MOVIE - RADIO GUIDE:

The Bette Davis Marriage Brings a Letter from a Skeptic

THE publication which permits its readers to be hoaxed by inept or inaccurate reporting is not worth the ink and paper on which it is printed. That is why our writers are such stalwarts as James Street, Kay Proctor, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., Lupton A. Wilkinson, and others of similar responsibility. We have believed for a long time that our readers have faith in the things they read in Movie-Radio Guide.

A letter which crossed our desk the other day, however, caused us some worry. It said:

however, caused us some worry. It said: The story of Bette Davis driving through storm and strife to reach her expected husband and wedding party makes very romanic reading, but I wish someone would the treat true story for a change. My father, Marcus E, Rawlins, runs the Clemenceau Airport. Justin Dart often his ranch is muddy. On December 29, just before dark, he came in ... Quite a number of us went out to see him land. A very small woman got out of the plane and stood with her back to the crowd. A few moments later Justin Dart often often the plane and placed in a covered pick-up ruck, Jane Bryan Dart also got out. They have landed here may times and no one ever pays any attention to tak to Jane Dart. The minute he saw the other woman's face he recognized her. He said, "Well, hello." She smiled wide't tell anyone who she was until after they came back to gat "Hello" and then quickly put one finger to her mouth, silently asking him not to reveal her identity. He start the plane the day after the wedding. That woman was Bette Davis. She flew in here with farely here hand Justin Dart, and I wish someone would tell what feally happend instead of feeding the guilible people with farely tabe. Sincerely, Mrs. J. E. Tissaw. Well, we were considerably worried. We wired

Well, we were considerably worried. We wired Kay Proctor for an explanation. We got it.

Our Davis marriage story corroborated in detail by Bette Davis and others in wedding party. Woman who arrived in plane with Mr. and Mrs. Dart was Barbara Pelgram, Bette's sister, who is frequently mistaken for Bette even in Hollywood. Darts piloted Barbara to Arizona from Hollywood for ceremony. Her identity as their pas-senger can be confirmed by Mrs. Tissaw upon Dart's re-turn to Arizona in March. Bette's contract, incidentally, prohibits her flying anywhere. Am air-mailing you picture of Barbara for further corroboration of original story. Kay Proctor.

Obviously, our story was correct and Mr. Rawlins had made a mistake in identity. Ordinarily, that would be that. We publish the above exchange of correspondence, however, because we want to allay the whispers which have arisen recently about the reliability of magazines devoted to Hollywood. We speak only for ourselves, of course, but we are glad that this challenge from Mrs. Tissaw has enabled us to indicate her error as well as to demonstrate the ten-year-old fact that stories published in Movie-Radio Guide are honest and accurate as sincerity and integrity can make them.

MURIEL ANGELUS is the lovely name of a young lady who possesses a lovely voice. Not long ago she was one of the brightest and most hopeful names on Paramount's roster of possible stars. But something, we don't know what, happened.

Usually, a woman who has aspired to screen fame and failed fades from the picture of public life. Muriel Angelus is blazing a new trail. Someone who believed in her has given her a place on NBC's schedules. Her spot is not big, but from just such a place such stars as Kate Smith and Bing Crosby climbed to their thrones.

We suggest that you tune to Muriel Angelus and listen to her voice. It has an uncommon quality. You may, who knows, be hearing the birth of a new star.

TODAY THE CORNERSTONE of our democracy is based on the theory of freedom of the press, free speech, and complete information in the hands of every citizen. The average citizen here is better equipped to cope with the problems that confront our nation than the citizens of any state since time began.

But more and more, as we talk to our neighbors, we find puzzlement and confusion. Men are informed but they are bewildered. A great statesman whom they respect, such a man as Senator Wheeler of Montana, says that President Roosevelt is power-crazy and a would-be dictator. A great Republican, Wendell Willkie, says the President should be given every power he asks. Men of much experience take opposite sides on the Town Meeting broadcasts. Round Table discussions turn into dogfights.

Who is right? If experts whose experience is vastly greater than our own, if these men cannot agree, how can we who only labor and listen come to valid conclusions?

Democracy is a process of determining the public will and putting that will into practise. But now, hedged about by such mighty dilemmas, what is your will or my will? Many of us do not know; and the extent to which we do not know is the extent of our danger.

Dictatorship knows! It knows with a savage, . lustful decision. Its will is to conquer, conquer, conquer. We must know, too, or we will perish.

Can we know? We have asked our leaders for an answer and they say that we can know. We can know by thinking. They mean sheer, hard brow-furrowing thinking. Perhaps we have gone too long without thinking. Perhaps we have become too soft-headed. Now is the time to learn if we can resolve all of our vast knowledge into hard-driving decision. If we can turn vacilla-tion into determination, if we can strain from the truths that we know the harsh, ineluctable residue of our own destiny, and know that neither hell nor highwater can swerve us from the last-man defense of our democracy, then the knowledge that has been brought to us from the earth's four corners by radio will be a blessing without peer since man began to reason for himself.

along who can, you can call it genius without straining or overworking the word. "Nice Girl" is the film which makes Deanna Durbin a genius. For in it, the singing youngster who practically grew up in films stages her ninth consecutive box-office hit. But "Nice Girl" will do more than mark Miss Durbin as a genius. It will mark the songstress as a growing young lady whose charm increases in each succeeding film. And to prove that her coming of age isn't only a celluloid phenomenon, the Universal starlet celebrated the completion of "Nice Girl" by announcing engagement to Vaughn Paul. "I admire a sense of humor. Everyone in the world ought to wear humor like . . . well . . . like spectacles."

She put out her hand. It was a warm grip, a man's way of shaking hands.

"You were nice to come," she said. And she was gone, leaving a bewildered reporter and a De Havilland enthusiast to pick up his note-book. adjust his tie and sashay onto the Warner ground whistling:

An animated doll more than anything else she cavorted over the Warner lot like a character out of Walter Scott-an ivory-tower princess who didn't know what time it was, beautiful in a languid way but hardly ex-

She believed in fairies, rhapsodized over beauty, chirped constantly about how wonderful life could be if you'd let it, flitted here and yon totally innocent of the art of make-up or the greater art of dressing, and spread her sweetness and light on director and gaffer alike. She was alternately kittenish and whimsical. You won't believe it, but she used to appear-maybe alight is the better word - in the Green Room where the Warner stars maiden modesty and her eternal eagerness to blush. They went on to explain how Miss

O. was the last of the old-fashioned glamour girls, the kind of beauty you'd like for a sister, a cherub who slept in white-and-pink nightgowns, thought pajamas were definitely unfeminine, and confessed she was "different." She slumbered (bedecked in these same white-and-pink jobs) in a large antique bed, using one pillow, a swansdown comforter and three blankets. Or so she confided to the writing gentlemen. Furthermore, when she snoozed, she curled her ne-pluseat their lunch and go to barking like ultra form up into a ball-after openobserved her at lunch not too many used to lie on our stomachs, get set, weeks ago, north of a brace of healthy-looking lamb chops flanked by string beans, as electric as a power-house and as magnetic as the North Pole.

First this startling apparition sug-gested we forget this Miss De Havilland stuff and call her Livvie; then she started it on herself.

"Did I say '-&!!()'?" she inquired defiantly, "I certainly did, I say it whenever I get good and ready to say it. Furthermore, what's surprising about that? It's normal, isn't it?" This reporter, wrestling with a filet mignon, was too startled to reply. Apparently Livvie wasn't expecting an answer, because straightway she Chaplin, on the other hand, refused to talk, said, "There is nothing to discuss." Columnist Sidney Skolsky, after receiving a similar "silent" treatment, intimated that Chaplin might have an interesting announcement to make soon concerning himself and Paulette. For years Chapin and Miss Goddard have practised one of the most modern and liberal sorts of marriage; Hollywood should not be so surprised. It is true, however, that Miss Goddard was disappointed plenty recently in being assigned to a part in Paramount's "Hold Back the Dawn" other than that which she hoped to get, but which has been penciled in with Olivia de Havilland's 'name.

Hula, Hula-Here Comes Rooney!

"Golden Hoofs"

Cast: Jane Withers, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Katharine Aldridge, George Irving, Buddy Pepper, Cliff Clark, et al. A 20th Century-Fox picture, produced by Walter Morosco and Ralph Dietrich and directed by Lynn Shores, who also directed "Woman in Distress.'

WHEN a picture can draw applause from a projection-room audience composed solely of critics and hardboiled studio production experts, it has to be good. And that is what hap-"Golden Hoofs," Jane Withers' grow-ing-up picture. Jane's first venture into a "young lady" role is distinctly successful, and it doesn't seem at all incredible to watch her in an adolescent romance on the screen. She handles the part with skill. In "Golden Hoofs" Jane becomes infatuated with Buddy Rogers, later to find that he is engaged to another girl. He is the new owner of a breeding farm which for many years has been devoted to raising horses for sulky racing. Rogers is interested only in making money out of the horses, and is getting rid of all the sulky horses when Jane steps into the scene and wins him over to sulky racing. Buddy Pepper, new to the screen from Hollywood's stage success, "Meet the People," is cast as Jane's young swain who can't understand what she sees in Rogers

Jane Withers shows much personality and ability in this picture, and she doubtless will be an outstanding success as a screen ingenue. Buddy Rogers looks especially attractive as the rich horse breeder, and George Irving does an outstanding perform-ance as "Doc." Very funny is little Phillip Hurlick, a colored youngster.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Los Angeles WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Los Angeles Times, "Jane Withers is growing up very grace-fully indeed, and there is a touch of romance in 'Golden Hoofs." Daily Variety, ". . A nice combination of excitement and heart throb . ." Hollywood Reporter, ". . Its deepest appeal lies in the homey, human atmosphere . ."

"STRAWBERRY BLONDE" will take Pa and Ma, Grandpa and Grandma back to the early 1900's when "twenty-three skiddoo" and "I love my wife, but oh you kid" were considered brash and daring slang. What's more, this Warner Bros. comedy-romance shows off Jimmy Cagney in the lightest role in years and even gives Olivia de Havilland lines that draw belly-laughs.

The third interesting feature of "Strawberry Blonde" is the excellent job of acting turned in by Rita Haywe .h, playing the title role.

With the pedal pushed down rather heavily on burlesque, the story tells of the life of Cagney as Biff Grimes, correspondence-school dentist, and Jack Carson as Hugo Barnstead, wardheeler who winds up wealthy through his political construction company. Both lads make a play for lovely Virginia Brush, the strawberry blonde portrayed by Miss Hayworth, but on first dating and subsequently at the altar Grimes finds he has been switched via the double-date route to pretty Amy (Olivia de Havilland). Biff and Amy live happily in poverty until the affluent Barnstead sidetracks Grimes' dental career with a job in the construction company.

Here Grimes is made a vice president and signs specification contracts unwittingly. Result: Grimes takes a prison rap. When he gets out of prison, his revenge is accomplished in a unique fashion. "Strawberry Blonde" is good and okay for the family.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Hollywood Reporter, "Superlative performances in sharply defined characterizations." Variety, "A savory dish of boisterous, tuneful, beguiling entertainment.'

Academy Award Banquet Eve Nears

With the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences setting the table at the Los Angeles Biltmore for the annual award banquet Thursday, February 27, all Hollywood is crossing its fingers and hoping to be among those elected to receive coveted "Oscars." Meantime, the junior stars, two thousand of them from three to fourteen years of age, got together last tographed until 1943, when it will week and selected their own Academy Award winners, who are to be given "junior Os-cars." The kiddies picked Billy Lee for his work in Paramount's "The Biscuit Eater," by James Street, and Gloria Jean for her work in Universal's "A Little Bit of Heaven.' Even the dogs were honored last Sunday, February 23, at a bow-wow banquet at Charlie Foy's supper club. Canines who did were given extra large hamburgers and miniature fire-plug statuettes called "Boscars." MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE hesitates to predict, from the many excellent pictures and acting performances offered during 1940, who the Academy Award winners will be-but M-RG will be the first magazine to publish exclusive and canaid pictures!

"Scattergood Baines"

Cast: Guy Kibbee, Francis Trout, Carol Hughes, John Archer, Emma Dunn, et al. A Pyramid Production, for RKO release, produced by Jerrold T. Brandt and directed by Christy Cabanne, who also directed "Black Diamonds" and "Alias the Deacon." From the stories by Clarence Budington Kelland.

"S CATTERGOOD BAINES" is amazingly and faithfully brought to life by Guy Kibbee in this first of a series of feature pictures to be produced by Jerrold T. Brandt, based on the lovable fiction character invented twenty years ago and kept alive to date by Clarence Budington Kelland.

Kibbee's Scattergood likes to sit shoeless in his favorite chair on the porch of his general store in Cold-water and twiddle his toes while radiating his genial personality, philosophy and keen business advice to the citizens of the community. Yes, no one could ask for a better Scattergood Baines than the one delivered by Guy Kibbee.

This first screen story brings Kibbee to Coldwater, in New England, where he sets up his store, makes a fortune with a short-line railroad, and outwits some city slicker magnates who plot to take over his line and cut the price paid to landholders for their timber. Logically threading along with the basic plot is Scattergood's gallantry in getting a school-teacher appointment for pretty Carol Hughes and fostering a romance between her and young attorney John Archer.

Pliny is characterized by Francis Trout, imported from the radio series, undoubtedly will find many added screen assignments knocking at his door for the excellent portrayal he renders in this, his first picture.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Los Angeles Daily News (Virginia Wright), "The millions who have been reading Kelland's stories for twenty years won't be disappointed." Los Angeles Times (Edwin Schallert), "Guy Kibbee scores a bull's-eye as Scattergood Baines." Variety, "... Solid entertainment." Hollywood Reporter, "Delightful entertainment."

CHARLES BOYER, MARGARET SULLAVAN are named best actor, actress for roles in "Back Street"

Movie-Radio Guide Award for Distinguished Acting

T'S Margaret Sullavan and Charles Boyer for this month's Movie-Radio Guide Award for Distinguished Acting. They have earned it for their brilliant work in the picture "Back Street." This is the opinion of Jimmie Fidler, who each month selects the actor and actress to receive the award.

Granting that Boyer was a bit miscast as the middle-westerner who came to New York and became a great banker, we can overlook his accent and see the true fineness of his performance. "His role in the film isn't a happy one," Mr. Fidler points out. "He plays the part of a married man in love with another woman. For this you can't respect him, but he pours such reality into his role that you do feel sorry for him. Singly, I think Boyer's death scene is the highlight of 'Back Street.'

Mr. Fidler had this to say of Miss Sullavan, who plays the other woman in the film. "Miss Sullavan is superb. I've often said that she is my choice as the most consistently good performer on the screen. I can't recall ever seeing Margaret make a false step on the screen. 'Back Street' adds much to her glory. Perhaps it isn't her best performance, but it is good enough for a lot of other so-called artists to take home and study by the hour. Miss Sullavan moves so gracefully through difficult, emotional scenes that she makes them appear easy-which, to my way of thinking, is the supreme test of fine acting."

In making "Back Street," both Boyer and Miss Sullavan had something to shoot at-the brilliantly done version of the same film made with Irene Dunne and John Boles in the leading roles as a silent film of many years ago. That they have topped these earlier performances puts their protrayals of two difficult roles well at the top of grand performances of '41.

AS DR. KILDARE AND DR. GILLESPIE, Lew Ayres and Lionel Barry-more (r.) have endeared themselves to the bulk of the movie-going public ETRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER advertises each of the Dr. Kil-dare stories, in which Lew Ayres mends bodies and breaks hearts, as "It's New." So is Lew Ayres. He may be doing business with the same sad, sweet smile and at the same stand, but he's a fresh Ayres who has blasted once and for all the silly adage that they never come back in Hollywood.

Now that his name means money in the producers' poke again, they'll tell you that Mr. Ayres has not staged one of the greatest comebacks of all times because he has never been far away. He has merely come back from obscurity-and he had to climb uphill all the way.

The man who made us hate war and loathe war-makers in "All Quiet on the Western Front" found everything quiet on the West Coast front for several years because he insisted on being what he is-a sensitive, philosophical fellow who wanted to have his own way in a business where no man does as he pleases. To be brutally frank, Mr. Ayres was professionally dead for several years, as dead as the hero of "All Quiet on the Western Front." His resurrection is an incredible story of a man who wouldn't stay dead, and, although I dislike sentimental morals in stories, the life of Lew Ayres should be an inspiration to any man who has been slapped flat by fate. My friends, if they can come back in Hollywood, they can come back anywhere.

Mr. Ayres carries a note-book most of the time and is everlastingly jotting down poems, gems of philosophy and other things that are good for a man's mind and soul. One of his favorite bits of verbmongering is this eyedropper full of wisdom by Fannie Hurst: "Fulfillment, even the outer rim of it, is carpeted in stardust and is cheap at any price."

Back in Minneapolis, where he was born on December 28, 1907, the youngster was considered something of a fancy-pants by the other fellows because he actually enjoyed studying music and was kicking octaves around while the other boys were kicking footballs. His real name is Lew Ayer. His family was called "The Ayers," and he was known as the Ayres boy. The name stuck. His father was Lewis Ayer, a court reporter by day and a cello player by night. Grandma Ayer taught music for twenty-five years, and the boy spent the first eight years of his life in an atmosphere of beauty and tenderness. He lived in a world of make-believe until his father and mother were divorced.

"The court played Mother a dirty trick," he said. "It gave me to her." He was ten when his mother married again and moved to San Diego. In California he led a normal, happy life. The boys called him Fats because his face looked like a full moon.

"I made up my mind to go into the movies when I was just a kid," Fats said. "I said nothing about it, of course. The boys would have laughed. I laugh myself when I look back."

H^E WAS graduated from high school at sixteen, and at the University of Arizona he helped organize a band. Bored with college, Fats packed his banjo, guitar and a few other trinkets and aimed for the Mexican border, a wandering troubadour playing for his supper.

'I was seventeen," he said, "and soon I hadn't an illusion left. Maybe it was good for me. If you have ideals and lose them, it causes heartaches."

Mr. Ayres talks tough and acts tenderly. He snarls at ideals, but clings to them.

His first appearance in movies was as a banjo player in a Vitaphone short, and then he began haunting the studios. It was the same old story. He got the Hollywood run-around; promises, praise and phooey, but no pay. The press-agents report now that Mr. Fats Ayres finally won because of his persistency and talent. Nuts! There was a lot of luck in it. One evening at a club a lovely lady smiled at him. Mr. Ayres is not difficult to smile at. So he danced with her. In reality, she was Lili Damita. But to Lew she was the lady known as luck. A scout saw them together and assumed Mr. Ayres was a somebody. The scout, clever and always right, never dreamed that Lili would be dancing with a nobody. Out of that came Lew's first test for Pathe and a $75-a-week job. He didn't set the woods on fire. As an actor, Mr. Ayres was a good banjo player. But he kept playing and another lady entered his life. In reality, she was Greta Garbo, but to Lew she was the number two lady who is known as luck. Miss Garbo picked the boy to play opposite her in "The Kiss." Mr. Ayres is not hard to kiss, I have been told. Miss Garbo is. She is even hard to catch, much less kiss. Anyway Mr. Ayres put his heart and lips in the job and did all right. Or so they say. Actually, it didn't make much difference who kissed Miss Garbo in "The Kiss." She was so famous at that time that any actor who got close enough to her to smell her perfume was made.

Hollywood is prone to give Miss Garbo credit for Ayres' success. It is less romantic but quite more accurate

Ar. Ayres to report that that distinction belongs to Paul Bern, who has laid up for himself a reward in heaven--where there are real stars and a good Director-for his kindness to unknown actors, including Ayres, Joan Crawford and Jean Harlow.

Bern suggested Lew as the star in "All Quiet on the Western Front." Ayres took some punishment while making the show and at times acted like a sophomore. (Incidentally, "The Sophomore" was the first job in which he spoke a line.) The dialog director "All Quiet" stayed on Mr. Ayres' in neck. Mr. Ayres blew up. He decided to quit pictures right in the middle of a show. They lynch men for less in Hollywood. Billy Bakewell brought him to his senses, and five months later "All Quiet" and Mr. Lew Ayres were the talk of Hollywood. His salary leaped to $2,500 a week, and on September 15, 1931, a year after he had reached stardom, he married Lola Lane. The marriage ended in 1933. Mr. Ayres hit his peak in "All Quiet." Perhaps his second-best job was "State Fair." But in between he turned out pictures by the gross. The studios tried to work him in juveniles. He's got a kid's face, an old man's heart and a wise man's brain. Mr. Ayres didn't like to portray babyfaced roles. So he began slipping. Most folks have forgotten it, but Jim Cagney's first break was in an Ayres' show. So was Alice Faye's. Edward Arnold, Edward G. Robinson and Jean Harlow also got their picture starts with Lew.

SOME people trace Ayres' decline to his marriage in 1934 with Ginger Rogers. They smugly say that Miss Rogers outshone her husband and that his sensitive spirit couldn't take it. That is absurd. There is not but a

That is absurd. There is not but a handful of people in Hollywood who are in Ayres' class for sheer intelligence. Mr. Ayres got a little fed up with the froth of Hollywood. He got weary of taking orders from directors who didn't understand him and many of whom held their jobs because of nepotism. (Many still hold their jobs for the same reason.)

Ayres decided to be a director. The craft snorted. It was treason—an actor believing he was intelligent enough to direct. Mr. Ayres went into retirement. He would either direct or he wouldn't play. Hollywood thought he was sulking. His marriage with Rogers had gone on the rocks, but instead of sulking, Ayres was in his $15,000 hilltop home studying actronomy.

Hollywood whispered that he was broke and soon would be back begging for bits. But Mr. Ayres had done the incredible in Hollywood. He had saved He did all right, too, and Columbia grabbed him on condition that he would act as well as direct. But they wouldn't let him direct, so Ayres walked out. He had the same experience with Paramount, and it began to look as though Hollywood had beaten him until the word got around that he always had been a flash in the pan. That hurt Mr. Ayres, so just to show the wise boys that he knew a trick or two he did the drunk in "Holiday."

It was as good a job as "All Quiet." After "Holiday," figuratively and literally, Ayres went to M-G-M for the Dr. Kildare series. He didn't win his one-man fight against Hollywood, because he is not a director. But he didn't lose, for M-G-M is giving him stories that fit him. The Lionel Barrymore-Lew Ayres tie-up is one of the finest things that ever has come out of Hollywood, and next to the Hardy family the Kildare stories are the best bits of modern Americana on the screen.

At thirty-three, Mr. Ayres is a student and philosopher, a recluse with no illusions about happiness and women. His two unsuccessful marriages left marks on him. He is not bitter, but neither is he sentimentally sad. He simply doesn't give a darn. He lives on Lookout Mountain with his chef, Josef. He has few friends. These include Billy Bakewell, Ken Murray, Phil Harris and Clarence Locan, the unit man of the Kildare job. The only woman in his life now is Margaret McKay, and their relation is one of those brother-sister things.

He is one of the hardest men in Hollywood to know and compared with him, Miss Garbo is a publicity fiend. He shies away from people but is friendly to all animals, excepting man. At his Lookout Mountain home a family of squirrels trails him when he walks around his yard.

Mr. Ayres is a rock collector, the result of his studies of geology. Around his mountain home is a collection of rocks that resemble gnomes. Vines and moss grow in the crevices of rocks. Mr. Ayres, the botanist, is very proud of his vines and exhibits them to his friends. One day he pointed out his favorite vine and a visitor laughed. The vine was poison oak. Mr. Ayres is the kind of man who would like poison oak because it is about the most exclusive vine in the world, a plant that men avoid and one that lives its own life.

Sometimes, in a rare burst of humor, Mr. Ayres strains himself and lifts a huge rock near his swimmingpool. His guests marvel at his strength. Then Ayres calmly tosses the rock into his pool as though it were a feather. And the rock floats. It is petrified and hollow.

HE SPENDS many of his evenings studying the skies and is something of an authority on astronomy, geology, mineralogy and philosophy. He speaks several languages and right now is studying Hungarian. Which seems a bit silly except for musical purposes. He has been taking a course in meteorology at California Tech, and is an unofficial observer for the local weather bureau. Recently Mr. Weather-Man Ayres predicted a clear day and invited some friends to an outdoor barbecue. It snowed that morning and rained that afternoon. Which makes Mr. Ayres a qualified observer. He is a serious reader, particularly of Anatole France. And he's a fair-tomiddling artist with oils and crayons. Studio publicity reports he's a pretty good sculptor. In fact, they say Mr. Ayres does everything. I assume he knows more about the arts than he does about directing, for his picture judgment is notoriously bad. Every show that he thinks is good usually flops and vice versa. Mr. Ayres even thought the Kildare series was no good!

He maintains one of the finest libraries of symphonic recordings in Hollywood. He has an electric pipe organ which he plays in the evenings. He isn't much of an athlete and doesn't care for fast and furious sports, but he does enjoy walking and an occasional swim. His clothing taste runs to sports styles, tweeds and careless ensembles. He has worn the same old hat for many years and his hat and a beautiful Scotch plaid scarf are his favorite pieces of apparel.

He seldom drinks and never smokes. He rarely eats meat much to the disgust of Josef, his Czech cook. Josef enjoys preparing elaborate dishes, but Mr. Ayres refuses them. However, the chef takes candid camera pictures of the food he prepares and shows the pictures to Lew's friends. When men see the beautiful things that Mr. Ayres refuses to eat they are prone to think he is a bit of a crack-pot. Mr. Ayres probably knows it better than anyone in the world, but his habit of denying himself the flesh-pots of good things is characteristic of men with martyr complexes. Many studious men who worry and fret over the stupidity of (Continued on Page 41) his money and was able to sit on his front porch and thumb his nose at the world. He discovered that there was more pleasure in studying stars through a telescope than in mugging them through sweat and grease-paint. He staged a sort of one-man strike and said he wouldn't come back to work until they made him a director. For three years he stayed out, and then Republic Pictures brought him back. There is a tendency in Hollywood to look down the nose at Republic, but those boys out there are fast and unorthodox thinkers. They allowed Mr. Ayres to direct "Hearts in Bondage." He told them he would act in two shows if they would give him a chance to direct one for nothing.

1941 Star of Stars Poll

Just one ballot! Vote now for your favorites

N^{OW} is the time to strike a blow for better radio entertainment! Now is the time to tell broadcasters your preference among radio's personalities and programs! And a vote in Movie-RADIO GUIDE'S Star of Stars Poll is your most powerful weapon for striking that blow, your best means of telling broadcasters those preferences. Since its inception in 1934, the Star of Stars Poll has become the great democratic poll of listener opinion, and now its results are so widely accepted that the stars and programs selected through it stand as the general choices of the listening public. This year—in the 1941 Star of Stars Poll-you have one big opportunity to vote. There will be just one ballot -the one appearing on this pageand the outcome of the poll depends entirely on the returns you and other readers make now. Don't fail to fill out your ballot promptly. If you mail it on or before March 9 your vote will be counted.

You have twenty-two choices to make. Each will express your preference among specific types of programs and among various types of entertainers. If your favorite singer of popular songs is Kate Smith, you may vote for her. If your favorite quiz program is "Information, Please" vote for it. All together, your ballot will represent your rating of broadcasting's stars and programs.

But you have two more choices, and they are super-choices. Your Star of Stars, of course, is the one man or woman, whom you would place above all others. He or she may be a comedian or an actor or a singer-or any of the other types of entertainers for which you have already voted. Second, you are asked to select your Favorite Program, the program of all programs-variety, dramatic or any other-which you judge best.

For the sake of fairness, it should be understood that in order to be eligible for the poll, any star or program must have been on a network broadcast at least once during the last six months. This rule is stated clearly on the ballot and must not be disregarded.

MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE hopes to retain for the Star of Stars Poll its name for reliability and democracy, as a listener poll, but it must rely upon its readers for the most part to attain that end. Therefore, it is of utmost importance that every reader clip out his ballot and mail it promptly-on or before Sunday, March 9. Vote now!

THE METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY PRESENTS "THE BARBER OF SEVILLE" BY GIAOCCHINO ROSSINI: THREE ACTS, IN ITALIAN, NBC. The cast: Rosina, Josephine Tuminia, soprano; The Count of Almaviva, Bruno Landi, tenor; Figaro, John Charles Thomas, baritone; Dr. Bartolo, Salvatore Baccaloni, bass; Don Basilio, Ezio Pinza, bass; Berta, Irra Petina, soprano. naro Papi. This amusing comedy-opera was taken by Rossini from a play by Beauharnais, the same source that produced the libretto for Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," in which many of the same characters figure. The plot is farcical, the music one series of bubbling melodies, of which the most famous is Figaro's aria, "Largo al Fac-totum" ("Make Room for the Facto-tum"). The action is laid in Seville in the eighteenth century, and opens in the eighteenth century, and opens in a Seville street. Count Almaviva, deeply in love with Rosina, ward of Dr. Bartolo, brings a band of musi-cians to serenade her. He dismisses the musicians, but lingers for a moment and hears the approach of Fig-aro, the town barber and general fixer for unhappy lovers. Figaro sings of his talents ("Largo al Factotum") of his talents ("Largo al Factotum") and boasts that no lover can get along without him. The Count persuades Figaro to arrange a meeting with Rosina, at which he shall be intro-duced as "Lindor" so that the girl may not be influenced by his title. Dr. Bartolo emerges from the house as the two men bide and instructs the the two men hide, and instructs the servant that no one is to enter except the music teacher, Basilio, who is helping the old doctor to marry his ward for her dowry. Bartolo leaves, and the Count and Figaro plan to disguise the Count as a dragoon and have him billeted in Bartolo's house. The scene of Act II is a room in Bar-tolo's house. Rosina reads a note from "Lindor," singing the delightful "Una voce poco fa" ("A Little Voice I Hear"), a glittering coloratura aria. Basilio tells Bartolo of Count Al-maviva, and in the aria "La Calumnia" they plat to blacken the Count's abor they plot to blacken the Count's char-acter so that Rosina will reject him. Rosina gives Figaro a letter for "Lin-dor," Dr. Bartolo accuses his ward of flirting, and in the midst of the scene the disguised Count arrives, pretending drunkenness. Bartolo penetrates his disguise and rushes out to get exemption from quartering soldiers. The lovers are left alone for a moment. In Act Three, again in Bartolo's house, the Count has disguised himself as a music teacher, substituting for Basilio, supposedly ill. Basilio shows up in perfect health, but the Count manages to bribe him as Figaro shaves the old doctor. In the final scene Bartolo has convinced Rosina of the Count's bad character and she promises to marry her guardian. He goes off to get the notary, but meanwhile the Count and Figaro betray the whole plot to Ro-sina. She is overjoyed to find that the Count and "Lindor" are one, and when the notary returns he marries them them.

Saturday, March I

LINCOLN HIGHWAY, NBC. Luise Rainer, guest star.

Eastern Central Mountain Pacific 10:00 a.m. 9:00 a.m. 10:00 a.m. 9:00 a.m. GUY HEDLUND PLAYERS, NBC. "Star Dust," by Georgia Backus. "The nation's outstanding local producer"-that's what they call Guy Hedlund. He used to be leading man for Mary Pickford and Blanche Sweet on the silent screen. In 1931 Hedlund settled in Hartford, Conn., and proceeded to build up a company of student writers and actors. They recently celebrated their one-thousandth performance over WTIC in Hartford, and they have provoked complimentary comment in national magazines and drawn fifty thousand letters of praise from listeners.

Hedlund and his little company of inspired neophytes will make their network bow for a series of plays this Saturday with "Star Dust," by Georgia Backus, who thinks that most lovestories have little to do with love.

KNICKERBOCKER PLAYHOUSE, NBC. Hugh Studebaker in "Love's Old Sweet Song," by William Hodapp.

Real love never dies, regardless of the age of the lovers, regardless of the vicissitudes of life. That's the theme of this week's "Knickerbocker Playhouse" production, written by well-known radio writer William Hodapp, and starring Hugh Studebaker, one of radio's most versatile actors.

Witnessing the drama in the studio will be one hundred Chicago couples who have achieved their golden wedding anniversaries. And as a high-light. Dr. and Mrs. Richard Haley, who have resided in the same house together for fifty-one years, will be invited to the microphone to tell of their lifetime romance.

GREAT PLAYS, NBC. "The Climbers," by Clyde Fitch.

Clyde Fitch said of himself: "I am not a Bohemian, not a sporting man, not a man-about-town, not a preacher -I am simply an observer of life who writes plays for the theater." William Lyon Phelps said of Fitch in a critical essay: "He did more for our (the American) stage than any other man in our history; when the chronicles of our original plays come to be written, he will fill a large space." Fitch's "The Climbers" ranks with his four other masterpieces—"Beau Brummel," "The Truth," "The Girl With the Green Eyes" and "The City. It is a satire on social climbers-of yesterday, today or any time.

 XAVIER CUGAT, well-known orchestra conductor and leader in playing Latin-American tempos, is also a very good caricaturist. While traveling with the great Enrico Caruso as a violin soloist, he occupied his time on the train between concerts making caricatures of fellow passengers.

 GABRIEL HEATTER, news commentator heard on the Mutual network, turns out over four thousand words a day, although his final script is only 1,800 words long. At the rate of five broadcasts a week, including all the rewriting, he writes the equivalent of a mediumlength novel every five weeks.

• ONA MUNSON, heard with Edward G. Robinson in "Big Town," has for afternoon wear an old-fashioned red stocking-cap.

Gene Autry and His "Melody Ranch"

MAN and boy, most American males have always wanted in their heart of hearts to ride the lone prairie, break wild broncos and round up cattlerustlers. For them Gene Autry's "Melody Ranch," heard Sundays over GBS, offers a vicarious dream fulfillment. Here is a colorful story of the West, set on the mythical Melody Ranch, with western ballads forming a musical background. Rootin'-tootin' public cowboy number one, Gene Autry is the singing hero, always accompanied by faithful, plodding Shorty Long (played by Horace Murphy). Sometimes they're initiating an eastern tenderfoot visiting the ranch; sometimes they're saving the school-teacher and her children trapped in a ring of fire. Like Autry, other singers on the show also star in these stories. Mary Lee, fifteen-year-old black-eyed miss, with apple cheeks and curls, for instance, assays feminine roles. Three Oklahoma cowboys—Jimmy Wakely, Dick Reinhart and Johnny Bond—who strum gee-tars and harmonize songs of the Old West, become ranch hands, or even villainous cattle-rustlers. And genial Tom Hanlon, once a football player and now the 340-pound "Tiny" of films, watches the rancheros with pleasure, giving interim announcements for the sponsor, Wrigley's-gum.

In this business of being cowboy-for-the-masses, Gene Autry has no peer. When he quit his job astelegrapher at Ravia, Oklahoma, to sing western songs at station WLS in Chicago, he started something which has since landed him in the position of American public hero number one. His motionpicture adventures with "Champ," the amazing horse, bring him twelve thousand fan letters a week. His famous recording of "That Silver-Haired Daddy of Mine" has sold more than ten million copies. He is the one incomparable cowboy of broadcasting.

A HEAVEN for HORSES ?

You be the judge. Listen in to the Santa Anita Handicap Saturday and read the story of Chase Me

Is there a heaven for horses? This Saturday another group of great horses —the flower of hundreds of years of breeding and training—will go to the post to compete in the Santa Anita Handicap, richest of all horse-races. When they have run their race, when they have won their laurels and come to the end of their racing days, will that be the end? Here is the story of Chase Me, one like them, one who ran as they until a tragic fate overtook him. It is told by Sam Balter, "Inside of Sports" commentator for Phillies cigars, as he told it on his broadcast. Read it and you will wonder too, for certainly if there is a heaven for horses Chase Me is there.—Editor.

N THE bright little suburb of Monkton, Maryland, there is today a mound of earth that marks a grave, the grave of that horse, unlike almost any other in the history of racing. To the Bosleys—Mrs. Elizabeth Bosley and her three children, Sara, Jackie and Betty—it is still a shrine, although Chase Me was lowered into it six years ago this month on May 19, 1934. On this day Chase Me was running in the Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park, one of America's leading features. He was making one of his famous moves towards the leaders, running head and head with the mighty Equipoise, when he stumbled, fell in a heap, a fragile, unmendable leg broken—and was destroyed. He broke a leg in a race and had to be shot and was decently buried—and that was all. Or was it? You be the judge.

There was a sight none at Belmont Park that day would like to see again. Chase Me died with his owner, Elizabeth Bosley, prostrate across his body, begging them to do it to her, tooand therein lies a most amazing tale. Chase Me, who might have become the greatest race-horse of his time, was no race-horse at all. He was a household pet, he was a member of the family and he really belonged to thirteen-year-old Sara. As we get the tale from Gerald Scott of the New York Mirror, Mrs. Bosley was told by veterinarians that there was some defect in the animal's physiology which made it certain he would never race. It was of small moment. Mrs. Bosley wanted Chase Me merely as a pet and a saddle-horse for the children. For four years he was that and only that. Now they say a race-horse has to be reared and trained as a race-horse. Chase Me's training was doing tricks to amuse the children.

Probably of all the horses engaged in racing, Chase Me was the only one which could sit up and beg, roll over and play dead. In Manhattan a dowager adores her Pekinese; in Maryland —and Kentucky, too, I suppose—a horse can be a household pet. And Chase Me's heart was big enough for all—for tiny Betty, eleven-year-old Jackie, and Sara and their mother. But especially Sara. It was Sara who really owned Chase Me, owned every hair on his body, she said. It was she who had owned him since the day he was foaled and insisted she would own him till the day he died.

Perhaps all this was running through the mind of Elizabeth Bosley that fatal day in May as she wept over the body of a dead horse and wondered what she could tell Sara, wondered about the incidents of the flying days preceding this melancholy one.

THE chain of circumstances which resulted in Chase Me becoming a racer, for instance. It was sheer accident. A friend had asked to use Chase Me as a pacer for his stable of racehorses. As a pacer he was a rank failure. For, having once been allowed to set the pace by the exercise boy, Chase Me would resolutely refuse to allow the other horse to pass him. Still no one seemed to suspect that Chase

Me was a great race-horse. But when an even better horse was tried out and Chase Me again could not be slowed down enough to be passed how the children had laughed at the spectacle—and when, after this happened a half-dozen times, it dawned on all that though he wasn't trained to race, Chase Me just didn't seem to know all that.

nei Paari

Most great race-horses come from large stables run by wealthy owners. The Bosley family was not wealthy and it had only one horse, Chase Me. Most horses start racing as two-yearolds and reach their heights a year later, perhaps. Chase Me was a fouryear-old before he ran his first race. In his short, meteoric career he ran seven races. The number he won was seven. Just as in those tests, so was it on the turf. He refused to be passed. In his first test he ran away from a fair field. In his second, a much better field, he won by so many lengths that the timers lost count.

Then came that day at Pimlico! Could she ever forget it? In the field were the famous mare Tred Avon, conqueror of mighty Equipoise; Flagstone, the handicap star, and Chase Me had come from behind with a finish like Man o' War's and won going away, and only two-fifths of a second off the track record. Could she forget how they wept hysterically in their box at Chase Me's poor startso poor they were sure he had been left at the post; how Max Hirsch had to calm their tears at that start and then subdue their ecstasy at that finish? Yes, tears had flowed copiously in that clubhouse box at Pimlico that (Continued on Page 41)

BEHIND THE SCENES, James Melton and Francia White labor to create the music you hear on "The Telephone Hour." Below: Interim rehearsal. Left: Francia, shorter than James, stands on box to get correct mike perspective. Above: Melton, coat on, opens broadcast Three months to produce and a halfhour to present. It sounds like a perfecth onist's dream, and that's the way the Be II Telephone sponsor intends that its Mon day night broadcast on NBC should sound A musical program isn't pounded out in 1 just any fashion. It takes work, as James' Melton, Francia White and Don Voorhe es, who share the main responsibility 1 or the telephone program, well know. BAND OF THE WEEK is Tony Pastor's, one of the coming crop of newer music-makers. Tony himself was playing the saxophone when a tyke named Artie Shaw tagged him about carrying his sax case, but later he played in Artie's band. The Pastor outfit' is heard over NBC four nights a week

ON THE BANDWAGON

NE of the new bands of 1940 which rapidly came to the forefront was that of Tony Pastor's. An even greater success is predicted this year by a band executive who helped forge the success of such current favorites as Tommy Dorsey, Eddy Duchin, Benny Goodman and Artie Shaw. This executive says that Tony's band is the band to watch this coming year. One reason is that the band possesses an excellent music repertoire, plus the fact that its leader is a born musician. Tony, you might say, was born with the desire to play a musical instrument. In fact, his musical inclinations once got him fired from a job in an asbestos factory. Prior to that he had worked at a number of small jobs, none of which were interesting enough to persuade him to give up his ambition to become a musician. Shortly after Tony began to take music lessons he obtained a position with a small band called the Wesleyan Serenaders. Later he was engaged by a band headed by Johnny Cavellero which played at the Cinderella Ballroom in New Haven. Here he was continually followed by a small lad who often carried his sax case. That boy was Artie Shaw! Tony later starred in Artie's band, and when Artie quit used some of his men to form the nucleus of his present crew. Current personnel is as follows: Front row (left to right): Bob Taylor, Hank Freeman, Johnny McAfee, Stuart Anderson, saxophones; Tony Pastor, leader; Jack Carleton, Kay Little, Dorsey Anderson and Johnny Farrell, vocalists (Three Lads and a Lassie). Second row (left to right): Bill Abel, Henry Singer, Ray Noonan, trombones. Back row (left to right): Vinnie Badale, Irving Berger, Bill Robbins, trumpets; Johnny Morris, drums; Marvin Wittstein, bass; Les Burness, piano. The Pastor band is currently broadcasting from New York four nights a casting from New York four nights a week over NBC, at which times it provides musical entertainment of high quality. As one of the more outstanding of the new crop of bands, MovIE-RADIO GUIDE nominates the Tony Pastor orchestra as the BAND OF THE WEEK! Next week: Glen Gray and his Casa Loma band.

Bandata

A number of bandsmen are being drafted these days. Three of Bob Chester's crew heard the call from your Uncle Samuel. About the same time, Bobby Byrne's pianist, Gabe Julian, exchanged his tuxedo for the olive drab. Tommy Dorsey also would have lost his drummer, Buddy Rich, had it not been for the fact that Buddy is supporting his parents . Enoch Light, who was injured in an auto accident, is now able to take up his baton again . . . Raymond Scott and his cohorts have an extremely laughable stunt. They pantomime as though they were actually playing their instruments. The punch line comes when Scott announces "That was neither BMI nor an ASCAP infringement" . . . We reported recently that Horace Heidt may give up his band. It is almost certain that such will be the case come spring, at which time Heidt's song-writing pianist, Frankie Carle, may be given Heidt's baton . . . Kay Kyser's one-night appearance at the Aragon Ballroom in Chicago was a signal for attendance records there to start falling. Ten thousand Kyser-krazy fans stormed the dance spot . . . Mark Warnow, the "Hit Parade" bandleader, may launch a new dance band for personal appearances. Hitherto Warnow has confined his activities to radio. The new band, however, will not take him off the "Hit Parade" . . . Tommy Dorsey dug deep into his pocket in order to pay homage to Martin Block on the occasion of the fifth birthday of Block's "Make Believe Ballroom" program. Dorsey agreed to appear on Block's show over WNEW in New York during the anniversary celebration, but it so happened that Dorsey was to play an engagement at Syracuse, N. Y., the same night.

Tommy solved the dilemma by hiring two airplanes to take him and the band upstate immediately following the Martin festivities.

Paul Whiteman's book, "How to Be a Bandleader," is now on the Book-of-the-Month Club's recommended list . Gypsy Rose Lee, the strip-teaser, likes to spend her spare moments listening to recordings of symphonies and great musical works! . . . Rumor has it that orchestra-leader Phil Harris is peeved at Tommy Dorsey because Tommy recently hired away Phil's lovely songstress, Marie MacDonald . . Alvino Rey, now playing at a New Jersey dance spot, is a "ham" radio operator. His call-letters are W6RDX It's a romance between Ben Bernie's son, Jason, and Virginia Langdon, daughter of screen comedian Harry Langdon . . . Ronnie Kemper, Horace Heidt's singer, is also that way about Kathy Lewis, Betty Grable's stand-in.

CEVERAL hundred miles away from nowhere lies one of the least-known—and best-informed -colleges in America. It is the Panhandle Agricultural and Mechanical College of Oklahoma and it is located, as the title indicates, in the Oklahoma Panhandle, in the center of the muchpublicized dustbowl.

In Goodwell, the college town, there is neither a daily newspaper nor a motion-picture show. Ninety-five percent of its students come from dustbowl farms and have never seen daily newspaper. a All newspapers reaching the town of Goodwell are at least twenty-four hours late, for Goodwell lies three hundred miles northwest of Oklahoma City, four hundred miles southeast of Denver. The closest settlement of any size to it is Guyman, Oklahoma, ten miles away, with a population of about 2,500. Which adds up to near-isolation.

I first came upon this amazing college about a year ago when I was booked there for a lecture. I was astounded at the up-to-theminute knowledge of the young people who attended this isolated college, where all of the usual media for providing up-to-the-minute information seemed so utterly lacking. Believe me, they fired questions of the moment at me, when my lecture was completed, that the most avid New Yorker, with all his fine newspapers and newsreels, would never have thought of. I asked Ed Morrison, the former Yale football hero and now president of this unusual institution. how he managed to keep this bunch of youngsters-so obviously out of the world's swim—so up on their toes. "Radio," he said. He didn't elaborate on it. I suppose he felt that there was no need to elaborate on it. And suddenly I understood more completely than ever before what a swell job radio was doing in keeping an America which—in former days—would have moved largely in the dark, alert and alive to the world's happenings and what those happenings mean, or may mean, to us.

Radio is the chief source of enlightenment and entertainment at Goodwell. Ninety-five percent of the students have access to radio programs -and fifty-five percent have radios in their rooms. This, while the enrolment fee is probably the lowest in the entire United States, an amazing $4.08 per semester! (The eight cents is for sales tax.)

A student at Goodwell does most of the radio repair work needed to keep the sets, of varied vintages and degrees of efficiency, in working order. He is Thomas Cayton, a junior in electrical' engineering. Cayton is older than the average college boy. Most of the students here are, because-thanks to the reverses suffered by their parents in striving to wrest a living from the dust-consumed soil—they were late completing their high-school work. Two factors decided Cayton's choice of a profession. When he was about eleven years old, his parents bought their first radio set, and Thomas became deeply interested in what made it click. He decided to learn more about it. The other factor was the fact that he had witnessed his father's struggle on the farm, knew that it wasn't a future for him. In addition to his electrical course at Panhandle A. & M.,

Cayton is taking a course in television by correspondence.

Otho Porton, another older boy on the campus, is president of the sopho-more class and a born leader. He is interested in social sciences and hopes to do something about them some day. Possessed of a keen native wit, he feeds it at the font of such programs as Jack Benny's, Bob Hope's, Bob Burns'. But his favorite radio programs are the newscasts. They keep him informed, he says, and help him to formulate his ideas. Some day he hopes to enter Oklahoma politics.

Almost all of the students at this unique college are working their way through in whole, others in part. This applies to girls as well as boys. Margaret Brawner is a sophomore and business-training student, but early in her life she studied music. At the college she manages to pay a large part of her expenses by acting as accompanist for various musical groups on the campus. Her fa-vorite radio programs are the musical ones.

Alyene Sapp, one of the ten students on the campus to be named in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities for 1940, is associate editor of the college newspaper. Her parents, like others in the dustbowl area, suffered the usual reverses, and, during the long years of striving to exist in an area that challenged almost beyond endurance, they learned to turn to the radio for their entertainment and recreation. Serials of family life and radio dramatic programs have been the chief means of diversion for this family, and at Goodwell, where entertainment media are almost as sparse as they were at home, she follows the same radio programs for her entertainment, the news programs to keep up with the world.

Mac Porter, president of the senior class, expressed the belief that most of the wind-chargers seen on Oklahoma farms have been put in more to permit farm families to enjoy radio than to provide electric lights. He enjoys va-riety programs the most, with news programs a close second. The average student at Goodwell listens to radio programs on an average of twelve hours per week. Twenty-eight percent of this time is devoted to listening to dance orchestras, eighteen percent to news broadcasts, nine percent to classical music and seven percent to sports broadcasts. Most of the students there have never seen a football game or a hockey g ame, but most of them, thanks to radio, can tell you the top stars and top teams in almost any field of sport.

I was completely surprised to learn that eighty- five percent of these students felt that radio was of more value than newspapers in keeping up with world a.fairs. Even more interesting to me was the a questionnaire I had them fill out, that Kay Kyser's program stood at the top of the class in popularity. News reports came next, "Your Hit Parade" third, Jack Benny, Charlie McCarthy and the "Lux Radio Theater" completing the list of favorites. Radio listening was almost unanimously the most popular pastime of these off-the-beaten-path collegians. The programs which interest them least are the instructional ones-cooking, recipes, bridge lessons, etc. This may seem odd on a college campus where students are there because they thirst for knowledge. It isn't odd at all, in fact. Radio is the newspaper, movie show, theater, concert and nine-tenths of their recreation in this out-of-the-way school. It is all things to all students, giving them whatever they lack either for work or play.

As one Oklahoma lad referred to the set sitting in a corner of his dormitory room: "She's a honey. If the thing could cook, darned if wouldn't marry it."

IF BURNS AND ALLEN get a contract renewal this month they automatically get a two-thousand-dollar salary raise, a provision of the existing contract with their packing-company sponsor, Hormel. That would give George and Gracie $14,500 per waek.

MRS. PETER FICK, who played Marge in the radio team of "Myrt and Marge," died February 15 in Englewood Hospital, Engl ewood, N. J., after giving birth to a son. The twenty-eight-year-old actress did her February 14 broadcast as usual, leaving for the hospital immediately after going off the air. The child was born at 12:42 the next morning and Marge died just eighteen minutes later. The baby is well. The death breaks up a mother-daughter team, which has been broadcasting continuously since November, 1931. The mother, Mrs. Myrtle Vail Damerel (who plays Myrt in the serial), has announced that she will continue the program, as she believes that is the way Marge would want it. Marge was born in Chicago July 8, 1912, the daughter of vaudeville artists. After attending Chicago public schools until she was fifteen years old she left to join a musical-comedy chorus. Later she joined her mother and father in a vaudeville sketch. When vaudeville engagements became scarce the family moved to a farm just outside Chicago where the father died a few years later. The mother, pressed for financial assistance, conceived the idea of the "Myrt and Marge" radio program based upon the lives of struggling vaudeville artists, sponsored by a Chicago chewing-gum company. Marge is survived by two other sons, Charles Griffiths and William J. Kretsinger, by two previous marriages, her mother and her husband, Mr. Fick, Olympic swimming star to whom she was married on January 13, 1940. Funeral services were held at 8 p.m., February 17, in Manhattan.

Look at the Record, Senator

The networks are making Senator Burton K. Wheeler feel very silly. The Senator charged that radio commentators are biased especially in the matter of the Lease-Lend bill, that the microphone speakers are building up public opinion for passage of the bill, a move the Senator opposes. In their vigorous denial of the charges the networks are proving by actual recordings just what the commentators did say and the Senator is finding out that they merely reported the facts. They are proving by means of statistics that they gave the same amount of air time to the opponents of the bill as to the advocates. And they are proving by means of expert opinion that there is a whale of a lot of difference between interpretation of the news and editorializing. Such a fight is not new to radio. Every time a major issue arises, one side-the losing side-invariably charges that radio was unfair.

TRAGIC DEATH of Marge (I.) of radio's "Myrt and Marge" after giving birth to a son Feb. 15 stirred listeners the country over. Her mother, "Myrt" Vail (seen with Marge above), will continue serial

Heard About Town

Bandleader Fred Waring has been broadcasting on crutches, the result of a skiing accident at Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa. It was his first accident of any sort in twenty years . . . Mrs. Clifton Fadiman, wife of the "Information, Please" master of ceremonies, is due for a quiz show of her own on CBS this month if present plans work out . . . Frank Parker was called in to substitute for the ailing Jan Peerce on "Golden Treasury of Song." Now that it is certain Peerce will not be able to return this winter, Parker becomes the regular star of the show . March 15 is the date Kate Smith heads for Hollywood. While there she will present dramatizations of these new movies: "Las Vegas Nights," "The Roundup," "Road to Zanzibar" and "I Wanted Wings" . Erin . . O'Brien-Moore's suit for damages against Jack Lyons, alleging he pitched a lighted match in her lap, setting her dress on fire, resulted in a hung jury. No date has been set for a new trial. Miss Moore is heard on NBC's "John's Other Wife" . . . Mr. and Mrs. Phillips H. Lord have parted and he is said to be interested in Bonnie Doone, formerly Honeychile of Bob Hope's program. Lord produces "Mr. District Attorney" and "Gang Busters," but he and his wife are perhaps best known for their "Seth Parker" roles on the Sunday night broadcasts of several years ago.

Studio Stuff

Raymond Paige made a flying trip to Havana for a meeting of conductors and composers . . . Mickey Rooney's new symphonic composition was not performed on the "Ford Sunday Eve-ning Hour" as announced because Mickey's lawyers refused to let him sign a release designed to cover CBS in case the score contained any ASCAP strains . . . George Jessel and his sixteen-year-old bride are reported drifting apart . . . A girl named Drumm plays fife in Phil Spitalny's "Hour of Charm" orchestra . . . One of the latest heirs turned up by the "Court of Missing Heirs" is a seventyyear-old lunchroom errand man who has been making only seventy-five cents and two meals a day. He's George Ruge, who now has, thanks to radio, $6,500 left him by a brother who died twelve years ago . . . It was reported in a Broadway column that Vicki Vola of the "Mr. District Attorney" and "Modern Mother" series and Hugh Marlowe, best known as "Ellery Queen," were romancing. The real story is that Vicki and John Wilkerson, Broadway actor, and Marlowe and Cynthia Carlin, free-lance actress, are paired off romantically nowadays . . When they saw one another they turned green! . . . Dick Powell has been bid to headline a new thirty-minute program series set to start in April Best spot on the marvelous Greek War Relief broadcast from Hollywood February 8 was generally acknowl-edged to be Ronald Colman's reading of Gene Fowler's poem, "The Jervis Bay Goes Down," with special atmospheric music composed and directed by Meredith Willson . . . Which reminds to explain the absence of Tony Martin on that aircast; he rehearsed a number of hours during the day for the night-time show, and then collapsed with the flu and had to remain in bed that night and for the next several days . . Edward G. Robinson has assigned writers to eulogize the nationally publicized ten-year-old Airedale, "Laddie," now year-old Airedale, "Laddie," now dead, in a forthcoming "Big Town" drama . . . Kathryn Grayson, of whom you will see and hear more for the first time in Metro's "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary," has been invited to be guest soloist of the "Ford Sun-day Evening Hour" . . . Kay Kyser Comes to Town

Kay Kyser and his boys and girl, Ginny Simms, arrived in Hollywood February 8 and hosted their friends at an informal luncheon Tuesday, February 11, at which Kay flatly denied that there was any truth to any rumor that he might leave the air because of difficulty in obtaining song material on account of the ASCAP-BMI tune war. Kyser stays strictly on the fence as regards the controversy, but assured all present, with reassurance from his sponsor's representative, that the broadcast would be continued. Kyser returned to Hollywood to make his third motion picture for RKO-Radio Pictures, which will be readied for the cameras shortly by Jimmy Kern and Monte Brice for direction by David Butler.

DRAMATIC TRAGEDY and an on-the-spot broadcast came almost to the doors of Movie-Radio Guide here Feb. 11. A terrific explosion occurred in a chemical laboratory across the street. NBC minute-man Norman Barry was on hand to describe the disaster.

FRANKLYN MACCORMACK is in again. Or is he? The mellow-voiced poetry reader and announcer, whom we have boosted often for a poetryreading spot on the air, and who still commands a huge following though he hasn't had a regular poetry series for a couple of years, has landed the announcing assignment on the new CBS Wayne King show. He's an expert announcer. But how about the poetry? It would fit appealingly into the pattern of the new cosmetics program. How about it, MacCormack fans?

Durward Kirby Engaged

Durward (pronounced by many feminine fans "Dearward") Kirby, announcer-comedian of "Club Matinee" and an hour-a-night local recordedmusic show, made a Valentine Day announcement of his engagement to Mary Paxton, agency writer-an-nouncer, whom Durward first met five years ago at WLW, Cincinnati. The wedding will be sometime in the fall

There were two other recent altar-ations in the NBC announcing staff. Dave Garroway and Henry Cooke both went to St. Louis to marry Miss Adele Dwyer and Miss Mary Fickes, respectively . . . Incidentally, it looks as if "Quiz Kid" Gerard Darrow is radio's youngest matinee idol. The eight-year-old whiz got valentines from every state in the Union. Gerard is prouder of the special merit badge awarded him by Chicago Boy Scouts for his interest in the preservation of wild bird life.

"Orphan Annie," ten-year veteran of network strip shows, is back on Guilbert now playing the lead . . . Actor-director Frank Dane got his first message from his father in Denmark since the Nazi occupation. The letter was postmarked December 8 . Announcer Bob Brown is waiting for a new thirty-two-foot cutter being built to his specifications . . . And tenor Wayne Van Dyne is getting a big, new yacht on which he and his wife plan to live this summer . Colleen Moore, silent-screen star, came out of retirement to make a guest appearance on Hal Tate's local 'That's Show Business." She lives in Chicago with her husband, Homer P. Hargrave, stock broker, and spends much of her time in charity work, especially with her famous doll house.

"Round Table" Signs of Times

They used to have to urge "University of Chicago Round Table" speakers to interrupt and speak boldly to make the discussions lively. Now, with world conditions as they are, the production director has to flash signs reading: "Wait Your Turn" and "Don't All Talk at Once!" The same program has received requests for published transcripts of its broadcasts from libraries in Germany and Russia. Titles of requested discussions in-clude: "If Germany Wins," "Can Hitler Attack America?" and "Ameri-ca's Capacity to Arm."

The poundage situation in NBC's studio G is a weighty matter. The act which occupies the studio Saturday mornings consists of Smilin' Ed McConnell (290 pounds), organist Larry Larsen (238 pounds) and producer Bob White (only 190 pounds) Speaking of weight, a reckless offer by tenor Jack Baker on "Breakfast Club" recently cost him the price of six breakfasts. He offered to foot the bill for anybody in the studio who could guess his weight. Six visitors rang the bell with the guess of 178 pounds . . . Real double trouble has befallen the cast of "Arnold Grimm's Daughter." Don Merrifield, veteran actor who plays Arnold, and Judith Lowry, who plays Emma Grimm, have both been on the sick list. Phil Lord and Edith Davis have been substituting.

To Smoke or Not

Eddy Howard, vocalist with Edgar . Guest, gets mike assurance by holding a pipe—usually an empty one —in his hand. He has several dozen pipes around his Evanston, Ill., home, but seldom smokes one . . . Pat Brady, bass fiddle slapper of the Sons of the Pioneers (on "Station E-Z-R-A"), also has the empty pipe habit, but his hands are busy and he chews the pipe while he plays . . . Marvin Mueller, actor-announcer (star of "Peter Quill"), should be able to capitalize somehow amongst cigarette sponsors with one of his collecting hobbies. He has 280 completely tabulated cigarette packages, and he has smoked at least one cigarette of each of the brands.

An NBC singer got a letter which said: "Friday, while listening to your program, I heard a song which went la-de-do de-do la-do. Will you please sing it again on Monday?

LONDON SHORT-WAVE SCHEDULES AGAIN EXPANDED

ORE news for overseas ORE news for orthop-listeners whatever hap-pens" is planned by the V BBC, who in spite of attacks on Broadcasting House, London, and other centers in Great Britain where its studios are located, have arranged for additional coverage of events whether these take the form of the threatened invasion or the opening of new fronts in the Balkans or the Mediterranean.

Beginning Sunday, February 16, the six hours of regular broadcasting activities constituting the BBC's overseas service to the United States and Canada, were extended by more than half an hour. The new transmission period is daily from 5:20 to 11:45 p.m. EST.

Every precaution possible is being made that the programs from London may continue uninterruptedly through air-raids, shellfire or invasion. Most of the studios now in use are deep in the bowels of the earth. Location of these studios, which are scattered throughout England, is a carefully guarded secret. To defend this underground broadcasting system still further anti-aircraft batteries supported by machine-gun nests have been installed in the vicinity of the hidden studios. You have probably noticed the peculiar hollow tone apparent on evening broadcasts from London. This is due to the underground acoustics, which present a nice problem to the sound-engineers. The most vulnerable part of any broadcasting plant must necessarily be its aerial layout. For twenty-four hours out of each day London's powerful shortwave transmitters are busy sending out programs to all corners of the earth. To speed these broadcasts to their proper destinations, dozens of directive antennae are necessary. Beam aerials take up a lot of room. They can not be successfully hidden or camouflaged. Thus it becomes almost inevitable that sooner or later direct hits should put one or more of these highly important accessories out of use. You may have wondered why the North American transmissions from London have been much weaker than usual of late. I suspect, as does BBC monitor H. S. Campbell of Uplands, Calif., that German raiders have finally hit the bull's-eye and damaged some of the North American aerials and that consequently makeshift substitutes are temporarily in use. Be that as it may, the programs from London are still coming over with very fair volume and are crammed with first-hand news, human interest and outstanding variety acts. Here is what you can hear nightly (time is Eastern Standard):

A HEAVEN FOR HORSES?

November day. For it never seemed to them that it was just a horse-race. It was their brother and son, Chase Me, in a feudal duel of glory and honor.

As Henry King wrote in Turf and Sports Digest, if it had been proven in competition that he wasn't worth the proverbial quarter, he would still have been the best horse of any breed in the world to the Bosley family. But he was worth a hundred thousand quarters, even to non-Bosleys. For that Pimlico event was really the start of one of the most amazing careers of a race-horse known in America. At Bowie, conceding chunks of weight, he beat a good field in an allowance race. Later, as his final test of 1933, he beat Mate there, carrying the heaviest package, too. Now he was one of America's leading thoroughbreds-and he had yet to lose a single race. Next spring he started again by capturing the Baltimore Handicap at Pimlico. That race decided Mrs. Bosley. They would give Chase Me the chance he deserved-the Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont. May 19. The mighty Equipoise and

Mr. Khayyam would be in that field —and others. May 19—it was May 19 now-and Mrs. Bosley was sobbing across the chest of a horse, a chest that would never heave again. It was May 19 and Chase Me was still unbeaten. So he broke a leg in a race and had to be shot and was decently buried-and that was all. Oh, was it? How many race-horses were there that never, never, not once, had tasted of defeat? How many were there that did that, though they were not racehorses at all? For they always had trouble getting Chase Me back to the judges' stand for his floral horseshoe. He'd be off looking for Sara to get his lump of sugar. How many were there who could play hide-and-seek with the children? And how about his hunting? He was a champion. He had blue ribbons in his stall to prove it. Blue ribbons won in New York, New Jer-sey, Maryland, with Sara on his back. And what about those killing drags through the hunting districts of the Old Line State. Had he ever failed Sara at a ditch or a fence in the hundreds of times she had ridden him to hounds? How many others? How many others? Only Chase Me. Only Chase Me . . . A sedative for her, the doctor said, and they pulled her off the quiet, sleeping horse , whose chest would never heave again. Outside the stable door, others rushed to quiet the screaming of a thirteen-year-old girl Yes, there's a mound of earth that marks a grave in the bright little suburb of Monkton, Maryland, today; a mound visited each May 19 by a woman and three unnaturally quiet children, for there lies the horse that might have been-no, was-one of the most amazing in the history of the American turf; of a breed that comes along just . . . once in a lifetime.

The Santa Anita Handicap will be broadcast Saturday, March 1. Time and network may be found on the program pages.

Bulls and boners are a part of broadcasting. No matter how experienced the performer or how famous the star, chances are that he will make an occasional slip or a statement with twisted meaning which is extremely funny. See how good your ears are. Try to catch broadcasters in some error-the funnier the better-and send your entry to MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago. The most humorous entries will be printed in this column. Watch for your contribution!

"How do I get my Start as a Writer?"

First, don't stop believing you can write; there is no reason to think you can't write until you have tried. Don't be discouraged if your first attempts are rejected That happens to the best authors, even to those who have "arrived." Remember, too, there is no age limit in the writing profession. Conspicuous success has come to both young and old writers.

Where to begin, then? There is no surer way than to get busy and write.

Gain experience, the "know how." Understand how to use words. Then you can construct the word-buildings that now are vague, misty shapes in your mind.

O. Henry, Mark Twain, Kipling, Ring Lardner, just to mention a few, all first learned to use words at a newspaper copy desk. And the Newspaper tute Copy Desk Method is today helping men and women of all ages to develop their writing talent . . . help-ing them gain their first little checks of $25, $50, $100.

November day. For it never seemed to them that it was just a horse-race. It was their brother and son, Chase Me, in a feudal duel of glory and honor.

As Henry King wrote in Turf and Sports Digest, if it had been proven in competition that he wasn't worth the proverbial quarter, he would still have been the best horse of any breed in the world to the Bosley family. But he was worth a hundred thousand quarters, even to non-Bosleys. For that Pimlico event was really the start of one of the most amazing careers of a race-horse known in America. At Bowie, conceding chunks of weight, he beat a good field in an allowance race. Later, as his final test of 1933, he beat Mate there, carrying the heaviest package, too. Now he was one of America's leading thoroughbreds-and he had yet to lose a single race. Next spring he started again by capturing the Baltimore Handicap at Pimlico. That race decided Mrs. Bosley. They would give Chase Me the chance he deserved-the Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont. May 19. The mighty Equipoise and

Mr. Khayyam would be in that field -and others. May 19-it was May 19 now-and Mrs. Bosley was sobbing across the chest of a horse, a chest that would never heave again. It was May 19 and Chase Me was still unbeaten. So he broke a leg in a race and had to be shot and was decently buried-and that was all. Oh, was it? How many race-horses were there that never, never, not once, had tasted of defeat? How many were there that did that, though they were not racehorses at all? For they always had trouble getting Chase Me back to the judges' stand for his floral horseshoe. He'd be off looking for Sara to get his lump of sugar. How many were there who could play hide-and-seek with the children? And how about his hunting? He was a champion. He had blue ribbons in his stall to prove it. Blue ribbons won in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, with Sara on his back. And what about those killing drags through the hunting districts of the Old Line State. Had he ever failed Sara at a ditch or a fence in the hundreds of times she had ridden him to hounds? How many others? How many others? Only Chase Me. Only Chase Me . . . A sedative for her, the doctor said, and they pulled her off the quiet, sleeping horse , whose chest would never heave again. Outside the stable door, others rushed to quiet the screaming of a thirteen-year-old girl.

Yes, there's a mound of earth that marks a grave in the bright little suburb of Monkton, Maryland, today; a mound visited each May 19 by a woman and three unnaturally quiet children, for there lies the horse that might have been-no, was-one of the most amazing in the history of the American turf; of a breed that comes along just . . . once in a lifetime.

The Santa Anita Handicap will be broadcast Saturday, March 1. Time and network may be found on the program pages.

Her family kept her at the conventional line of schooling until Betty finished her sec-ond year at Ohio State, then they sent her to dramatic school. Incidentally, her radio debut was not as an actress but as a blues singer on a Columbus, Ohio, station. Her dramatic debut was in 1936 at WLW, Cincinnati, and she moved on to NBC, Chicago, in 1939. She is now heard as Iris Marsh in "Guiding Light" and has the feminine lead of Peg Banning in "Wings of Destiny." Betty's aver-sions are oatmeal, shrimps, cooking and bridge teas. She dotes on taxis, big cities, filet of sole, books and interior decorating. She is married to Allen Franklin, radio actor. Betty is five feet six and one-half inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, has brown hair and blue eyes.

Miss Jean Bowman, San Francisco, Calif.-WILLIAM FRAWLEY was born in Burlington, Iowa, on February 16, 1893

Mrs. J. Peters, Blue Lake, Ill.— FRAN ALLISON is not married. Fran's career has been unusual and she has been employed in a variety of fields. She sold advertising space for the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Gazette; sold millinery in a Cedar Rapids department store; taught a country school in Iowa; traveled over Iowa staging amateur shows; and, bowing into radio, she peddled radio time while singing on a station. Frances was born in LaPorte City, Iowa, where her parents still live. Her maternal grandmother was a soprano in Dublin, Ireland, and little Fran began to sing almost before she could talk. Because of her love for music she was sent to the Coe College conservatory and it was while there that she was invited to sing over a small station in Cedar Rapids. The owner of the station kept pets-monkeys, parrots and other animals, which were likely to stroll into the studio at any time. However, this job didn't pay anything, so when Fran was graduated from college she began teaching at a rural school, where her students ranged from the first to the eighth grades. After four years of teaching, the urge to be a singer got the best of Fran and she gave up her job, went back to Cedar Rapids to begin singing again - supporting herself in the meantime by working in a department store. From there she moved to Waterloo, then in the summer of 1937 NBC invited her to come to Chicago for an audition. She had hardly returned home again before a wire from Chicago arrived telling her to report for work. Fran spends her leisure time knitting, especially on the beaches of the Chicago lakefront (when weather permits, of course). She is five feet eight inches tall, weighs 135 pounds, has dark-brown hair and eyes. Fran's birth date is November 20, 1907.

Miss Coula Spypos, Fitchburg, Mass. -EDDY DUCHIN narrowly missed prescribing remedies for headaches instead of rhythms for blues. His father owns a chain of drug stores in Boston, and Eddy was graduated from Pharmacy College, where he prepared to follow his father's footsteps. His career as a pharmacist was interrupted when his hobby, piano playing, came to the fore. Eddy never considered music as a profession, although that career began to evolve during the summers he worked as a waiter at a boys' camp in New Hampshire. The waiters organized an orchestra of three pieces-piano, saxophone and fiddle. He had never thought of making money out of an unusual aptitude for piano syncopation until a professional pianist advised him to join the union. Eddy did so, and began to accumulate extra money in the summers, working in a drug store during the day and playing at local dances in the evenings. In the summer of his junior year at Phar-macy College, Eddy won a Leo Reisman audition and joined this orchestra. He returned to Boston in the autumn to finish school, graduating in 1929. Instead of joining his father in the pharmacy business; Eddy took a job as pianist with Reisman, within a year organized his own outfit. Eddy was born April 1, 1909, in Cambridge, Massachusetts. He is six feet tall, weighs 165 pounds, has black hair, blue-gray eyes. He is a widower.

Welbourn

YESTERDAY'S glamour girl has given way to a new type of American beauty, the Vitamin Girl! And proudly we present Miss Betty Randall, whose fresh, wel.-scrubbed appearance and radiant vitality put her immediately in that class. Betty informs me that outdoor living is largely responsible for the clearness and rosiness of her skin, the energy that characterizes everything she does and the enthusiasm she feels for her work as well as for her various hobbies.

She plays golf, tennis, swims and rides and carries on all four things, I am told on good authority, exceedingly well. (It stands to reason that you can't be a Vitamin Girl and do anything exciting or interesting or worth while in a half-hearted manner!)

I asked Betty to tell me how she manages to create such a natural appearance in her make-up that you have to look twice to discover if she is even wearing any. Outdoor girls aren't supposed to look as if they had just left the hands of a French maid or a hair-dresser. There should always be a wisp or two of hair out of place, a shiny nose, a streak of powder, a slightly misplaced lipstick, an inch of peticoat showing, to remind you that their interests lie more in the direction of field and stream and the great open places than in achieving what the fashion books describe as "meticulous grooming."

But, in the most disarming manner in the world, Betty disproves the theory that a well-turned-out appearance and proficiency in sports can't be acquired by the same personality. Her make-up is applied with such skill and delicacy that you are never aware of it as anything more than the faintest possible accenting of her natural charms. Her hair is light brown, her eyes are gray-blue and she wears a nasturtium shade of rouge and lipstick with a shade of powder that exactly matches her skin. (Nasturtium, I might add, is not only a "natural" for girls of Betty's coloring but goes brilliantly with the blue, black and white costumes of her spring wardrobe.) "I learned long ago," Betty informed me, "that "I learned long ago," Betty informed me, "that the wisest thing I could do for my face was to apply to my make-up the same principle that I observe in my clothes. The French have a saying that when you've finished dressing you should look in the mirror and take off any or all of the gadgets that aren't absolutely necessary. Whenever I find myself with a tendency to put on my make-up a bit too dramatically, I wash my face and begin all over again."

According to the Vitamin Girl there's many a slip between the lipstick and the lips it is intended to glorify. The Hollywood formula of application, which incidentally is practised by most of our radio stars, is to have dry lips with which to start, since wet or greasy ones won't permit the rouge to blend satisfactorily.

The color should be applied first to the upper lip and outlined with a brush or an orange-wood stick, after which the lips should be rolled together to transfer the rouge to the lower one. Next the excess should be blotted off with cleansing tissue and the lips patted with a powder-puff to keep them from leaving telltale traces.

"Keep laughter, love and courage on your lips," postscripts the Vitamin Girl, "but your age never!"

Eyes Glow with Enchantment

WHEN LASHES ARE DARKENED TO LONG SWEEPING LOVELINESS

Rita Hayworth Columbia Motion Picture Star

Bewitching eyes-who can resist their spell? How well Hollywood Beauties realize that eye make-up is all-important... that the effect must be soft and lovely... and that Maybelline is always flattering — never obvious!

Rita Hayworth subtly accents her exotic brunette charm. She knows that even the duskiest eyelashes fade out lighter at the ends... so they need Mascara that goes on divinely and doesn't smudge off. As she darkens her lashes to the very tips, she sweeps them upward with the Mascara brush- to make them look longer, lovelier, more luxuriant. Her expressive brows are tapered gracefully with the famous smooth-marking Eyebrow Pencil. Her eye-lids shimmer with a touch of exquisite

Eye Shadow. You can glorify your eyes just as easily this very day with Maybelline Eye Beauty Aids—and be sure you get genuine MAYBELLINE Eye Beauty Aids. At Drug and Department Stores everywhere. Attractive Purse Sizes at All Ten Cent Counters
