HOLLYWOOD'S NEWS PICTURE of the WEEK

Camillar sight to Hollywood night-clubbers lately is the George Raft-Betty Grable combination, giving rise to whispers of romance. In pictures like this they keep columnists guessing with pranks and poses which might be romance or high-spirited fun. Truth of the matter is probably that their mutual love is only for the rumba, which makes their dine-dance dates a natural phenomenon. George is one of the smoothest dancers in Hollywood, came to the screen following a career as a professional dancer. Incidentally, unlike the roles he plays, George is a suave and polished gentleman. Betty, too, is one of the good dancers in Filmtown. Her real heart-interest is said to be Victor Mature, now in New York.

What Are the Short Waves Saying?

THE tempo of living in our world is increasing daily. Yesterday, in a world that rotated on a slower and more even-keeled tempo, newspapers were sufficient to keep us informed. Today where newspapers leave off radio begins. In the farthest corners of the troubled earth, trained newsmen are on the job for radio to bring into our homes—as they happen—Hitler's newest moves for conquest and the gallant counter-moves of tiny Greece and far-flung Britain, standing alone in his path. Perhaps the most fascinating reports to reach American radio listeners come from London, where the small but valiant R. A. F. battle against long odds and bombs which wrack the city and spread death and disaster among women, children, and the aged, as well as the strong and the armed. And there are no more colorful and stirring broadcasts than those of Leslie Howard, who is heard from London via short wave at 8:30 p.m. EST each Monday (9.58, 6.11 and 11.75 on the short-wave dial).

From the other side of the Channel there's the famous Lord Haw Haw. From South America, from the Far East, literally from the four corners of the globe come the pulse-beats of nations-healthy, sick and dying-via short-wave broadcasts.

Movie-Radio Guide is not in the business of selling radios. But it does make a business of telling its readers what the editors feel is worth while, and if you are using a set which does not have a short-wave reception band or an outmoded set incapable of picking up these stirring and timely broadcasts from abroad—by all means trade it in today for a modern set that will make these world-shaking events available to you!

At home, too, events have been rapidly changing in the world of radio. This very issue carries a log of station - position changes by frequen-cies. It will aid you in the days following Radio's Moving Day. And again, in Movie-Radio Guide for the week of April 26 to May 2, we shall publish regular daylightsaving-time changes. Thousands of radio programs, switching

DATE NIGHT-for Married Couples

MARRIED LIFE IN HOLLYWOOD seems to be more fun than in the average city. Married couples still have dates, go dancing, retain the romance of their courtship days. Here, for example, is Martha Scott dining out at the Mocambo with Carleton Alsop, her ace radio-producer-husband

-Jack Albin

FIRST NIGHT OUT after their marriage finds Jean Parker radiant, her husband, radio announcer Douglas Dawson, thoroughly absorbed. Older couples in Hollywood, where beauty and personality are a basis for dividends, also manage to successfully keep their first glow of romance alive

NEWLYWEDS among the married daters are Joe E. and Mrs. Brown. They recently celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary by being married a second time

RIGHT: Newlyweds—but really—are lovely Mary Martin and husband Dick Halliday. They dined and danced at Ciro's as Mary prepared to leave Hollywood and Dick—for concert tour

"Citizen Kane" Is "Naturalized"

It seems, after all, that Orson Welles' provocative first motion-picture effort, "Citizen Kane," may have a country and a release date despite all the heat turned on the RKO-Radio lot where it was produced. A large chain newspaper publisher reviewed its plot and threatened litigation on the basis that it too closely resembled his personal life, thus putting RKO between two fires, for Welles likewise threatened to file suit against the lot unless the company gave him assurance of release of his picture. Result: Wonder-Boy Welles arrived in Hollywood March 22 to remake a number of scenes in the picture, and the announcement was given out that "Citizen Kane" would be shown on the nation's screens with those changes in May. Top newspaper and magazine reviewers who have seen the original version proclaim it a great motion picture, newsworthy, extraordinary, and one that blazes the trail for Hollywood producers for five years to come. But will it be as good with the changes? P. S .- Screen-writer Arthur Sheekman, who ran into a Hollywood impasse and so decided to write a Broadway play, did so, called it "Mr. Big" and interested Sam Harris in its production. Now Hollywood tycoons are having another "Citizen Kane" scare for fear the play is about whom they think it is!

Durbin Advances Wedding Date

In just two weeks, on April 18, which happens to be the thirty-third wedding anniversary of her parents, Deanna Durbin will march down the aisle of the Wilshire Methodist Episcopal Church in Beverly Hills to speak her wedding vows with Vaughn Paul, after which a month's honeymoon in Hawaii will follow. Deanna and Vaughn had intended to wed in June with no honeymoon following on account of picture schedules, but as it now works out with the advanced wedding date, the young couple will be permitted to enjoy the traditional nuptial trip. Miss Durbin was thrilled to speechlessness at the lovely gifts of crystal and china given her at the shower her mother-in-law-to-be, Mrs. Vaughn Paul, gave her during the fortnight. But the lovely singing actress did regain her tongue long enough to reveal her wedding plans. She will have six bridesmaids-Helen Parrish, Anne Gwynne, Anne Shirley, her cousin, and two other close friends. Matron of honor will be her sister, and a brother of the bridegroom will be best man.

Oomph Strike Ends

Oomph-girl Ann Sheridan of the titian tresses and husky voice made peace with Warner Bros. last week and came back to work at the lot in "Baby Blues," with Jack Oakie and Jack Haley, for the same wages she was receiving when she struck-$650 a week. Her six-month holdout, which cost her more than fifteen thousand dollars, was not in vain, however, for she has won the concession of studio permission for her to do radio program guest-star work, and the underground whispers that if she is a good girl and works hard and makes her current picture assignment a success she will be boosted to one thousand dollars a week. The raise has been promised to her before the end of the year.

Portentful Potpourri

Ginger Rogers' intense application in making "Kitty Foyle" and the excitement of winning an Academy Award for her outstanding performance in that picture was too much for her; she was confined to bed for a week during the fortnight and was unable to preside at the dinner dance of the Motion Picture Mothers, Inc., of which her mother is an official . . . When Bette Davis returns from her eastern vacation she'll report April 15 to Sam Goldwyn on her loan-out for "The Little Foxes" . . . Geraldine Fitzgerald and Bill Gargan are smiling their best Irish smiles at being selected Hollywood's top Irish stars for 1940 by a committee headed by Martin Work, Loyola University professor. They were presented statuettes of St. Bridget and St. Patrick, respectively . . . The "director's touch" of Bruce Humberstone in bringing in 20th-Fox' moneymaker, "Tall, Dark and Handsome," has been rewarded by his assignment to direct "Sun Valley," with Sonja Henie, at that lot . . . Hollywood is stunned over the untimely and sudden death of Mrs. Marguerite Roach.

F. D. R.'s Hat Sells for $3,200

Actors Edward G. Robinson and Melvyn Douglas are fifty-fifty shareholders in President Roosevelt's campaign hat, and it cost them $3,200. The sale took place St. Patrick's Day at the annual Gambol of the Stars, staged by the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Radio Artists. The hat, given to Jean Hersholt on request during a recent trip to the White House, was put on the block by auctioneer Edward Arnold. Robinson and Douglas pooled their resources, while James Cagney, bidding for himself alone, was second high bidder at $3,100, P. Just before the picture was released and prior to Hayden's appearance tour an average of five fans a week wrote to him; now he has 5,500 requests for photographs alone. His meteoric rise in popularity has not gone unobserved by B. G. DeSylva, chief production executive for Paramount, who has set Hayden for a most swashbuckling role in the adventure film "Botany Bay." But first you'll be seeing Hayden with Dorothy Lamour in "Dildo Cay," and with Mary Martin and little Carolyn Lee in "You Go Your Way."

Important Castings

Bob Hope will be seen in Technicolor for the first time when he plays the William Gaxton role in Paramount's screening of "Louisiana Purchase" . . . There's talk-but only talk, so far-of teaming Jeanette Mc-Donald and Gene Raymond in a Metro picture . . . RKO is going in big for the husband-and-wife-casting stunt: Nancy Kelly and husband Edmond O'Brien star in "Parachute Battalion," with Robert Preston, and Desi Arnaz and wifie Lucille Ball will work together with Charlie McCarthy, Edgar Bergen, Fibber McGee and Molly in an as yet untitled screen play . . . Republic has borrowed Frances Gifford, Paramount beauty, to star as "Jungle Girl" in that lot's milliondollar serial. Reports are that Miss Gifford is about the most beautiful young lady in the cinema capital! Carmen Miranda has made peace with the Shuberts and will stay at 20th-Fox to make "Caribbean Cruise," another Technicolor musical . . . Ray Bolger's good work in RKO's "Sunny" may win him a long-term contract there, and eastern independent film backers are dickering with the dancer for a musical film entitled "Power Express" . . Russell Hayden (no relation to Stirling or Richard) has left his role as "Lucky" in the Hopalong Cassidy series to play straight in Columbia's "One-Way Street" . . . The second Scattergood Baines picture, "Scattergood Pulls the String," is under way with Mildred Coles, comely brunett from RKO, as the romantic lead . . . Jean Parker and Wallace Ford have reported to Monogram to co-star in "Widows of the Press," with Jed Prouty . . . Magazine-cover girl Jinx Falkenberg will be seen in a featured part in Columbia's "Girls From Panama," and June Preisser is utilizing her dancing ability as a foil for Jackie Cooper in "Paramount on Parade."

Odds and Ends

Livvy de Havilland's race with sister Joan Fontaine to see who will be Hollywood's first licensed air-pilot actress, has been called off; Joan has been grounded until she completes her current picture . . . Ten thousand dollars for a thirty-word story synopsis was allegedly paid to Jack Rubin and Oscar Brodney by Bruce Manning for the story "Appointment for Love" to star Charles Boyer! . . . Hmmm, not bad! Tyrone Power is scheduled to kiss Linda Darnell ten times and Rita Hayworth eighteen in "Blood and Sand" . . . Folk-dancing is being stud ied at Arthur Murray's by John Payne and Anne Shirley. You can never tel! what you will need to know when making pictures in Hollywood . . . Virginia Gilmore reports that she is having her hair tinted red whether or not it makes her fiance, Fritz Lang, see red! . . . Bud Abbott, Lou Costello's teammate, reports that when he was a stuntman in Hollywood more than a decade ago he once doubled for Dolores Del Rio! . . . In this town where houses are built in two weeks and fall apart six months later, it becomes news when Charles Arnt, the character lead in "Mr. District Attorney" at Republic, buys the oldest house in San Fernando Valley, a California ranch-house at one time headquarters of a twenty-five-thousand-acre ranch, which was built in 1880!

-Walt Davis

TOGETHER AGAIN are Myrna Loy and her husband, Arthur Hornblow. Editors erred in describing their recent reconciliation as Myrna and her "ex" getting together again. Divorce proceedings were never started

ONE OF THE FIRST PHOTOGRAPHS to be made during an early scene of "The Uniform," next picture of Clark Gable and Rosalind Russell, sets the theme of the story, Gable and Miss Russell play a gay pair of Raffles conniving the theft of jewelry from a wealthy Duchess, Jessie Ralph, seated with Miss Russell

"Meet John Doe"

Cast: Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck, Edward Arnold, Walter Brennan, James Gleason, Rod La Rocque, Regis Toomey, et al. A Warner Bros. picture, produced and directed by Frank Capra, who also directed "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

HOLLYWOOD—and, from boxoffice reports, America—always awaits anxiously the unveiling of another Frank Capra picture, and he doesn't let them down with "Meet John Doe."

In it, reporter Stanwyck, advice-column conductor on a newspaper, is given notice of dismissal when a new publisher and his editor (James Gleason) take over an old-time newspaper to streamline it for circulation purposes and to further the political ambitions of millionaire D. B. Norton (Edward Arnold). But before she cashes her severance paycheck she writes a phony letter, signs it "John Doe."

The letter is pathetic. It states that the writer, disgusted with conditions which keep him jobless, intends to jump off the city hall tower on Christmas Eve.

Great is the confusion which follows its publication. A rival paper charges it is strictly a fake; editor Connell (Gleason) of the Bulletin seeks Stanwyck to prove the letter genuine. She can't, of course, but suggests the plot which snowballs into national proportions when the "John Doe" (Gary Cooper) they hire to make good catches public sympathy and sparks into being John Doe Clubs throughout the land. Meantime, Norton nourishes the clubs to promote his own selfish interests-but to tell the rest would spoil the story. Does John Doe jump from the city hall tower? Does he? Go see for yourself.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Louella Parsons, "Best thing Gary Cooper has ever done on the screen . . ." Jimmie Fidler, "Director Capra again proves his reputation hasn't outgrown his talent."

"That Hamilton Woman"

Cast: Vivien Leigh, Laurence Olivier, Alan Mowbray, Sara Allgood, Gladys Cooper, Henry Wilcoxon, Heather Angel. A United Artists release, produced and directed by Alexander Korda, who recently gave us "The Thief of Bagdad."

ALEXANDER KORDA has taken Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier, thrown in one of the best Hollywoodized sea battles ever filmed, and has come forth with "That Hamilton Woman."

Miss Leigh and Olivier, whose off-screen romance is history, supply all the love interest needed to make a good story. Their affair plus a thrilling climax showing the mighty battle of Trafalgar provide two hours of absorbing entertainment for the audience.

Miss Leigh, of course, is "that Hamilton woman," who is in Naples with her husband, Sir William Hamilton (portrayed by Alan Mowbray), the British ambassador to Naples. It is there that she meets Olivier as Horatio Nelson, then captain of a British man-o'-war, who is destined to become leader of Britain's mighty navy. Nelson, having been separated through war from his wife (Gladys Cooper) for some three or four years, is quite ready to welcome a woman in his life, and it is the enviable Lady Hamilton who goes not only into his life but also into his arms.

Every time Nelson gets up a proverbial blind alley it is Lady Hamilton who comes to the rescue—and quite believably. The result is a combination of love and adventure which will lure millions into the theater—and send them away satisfied that they have seen a grand picture.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Los Angeles Times (Edwin Schallert), "'That Hamilton Woman' shines throughout as a work of quality . ." Louella Parsons, "I've seen few finer historical pictures than 'That Hamilton Woman' . ."

They were like dumb cattle, patiently waiting to be pole-axed and uttering no complaint when the lethal blow

"It is to be," was their fatalistic attitude. "Why try to stand against terror lay in seeing a once-proud people so hoplessly expecting defeat, and so unmoved by it when it came.

Knowing the French people as I have known and loved them for many years while making their country my home, I have tried to find some explanation of this astounding reversal of national honor and courage. So far I can see only one answer: They were sold down the river and knew it. Knew it too late.

Yet even more amazing to me is their attitude today, the viewpoint of humble worker and thinking man alike. The only bitterness in the French mind is against the British, not the corrupt communistic regime which was the French government, and which, I believe, traitorously delivered them into the hands of their enemies! They harbor no hatred of the Germans but abominate the Italians with a loathing beyond expression! Frenchmen never believed Italy would stab them in the back, and never, in their hearts, will forgive the betrayal. Then, too, the behavior of the German conquerors in fallen France has been exemplary compared to the Italians. Where the Germans go quietly and efficiently about their business in civilian dress, the Italians swagger the streets in full military uniform, making a vulgar and offensive display of their new authority.

However, this is neither a defense nor an attack on other nations' political principles and moral decadence. It is a simple account of what I saw, felt and heard in those last days of a free France, and what life is like there today. If conditions there have changed in the few weeks since I returned to America, I can promise it is for the worse, for France as a nation is in a desperate plight.

First let me sketch in a bit of personal background, since it was this background which gave me access to knowledge I might not otherwise have

NORMAN KERRY fought with the French Foreign Legion in those last tragic days as Nazi hordes overran an unprepared nation

For many years Norman Kerry was one of the most popular and colorful figures on the Hollywood scene. He starred in such productions as "Merry-Go-Round" and "The Phantom of the Opera" and was co-starred with such glamorous personalities as Mary Pickford, Lillian Gish, Marion Davies, Constance Talmadge and Corinne Griffith. At the peak of his career from 1925 to 1930 he was the Errol Flynn of his day-the dashing, romantic hero and gay, swashbuckling adventurer. In 1934 he left the screen to live many of those adventures in real life, and since that time has made his home on the Continent. He joined the French Foreign Legion in 1939 and intended to remain with it indefinitely. A frozen leg and a severe case of pneumonia altered those plans. His considerable fortune and property in France and Belgium were "blocked" by the Nazis when they invaded those countries. He left France on January

10 of this year, spent seven days standing up in a train en route to Lisbon, and crossed the Atlantic on a steamer, the Siboney, which once had been junked as unseaworthy. The ship carried three times its normal passenger capacity, and Kerry was forced to sleep on an open deck with only his overcoat for protection against the constant rain. It brought on a relapse into the pneumonia contracted while in the Legion. Now back in Hollywood, his health is on the mend and he plans a return to the screen in the near future.-The

It was terrifying, too, but the real

had, and enables me to evaluate the present picture.

I retired from the movies and left Hollywood about eight years ago because I thought essaying more than fifteen years of stardom would be crowding my luck. I bought a home in Cap Ferrat in the south of France, invested my money in a business in Ostend, and set about living the life which most appealed to me.

In a sense I witnessed the beginning of the present world-wide upheaval, for I was in Berlin on the day Hitler was elected Chancellor of the Third German Reich in 1932. Among other things, it marked the first occasion in many years on which a military band in military uniform was permitted to march down the famous Unter den Linden.

I was in Cologne in 1935 and witnessed the overnight occupation of the Rhineland. We went to bed without seeing a single man in German uniform. We awoke to a city swarming with brown-shirted Nazis, completely in control of the city and every phase of civil life. It was an amazing-and prophetic-demonstration of Hitler organization and thoroughness.

I was in Munich on October 1, 1938, when the "peace in our time" pact was signed, and saw a Storm Troop band playing "God Save the King" in Neville Chamberlain's honor. He was the hero of the hour; the people felt they would have at least twenty years of peace and rejoiced. They did not want war, the older ones. You knew that by their conversation. Only the youth, trained from babyhood in the doctrine of hate and conquest, were champing for battle.

Those words "trained from babyhood" are not an exaggeration, believe me. I have seen the Streicher kindergarten books from which they learned their alphabet. "J" was for Jude (Jew) and was pictured by a Jew attacking innocent school-children!

War clouds were gathering again when I left Germany in May of 1939. You knew it from the tense, strained looks on the people's faces and the new furtiveness in what they said and did. They were on guard and arming mentally and spiritually for the ordeal ahead. Oddly enough, it was not a new war to them, but only the second phase of the old one which had been concluded so ingloriously for them in

With other friends I became active organizing the Anglo-American Ambulance Corps. We knew the time was not far off when it would be needed. The first gunfire I saw was with that corps; I was in Le Havre, taking delivery on an ambulance from America, when the city received its baptism of bombs. That was in November, three months after war had been declared.

Activity, however, was sporadic. That was the period, you remember, of the so-called "phony war." I wanted activity and because I could not join the French army without losing my American citizenship, I joined French Foreign Legion. One hurdlethe Legion's hesitation to accept an American as such, in deference to the expressed wishes of our State Department—I took by enlisting "for the duration" as Heinrich Van der Kerry of Rotterdam, born 1900, father Hendrik, mother Wilhelmina. As a Legionnaire, I had to swear allegiance only to the Legion. I became number 91,203, had my head shaved and my shoes shined as per regulation, and was sent to Sidi bel Abbes, the Legion head-quarters in North Africa. My pay, incidentally, was fifty centimes a day, or about a penny and a half at current exchange rates. Since one pack of cigarettes costs almost twice that much, you can see few men get rich in that organization.

LOT of romantic nonsense has been A LOT of romance noncense written about the French Foreign Legion, and Hollywood has glamorized it in many a picture. Actually there is little romance about it. Nary a chance did I get to ride off on a fine, white charger in pursuit of an evil sheik; I was much too busy doing pick-andshovel work! There, are no whippingposts and torture-tables; the only punishment I saw was forcing men to walk barefooted in a large circle for sixteen hours while carrying fiftypound sacks on their backs. That was for fighting among Legionnaires—the commonest infringement of rules. Idyllic affaires d'amour with dusky Arab maidens were few and far between; the dusky Arab maidens run like mad at the sight of a Legionnaire!

The men are rough and tough, but actually France uses them much as we use our U. S. Marines-a band of crack, dependable fighters which can be rushed into any emergency or where the trouble is hottest. While I was one of them, I saw service in North Africa and in backing up the Maginot Line. When France fell, I was on sick leave (on reforme, they call it) in Cannes, the result of a leg frozen in the front lines near Valbourne and siege of pneumonia contracted at Camp Sathanay.

So much for background.

The French call to arms on September 3, 1939, is marked in my memory for one thing: The utter apathy and the complete lack of morale of the people. There was no enthusiasm, no cheering, no flag-waving as there was in '14. No excited, voluble crowds of men gathered around the posters proclaiming the call to arms, shouting defiance of Germany and clamoring for victory for France. Nobody seemed to care one way or the other. Men read the posters with expressionless faces, shrugged their shoulders and slouched away. Even the women showed the same amazing lack of interest; where English and American women were in a fever of knitting, making bandages and organizing soup kitchens, the French women plodded on about their every-day duties, completely unconcerned and scarcely tolerant of the others' activity.

All of us soon knew why. They knew, as we came to know, how pitifully unprepared they were, and how woeful was their lack of material and equipment. Blankets, horses, foodstuffs, tanks, guns, ammunition, clothing-all the vital military supplieswere non-existent as far as the French soldier was concerned. The fighting men at the front looked like a bobtailed army outfitted by Woolworth's. Half of them had no uniforms and wore ragged civilian clothes, and the machine-guns issued as arms were obsolete in 1917! Aviators were willing to fly, but they had no planes. Tanks were there, but no gasoline to run them. Naval guns were manned from Mentone to Marseilles, but there was no ammunition to fire.

No wonder, then, that the people could not believe their eyes when, miraculously, carload after carload of perfect, shining equipment and military supplies flowed across the border into Italy in a never-ending stream on the day the armistice was declared! No wonder the French man and woman today is whipped in mind, body and soul!

NO WONDER, either, that the French soldier had little stomach for fighting when he saw his politically appointed staff officers reeling up to the front with their women in the cars with them, and, when the Germans came, racing back to safety and leaving the men to fend for themselves as best they could.

The world's scorn has been expressed of the way the French fought. I want to say this: The regular French soldier and the St. Cyr officers (the West Point of France) stood their ground and fought bravely and well. How many of them were killed, time alone will tell, but it was a far greater number than is generally believed. They fought, however, against hopeless odds. They fought a fight which had been "thrown" from the beginning by their own government.

Official word of France's capitulation to the Axis powers by suing for peace terms, the occupation of Paris, and the moving of the government to Vichy came to us in Cannes through news broadcasts from radio stations in German-occupied territory to the north. I first heard it about four o'clock in the afternoon while visiting at the home of a friend, Harry Hays Morgan, who formerly was in the diplomatic service of the U.S. government. We immediately went into the streets and cafes to see the reaction of the people to the momentous event.

There was no panic among the French, no demonstrations, no crowds, no weeping, no emotion of any kind, (Continued on Page 43)

"That Night in Rio"

Movie-Radio Guide Co-Picture of the Week

BRINGING to the screen the authentic flavor of Rio de Janeiro, carnival city of South America, was a simple matter for Samuel Hoffenstein, author of much of the dialog for "That Night in Rio," despite the fact that he had never been there. "Carmen Miranda exuded atmosphere enough for a dozen films," he said. Teaching Carmen, the noted Brazilian songstress, her lines of dialog in the short space of twenty days was a job entrusted to a skilled linguist. When Carmen arrived in Hollywood she was able to carry on conversations with anyone. Weeks later workers learned that her conversation consisted solely of lines from the screen play. Don Ameche officially plays a dual role. Actually he portrays six parts: That of Martin, an entertainer; of the Baron; of Martin impersonating Baron; of Baron impersonating Martin; of Baron impersonating Martin impersonating Baron; of Martin impersonating Baron; of Martin impersonating Baron impersonating Martin. And what's more—he wins both girls!

I and 2. AMUSING, IF CONFUSING, is this tale of Martin, American entertainer, and a Baron (both played by Don Ameche) who get mixed up one night in Rio. Alice Faye, with Ameche above, plays the Baroness. Below: Martin is hired to take the Baron's place by Curt Bois, left, and S. Z. Sakall, the Baron's partners

3. ABOVE: Totally disapproving Martin's masquerade —especially when she sees the beautiful Baroness — is Carmen, dancing partner and sweetheart of Martin. Carmen is played by Carmen Miranda, who throws a radio, knives, books, a purse at Martin during the film

4. MUSIC IN THE SOUTH AMERICAN MANNER dots the film, with Don, Carmen and Alice making the most of the five hit tunes written by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren. Script of the picture was approved by Brazilian government

"The Lady From Cheyenne"

Movie-Radio Guide Co-Picture of the Week

"THE LADY FROM CHEYENNE," first film to be made under producer-director Frank Lloyd's new contract at Universal, is a light, frontier-day comedy drama which has Loretta Young in the first western role she has ever played. Incidentally, this will be one of two pictures to be made by Miss Young this year, because she plans to spend most of her time making Tom Lewis, her radio-executive husband, happy. The story was born when two writers, traveling from New York to Hollywood, came upon the almost forgotten historical fact that Wyoming Territory, in 1869, was the first place to extend suffrage to women. The story they wrote is based upon this fact but, beyond that, makes no pretense at being historically accurate, for the reasons and factual background which led to the passage of that bill in a wild and woolly territory fifty-one years before the nation passed its woman's suffrage amendment are obscured by time and total absence of any written record.

3. ONCE A PROMISING LAWYER, Lewis has sunk to stooging for Cork and, to get title to a valuable lot Annie owns, he takes her to a dance and makes love to her to gain his ends

4. ACTUALLY FALLING in love with Annie, Lewis turns upon Cork and helps Annie and her embattled dance-hall girls frame their suffrage bill and get it passed by the legislature. Then, before the first all-woman jury in America, Cork is tried, convicted and sent to prison, leaving Laraville to peace-abiding citizenry

MICKEY ROONEY Sees America First

Young star takes Hawaii by storm, capping his American tour with leis and laughter!

BEST and most effective ambassador of good-will from Hollywood to America is volatile, gifted, well-informed Mickey Rooney. Widely traveled, Mickey has been in every state of the Union, last summer made a long motor tour of Canada, and now, as pictorially reported here, makes his score perfect by visiting the last and westernmost part of the United States—Hawaii—from where he recently has returned. The important thing about Mickey's travels is not so much their extent but the fact that he has acquired wide knowledge and a wealth of data about places visited. In preparation for "Young Tom Edison," for example, he went to Dearborn, Mich., spent hours in the Henry Ford collection of Edison material. Mickey's vital curiosity stems from an intense interest in living. He is naturally a good actor. From his father, then in vaudeville, he learned much about show business. From his mother, the art of living gracefully. Invariably he is the shyest member of a crowd. He never takes advantage of his position. Result: Wherever he goes—which is everywhere in America—Mickey is enthusiastically greeted by great throngs. The American Territory of Hawaii proved itself no exception.

WARM RESPONSIVENESS to people is a Rooney trait. He is thrilled here to meet Sheriff Duke Kahanamoku, famed swimmer, upon his arrival in Hawaii

COURTESY is another Rooney quality. Lei-bedecked and with an enthusiastic throng awaiting him on the docks, he finds time for newspaper interviewers

HE MEETS PEOPLE on their own ground. With Dave Kamahewa he engages in acrobatics loved by natives

ENTHUSIASM is another Rooney success secret. He waves from a stateroom window to throngs on docks

IMPORTANT CHANGE!

Many readers have expressed their preference for detail of music and drama programs where the information is available at the proper time for tuning in, without continual shuffling of pages back and forth—that is, in the program section. Hence, hereafter you will find each week's detailed information about music and drama programs in the program section under the time-listings of the programs themselves. Therefore, the departments devoted exclusively to music and drama have been discontinued to make room for additional features. Furthermore, beginning with the issue of April 19-25, you will find in the program pages special highlight boxes "Today's Best Listening"-highlights of news, new programs, special events, variety, music and drama for each day of the week. Watch for these and other improvements to give you more complete and convenient radioprogram service than ever before.

Meet the First Star of Stars Voter!

READERS, salute J. W. Roland! He's a typical radio listener, attentive and enthusiastic; a typical reader of Movie-Radio Guide -alert to every opportunity for listener expression. This time Mr. Roland is a special listener, a special reader—for his was the first ballot, the first of an avalanche, received in the 1941 Star of Stars Poll, the results of which will be announced in Movie-Radio Guide the issue of April 19-25. So meet J. W. Roland, a town which Mr. Roland believes is the smallest in the country with a network radio station (WGRM-NBC). His favorite hobby is sports and he is himself a former star sprinter-which may explain his speed in voting. Mr.

Roland is single, is active as an official of the Greenwood Lions Club. Radio is his favorite entertainment—he listens on a home set and a car receiver. Bob Hope is his choice as Star of Stars. Mr. Roland now receives Movie-Ravoter number one: He's a book- dio Guide as a gift subscription keeper for Wade Hardware from the editors for being one Company in Greenwood, Miss., example of the alert listener.

• LOWELL THOMAS, news commentator, entered the "newspaper business" at the age of ten. Lowell sold papers in Cripple Creek, Colo., where he spent his boyhood, and his "territory" included the toughest saloons and gambling-dens in town.

Star Sparkles

DR. DANIEL A. POLING, radio preacher heard over NBC, yelled for the bomb squad the other day when a suspicious-looking stranger dropped a mysterious package at the side door of his church in Philadelphia. Following an oil immersion and similar ticklish experiments, the squad figured that the bomb could be safely undone. Turned out it was a batch of the Reverend Doctor's sermons-delivered late by the printer's boy.

Wings of Destiny

-NBC Photograph

SOME of the pathos of highly emotional broadcasts comes through the microphone. Much of it must be left to the imagination of listeners except in rare instances when a picture helps to breach the gap between the actual experience and the listening experience. Such a picture is this of announcer Ben Grauer and six-year-old David Winter, as David, an English refugee, talked to his parents on a two-way broadcast between NBC studios in New York and BBC studios in London. David had not seen his mother and father since he had left England months before. He had gotten over the worst homesickness, and now, speaking to them, he covered a choked-up feeling with boyish bravery. His parents, in London, where they had endured months of air-raids, were anxiously trying to hide their emotion as they grasped this strange means of reunion with their son. And their conversation was typical of scores of other conversations between parents and children in the two-way broadcasts (one is scheduled for April 13) which NBC has arranged during the past months. Because they are not only emotion-packed, gripping drama but also a living page out of the epic fight of English families to preserve their way of life, these broadcasts are unique. This photograph of young David Winter underscores their uniqueness.

REEN GUIDE

BAND OF THE WEEK honors are for Alvino Rey, his orchestra and the King Sisters, pulchritudinous quartet whose singing is a smash feature. Bandmaster Rey is noted for his originality as a steel guitarist

ON THE BANDWAGON

LVINO REY, originator of the singing style on the steel guitar, is one of the few steel guitarists who have resisted the "Hawaiian" urge. Instead Alvino manages to get good solid swing as well as unusually pleasant sweet music out of his band. This affable young musician is a graduate of Horace Heidt's

Musical Knights, where, as a steel guitarist, he was one of the most consistently featured and highest-paid side-men in the country. However, back in Cleveland in 1920, Alvino was just one of the million-odd banjo twangers in the

U. S. But in 1929 when Phil Spitalny's pre-girl orchestra played Cleveland, Alvino got a break when guitarist Eddie Peabody happened to quit, allowing the nineteen-year-old Rey lad to step into his place. Later, while he was studying with guitar virtuoso Roy Smeck, Rey met up with the instrument that was to bring him fame—the electric guitar. In 1934 he joined Horace Heidt's band, remaining with the Knights for five years, and, during that time, marrying one of the ladies, Louise King, of the vocalizing King Sisters. It was his sparkling guitar passages which served to give the Heidt band much of its style. About a year ago Alvino left the Heidt band and became music director of station KHJ in Los Angeles. In his spare time he gathered together a band of his own and, with the King Sisters as an added attraction, broke all records at the Paramount Theater in Los Angeles. Since then the band has played some of the top spots in the East, including the Biltmore Hotel in New York, and the Rustic Cabin, popular New Jersey night-spot. Members of the orchestra posed in the special Movie-Radio Guide photo above are as follows: First row (left to right): Ralph Donovan, Jerry Safino, Skeets

The Alvino Rey orchestra is one which can settle down in a groove with the best. It is undoubtedly one of the best of the newer crop of bands, which is the reason it gets this week's nod as Movie-Radio Guide's BAND OF THE WEEK. Next week: Ted Weems.

In case you didn't happen to tune in when Horace Heidt appeared on the "Fitch Bandwagon" program, he made a denial that night of the rumors that he would give up his band. Horace said he intended to keep right on with his orchestra-leading. Which right properly squelches this and other band columnists who have reported that he would turn the band over to someone else . . . The Gray Gordon music no longer bears the label "Tic Toc Rhythm" . . . Ben Bernie's radio program, which received a renewal recently, may be forced to suffer the loss of singer Carol Bruce. The program shifts from Tuesday nights to Friday nights April 11, thus conflicting with Miss Bruce's performances in the Broadway play "Louisiana Purchase." Cab Calloway addressed the student body to be produced by Universal . of the Eastman Conservatory of Music recently. P. S. He didn't sing "Minnie the Moocher."

MEET "JOE and MABEL"

A New York cabby and his gal win listeners' hearts By Don Moore

"ELLOW citizens, here are Joe and Mabel!"
That's the introduction that

That's the introduction that greets listeners these recent Sunday afternoons. And thousands of fellow citizens—listeners weary of having persecuted heroes and long-suffering heroines for radio dramatic company—are beaming and saying, "Come in, Joe and Mabel! Come in, and stay a while!"

Joe and Mabel are here to stay a while. The loquacious cab-driver, whose heart is bigger and works faster than his brain, and his spunky girl friend, fresh from a Bronx beauty-parlor, have whetted the public's appetite for comedy serial drama.

Joe, of course, would give credit willingly to his friend Mike and grudgingly to Mabel's kid brother "Shoiman"—the little pest!—for some of the story's spontaneous appeal.

The primary credit for "Joe and Mabel" belongs to a young radio writer named Irving Gaynor Neiman. "Fourth-Wall Neiman," they call him. The nickname deserves an explanation, for behind the "Fourth Wall" tag is one of the secrets of Neiman's success with his "Joe and Mabel" sketches. Neiman, whose twenty-four years have given him enough time to do some creative thinking, believes that radio cannot and will not reach its maximum dramatic power until it divorces its technique more completely from the three-wall-stage conception. He feels that the listening audience should not be treated as if they were sitting grouped impersonally beyond phantom footlights, but that each listener should be made to feel as nearly as possible in close relationship with the characters and action of the play. This Neiman accomplishes chiefly by having Joe tell the listener parts of the story during transitional interludes and inject his personal comments about his experi-

There must be something in Neiman's "Fourth Wall" idea. Last fall he sold NBC a play called "Height of Fashion," and it was produced on the "Radio Guild" series. It dealt with cabby Joe's ludicrous effort to understand women's clothes. Fan mail poured in, calling for more. Neiman complied with NBC's request for a sequel by reintroducing Joe and Mabel, the characters of the previous play. in "Women and Children First," wherein Mabel's kid brother, Sherman, became a permanent thorn under Joe's skin.

The response was even more enthusiastic than before. The network officials knew they had something. They postponed the premiere of another series to open a spot for "Joe and Mabel" to be heard in a half-hour skit each week. After a few weeks it was moved from Thursday night to Sunday afternoon, where it should be settled now for a long run. They do say, though, that already there's a sponsor who considers the escapades of Joe and Mabel a good investment, and, if so, the sketch may change time again.

Wherever and whenever they're heard, Joe and Mabel and their associates are fast becoming old friends—real people—to many listeners. They and their experiences are quite human, you see—ridiculously human, as most people are at times.

TAKE, for instance, what happened after Valentine Day. As Joe said—half to himself—half to the listener: "It ain't easy to beat the races—even if sometimes it happens. But when it comes to the women, there ain't even any odds. You just can't do it." Joe forgot to send Mabel a valentine gift. Then he tried to make up for it by writing her a valentine poem. But he didn't sign any name to it. Mabel, therefore, thought she had an unknown suitor who wanted to marry her. That scared Joe, because he wasn't ready to get married, and he was afraid to tell her he sent the poem, even after she bawled him out for forgetting Valentine Day. But "Shoiman," the little brat who's always getting in Joe's hair, found out the secret and blackmailed Joe to the tune of two bits and four bits at frequent intervals. Joe finally bought Mabel's renunciation of her dream admirer with a pair of silk hose as a belated valentine present.

Then there was the episode that added some timely chuckles to the serious national defense situation. Joe's brother, one of those inventive geniuses whose chief claim to resourcefulness is in getting others to do all the work, got a great idea for a new secret weapon for Uncle Sam. With Joe's help (Joe was to do all the manual labor, being a good mechanic) the inventor would revolutionize national defense. Joe was kept busy every night on the project, but he couldn't tell Mabel the secret. Of course, Mabel got sore because he wouldn't explain why he couldn't see her for a while. In the meantime, Joe was followed at night by what might have been, he thought in terror, foreign agents. And when he found that all the air had been let out of his taxicab tires, he just knew it was "sabbotadge."

Finally, to prove to Mabel he was on the level, Joe took the completed invention to her house for a demonstration. Sherman monkeyed around with it till it exploded. But nobody got hurt, which was, in a way, a disappointment, for it proved the revolutionary instrument a dud. It was the last straw when Joe found out that it was Sherman who had shadowed him and scared him half to death. "Sometimes," said Joe with philosophical vehemence, "the worm turns." And he proceeded to do some turning by giving Sherman a solid spanking.

The capable characterizations of Joe and Mabel are handled by Ted di Corsia, veteran radio actor, and young Ann Thomas, who is rapidly establishing herself as a radio dramatic star, especially with her tough-gal portrayals. The other main characters, Mike and Sherman, are played by

TAXI-DRIVER JOE has his hands full with his Mabel, sassily sweet Bronx beauty-parlor operator

Walter Kinsella and Jackie Grimes.

Miss Thomas, who also has a part in the play "Five-Alarm Waltz," tells of this incident: "I took a taxi recently from my home in Pelham, New York, to the Pennsylvania station so I could catch an early train for Princeton, New Jersey, where our play had a tryout before a Broadway opening. The driver lost his way in the Bronx. I tried to tell him how to go, but he insisted he knew. Finally he got completely lost. He turned to me and said, 'I guess the only taxidriver that's dumber than me is the feller named Joe in that radio pragram "Joe and Mabel.""

So Joe has been accepted as one of the gang by his fellow cabbies, who are, after all, a small but important group of the thousands of those "fellow citizens" who are listening eagerly to "Joe and Mabel" and finding a soft spot in their hearts for the couple's whimsical experiences. Experiences right out of life, with just a touch of radio artistry for spicing.

"Joe and Mabel" is heard over NBC Sundays at 5 p.m. EST, 4 p.m. CST, 3 p.m. MST, 2 p.m. PST, and is recommended for your listening pleasure by the editors of MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE.

EDDIE CANTOR is one of the most popular entertainers among the British who are spending so much time in air-raid shelters. Things like this are the reason: His first gesture upon arriving in New York from Hollywood was to promise to appear on a "Friendship Bridge" program, one of the special shows short-waved to Britain under sponsorship of the British-American Ambulance Corps
... Orson Welles showed up at the Boake hopes to pick up some first-hand accounts of European conditions from the sailors ... Basil Ruysdael, "Your Hit Parade" announcer, is a collector of fine paintings, and his latest acquisition is Val Balen-Jan Brueghel's "Feast of the Gods," which was painted in 1610 . . When John Barrymore's ad-lib crack, "What the --- are you laughing at?" came over the loudspeaker, the New York radio editors in NBC's press-room that Thursday night showed more astonishment than they have at anything since Orson Welles' notorious broadcast.

Arch Oboler is the white-haired boy of NBC. Not long ago he was given free rein by the network to write and produce any type of show he wished. Next came his "Every-man's Theater" series. Now that series is over and Arch again has been told he can have his own programs to do with as he wishes. So mark some date early in June (your guess is as good as ours) for him to start a cycle of shows with national defense as the theme.

Columnists Like Radio Coin

Newspaper columnists are looking toward radio for additional coin. With Walter Winchell, Dorothy Kilgallen and Boake Carter and others on the air now, it's hardly surprising that Ed Sullivan is being talked of as the man who probably will guide the "Silver Theater" through its summer series. Ed auditioned a variety show for the sponsor. Talk is it was well received.

Massey Won't Be Typed

Raymond Massey's greatest achievement was his portrayal of Abe Linin Robert Sherwood's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" play. Asked to portray Lincoln on the dramatic show, "Lincoln Highway," Massey refused, with the assertion he doesn't want to become "typed." He went on the air as some other character. But he can't escape some affiliation with Lincoln, even though the title of the series refers to a thoroughfare!

"Seeing" Sound-Effects

When a group of blind students visited the Radio City studios, their first request was to "see" where the sound-effects are kept. The students were more interested in this feature of the broadcasting industry than in any other.

SINCE Alka-Seltzer has bought a foreign news-round-up program (see page 13), featuring commentator John W. Vandercook, foreign correspondents, and newscaster Fort Pearson, the future relations of Alec Templeton with this sponsor are indefinite. The Templeton show may return for the same sponsor again next fall, for it has done a fine job for three years. Again it may not, for Alec is involved in a court controversy with his parents over his earnings which might possibly in some way affect his professional future. Moreover, Alka-Seltzer is spending a lot of money on "Quiz Kids," "National Barn Dance" and the new news program. Whether or not Alec returns for this sponsor, it's pretty likely his great talent will not go unsponsored long.

Incidentally, his new news duties represent a substantial break for Chicago's popular newscaster, sportscaster and much-in-demand commercial announcer, Fort Pearson.

ENGLISH NEWSCASTS OVER U. S. SHORT-WAVE STATIONS

ECAUSE they are complete, Because and thus far practically free of propaganda, news bulletins from the United States are very popular with listeners the world over. To many isolated Americans these news broadcasts have a far greater value than the mere headlines they present. They are a vital link with home and with the American way of living. Thus thousands of residents outside this country find listening to our news service a vital every-day necessity. Untold thousands more within the boundaries of the United States but in those districts where ordinary radio reception is poor must rely upon short waves to bring them the news of the day. To all of these reader-listeners Movie-Radio Guide dedicates this exclusive monthly revised list of all English news periods that can be heard over our United States international stations (time is CST):

We airline hostesses are modernminded. So I've always preferred internal sanitary protection-though I admit I hated to pay the extra cost. That's why I was so tickled when I learned that Modess had brought out Meds-a new and improved tamponat only 20c a box of ten. Meds certainly are miles ahead. And they're the only tampons in individual applicators that cost so downright little.

BULLS & BONERS

Bulls and boners are a part of broadcasting. No matter how experienced the performer or how famous the star, chances are that he will make an occasional slip or a statement with twisted meaning which is extremely funny. See how good your ears are. Try to catch broadcasters in some error-the funnier the better—and send your entry to Movie-Radio Guide, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago. The most humorous entries will be printed in this column. Watch for your contribution!

Haven MacQuarrie on "Marriage Club": "What would you do at the theater if the person behind your wife kept wiggling the chair in which she was sitting?" The answer: "I'd ask the person to stop wiggling my wife's seat."—Mrs. Dan Flinn, 1321 Cornwall Place, Norfolk, Va. (March 1 over

Bob Hawk on "Take It or Leave It": "I saw some mighty nice grapefruit walking around Houston yesterday."— Mrs. Sam Lankard, 5114 Stratfort Rd., Los Angeles, Calif. (March 2 over Station KNX.)

Announcer (speaking of King Alphonso's illness and administration of extreme unction): "He was given extreme caution."—Mrs. Thomas Spohn, 436 S. Franklin, Janesville, Wis. (Feb. 23 over Station WCLO.)

Forum EAR your new hat strictly "on the level," cautions Doris Aldridge, head of Franklin Simon's millinery department, explaining that it is no longer smart to wear your chapeau perched cockily over one eye. (I know a girl who declares that she hasn't looked out of her right eye for years, fashion un-permitting!) . . . New York girls are wearing red-leather handbags with piquant matching sailors . Violet toques with violet gloves, demurely lowered lashes and a whiff of violet fragrance is an unbeatable way of achieving glamour, whispers pretty Mela Underwood, style authority for NBC.

If you're going to have your photograph taken in time for Mother's Day, Ilka Chase of the "Luncheon at the Waldorf" program cautions you to have your hair waved several days beforehand to avoid that set look that fairly screams "I'se done been fixed up to have my picture took.'

Another point to remember when being photographed is to go lightly on lipstick, since a hard, dark-looking mouth is almost impossible to retouch. Use a powder foundation to cover minor blemishes and achieve a smooth finish, but put your rouge on first. Unless you're young and slim, don't pose in evening clothes. They'll make you look bigger and older than a dark frock. Lastly, throw something soft and fluttering about your throat. It will counteract that briskly efficient look one should never wear in a photograph!

If you're wondering how your budget can be juggled sufficiently to allow you a dashing spring outfit (say for fifty dollars), it should inspire you to eight dollars a year! It's accomplished not by mirrors, as you might logically suppose, but by using durable cotton material that will not shrink or fade, trimming accessories at hand, and their own clever fingers.

The accompanying photograph illustrates a spring wardrobe that can be produced for exactly $5.89.

The girl on the left is wearing a reversible navy-blue coat of spot-proof corduroy, lined with denim, with a detachable hood and fabric-covered buttons; the one in the center is modeling a gingham pinafore with a blouse of red-dyed lawn; the young lady on the right has on a two-piece dress of mattress ticking, trimmed with red, white and blue yarn and, believe it or not-empty spools! # I SAW THE FALL OF FRANCE

Perhaps by then they had been drained of all emotion. There was just dull acceptance of reality.

"C'est fini," we heard on all sides.

"It is finished. Perhaps it is better. We will try to get along with them. What other choice have we?"

There was panic among the British residents. It was the first time I ever have observed this phenomenon in the traditionally calm and unruffled race. Two grimy coal barges, the only vessels apparently which could be spared, had been sent by the British government for their evacuation. Staid old ladies careened up to the dock in expensive limousines. Taxis laden with families and their hurriedly gathered possessions slid to a screeching stop and raced away for other fares. Businessmen, shopkeepers, salesmen, peddlers (infirm or too old for military service) and their wives arrived on carts, bicycles, anything that would roll. Those who could not ride ran on foot. Scrambling, elbowing, pushing, they made their way to the small lighters which carried them to the barges.

Sick at heart, I started to walk back to town when a Rolls-Royce slammed to a stop beside me. A chauffeur grabbed bags and started for the dock. An old man in formal afternoon dress started to follow and then turned to

"Young man," he said, "want a

"Why not?" I answered.

"Then you've got one," he said and, opening a briefcase, thrust a bill of sale, gasoline permit, insurance papers and other necessary documents into my hands, signed them over to me, and dashed away after the fleeing chauffeur.

I sold the car a few days later. The money kept me in cigarettes.

Contrasted to both the British and the French man-in-the-street was the behavior of the professional soldier, and his attitude. I walked into the Carlton bar one night and was surprised to find a Georgian (Russian) whom I knew had served in the Foreign Legion for seventeen years. He was resplendent in full-dress uniform.

"What are you doing here?" I asked. "The Legion is finished," he said. "My life is finished."

He persuaded me to have dinner with him that night, insisting I, too, don my full-dress uniform of the Legion. We toasted each other's health and future.

The next morning he was found with a bullet in his brain, dead by his own hand.

It is a limited life they live in France today, limited beyond the conception of the average American with his every-day comforts which he takes so for granted.

France is still blacked out nightly. First it was against the Germans, then the Italians, and now the British. There is no gasoline for transportation; you walk, pedal a bicycle, or ride in buses fueled by charcoal burners. Although ration cards call for specified small amounts of sugar, meat, eggs and fats, none can be purchased for love or money, and food-smuggling is a criminal offense. Daily food allowance is limited to 950 calories-a starvation diet for even a birdlike glam-our girl of Hollywood. The Germans, incidentally, receive 2,500, both at home and in the occupied territories. Vegetables are fairly plentiful and coffee is made from roasted barley. Soap is non-existent.

Fuel for heating homes is strictly limited, and cooking may be done only for one hour at three specified hours during the day. Clothing of French make has been replaced almost entirely by German manufactured goods. True, there has been no looting of shops by German soldiers as such, but it amounts to the same thing; the shops have been stripped of all fine goods, the luxuries which the Germans have been denied for so long and which they promptly sent back to Germany. The goods were paid for in paper marks, printed in Paris by the Germans, which the shopkeeper had to accept. These in turn are held by the Bank of France as part payment of the staggering daily war debt. It's a neat racket, a polite form of legalized robbery.

Radio programs are confined to the spreading of German propaganda, and only German movies are shown in the theaters, with all dialog in German and French subtitles superimposed on the screen, exactly as we show foreign films in America. Formerly the reverse was true.

All in all, every phase of the Frenchman's life is limited and policed, and living costs have risen two hundred percent.

Still the Frenchman shrugs and says, "Perhaps it is better so. We will accept it." The Frenchman to whom freedom of spirit and the pursuit of his own happiness traditionally has been the sole meaning and reason for

Is there a lesson for us in the Fall of France?

I believe so with every breath I draw. I believe we, too, need to search out the secret enemies of democracy within our borders and deal with them before it is too late.

Otherwise, our turn is coming.

What a Life!

Dear V. O. L.:

I have often wondered if women who, like myself, listen to most of the daytime programs thought of them as I do. I know many women who do think as I do about it. In most of the daytime sketches there are continual divorces, separations, blizzards, explosions, accidents, murders, fires, sickness and all kinds of calamity and tragedy. All of life with every family is not just trouble day in and day out. Think of life if it were actually like that. We wouldn't care to live.

Typical of thousands of clean, redblooded American boys and girls, Bud and Midge Barton (heard Monday through Friday) are played by youngsters who are that way in real life, too! They're both Chicagoans

Dear Sirs: How does the First Piano Quartet look in the studios?—Stanley Ford, Los Angeles, Calif
