about everything he does having to do with physical appearance, both of anything he owns and what he wears. He is an ash-tray emptier, a rug-straightener, and a chair-mover-arounder. He has his shirts all tailor-made, formerly imported his clothes from England. Although his clothes are always of the most conservative type and in excellent taste, he takes a keen delight in selecting them for himself—and also buying novelties for others.

At one time he owned a haberdashery store in New York City (this type of wearing-apparel is his weakness) and later opened a shop in Hollywood. The store and its management fascinated him so much that his work "at the shop" began to interfere seriously with his motion-picture career. It finally got to the stage where Grant had to decide between continuing on as a movie star or becoming a clothing salesman—so he steeled himself and got rid of the haberdashery. When all of the smoke cleared away, he found that the fellow he had running the store (a pal from "the good old days" whom he tried to do a favor by giving him a job) had nicked him to the tune of about six thousand dollars. Instead of prosecuting the ex-manager, gether intermittently for about seven years (time taken out while Grant was married to Virginia Cherrill, and also while Scott was married) and still are the best of friends, although Grant now lives by himself in the former Norma Talmadge home, which he bought about a year ago.

At the time that the two met, Grant was working at Paramount and Scott was a newcomer to the lot. They met at lunch one day in the commissary. Scott happened to remark that he was looking for a place to live and Cary popped right back with "Well, why don't you come and stay with me?" This happened within a few minutes after they had met each other, and the combination hit it off very well. Randy is a very steady, conservative sort of individual, and seems to offset the temperamental, effervescent, one-minute-moody, the next-minute-mercurial-and-dynamic Cary Grant. This evidently is the thing that makes them such good friends.

STRANGE as it may seem, Grant likes the simpler things. He goes to big parties, of course, and has a good time; if he's in a good mood he's quite apt to be the life of the party. At the same time, he gets a big kick out of neighborhood movies, roller-coasters and the beach. His idea of a rip-roaring good time is to get together a number of his old-time pals from vaudeville and stage days, then sit around spinning yarns and pounding out English ditties on the piano and singing. He is very serious about his work and seldom goes out while he is working.

Here is a thing that few people know about Cary Grant. He is part Spanish on his mother's side. To this may be attributed his olive coloring and his rather volatile temperament, not exactly to be expected in an Englishman.

English born, Grant has taken out his first papers. He hasn't continued in establishing his citizenship in this country because of the European situation, feeling that with conditions as they are it might appear as though he weren't standing by, as every good Englishman should—and as Cary Grant certainly is!

Grant is a sucker for a touch. For this reason he has had to have advice on money matters, and the sometimes penurious aspersions which have been cast at him can definitely be traced to these businessmen who help him run his affairs. As far as Grant is concerned himself, he probably would be broke all of the time if he didn't have some protection.

Although much has been written about Grant since he hit the big-time—most stories about him tell his early life in England and on the stage, then generally jump to the beach-house here for a time shared with Randy Scott—there was an in-between period during which he lived in a studio apartment in Westwood. He probably had as much fun at this time as he ever had before or since. It was while he was living at this Westwood apartment that the incident of the colored house-boy occurred. Also the episode of the invited guests who came to breakfast. And the adventure of the clacking pelican.

Hilarious incidents from Cary Grant's private life, the never-before-published reason why he appeared in "The Philadelphia Story," more amazing details about filmdom's number one glamour boy will appear in Part II of "Laughing Bachelor," to be published in MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE next week. This Week in HOLLYWOOD

TIS reported that Charlie Chaplin's next motion picture will be budgeted at less than a million dollars, which is pure penury for Charlie. But more surprising is the somewhat-expected-in-Hollywood news that Paulette Goddard will not be in it. Scribes who have endeavored to learn whether a Chaplin-Goddard divorce is in prospect have been turned away skillfully without learning anything. Incidentally, Paulette was given court orders November 18 after her father's suit for a doubling of the seventy-five-dollar-a-week allowance she is now paying to him. Her father, Joseph R. Levee, claims that he needs $150 a week, because what his daughter is currently paying him is insufficient for his needs, and he cannot obtain a job because a magazine article once stated that Miss Goddard was not his daughter.

Shirley Temple Loses Tonsils

When Shirley Temple went to the hospital November 16 to have her tonsils removed, she became the subject again for newspaper headlines. But to Shirley it was a lark, for she had promised her girl friends at school that she would give a detailed report of what took place. Carrying out her promise, she counted up to one hundred trying to retain consciousness, but then the ether caught up with her and so she didn't find out how the job was done after all. Present at the operation were her mother and father, and the tonsillectomy had no complications. She has returned to school and, according to the latest word from M-G-M, there is a strong likelihood that she will resume her film career there after the first of the year.

English Actor Has Scare

On the night of his greatest triumph as a screen actor, when "The Letter," in which he so capably supports Bette Davis, was being previewed, James Stephenson observed a newspaper headline and could hardly see the preview for worry. Reason was that the newspapers shouted that Coventry, England, had been badly bombed and that the cathedral there had suffered. What Stephenson remembered was that his brother, Alan, had been organist at the St. Michael's Cathedral at Coventry for the last eight years, so he cabled immediately following the preview for word of his brother. Word came back that Alan was not hurt, although the church had been blown to bits. Now Stephenson is attempting to locate in the United States an organ-playing job for his brother, one of the best musicians in England.

Portentful Potpourri

The baby market is strong: Carole Lombard and Clark Gable became aunt and uncle when Carole's brother, Frederick Peters, became the father of a seven-pound boy. The John Waynes are expecting their fourth visit any minute, and the bird is fluttering over the John Carradine home, too. Wally Beery, who has been doing a swell job of raising two adopted children, is negotiating for the adoption of a third . . . Barbara Hutton, who really likes California and Cary Grant, is building in Beverly Hills and attempting also to buy a mansion at Palm Springs . . . And Cary Grant was not only the star contributor to the American Red Cross and the British War Relief Fund but he did just as well with his donation to the Community Chest . . . Paramount Pictures will take a vote from the 150 leading book critics of the country for the cast they would prefer to see enact "For Whom the Bell Tolls" . . . The Bennett sisters, Connie, Joan and Barbara, lost their mother, Mrs. Adrienne Morrison, fifty-two, when she died the day before Thanksgiving from apparently natural causes; the three sisters immediately flew east for the funeral . . . Louis Hayward helped Ida Lupino to celebrate their second happy wedding anniversary with a gift of amethyst earrings to match the bracelet he gave her last year . . . Too bad about Eddie Bracken and his wife having that auto crash en route to Palm Springs and the East for a two-month vacation; both had made so many plans for the fun they were going to have, and now Mrs. Bracken will be laid up for weeks . . . Harry Barris, the singing composer and actor, and his wife, Lois, were slightly injured November 19 in a Los Angeles auto collision. Barris is currently working in "Blondie Goes Latin" . . . Elsa Lanchester has been put under a long-term contract by RKO-Radio Pictures, with the intention of starring her with her famous husband, Charles Laughton . . . Add to the Nice People Department: Donald Crisp. Actor Crisp attends auctions at warehouses and buys up clothes, medicine and other necessities for the British needy. He is a veritable one-man relief organization.

"Tobacco Road" Becomes Mystery

With Elizabeth Patterson set as Ada Lester, and Zeffie Tilbury engaged to play the grandmother in "Tobacco Road," its casting appears to be complete, but, from there on in to the preview, 20th Century-Fox has ordered the production to be made with the greatest of secrecy and no efforts at ballyhoo. Similar to the system used during the filming of "The Grapes of Wrath," the studio will not even give the members of the cast complete scripts of the screen play, and, to veil further the production, most of the picture will be made on the studio lot rather than going to Georgia on location. Interesting fact: Two hundred thousand dollars and additional royalty payments was the price 20th-Fox had to pay Erskine Caldwell and Jack Kirkland for the play which established a six-year run record on Broadway. Previously announced casting includes Charlie Grapewin (Grandpa in "Grapes of Wrath") as Jeeter Lester, Marjorie Rambeau as the sanctimonious sister Bessie, William Tracey as Dude, Gene Tierney as Ellie May, and Ward Bond as Love Bency.

It's a Date

HOLLYWOOD HEARTBEAT

THE Sandy Cummings-Alice

Faye romance is on the up-beat; they're being seen together oftener and oftener . . . The Myrna Loy-Arthur Hornblow divorce will be filed before this reaches the newsstands; charges, incompatibility. A property settlement already has been arranged and everything will be very quiet . . . In obtaining her uncontested divorce from Mischa Auer, his wife claimed comedian Mischa wasn't funny at home; meantime, Auer is consoling himself by taking Maria Montez to the Pirates' Den, etc. . . . Betty Grable, who received her final decree from Jackie Coogan November 19, has stated to the press that not alone does she have the understanding with her studio (20th Century-Fox) that she is not to be married again for at least another year, but "the man I would want to marry hasn't come along yet." She explained away Victor Mature as merely a good friend and pal . . . That's the situation between Hedy Lamarr and Reginald Gardiner, too, according to Hedy. "We," says Hedy, "are not romantic!" . . . Actor Broderick Crawford and actress Kay Griffith were wed at Andy Devine's ranch home Thanksgiving Day; they sailed to Honolulu for their honeymoon . . . Author Ernest Hemingway and Martha Gellhorn, of St. Louis, also were married Thanksgiving Day in Cheyenne, Wyoming . . . Adele Pearce, who divorced Malcolm "Bud" McTaggart last August, was reconciled to him last week when both were cast together in a Columbia picture . . . Alan Curtis and Ilona Massey are making wedding plans for next April; Tex Ritter and Dorothy Fay will be wed soon.

Coming Attractions

Soon to join Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck as a star is baby elephant "Dumbo," which learns to fly by flapping its ears! . . . Don Ameche, after so many of those biographical roles, will play himself practically in a remake of "Stand Up and Cheer!" . . . Madeleine Carroll doesn't want to take part in "There's Always Juliet," because its scene is laid in London where her sister was recently bombed and killed . . . Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette join forces for the next Autry Republic feature, a showboat story, and Republic announces that its "Babes on Broadway" will show off the talents of Carol Adams, Lois Ranson, Jane Frazee, June Johnson and Marily Hare . . . Walter Huston will portray Doc Halliday, the gambler, in Howard Hughes' production of "The Outlaw" . . . RKO proposes to make the most of Lucille Ball's enamoration with Desi Arnaz by casting them together in "Havana." Lucille likewise gets a break in that Harold Lloyd thinks she is pretty swell in his forthcoming picture, "A Girl, a Guy and a Gob," and expects to star her in another comedy after the first of the year . . . Paramount has given Preston Foster the starring part in "Casey Jones," a railroad story once planned for Bob Burns.

Odds and Ends

Marlene Dietrich's striped shorts, topped with a plain blouse adorned by diamond clips, were the talk last week of Arrowhead Springs . . . Any mother having quadruplets in the next month can make a thousand-dollar bonus for their services in the Paramount picture, "New York Town" . . . 'Tis said Wally Beery was slapped so hard by Laraine Day in "The Bad Man" that the noise blew out a microphone . . . A company that records bedtime stories for youngsters is seeking the services of Peter Lorre, because the bogey-man's voice is said to be one of the most soothing in the business! . . . Mary Martin's mother is now a licensed real-estate operator in California; her first deal was to peddle a house complete with swimming-pool to Hanley Stafford, radio father of Baby Snooks . . .

Frank Morgan, foreseeing a run of musicals on the screen, is taking tap-dancing lessons to refresh his memory . . . Orson Welles' picture, "Citizen Kane," is now over two hours long and will be sneak-previewed in eight cities before the Hollywood critics see it. Serves 'em right.

Orson to Star Dolores?

Orson Welles has proclaimed a comedy find in Fortunio Bonanova as the result of the South American star's work in the soon-to-be-shown Welles film, "Citizen Kane." Consequently, RKO-Radio Pictures are giving Bonanova special consideration for a leading role in "They Met in Argentina," in which cast already penciled in are Buddy Ebsen, the Rio Brothers, and Roland Drew. Welles, whose heart is palpating fiercely these days over Dolores Del Rio, is keenly interested in Mexico and all of Latin America; has confided to friends that he would like to do an epic picture with the Spanish motif, with, unquestionably, Dolores Del Rio as its star.

Has Hughes Another Harlow?

Howard Hughes, the millionaire flyer-producer, who will re-enter the motion-picture production field shortly by making a film titled "The Outlaw," has announced two unknowns for the leading roles. They are nineteen-year-old Jane Russell, a Bemidji, Minnesota, girl, and Jack Beutek, twenty-one, of Dallas, Texas.

Event of the Week:

Wonderland, the Christmas Show of Magic City, built at 5843 Wilshire Boulevard, opened with much fanfare and a representative star attendance November 19 to amuse not alone youngsters during the holiday season but their adult escorts as well. Proceeds will go to the British War Relief Association of California, with the show organized under direction of Alan Mowbray and C. Aubrey Smith.

Almost an entire city block is covered with many unusual and entertaining devices put under canvas to attract and thrill the holiday throngs. Leon Schlesinger's "Looney Tune" and "Merrie Melody" characters come to life; here too are seen Santa Claus' workshop and castle, the Snow Mountains, the Rainbow Forest, the Snow Man's Cave, a mechanical menagerie, Ginger Bread House, part of Jane Withers' famous collection of more than 1,700 dolls, a Castle of Magic, a performing chimpanzee, and a model-airplane factory.

Attending the gala opening were Brian Aherne with his wife, Joan Fontaine, Heather Angel, Lionel Atwill, Maureen O'Hara, Maureen O'Sullivan, Jean Hersholt, Ian Hunter, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Reginald Gardiner, Marie Wilson, Gene Lockhart, Freddie Bartholomew, Basil Rathbone, Jane Withers, Billy Gilbert and others.

Alan Mowbray, observing a pathetic little miss wishfully looking upon Jane Withers' collection of dolls, pressed a doll he was carrying into her arms and disappeared.

The unusual Christmas Show will continue until Christmas Eve.

Reviews

This week's films are liberally seasoned with spice of life—variety

"Arizona"

Cast: Jean Arthur, William Holden, Warren William, Porter Hall, Paul Harvey, George Chandler, Byron Foulger, Regis Toomey, Edgar Buchanan, et al. A Columbia picture, produced and directed by Wesley Ruggles, who also directed "I Met Him in Paris" and "Sing You Sinners." From the story by Clarence Budington Kelland.

FILMED at a cost of over two million dollars, "Arizona" is a wild tale of the early settlers in old Tucson, where law was respected only when backed by force and courage.

Rather slow-paced and detailed throughout, the picture manages to hold interest as the plot unfolds because of its broad, pioneering theme.

Jean Arthur, as Phoebe Titus, is the only respected white woman in Tucson. She maintains her reputation by being absolutely independent and not asking any favors because of her sex. She makes her livelihood by baking pies, and can't keep the supply up with the demand.

When young cowboy Bill Holden comes to town, he meets Jean almost immediately. They fall in love at first sight but Jean has definite ambitions to realize before she settles down. Her chief desire is to own a large ranch. To get this, she goes into the freight-hauling business and makes a success of it. When the U. S. Army leaves to fight in the East, outlawry again takes over Tucson. Jean's freighting business is ruined through Indian attacks framed by her competitors.

She then decides to bring a thousand head of cattle through Indian country to Tucson, and tells Bill that if he can do it she'll marry him. He brings the cows through, and they are married in the most exciting scene of the picture. Immediately after the ceremony Bill leaves Jean to settle a score with Warren William, the villain, and their battle is another high spot, both from an acting and photographic standpoint.

Warren William is so effective as the villain that the preview audience soon took to hissing when he appeared. Edgar Buchanan is ingratiating and humorous as the judge. Paul Harvey, as Jean's business partner, Solomon Warner, is very good, and Porter Hall is convincing as small-town boss Lazarus Ward. Jean Arthur and Bill Holden are, of course, tops. So is the picture.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Jimmie Fidler, "A glorified western, but 'Lord, how glorified! . . ." The Hollywood Reporter, "A truly great American picture. Much more than a super-western, it is a vivid and absorbing historical document." Variety, "An amazing amount of romance, excitement, pioneer episode and historical pageantry."

"Escape to Glory"

Cast: Pat O'Brien, Constance Bennett, John Halliday, Melville Cooper, Alan Baxter, Edgar Buchanan, Marjorie Gateson, et al. A Columbia picture. Produced by Samuel Bischoff, directed by John Brahm, who also directed "Let Us Drive."

HERE is a thrilling drama of an adventure aboard ship. It offers intense suspense and moderate action. The theme is largely psychological and slightly reminiscent of "Outward Bound," with war the motivating influence.

Pat O'Brien plays a mercenary soldier of fortune. Surprisingly, Constance Bennett is given a very inferior part and, in fact, is not called upon to do any serious acting. There are also Erwin Kalser, famed German doctor; John Halliday, an American district attorney; Alan Baxter, cynical outlaw; Marjorie Gateson, selfish dowager; Melville Cooper, ship's jack-of-all trades. These people, and others, find themselves thrown together on an English freighter bound for the United States. Soon after its departure, war is declared between England and Germany, which immediately makes the German doctor an enemy of the British ship and he is confined to quarters as a prisoner. The first day out the ship is attacked by a German submarine. The vessel is able to escape only after three of the passengers sacrifice themselves to launch a lifeboat and send down a depth charge to blow up the sub. The tenacity of this climax is tremendous.

With the World War raging, the studio had its difficulties filming this story. It was impossible to charter a real freighter, and a papier-mache duplicate had to be built in the studio. As much of the action was in the engine-room, this particular part of the reproduction had to be especially well done. Because the nation's supply of submarines also seemed to be very busy, Columbia technicians also had to duplicate one of these little instruments of war.

"Escape to Glory" is exciting, adult drama, even entertaining, if you like your pictures on the heavy side. There are many intriguing and unusual elements to make the picture come alive under the excellent direction and characterizations given. Pat O'Brien's role is sincerely and well portrayed. Of the supporting cast, Alan Baxter and Melville Cooper show up to the best advantage. Others are excellent.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Los Angeles Times (Edwin Schallert), "First-rate thriller . . ." Hedda Hopper: "An escape from boredom." Variety, "Suspenseful treatment of timely topical subject." Hollywood Reporter, "Too much confusion before the plot becomes clear . . ."

"Little Nellie Kelly"

Cast: Judy Garland, George Murphy, Charles Winninger, Douglas McPhail, Arthur Shields, et al. A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, produced by Arthur Freed and directed by Norman Taurog, who also directed "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer." Based on a musical comedy by George M. Cohan.

JUDY GARLAND gains star billing and joins the adults of the screen with her dual role in "Little Nellie Kelly," which might have been less dragging and more entertaining had its tempo matched the performances of Judy, George Murphy and Charles Winninger. But it didn't.

Perhaps some of the earlier scenes will be sliced to speed the picture before public release. All that they develop now are the courtship of Judy by George Murphy over the objection of Judy's dad, Charles Winninger. Murphy wins Judy, the couple and her father arrive in America, and Judy (the first) dies in childbirth.

Here comes the interesting angle of the story: Little Nellie is likewise played by Judy Garland, and so, oddly enough, in this picture Judy grows from a mature or older role to a younger characterization. Meantime, Judy's granddad and her father still maintain their feud, and comes the day when her suitor, Douglas McPhail, pleads for her hand, and Granddad again objects. He is ruled out, however, and everyone is happy at the ending.

As in the George Cohan musical comedy version, there are two songs, both sung by Judy Garland, "Nellie Kelly I Love You" and "Singin' in the Rain."

Judy really renders a truly fine performance as both Nellie Kelly and Little Nellie Kelly, and Charles Winninger is very amusing as Granddad.

Douglas McPhail, young singing star who first came into prominence in "Babes in Arms" and "Sweethearts," plays his first straight dramatic role as Dennis Fogarty, who falls in love with Nellie. His father, Timothy Fogarty, is adequately portrayed by Arthur Shields, noted stage star, who is known to movie audiences for his work in the historical film, "Drums Along the Mohawk."

The picture is made against the colorful backgrounds of a village in old Ireland and New York. An entire section of Fifth Avenue was built on the M-G-M lot in Hollywood for the filming of important scenes.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Los Angeles Times (John L. Scott), "The picture is too long." Variety, "As rollicking and melodious a piece of mass entertainment as has been offered in many a moon." Hollywood Reporter, "It's a hit show because it has little Judy Garland."

"Tin Pan Alley"

Cast: Alice Faye, Betty Grable, Jack Oakie, John Payne, Allen Jenkins, Esther Ralston, Nicholas Brothers, Billy Gilbert, et al. A 20th Century-Fox picture, produced by Kenneth Macgowan and directed by Walter Lang, who also directed "I'll Give a Million." Music includes six favorites of 1917, with the new song "You Say the Sweetest Things, Baby," by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren.

"TIN PAN ALLEY" is a musically excellent and entertaining story of the music-publishing business, particularly that fictitious team known as Calhoun and Harrigan (Jack Oakie and John Payne) and their ups and downs.

Individually, Jack Oakie adds new laurels to his career as a top-notch comedian, and young John Payne has one of his first good opportunities to show that he knows how to handle a love scene.

The story goes back to the 1917-18 period, with the styles of that date authentically (comically now to us) reproduced and with the music-publishing business as the main premise of the picture. Six old-time hits of the 1916-17-18 era are dusted off and reproduced with the better orchestrations and methods that are available today. All of the songs will benefit, but unquestionably "America I Love You," by Edgar Leslie and Archie Gottler (with lyrics strangely appropriate today during World War II), will head again toward the top of the Hit Parade. Other old songs featured by the film include "Good-Bye Broadway, Hello France," "K-K-K-Katy," "Moonlight Bay," "Honeysuckle Rose" and "The Sheik of Araby." Mack Gordon and Harry Warren contribute "You Say the Sweetest Things, Baby," an original.

Plot of the story is thin, but well decorated with music and pulchritude. It concerns chiefly the attempts of Payne (Harrigan) and Oakie (Calhoun) to win success as music-publishers, with the aid of song-and-dance team Katie and Lily Blane (Alice Faye and Betty Grable).

Principals are laughingly supported by Allen Jenkins, and the audience acclaimed again the dance-team work of the Nicholas Brothers, as they did also the appearance and dance steps of Billy Gilbert as "The Sheik of Araby."

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Hedda Hopper, "Jack Oakie is by way of being a sensation. The audience loved the picture." Los Angeles Times (Edwin Schallert), "Successful in sustaining the mood of music, Oakie is the real panic in the picture; an amusing and, in the main, attractive picture." The Hollywood Reporter, "Mr. Zanuck has trotted out a smash musical hit for the customers." Variety, "An unquestionable hit, with its varied entertainment items . . ."

GOWER STREET
Gaieties

Entertainment, Inc.: Here's what comes of the weird goings-on at RKO

GEORGE J. SCHAEFER, president of RKO-Radio Pictures, Inc., is the quiet genius responsible for the Gower Street gang's place in the cinema sun

ALL RKO is divided into three parts, and the most important part is that star-jammed twelve acres lying between Melrose Avenue and Santa Monica Boulevard on Gower Street. Here such New York musicals as "No, No, Nanette" and "Sunny" are in process of being filmed; here such best-selling novels as "Kitty Foyle" find their way onto film, and such noted dramatic successes as "They Knew What They Wanted" are given to that portion of the public which never sees Broadway.

The other two parts are "The Ranch," a ninety-acre tract twenty miles out on Ventura Boulevard where exteriors are shot, and the twenty-five acres at "Pathe" where many of the one hundred ninety short subjects to be made during 1940-41 will be turned out.

But on Gower Street anything can happen, and last year it did in the form of Orson Welles, boy genius of radio, who was permitted to write his own ticket as writer-producer-director-actor. George J. Schaefer, president of RKO, is a man of great faith. Also he is a very tolerant man, which accounts for some of the weird goings-on in Gower Street. When Welles first came out, he was going to adapt and make Conrad's "Heart of Darkness." After working several months on it, the idea was junked for an original, "Smiler With a Knife." Nothing happened to the Smiler, either, and just about the time movie folk—other than Schaefer—were losing their faith in young Welles, he started testing actors for a new film, "Citizen Kane." It wasn't until the tests were all run off that Welles let studio executives into his little secret. He wasn't testing at all, and the film he'd exposed was really the picture.

Those who have seen rushes of the Welles film believe it will be one of the great pictures to come out of Hollywood this year.

To get a better idea of what happens on Gower Street, have a look at the stars who cavort across the many business-like sound-stages that rise from the level California countryside. Ginger Rogers, Charles Laughton, Carole Lombard, Charles Boyer, Cary Grant, Jean Arthur, Ronald Colman, Richard Dix, Edmund Lowe, Jean Hersholt, Anna Neagle, Maureen O'Hara, Anne Shirley, Kay Francis, Jack Oakie, Charles Winninger, Lee Tracy, Lupe Velez and Leon Errol are a few of the many who lend color to the Gower Street lot.

Take the last named—Lupe Velez and Leon Errol. This hilarious duo is currently making the "Mexican Spitfire" series, which is guaranteed to roll cash customers in the aisles, and any time you visit the Gower Street studio you're apt to find chinaware and fragile vases flying on the lot where they work. To add to the casual visitor's confusion, on the next set Anna Neagle will probably be going through some highly romantic paces for "No, No, Nanette," set to the lovely music of Vincent Youmans.

Out of all this, however, RKO will bring fifty-three feature films during the 1940-41 season and an approximate one hundred ninety short subjects, including the "March of Time" releases, "Information, Please" shorts, and the product of the Walt Disney plant. Although Disney's work is not done in either of the three rings of Schaefer's circus—Disney owning and operating his own specialized and very complete studio—his films are released through RKO.

Perhaps the top star at RKO is Ginger Rogers, who graduated from the glorified musicals for which RKO is famous into such serious drama as Christopher Morley's portrait of a white-collar girl, "Kitty Foyle." Ginger has been having no holiday on Gower Street, and, with "Kitty Foyle" barely finished, she is already preparing for her part in "Two on an Island," from Elmer Rice's Broadway success. Also on her schedule for the current year is a picture written especially for her, tentatively titled "Tom, Dick and Harry."

On a lot which boasts the services of Cary Grant, every so often furious comedy at a hectic pace is expected, but even Cary Grant is sometimes dumfounded by the carryings-on of Gene Towne and Graham Baker, independent producers whose most recent exploit was the bringing of Elsie the Cow all the way from the eastern farm, where she sojourned to Gower Street to be milked by Kay Francis in a three-minute scene for the film, "Little Men." Towne and Baker used to be a writing team. Once, according to a Hollywood legend, one of the teammates outlined an idea for a picture-story to a producer at luncheon. The producer, impressed, told the writer to send him an outline the next day and he'd pay him ten thousand dollars. Came the next day, and the writer had forgotten his idea. So had the producer, who thereby saved ten thousand dollars and probably lost a hundred thousand.

TODAY RKO is at the peak of its popularity—a popularity due largely to the shrewd executive ability of Schaefer and his right-hand man, Joe Nolan. For the most part, RKO makes films of stories which are highly successful as fiction. This year, for example, they are filming Theodore Dreiser's "Sister Carrie"; Clarence Budington Kelland's "Valley of the Sun"; Gene Stratton Porter's "Freckles" and "Laddie." Last year, Towne and Baker put onto film those literary classics, "Swiss Family Robinson" and "Tom Brown's School Days."

RKO has also drawn largely upon Broadway for shows—both musical and otherwise—which have been hits. Anna Neagle, now working on "No, No, Nanette," will follow it with the Dillingham stage success, "Sunny." "They Knew What They Wanted," made this year, is from one of the all-time great plays of the stage.

RKO has also drawn upon radio for talent which has been tested. Both Kay Kyser films, "That's Right, You're Wrong" and "You'll Find Out," are RKO pictures. Lum and Abner are making their second picture there and a recent release was the radio-comic strip favorite, "Li'l Abner." The "Scattergood Baines" pictures to be made shortly are also based upon the stories about the character and the radio serial. Jean Hersholt's "Dr. Christian" series first found voice on radio also.

An interesting new addition to the Gower Street gang is comedian Harold Lloyd, whose first production, "A Guy, a Girl and a Gob," will shortly be released. Now Lloyd is talking about making a second picture—and acting in it himself. Dual responsibilities seem to be the rule at RKO. In addition to Orson Welles, producer-directors on the lot include George Abbott, David Butler and Herbert Wilcox. Other producers include Howard S. Benedict, Bert Gilroy, Erich Pommer, David Hempstead, Robert Sisk, Cliff Reid, all working under executive producers Harry E. Edington and Lee Marcus.

Directors at the Gower Street Gaieties include Leslie Goodwins, Jack Hively, Edward Killy, Boris Ingster, Garson Kanin, Ray McCarey, Anatole Litvak, Lewis Milestone and Irving Reis. Among the films to be turned out there this year not already mentioned are: Jean Arthur in "The Devil and Miss Jones"; Cary Grant in "Passport to Life"; Charles Boyer in "Ariane Pretends" and another untitled at the moment; Ronald Colman in a still-untitled picture; a special studio-built musical starring Maureen O'Hara and Gene Raymond, "They Met in Argentina"; Towne and Baker's novelty film, "How to Meet a Man"; Lupe Velez and Leon Errol comedy, "Lord Epping Entertains"; Carole Lombard in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," and another Orson Welles film.

TIN PAN ALLEY was a street running off of Eighth Avenue which abounded in cheap eating-houses, shabby brownstone buildings and dark, cramped rooms for rent. The tinkling sound of song-writers picking out tunes they hoped would some day make them famous could be heard day and night. Some few found wealth and glory there. More found only stark disillusionment and physical hunger. This is the Tin Pan Alley which 20th Century-Fox brings alive, gambling a fortune that the public will be attracted to nostalgic tunes of yesteryear—tunes like "K-K-K-Katy," "Moonlight Bay," "When You Were a Tulip and I Wore a Big Red Rose." Betty Grable and Alice Faye are co-stars.

THE BLANE SISTERS also go to London, where they click in a revue. Katie is being attended by a young British officer, but, learning that Harrigan is in London, rushes to station just before he leaves for France (see center picture)

Scoop

Judy Garland Makes Love

JUDY GARLAND, playing her first mature part in "Little Nellie Kelly," will be seen in her first love scene on the screen (first picture, right) as an Irish immigrant kid who marries Jerry Kelly (George Murphy). Going the whole hog in this love business, Judy later enacts the role of her own daughter grown to young womanhood, with Murphy now playing the role of her father (second picture, right). Judy, in this later sequence, is romantically interested in Dennis Fogarty (Douglas McPhail), who came into prominence with Judy and Mickey Rooney in "Babes in Arms." A romantic comedy, the film swings from the colorful background of an old Irish village to the modern New York, with such famous musical numbers as "The Wearin' o' the Green," "Danny Boy" and "You Remind Me of My Mother" interspersed in the fast, sometimes funny and sometimes heart-touching action. Highlights of the film include a reproduction of the famous New York Police School, authoritatively and accurately done, in which the step-by-step training of George Murphy takes place. Real highlight of the picture, however, will be the first screen appearance of a youngster the movie-going public has watched grow from a child to a full-fledged, grown-up portrayal. And Judy handles it with capable ease.

Scoop

John Doe Makes Faces

PERHAPS the script of no other picture (excepting "The Great Dictator") has been as carefully guarded from the public as that of Frank Capra's "Meet John Doe." Still pictures on the set, barring these published for the first time, have been guarded with equal zeal. Because Frank Capra's film masterpieces are always of interest and because these pictures give a fleeting insight into the tale unfolding behind the closed doors of the "John Doe" set on the Warner lot, MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE's editors are proud of this scoop. John Doe (Gary Cooper) has been operating a scheme whereby people send him a dime a day, and the newspapers—and Edward Arnold—decide to tear him to shreds. They tag him as a fake and a hoax until he crashes into the radio studio during their broadcast and tells his side of the story (picture at left). He does not have much time in which to speak his mind, however, for police pounce upon him and haul him away (picture at far left). John Doe is an average American. Gary Cooper plays him to perfection. Over 12,000 letters were received from girls over the country who wanted to play Mrs. John Doe, an average American wife. Barbara Stanwyck won the coveted role. There are 140 speaking parts in "Meet John Doe."

ORRIN TUCKER and Bonnie Baker may or may not say anything about

MAESTRO RAY NOBLE (l.) and emcee Pat O'Malley (r.) join Templeton in "Alec Templeton Time" trio (NBC, Fri.)

"Alec Templeton Time"

Here are some interesting facts to touch up a favorite program

IT MUST have been true radio inspiration that guided the makers of Alka-Seltzer and the Wade Advertising Agency to hit upon the combination that twirls a multitude of dials to the NBC Friday night spot which opens the loudspeakers to "Alec Templeton Time."

It's a rare combination, indeed—that of Alec Templeton, Pat O'Malley and Ray Noble and orchestra. All three personalities have plus-talent and minus-temperament, and fit together like ham and eggs and fried potatoes. No innuendo meant by the "ham and eggs" phrase, though the boys even touch up their show with a bit of hamming just for fun. All three British-born, they have been in America long enough and like America so well that they fit the American scene also like ham and eggs and potatoes. All three jolly, witty and sociable, they match the sponsor's effervescent, analgesic product for bringing that feeling-well smile. And all three being talented entertainers, they fit the listeners' ears to a Templeton Time "T."

In addition to these headliners, the show's cast includes Fort Pearson, who convincingly peddles Alka-Seltzer and helps O'Malley with emcee duties, vocalist Larry Stewart, and occasionally guest artists. The show has three rehearsal periods, about five hours in all, on Thursday and Friday. Musical arrangements are done by both Noble and Templeton, the latter in collaboration with Leo Kempinski. The script continuity, except for O'Malley's monologs, which he writes himself, is written by Edward Simmons, who also directs the show, assisted by J. Clinton Stanley of NBC.

On the air the cast dresses formally, but the atmosphere is definitely informal.

Before going on the air, Pat O'Malley takes general charge of affairs, clowning around with Pearson, Noble and Templeton, and telling stories that wow the studio audience but are usually a little too tangy for radio use. Between the first show and the rebroadcast Noble and his musicians rush to a Chicago hotel for an early-evening session. Alec, with his bride, who usually attends the show, and the others of the cast go to dinner between programs.

In the studio naturally the most unusual spectacle is that of Stanley North, Alec's manager, sitting beside the blind pianist with a script, ready to prompt Alec with his memorized lines and giving him cues by a special system of touch signals. O'Malley has a superstition that if he bumps an elbow in the studio he must immediately bump the other also or expect bad luck. Noble is the picture of poise during the broadcast, but during rehearsal he's an incessant chain-smoker of both cigarettes and cigars. Fort Pearson, besides announcing this and other shows, is kept busy during football season as one of NBC's crack grid reporters.

Away from radio Templeton's professional time is occupied primarily with concert engagements. His favorite hobby is collecting music-boxes; he has many of all sizes and designs. O'Malley is a sports addict. Noble likes all kinds of home games and collects toy soldiers.

Fan-mail response is in general varied, but one theme does stand out—requests for copies of O'Malley's Lancashire stories about "Erbert Pinwinkle, Sam Small, etc., and for copies of Templeton's "parting thoughts" with which he leaves the air.

The "Templeton Time" show costs $12,000 weekly for time and talent.

their recently-announced engagement when they appear on "Fitch Bandwagon" this week, but the addition of the romance factor to their business relationship will add a new note of appeal to Tucker's sparkling band music and Bonnie's ultra-feminine cooing. NBC.

FORECAST OF THE WEEK

Saturday, December 7

THE CINCINNATI CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, CBS. Conservatory Symphony Orchestra, Alexander von Kreisler, conductor. The Swan of Tuonela (Sibelius), Symphony No. 5 "New World" (Dvorak).

The week's Sibelius offerings honoring his seventy-fifth birthday start off with one of his more popular works. The Swan of Tuonela is part of a symphonic poem in four parts based on the great Finnish epic, the Kalevala. A note inscribed in the score reads, "Tuonela, the Kingdom of Death, the Hades of Finnish mythology, is surrounded by a broad river of black water and rapid current, in which the Swan of Tuonela glides in majestic fashion and sings." The piece is brooding and mysterious, and all through it one hears the melancholy song of the Swan, played by the English horn.

MILESTONES IN MUSIC, NBC. Eastman School Orchestra, Dr. Howard Hanson, conductor.

THE METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY PRESENTS "THE MARRIAGE OF FIGARO" BY MOZART, NBC. The cast: Count Almaviva, John Brownlee, baritone; Countess Almaviva, Elisabeth Rethberg, soprano; Susanna, Licia Albanese, soprano; Figaro, Ezio Pinza, bass; Cherubino, Jarmila Novotna, soprano; Marcellina, Irra Petina, soprano; Basilio, Alessio de Paolis, tenor; Don Curzio, George Rasely, tenor; Bartolo, Salvatore Baccaloni, baritone (debut); Antonio, Louis D'Angelo, baritone; Barbarina, Marita Farrell, soprano; Conductor, Ettore Panizza.

A gay and lively tale of eighteenth-century love and intrigue taken from the play by the French writer, Beaumarchais. It takes place in Seville, Spain, and tells how the Countess Almaviva, with the aid of Figaro (her husband's servant and formerly the Barber of Seville), turns the tables on her philandering husband, enamored of Susanna, Figaro's sweetheart. The Count is properly remorseful, Figaro wins his bride and everything ends happily. Mozart's music is light, bubbling and easy on the ear. Highlights of the opera are Cherubino's air and the finale of the first act; the letter duet between Susanna and the Countess, and Cherubino's song "Voi Che Sapete" in the second act; Figaro's tirade against women in Act III; and of course the ever-familiar and delightful overture.

Back again! Renewed and exclusive, to cover radio's greatest musical season

Edited by Viva Liebling

THE NBC SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA, NBC. Arturo Toscanini, conductor. All-Sibelius program. Symphony No. 2, "Pohjola's Daughter," "The Swan of Tuonela," "Finlandia."

Toscanini's tribute to Sibelius' birthday includes the most lyrical of all his symphonies, and the one that is easiest to grasp. Particularly the last movement builds up to a terrific melodic climax, and if Toscanini plays it as he did two years ago, radio listeners have a thrill in store.

"Pohjola's Daughter," symphonic fantasy, was first played in America by Sibelius himself in 1914 at Norfolk, Conn. Like so much of his work, it takes its subject from Finnish mythology. Pohjola is the mythological name for the North Country (Lapland). The maid, or daughter of Pohjola, sits on a rainbow spinning a gold and silver fabric. She is wooed by a hero, and promises to wed him if he can make a boat from the pieces of her magic spindle. He fails, and leaves her to go to his home. The music develops brilliantly. One commentator remarked, "The whole gamut of the tonal spectrum is traversed from end to end."

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL OF THE AIR, NBC. Symphony Orchestra, Erno Rapee, conductor; Ossy Renardy, violinist. Violin Concerto in E Minor (Mendelssohn), Symphony No. 5 (Sibelius).

One of the best-loved and most familiar concertos in the violin concerto repertoire is played here by a young Hungarian violinist who has made quite a name for himself since his debut on the Music Hall program last year. Erno Rapee, who was the first to present a Sibelius festival in this country several years ago, celebrates Sibelius' seventy-fifth birthday by playing his fifth symphony. This was written during the early years of the first World War, was first performed in 1915, and was later completely revised by the composer.

THE NEW YORK PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA, CBS. John Barbirolli, conductor; Gitta Gradova, pianist. "The Return of Lemminkäinen" (Sibelius), Symphony No. 1 (Sibelius), the Orchestra; Rhapsody on a Theme by Paganini (Rachmaninoff), Gitta Gradova and Orchestra; "Finlandia" (Sibelius).

Lemminkäinen was the warrior-hero of the Kalevala and this tone poem describes his return to his country after a long series of wars and combats.

Sibelius composed his first symphony in 1898. His biographer, Karl Ekman, interprets it as "... the struggle of a soul full of conflict for its own salvation." However, the listener can read his own meaning into the work, which is what Sibelius prefers, as he dislikes any literal interpretation of his music.

Rachmaninoff's Rhapsody is of comparatively recent creation (1934). The theme around which he weaves a set of twenty-four variations was also used by Brahms for a set of piano variations. The Rhapsody is written in brilliant style and in rather more modern idiom than is usual with Rachmaninoff. Only in the last variation does the typical Rachmaninoff romanticism appear, in a lyrically lovely melody.

Aside from the "Serenade" and "Ave Maria," Schubert's "Die Forelle" (The Trout) remains the most popular of his songs, published in 1820. Also it is one of the freshest, liveliest and loveliest. Evidently Schubert thought so, too, when, two years later, he made its theme one of the variations in the fourth movement of his famous quintet.

MOZART'S FIGARO, as portrayed by Ezio Pinza, Metropolitan Opera Company basso. He will sing the role Saturday on the Met's opening broadcast over NBC

Met Opens New Season

THE Metropolitan Opera opens its radio season on Saturday afternoon with an opera which last year played to Standing Room Only. Revived after a lengthy absence from the Met repertoire, Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" proved to be the hit of the season, doubtless because of the beauty and sparkle of the performance. New and exquisite scenery and costumes had been designed, and the opera was played with more of an eye to comedy than is usual at the Met. The libretto is witty and decidedly on the risqué side, but unfortunately we hear it in Italian instead of English. It is one of the many operas that would benefit from translation, as was shown not so many weeks ago in New York by a troupe of young singers who put on the "Marriage of Figaro" in English, with the minimum of scenery and in modern clothes. Their show earned praise from highbrow music critics, who said it was one of the most delightful performances they had ever seen.

The Met has so far come down off its high horse to schedule at least one comedy opera in English, Smetana's "Bartered Bride." This was heard some years ago in translation during the Met's spring season, but was not broadcast. Jarmila Novotna, famous for her interpretation of the leading role in her native Czechoslovakia, will attempt it here for the first time in English. Almost everyone who listens to music is familiar with the exhilarating Overture and the Dance of the Comedians.

Other revivals and novelties to be presented by the Met this winter include Donizetti's "Daughter of the Regiment," in which Lily Pons plays the drum (she sings too); Montemezzi's "The Love of Three Kings" with the composer leading his own work; "Alceste," by the early composer Gluck, never before heard at the Metropolitan; Verdi's "The Masked Ball," famous for its baritone aria "Eri Tu"; "Samson and Delilah," the Bible story set to music by the French composer Saint-Saens, and in which the young American mezzo-soprano Rise Stevens scored a sensational success this summer in Buenos Aires; Mozart's "Don Giovanni" and Beethoven's "Fidelio."

Almost a dozen new artists have been engaged, and most of those heard last season remain. A new French soprano, Germaine Lubin, unknown to Americans, is heralded as the best dramatic soprano in France. Other new artists are Alexander Sved, Elsa Zebranska, Arthur Kent, Eleanor Steber and Emery Darcy.

Although the Metropolitan comes to us this year as a sponsored commercial program, the routine of the broadcast will remain as usual. Milton Cross will again be the commentator.

IN ITS much-publicized decision to democratize itself, the Metropolitan seems to have concentrated more on its opera house than on its repertoire. The Diamond Horseshoe is no more, its boxes being on sale to anyone who has the price. The Grand Tier has given way to make room for rows of cheaper seats. There is a new curtain, and many improvements on the stage. But there is very little evidence yet of a determined effort to make opera itself fun for the masses. The Chicago Opera has done wonders in that direction this year, playing to sold-out houses with its various English versions of operas. It even went so far as to have John Charles Thomas come out in his costume for "Aida" and sing "Home on the Range" as an added attraction between the acts. We can't help feeling that this is going a little too far, but it certainly gave the audience a good time. They undoubtedly listened to "Aida" with a lot more enjoyment than usual, even though they probably came away with the idea that it was an Egyptian cowboy opera. "Home on the Range" would sound somewhat out of place at the Met, but the spirit that prompted John Charles Thomas to sing it would give that opera house the revivifying shot in the arm it needs.

Musician of the Week Jan Sibelius

The world honors a great Finn on his seventy-fifth birthday

ON SUNDAY, December 8, Jan Sibelius will be seventy-five years old. Sibelius devotees will doubtless celebrate the occasion with the ardent homage usually reserved for holy personages. Others not so devoted will merely accord ungrudging respect to one of the most notable of the world's living composers.

Perhaps no other music during the last twenty years has provoked as much discussion, has stirred up such violent likes and dislikes as that of Jan Sibelius. Music critics who have fallen under the spell of his strange, fascinating works uncork columns and columns of eulogy. Others, still in a state of doubt, admit that unquestionably Sibelius belongs in the very top rank of composers. Complete dissenters profess to see very little in him, and condemn him for lack of melody and a certain monotony of orchestration.

Sibelius himself is more or less impervious to all this excitement. Acclaimed as Finland's first citizen and most ardent patriot, he lives in his small, isolated villa one hour outside of Helsinki, shrouded by as much privacy as it is possible for mortal man to obtain. Finns, respectful of his wish to be alone, see to it that no outsiders disturb him. Very early in his career his country recognized his genius, and proved its devotion in practical form. When he was thirty-two the government voted him a yearly income which, while not sufficient to take care of all his needs, gave him much more time to spend on his composing. Then too, Finland owes him a very great debt, in that with his music he has made the world conscious of Finland's heroic struggle for freedom. Even before the current Russian invasion, and that of 1918, Finland was forever trying to rid herself of Russian domination. Sibelius pictured this struggle vividly in his tone poem "Finlandia," which has become synonymous with the world over with the little country that has fought so valiantly against such terrific odds.

News from Finland last year claimed that Sibelius had been killed in the invasion. But a few days later he popped up, very much alive, and, according to unconfirmed report, taking pot-shots at Russian planes with an old hunting rifle. The report did not add how many he brought down.

Although it is generally believed that Sibelius based much of his work on Finnish folk music, he denies this. His imagination has been fired by Finnish folk-lore, but the music is original and only suggests folk tunes. He composes without the aid of a piano or any other instrument, planning the composition wholly in his mind and then setting down the finished product on paper. Many of his works have been published without his ever having heard them played.

Critics are fond of using adjectives like "stark," "bleak" and "grim" in their descriptions of Sibelius' music, thus giving an altogether contradictory picture of the man and his country. He is keenly alive, friendly, bubbling over with humor and energy. His country, when not beset by enemies, is a cheerful place where people live well and sanely. Sibelius' passion for privacy is merely a desire to do his work under conditions he finds most agreeable. His house, which he built shortly after his marriage, is of simple and unpretentious log-cabin architecture. There he lives with his wife and children, working most of the time, with a radio and an enormous library as diversion.

Today there is no major symphony orchestra in America that does not include the music of Sibelius in its repertoire. For Sibelius lovers, this week will provide a feast, as almost every good music program is scheduling at least one of his works. For those unfamiliar with his music, this is an opportunity to get acquainted with it and to form their own opinions in the lively Sibelius controversy.—V. L.

BAND OF THE WEEK is Garwood Van's outfit, stamped by the enticing "Rolling Melodies" style, inspired by the rolling swell of the sea on the beaches of the West Coast, where Van's orchestra is one of the top favorites with celebrities as well as others. Line-up of band is below

ON THE BANDWAGON

By

BEST known on the West Coast as having played for more celebrities than any other dance band in the country, Garwood Van's crew has evolved a style known as "Rolling Melodies." Idea for the swelling tones came when the group played at Santa Monica and Van listened to the innuendos of the rolling surf on the beach.

Holding forth at the now-defunct but world-famed Trocadero for a fifty-two-week stand, breaking attendance records continuously, Garwood Van has played the most exclusive hotels on the West Coast, including the San Francisco Fairmont and St. Francis Hotels, the Santa Barbara Biltmore, the Baker Hotel in Dallas and swank Victor Hugo's in Beverly Hills. Featured in many films and innumerable transcriptions, Garwood Van has now signed to make soundies for James Roosevelt-Globe Productions, along with his one-nighter stands throughout the country. Most recent record-breaker was at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium, when all attendance records for two straight nights were broken.

Garwood Van originally hails from Newark, N. J., where, after finishing law school and passing the bar, he turned thumbs down on law and continued with his music. Receiving much success playing for society in New York, Van temporarily retired from music to open a theater in Los Angeles, which he gave up six months later to form his present band.

Tommy Dorsey's band will have to charter a plane and fly from Hollywood to New York on December 14 in order to get to the big city in time for their Paramount Theater engagement . . . Sax tooter George Auld, who used to play in the Artie Shaw band and then led the crew when Shaw gave it up, is now a member of Benny Goodman's new outfit . . . Kay Kyser's next flicker for RKO will be titled "In the Army Now." The idea was born when Kay and his bandmen all lined up to register for the draft . . . Skinny Ennis is also slated for some work before the klieg lights. Skinny has been screen- and voice-tested at Mr. Zanuck's movie lot . . . The Andrews Sisters are back in Hollywood to make their second picture for Universal . . . I wouldn't have believed it if I didn't see it with my own eyes. The current issue of Coronet publishes a Christmas carol written by, of all people, Raymond Scott. Quite a contrast to his "Twilight in Turkey" or "Huckleberry Duck."

Bookings

Russ Morgan is at the St. Francis Hotel in Frisco with practically an entire new band . . . Jimmy Dorsey followed Bobby Byrne at the Meadowbrook with B. B. going to the Hotel Roosevelt in New Orleans for a month. He returns to the Meadowbrook on Christmas Day and stays until January 26 when T. Dorsey and his band move in . . . Hal Kemp opens at the Mark Hopkins Hotel in San Francisco December 20.

Purely Personal

Jack Denny, who was one of the top bandleaders a few years ago, filed a voluntary petition of bankruptcy. One of his creditors is Jeannie Lang, his former vocalist . . . Ronnie Kemper, former Dick Jurgens vocalist and now with Horace Heidt, hasn't been in Hollywood long, but long enough to discover Kathie Lewis, an M-G-M player, to be his girl friend . . . Jack Edmondson of Johnny Long's "Long-fellows," announced his marriage to Martha Glynn, Pittsburgh socialite . . . Allen Storr, a member of T. Dorsey's "Pied Pipers," passed the cigars when he learned that he became a papa to a baby girl. His daughter was born at Sunbury, Pa. So he won't get to see her until next week when the band returns East . . . Joe Rigdon, pianist in the Griff Williams band, is back on the job again. He took time off to get married to a home-town girl.

All during his stay in Hollywood Tommy Dorsey couldn't find a good Italian restaurant (he loves spaghetti), so he's seriously considering opening one and bringing out his favorite chef from New York . . . Bob Crosby had to have all his suits taken in four inches because he lost twenty-five pounds when he went on a diet for his picture work . . . Horace Heidt had the tables turned on him during a housewarming party in his new Hollywood home. The telephone rang and Horace answered it. "Is this Horace Heidt?" the caller asked. "Yes, it is," said Horace. "Well, your number has been picked on the 'Pot o' Gold' program and a messenger boy will arrive in a minute, you lucky person." It wasn't more than a minute after the call when a messenger arrived with a potted chrysanthemum in full bloom. The senders were Meredith Willson and his wife.

ANNOUNCER Charles O'Connor's voice is two tones lower than usual since he's had the flu, so his sponsor is keeping him off the air until he sounds like the "Johnny Presents" announcer of pre-flu days . . . Bill Stern broadcasts his "Sports Newsreel of the Air" from the West Coast December 8, the following week from New York, and the next two from the West Coast again . . . Pick and Pat, off the air for a couple of years, are auditioning for a comeback on a program heard only in the South, where their popularity ranks high.

Billy Jones and Ernie Hare, those grand old troupers of radio's pioneer days, are together again. Ernie died March 9, 1939. Billy died November 23. At the time of Ernie's death, his daughter, Marilyn, stepped forward to carry on the famous radio name of Jones and Hare on their program over WMCA, a New York station. Billy was carrying their script for the day when he dropped dead on busy Broadway. The program went on without him, but it was about him—about him and his old partner. Their story is the story of radio, and listeners will not soon forget them—the Happiness Boys and the Interwoven Pair—Jones and Hare.

Elizabeth Lennox Off "Album"

With no advance announcement "American Album of Familiar Music" dropped Elizabeth Lennox, with the program for three years, and substituted Vivian della Chiesa on November 24. We often wondered why this program featured two sopranos—Jean Dickenson being a coloratura soprano and Miss Chiesa a lyric soprano. Miss Lennox is also a soprano. Each time we asked, the answer was, "No comment." We wondered why this latest change. Came the answer, "No comment." "American Album of Familiar Music" is one of those programs, like "Manhattan Merry-Go-Round," that goes on and on with few changes, no ballyhoo, but a loyal following.

Race for Latin Good-Will

The race to cement South American good-will is on. As CBS president William Paley and associates tour nine South American countries to line up broadcast features, NBC announces that it has made arrangements for stations in twenty republics to rebroadcast NBC's short-wave programs, starting January 1. These rebroadcasts will include the Metropolitan Opera and Toscanini's concerts. Mutual stepped into the picture when its CBS censored the first script proposed for the new "Campbell Playhouse," necessitating a week's postponement of the initial show, which was to have been November 22. It was a radio adaptation of Wilbur Daniel Steele's "Life Is So Little" that was nixed, because it contained a fifth column plot—which is one of radio's thousand and one taboos.

Big Day for Mary Margaret

This author has just returned from Mexico, Mo., the scene of activities surrounding "Mary Margaret McBride Day" (November 22) by proclamation of Governor Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri.

It was a big day for this Missouri girl who went to New York in the 'twenties to become a leading writer and radio's foremost woman radio commentator. She was brought into town behind screaming motorcycle sirens; photographed at her old desk in the newspaper office where she held her first job; fed a meal of two meats, eight vegetables, two salads and three desserts; was the star of four broadcasts, the guest of honor at two parties, and had governors, judges and mayors as her escorts. Mary Margaret had all the reason in the world to be the "big shot," but, true to her background, she was again the country girl—kicking off her shoes when her feet got tired, eating pie as she talked to save time, and refusing to "doll up" in fancy dresses. She allowed herself only one luxury for the event—a fur coat—which her manager had to force her to buy.

WATCH FOR the wackiest show in radio to hit CBS. It's "You Sell Me," being tested locally on WBBM. In the first few weeks the station was swamped with 9,000 requests for tickets to see people paid for doing daffy slapstick stunts.

WHEN Gene Autry did his "Melody Ranch" show from CBS studios here recently, two detectives visited the show "on business." The law wasn't after the screen-radio cowboy, however. The detectives were trying to find Mary Lerner, thirteen, who had run away from her New York home, leaving a note that she intended to "follow the Gene Autry radio show." Mary evidently hadn't caught up with Gene, for she couldn't be located at the show.

Who's "Joshing" Whom?

Joe "Josh Higgins" Dumond was quite enthusiastically helping Joe, Jr., play with the lad's toy train layout the other day. Thinking of Christmas, he asked the boy what he wanted next time they bought an addition. Joe, Jr., thought it over carefully—and shrewdly. He brought a blush to the face of Joe, Sr., when he answered, "That new automatic loader is what you want me to get next, isn't it, Daddy?" Incidentally, it's gratifying to point out that the "Higgins" sketch is back on a full NBC-Blue network (10 a.m. EST). Sponsors please note.

Among radio names in Chicago for the School Broadcast Conference were Lyman Bryson, chairman of CBS' "People's Platform," and George V. KATE SMITH and entourage blitz-crieged Hollywood during the fortnight and made her presence known variously. Primarily in the West to help launch the film "Arizona" at Tucson, Kate flew to the cinema capital in an American Airlines special, huddled with 20th Century-Fox officials over their offer to make her the star of "The Great American Broadcast," a radio cavalcade film, helped plug tunes from "Tin Pan Alley," the newest product from that lot, and reported, "I feel like I went over Niagara Falls in a barrel." Busy as she was, spies report that Miss Smith was still able to find time to devour vanilla-fudge ice-cream by the plateful at Delhavens, a Beverly Hills confectionery!

Tony Martin to Return . . . Live Mikings

Tony Martin is practically set to return to the air as star of a Coast-to-Coast broadcast scheduled to hit the air with the new year . . . Bob Hope has moved his Sunday night air preview (not broadcast) performances to the downtown Paramount Theater to get away from the gag-chilling effect of the deadened NBC audience studios . . . Bob Burns and family are off to New York for several weeks of rest and fun. Meantime, Bing Crosby announces that he will again sing, as has been his annual custom, "Adeste Fideles" and "Silent Night" on his Christmas-week programs . . . Martha O'Driscoll, of Irene Rich's "Dear John" serial, had her tonsils removed last week.

Purely Personal

Ona Munson, "Big Town's" Lorelei, refuses to divulge the name of the New York gallant who phones her long distance after each broadcast . . . Nor will Helen Wood, of "Those We Love," settle the question whether that large diamond she keeps switching from left to right hand and back again means something or nothing . . . Rudy Vallee is dating showgirl Myrna Dell when Jackie Coogan isn't, but now Rudy has a helper available. It's his dad, Charles, here from Maine for a visit. "If my boy needs any help in his feud with John Barrymore, or anyone else," says Pop Vallee, "I'm here to help him prove us Vallees are tough hombres."

Backstage Snoopings

At Al Pearce Camel show: Boss Al having trouble making his cast believe he killed three ducks with one sixteen-gauge shell on a recent hunting-trip . . . At "Blondie": Penny Singleton dashing home to change a jingle-bell-buttoned sweater which made too much noise at the mike, and Arthur Lake going realistic and pinching himself so hard that he let out a lusty yell that almost broke up the show . . . At "Silver Theater": Martha Scott, wearing dark glasses to rehearsals and performances and explaining that their use soft-pedals her stage fright . . . At "Jell-O Show":

EVANS PLUMMER

Jack Benny trying to cook up a gag based on the carburetor of his old Maxwell . . . At "Maxwell House Coffee Time": Mary Martin, tired of being told she had runs in both her stockings, making a general explanation that she had just dashed over from the Paramount lot where they are a part of her costume in a picture, and that she is well aware both hose have runners. They are supposed to.

Flicker Clicks

The second "Lum and Abner" movie will go before the cameras January 3; right now the team is on a ten-week personal-appearance tour with their first picture, "Dreaming Out Loud" . . . After coming all the way west, Fred Allen's Minerva Pious could not be used in Paramount's "Road to Zanzibar"; seems that her hair didn't offer enough contrast to the dark hair of Dorothy Lamour, in the same film . . . Tom McKnight, producer of the "Sherlock Holmes" airings, is writing the screen play "Pack Up Your Troubles" for Columbia Pictures.

Double Trouble

Dick Nelson, who has doubled for Jimmy Stewart's voice on "Hedda Hopper's Hollywood" dramatizations, finds the voice similarity has practically ruined his radio career. Listeners insist that he is Stewart incognito, so he has had to develop another voice in order to get radio work. "They'll probably even send me for him," moans Nelson, "when it comes time for Stewart to report for a year's military training!" . . . Which reminds that radio and film friends tossed a farewell party for Hedda Hopper on the eve of her flight to New York for two weeks of broadcasts. Another radio favorite scheduled to be in New York for the holidays is Jean "Dr. Christian" Hersholt.

Kilts Are Kolt!

Bill Thompson, who plays Horatio K. Boomer and the Old Timer on the Fibber McGee shows, has decided against wearing kilts on chill California nights. The decision came after he wore them to the Thanksgiving dinner of Don Quinn, Fibber's writer. Thus adorned, he entertained lustily on the bagpipes, much to the enjoyment of Quinn's young daughter. But when bedtime came the young lady wanted more—and made the special request that Thompson serenade her from beneath her window. So that's the way it turned out. Bill, on the coldest night to date of the southern California winter, knocked his knees together like castanets the while he wheezed and shrilled at his bagpipes for the sake of chivalry.

Taglines

Boswell sisters Martha and Vet, now married and retired from singing, visited Connie last week when she premiered on the "Kraft Music Hall" . . . Edgar Bergen has been granted his private pilot's license; his first authorized passenger was his girl Friday, Mary Hanrahan . . . The Rhythm Rangers will be heard on Roy Rogers' cowboy airshow December 14 for British war relief.

Coast next month to be screen-tested by M-G-M . . . New love-interest roles in recent episodes of "Stepmother" are played by Dorothy Francis and "First Nighter" star Les Tremayne.

Todd Fan Club Boosts Red Cross

When a fan club was organized for Dick Todd, "Show Boat" crooner, there were a lot of Australians who wanted to join Canadian Dick's backers. But money couldn't be sent from war-occupied Australia. The organizers solved the membership-fee problem by granting membership to any Australian sending a receipt showing a contribution to the Red Cross. Crooner Todd, by the way, was an interested spectator at one of the recent Firestone broadcasts here featuring operatic tenor Richard Crooks . . . Songstress Jane Kaye has returned as regular on the "National Barn Dance," and Pat Buttram, WLS' crack-voiced backwoods comic, has been signed for regular duty . . . Quick click: Hal Tate, who formerly wrote this column and is now a local WAAF radio gossip, met Nikki Kay, writer for WBAL, Baltimore, on a Sunday; he bade her good-bye here on Tuesday; then he called her on long-distance Wednesday to propose—and got an okay.

Ed Prentiss, Dr. Harding in "Woman in White," likes the number thirteen, because this is his thirteenth doctor role in radio. And Bob Bailey, Bob Jones in "Kitty Keene," thinks the number is lucky, because he was born on Friday the thirteenth in 1913. But it was a jinx numeral for Cynthia Cline, ace of "Quiz Kids." She was eliminated after thirteen appearances and was forced to relinquish a comeback attempt because of a cold on November 13 . . . Jane Webb, well-known girl actress of the "Tom Mix" sketch, has grown up enough that she played her first adult radio role on "Cameos of New Orleans" recently.

Studebaker Is Dr. Bob Again

Hugh Studebaker goes back into the role of Dr. Robert Graham on "Bachelor's Children," replacing Art Kohl, who did the part while Hugh was on a health vacation in the Southwest . . . Mrs. Thomas Frissell, of Middletown, Conn., was the first woman to win one of the "Wings of Destiny" airplanes. When the plane was delivered at Hartford, Conn., she was debating nine bids from would-be purchasers. She sold it to a man who was on the spot with $1,500 . . . "Show Boat" has moved into the Woman's Club auditorium for more audience space.

MR. FAIRFAX REPLIES

Mr. Fairfax will give personal answers to all readers who send self-addressed stamped envelopes. Remember that he must confine himself exclusively to network personalities and programs. Address Arthur Fairfax, MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Glen Mitchell, Danville, Ill.—MARY PATTON may be heard as Marie Martel on "Arnold Grimm's Daughter" (NBC), as Glenda Morrison on "Bachelor's Children," and as the maid, Mary, on "Right to Happiness." Daughter of a country doctor, born in Duluth, Minnesota, December 8, 1916, Mary arrived with an exhibition complex and so couldn't be anything else but an actress. En route, however, she did a bit of singing, modeling, secretarial work (score: typing 85 words per; shorthand 120) and even tried selling dresses. Her conscience bothers her a bit about this phase of her career. One record day she sold ten identical gowns to gals attending the same junior prom. She got her first contract on the stage, she says, by making a nuisance of herself haunting the casting office of "You Can't Take It With You." She got the job—which turned out to be that of understudy to six different characters, including the colored maid. For seven months Mary sat patiently behind scenes waiting to step in and "save the show" in case somebody dropped dead. No one did, but she was rewarded eventually by being given the juvenile lead in the West Coast company of the show. Upon returning to New York Mary started flirting with radio. She got on some daytime serials there, then came to Chicago in the fall of 1939. Mary likes the theater, sports of all kinds, loves dogs and horses and dotes on cooking. She's afraid to walk on sidewalk gratings. This is a hang-over from childhood when she firmly believed that kidnapers lurked below. Mary's five feet four and one-half inches tall, weighs 118 pounds, has dark-brown hair and blue eyes. Here's a shot proving she is also glamorous.

over the band. This experience gave Noble the urge some day to have his own orchestra. While with Olsen, throughout the following year, he made plans for forming his present organization. With Chick Floyd, pianist and arranger, as partner, Noble launched his career as leader on a series of six one-night engagements at New England ballrooms. Born and brought up in Pasadena, California, Noble was influenced musically by his mother, who sang, and a sister, who played the piano. At fourteen he organized a small orchestra to play for the local high-school dances. At nineteen he decided to take up singing, and competed in a Phil Harris contest in Los Angeles. As prize-winner in the contest, he went on to join Hal Grayson as vocalist and later went with George Hamilton for whom he played piano, sang and arranged at the Roosevelt Hotel in Hollywood.

MARY PATTON enacts the role of Marie Martel in "Arnold Grimm's Daughter"

Noble is married. His wife is the former Billie Grafton of Seattle, Washington.

Miss Dorothy Taylor, Akron, Ohio.—HARRY BABBITT was born November 2, 1912. He is not married.

Miss Janet Orcutt, Syracuse, N. Y.—In "Lone Journey" LESTER DAMON portrays Wolfe Bennett, WARREN MILLS has the role of Wolfe Bennett (as a boy). Sydney Sherwood is played by CHARLOTTE HOLLAND, CLAUDIA MORGAN has the role of Nita Bennett. Sorry, but scripts for serial shows are not released, as the best possible way to obtain these stories is to listen every day.

Miss Betty McElderry, Pasadena, Calif.—JANE WEST is author of "The O'Neills," ALAN KENT is announcer, WILLIAM MEEDER, organist, and CARLO D'ANGELO, director. The cast follows: Mrs. O'Neill, KATE MCCOMB; Danny O'Neill, JAMES TANSEY; Sally Scott O'Neill, HELEN CLAIRE; Janice Collins O'Neill, JANICE GILBERT; Eddie Collins O'Neill, JIMMY DONNELLY; Monte Kayden, CHESTER STRATTON; Peggy O'Neill Kayden, CLAIRE NISSEN; Kayden Twins, JANICE GILBERT; Mrs. "Trudy" Bailey, JANE WEST; Morris Levy, JACK RUBIN; Eileen Turner, ARLINE BLACKBURN; Mr. Turner, AL SWENSON; Mr. Tasek, JOHN ANTHONY; Mrs. Tasek, GLADYS THORNTON; Mrs. Scott, LINDA CARLON; Ginger Raymond, JESSIE FORDYCE; Mrs. Carson,

Mr. Tom Dwyer, Lansing, Mich.—Write BOB SHERWOOD in care of the National Broadcasting Company, RCA Building, Radio City, New York City. He will receive the letter, as all radio and movie personalities receive their mail at the studio with which they are connected.

Mr. D. Alexander, Waterford, Conn.—Yes, JOAN TOMPKINS plays the role of Betty Allen in "Stella Dallas."

Miss Anne Forrest, Kankakee, Ill.—In "Young Widder Brown" TONI GILMAN plays Marjorie Williams. CHARLES MAXWELL has the role of Jerry Matthews in "Stella Dallas."

Mr. Oren Nelson, Milwaukee, Wis.—LEIGHTON NOBLE is not Ray Noble's brother. Only twenty-five years of age, Leighton is one of the youngest of the country's successful maestros. His success is due in large measure to his pleasing voice and talented piano-playing, which originally launched him on a musical career. Noble first appeared in Boston as vocalist with Orville Knapp, the leader whose enthusiasm for flying cost his life in a crash at Boston Airport. Noble was out in front during a seven weeks' engagement at the William Penn in Pittsburgh when George Olsen took CHARME ALLEN; Mrs. Mitchell, VIVA OGDEN; Skip Martin, LAWSON ZERBE; Mrs. Kayden, JOSEPHINE HULL; Lester Lewis, JAMES VANDYK; Dr. Bruce Kingsley, DAVID GOTHARD; Mr. Fielding, HARRY NEVILLE; Stevie King, JACK JORDAN; Bob Winton, JAMES BOLES; Judge Scott, JULIAN NOA.

Mrs. R. Berry, Warsaw, Ind.—A picture of the cast of "YOUNG DOCTOR MALONE" was published in MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE week ending November 29, 1940. Back copies of MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE may be obtained for ten cents each from the circulation department at 731 Plymouth Court.

Mrs. C. B. Livingston, Los Angeles, Calif.—Yes, FRANK MUNN is married. PHIL STEWART was born in Glasgow, Scotland, April 22, 1904. After attending Scottish schools and making his debut with a show troupe in Scotland, he decided to try his fortunes on the stage in America and came to this country in 1923, when he was nineteen years old. He obtained a job on an automobile assembly line with the Ford Motor Company but thought the work monotonous and dull so three months later he left it to take a job traveling through Michigan as a magazine salesman. While selling magazines in Wheeler, Michigan, he tackled the manager of a small traveling stock company for a job. He played bit parts with the tent show in the Wolverine state for one season and later went back to Detroit to become part of a vaudeville sketch act, which later toured the East. In Pittsburgh he left the vaudeville troupe to become master of ceremonies at the Hippodrome Theater for fifty-two weeks. That engagement over he again entered vaudeville and made his first stage appearance in Chicago in 1929. While there he visited a small Chicago station, WCRW, and was asked by the manager to tell some jokes on the air. The manager later hired him to announce commercials. Sometime afterward Stewart joined KYW, then in Chicago, where he remained as an announcer for three years. VOICE OF THE LISTENER

Express your opinions. Write V. O. L., 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.

Whistlers Matter

Dear V. O. L.:

There is one nuisance on the radio that should be eliminated. No matter how sublime or ridiculous a program is, the nuisance of the shrieking whistler is usually on the job in the studio audience. It's a disgusting situation. Persons of this caliber should be kept out of the studios.

C. H. Heath, Smethport, Pa.

Audiences are usually asked before the programs not to whistle, not because the whistling might offend listeners, however, but because it is a hazard for the sensitive microphones.

No Villains Need Apply

Dear V. O. L.:

The radio columnist in our local paper noted recently that "Against the Storm" has completed a full year on the air without introducing a single villain.

I think this serial is one of the best and most interesting, and it goes to show that interest can be maintained by presenting nice people such as we all know, and that it is unnecessary to have criminals and two-timing men and women to provide entertainment.

Mrs. A. F. Arnold, Saunterstown, R. I.

The Real David Harum

Dear V. O. L.:

I'd like to correct a mistaken impression of the story of David Harum. There really was a very intelligent man by the name of David Harum who lived in the town of Homeville, later named Homer, in New York state, and not in New England as everyone has thought since the picture was produced. David Harum was a noted character and one of the leading citizens of the town. He always dressed in "tails" and silk hat for all occasions. He was owner of the bank, and his home has since been turned into the David Harum Hotel and finally into the David Harum Tavern.

Mrs. Bert Wright, Springfield, Mass.

Jekyll-Hyde Levant

Dear V. O. L.:

Thanks for the fine article on Oscar Levant. We like Levant because he reveals a deeper sincerity than most people have beneath a greater audacity than most people have.

Mrs. C. M. Hallonquist, Oakdale, Calif.

Partial Disillusionment

Dear V. O. L.:

What sins are committed in the name of radio! About a year ago I wrote to V. O. L., proudly boasting that my baby son was virtually on the road to infant prodigyhood. He was able to identify arias, classical compositions, and composers.

Now, at the age of two and one-half years, he is an avid Damrosch fan. The other day I asked him why he enjoys Dr. Damrosch's musical appreciation work. He informed me—I blush as I write this!—that Dr. Damrosch can vocally imitate animals just bee-you-tee-fully!

Mrs. J. Leopold Salzman, Grand Rapids, Mich.
