Victory Go-Getters

WHEN call for scrap rubber came from national headquarters, Katharine Booth and Barbara Britton, Paramount starlets, got busy, raided the studio's prop shops of rubber goods galore! As a reward for turning in the biggest amount of scrap rubber, Kitty and Babs won first prize for their Victory efforts—a war bond!

What's Your Verdict? ...

THE above question is prompted by the searing comments from readers which have reached our desk recently about what they consider one of the annoying features of war-time broadcasting. The general gist of the grievance is this:

Many listeners are getting tired of hearing appended to the end of the big commercial broadcasts from the various Army camps, naval bases, and flying-fields, a statement to the effect that—"The broadcasting of the Bubbles program from Camp Blank does not constitute an endorsement of its sponsored product by the War Department."

These readers believe that American radio listeners are adult enough to know that those sponsors who have taken cost and staff hither and yon to out-of-the-way spots in order to entertain soldiers, sailors and marines did not do so with the idea of getting the United States War Department to approve their corn, beans, soap, ham and toothpaste!

With the typically fair-minded viewpoint of the average American, these readers feel that the radio public should be told that broadcasts from military camps and bases generally cost the sponsor extra line-charges for telephone wires running from several hundred to several thousands of dollars for each broadcast. Too, that those responsible for these programs, aired from military centers, are under no obligation which says that they must give their shows there; that they do it merely for the good of the morale of America's armed forces.

To these readers, it seems pretty silly that the War Department should be so adamant against an inferred endorsement. They want to know why the War Department doesn't grow up and forget, in these grave times, a little of its red tape and brass-hat polish.

Some listeners suggested (as a common-sense substitute) that the time devoted to the "non-endorsement" announcement be given over to an appeal for funds in the Army and Navy Emergency Relief drive.

Which brings to mind columnist-commentator Raymond Clapper's sage remark, "Never overestimate the people's knowledge nor underestimate their intelligence," and the fact that it might be mullied—and profitably—by our War Production Board. What's your verdict, readers?—The Editors.

NELSON EDDY Insisted!

Star Gives Autograph
Seekers a Chance to Show Their Patriotism

ON A recent "Old Gold" broadcast, Nelson Eddy contributed the entire sum he received for the program to the USO motion-picture fund for the supplying of entertainment and the care of American servicemen on leave and in camp. When besieged by feminine admirers for his autograph after the broadcast, Eddy (above) countered with a request of his own, insisted that each one show a War Stamp Savings Book, containing at least one stamp, before he gave his signature. Just as a tip, we might suggest that any gal planning to get Mr. Eddy's autograph better carry her patriotic passport right along with her.

The Innermost Secrets of CHARLIE

McCARTHY and MORTIMER SNERD

BY EDGAR BERGEN — THEIR FATHER

Wooden Personalities Present a Study in Contrasts as Bergen Plays Psychologist. Charlie's a Complex Individual, but Mortimer, His Rival, Is Plenty Simple. Both Appear in RKO's "Here We Go Again"

I AM the happy victim of an unusual paradox. When I meet people socially, their first question after the introduction usually runs true to a regular formula, and that is, "Tell us about Charlie." Their attitude toward me reveals about the same impersonal interest that one feels in questioning a doctor about the general condition of a very close friend. "What's he up to now?" . . . "Will he pass in school?" . . . "Who is the latest great moment in his love-life?" This is a sample of the barrage of cross-examination I am subjected to while at a party, and when the party is over I devoted my whole evening to

So many persons want to know the innermost reactions of Charlie's mind to the problems of today and his plans for the future that, while I am his closest friend and advisor, I feel that one can get a truer perspective of his personality by Charlie's own observations. By his own admission, he is "A blank page in the book of knowledge . . . an unsolved problem child," and the next moment he will belie this statement with the assertion that "In all modesty, I would say that I'm hardly more than a genius." When I remonstrate with him that if such is the case then why has he been in the eighth grade for three years, he will answer, "Bergen, I have had the same seat so long that I have claimed title to it under squatters right." If questioned about his dubious methods of passing exams, Charlie will put my mind at ease with such bits of information as, "Don't worry, Bergen . . . It's all run on the honor system . . . The teacher has the honor . . . and we kids . . . the system." When it comes to financial matters, Charlie has very definite ideas. According to him, he started wearing a monocle only because he couldn't see "eye to eye" with me on the matter of his allowance. He continually complains that he has a banana-split appetite on a bubble-gum income. His financial light is the source of wide discussion, and I go many letters saying that I should raise

RIVETER McCARTHY seems to be doing this plane no good, but there are plenty of crack workmen here at the Consolidated Aircraft plant to repair the damage. A super-salesman, too, Charlie sold workers a bomber-load of war bonds and stamps

FINALLY MUFFLED, the irrepressible McCarthy posed at the Consolidated plant in a modern oxygen mask of the type used for high-altitude flying. Charlie's bond sales at this aircraft factory paid for half a dozen warplanes

BELATED HONEYMOON

Madeleine Carroll and Stirling Hayden Are the Principals on This One

MARRIAGE is decidedly a private affair for Stirling Hayden and Madeleine Carroll, honeymooning in the Bahamas as this is written. Rumor has it that pair were married three months ago in New England; but when bridegroom Hayden was questioned on when and where, he merely stated that the ceremony took place in the United States. Simply that and nothing more! Chatty Hollywood, that likes to have advance information on the jelling altarward of its celebrity citizenry, was, of course, all atwitter at the march Madeleine and Stirling stole on it. In the meantime, two are again in dreamy, sleepy Nassau, where, it's now pretty evident, their friendship first turned from talks on seamanship and acting to thoughts of love during the making of "Bahama Passage" last year. True, Madeleine then denied the idea—and heatedly. Even said she was engaged to another man. But a girl can change her mind, can't she? At least, Madeleine did!

RUMORS about the love-affair flew fast last year when pair (below) made "Bahama Passage," but they denied them

STILL refusing to state when and where ceremony took place, former movie actor Stirling Hayden admitted, on July 1, that he and lovely Madeleine Carroll (above) were married. In "Virginia" Madeleine (below) jilted him at the altar for Fred MacMurray (l.). "Bahama Passage," in which pair co-starred in 1941, began the REAL romance that ended in 1942 honeymoon

Joey and the Personality Baby

As Told to
Pauline Hopkins

By
Joey Brewster

Joey and His Camera
Raise a Kidnap Scare
and a Case of Jitters

Readers have commented on the fact that MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE has presented serials based on several famous radio programs, but that it has presented only short short stories of Joey Brewster. We wish to make it clear that there is no discrimination involved. Dramas like "Road of Life" are continued stories. They are novels without endings. But "That Brewster Boy" is more properly translated—as the author, Pauline Hopkins, freely admits—into a series of unconnected short short stories, each complete from its rapid-fire opening to its crackling, merry close. We sincerely believe that in this way we best capture the gay spirit that has made "That Brewster Boy" so popular on the air.—The Editors.

JEEPERS, I just HAD to win that contest, otherwise I couldn't go up to Ridgeville for the week-end to watch our team play baseball. Dad said I could go if I earned the money myself, so I entered the contest. Our paper said it was easy. All you had to do was to send in a picture of a baby with personality. And the best picture would win $25.

Well, I was all set to go out and snap pictures of babies, when something Mom said gave me a better idea. It was at the supper-table one evening and Nancy—she's my sister—was saying she'd had a fight with Phil 'cause he said no more rustle-bustles after they were married—she'd have to stay home and raise a family. Well, Mom got to talking about babies . . . you know how mothers are.

"There aren't any babies as sweet as mine were," Mom said. "I just ran across Nancy's and Joey's baby pictures up in the attic. Nancy was such a cute, fat baby."

Jeepers, I thought, there's the winning baby picture right up in our own attic! But when Nancy found out I sent in her picture, she was fit to be tied. She went right to Dad, and she said, "Daddy, you've got to make Joey get that picture back. Why, I look like a little monkey in it! And I'm INDECENTLY exposed!"

Well, Dad sided with Nancy, but the contest was almost over and where was I to get a picture of another baby with personality? Mom suggested I go to the Harpers and try their baby. But Dad said I'd better be careful because Mr. Harper is his best customer. So that afternoon I went over to the Harpers' house with my camera.

There was nobody home but Lily, the maid, but she said I could borrow the baby for a while 'cause she wanted to visit her friend Officer Clancey in the hospital. Officer Clancey had been hurt in an accident. Well, I took the baby home and Nancy held him up while I snapped pictures. But, jeepers, did you ever try to take a picture of a baby that does nothing but sleep? I practically stood on my head, but he just gurgled a little and went right back to sleep.

Things went on like that for a long time. I got tired, and Nancy got tired, but the baby had a fine time just sleeping. I guess if Nancy hadn't been so worried about her picture getting out, and if I hadn't wanted that trip so bad, we'd have called it quits. But we didn't.

I was still trying for a personality shot when Mom and Dad came home. When they saw me with the Harper baby Mom fainted and Dad blew his top. "A fine mess you've made," Dad shouted. "Lost me my best customer! Did you have to kidnap the baby to take its picture?"

KIDNAP!!!! Yih!
Then they told me that the maid had left a note for Mrs. Harper saying, "A boy took the baby away. I've gone to see Officer Clancey." So the whole town thought the baby had been kidnaped and the maid had gone for the police. Everybody was looking for the kidnaper of the Harper baby—and the kidnaper was me—me, Joey Brewster!

I was waiting for the police to come and get me when things began to happen. Phil came, and when he saw Nancy with that baby in her arms, his eyes just sparkled, and Nancy said, "Phil, now I understand why you want me to stay home after we're married."

Well, Phil had come to congratulate me—the picture I sent to the paper had won the contest. He handed me a copy, but I was in no mood to look at it. I was waiting to go to jail. How many years do you get for kidnaping?

Just then the door-bell rang and it was the Harpers. Yih! here I go! But they came to apologize—to apologize to me! Lily, the maid, explained everything—and they were so-o-o-o pleased that I had shown so much interest in their baby. Mr. Harper slapped Dad on the back and Mrs. Harper invited Mom for lunch, so everything was okay.

Well, after they left, the family looked in the paper for the prize-winning picture. When Nancy saw I hadn't had time to get back the picture I had sent in, she hit the ceiling. "Oh, Daddy," she cried, "you told Joey to get that picture back, but it's in the paper! Ohh, I'll never live it down!"

Well, Phil put his arms around her and I told Nancy I was sorry and Dad had that "go upstairs, young man, and we'll have a talk" look in his eyes when Mom began to laugh. "Dad," she said, "Look at the picture! Look at those curls! Nancy never had curls when she was a baby!" Dad looked and he laughed, too. "No," he said, "Nancy didn't have curls—but Joey did."

Jeepers, I had sent in a baby picture of myself! And what a picture! There I was, lying flat on my stomach—with nothing on but one of those white doojiggers! Would the kids razz me! And all those curls—yeah, and a hair-ribbon, too!

But Dad said that by the time I got back from Ridgeville everyone would have forgotten about the picture. I thought it would take more than a week-end to forget. Then Dad sprang it on me. He said he wanted me to have a week's vacation. "A week for you," Dad said, "and a week for us. We need a vacation, too."

This merry short short story of Joey Brewster was written by Pauline Hopkins, the creator and author of "That Brewster Boy," heard on CBS Fridays at 9:30 p.m. EWT, sponsored by Quaker Oats in behalf of their product, Sparkies.

TWO SCOWLS and a grin blend as the nameless baby mimics Abner's solemn face. But Lum (l.) beams like the proud foster-papa he is. The picture above took real posing, as witness the earlier efforts at the

Out of Lum and Abner's

Family Album

WHAT'S a family without a family album? The home's incomplete without pictures of Grandpa in sideburns, Uncle Joe in uniform, and Dad wearing an old-fashioned bicyclist's rig.

So reasoned Lum and Abner, proud and worried possessors of a "little stranger." He gives the Jot 'Em Down Store a real family touch as he plays among the cracker-barrels. So the three fellows posed for true album-style photographs.

The "pore little feller" isn't really kin to Lum or Abner. He was left by a mysterious woman, who has not been seen since. Nobody even knows his name.

Watch for more exclusive pictures of Lum and Abner's mysterious baby next week in your copy of MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE.

Just Send Your Name for the Baby—WIN a Tidy Fortune

What would YOU name this homeless little Baby Boy? His Mommy left him one hot afternoon in Lum and Abner's store just (so she said) while she shopped a minute across the street . . . The little Boy liked the store. He tipped over sorghum cans, got into baby mischief. But soon he missed his Mommy. Where was she? Why didn't she come back? Lum and Abner did their best to console him. The damp, blond hair curled in ringlets . . . the little face was smudged with dust . . . the tired little eyelids drooped . . . and then the tiny little tot wanted his Mommy—just as any tot would. But his Mommy never returned. That's why he's a nameless little baby.

What would YOU name him? You will help give him a name, won't you? Help name this little, lovable, homeless Baby Boy and WIN A TIDY LITTLE FORTUNE for your very own.

See How Easy It Is to Win!

Just think of a given name that YOU would give the Baby Boy. It may be one word (such as Douglas), or two words (such as Michael John). Decide upon the name you think is best. Then write a letter of not more than 100 words, telling us why you would give the Baby the name you submit, and send the letter along with the name. See how easy it is!

Then RUSH your name and letter to Contest Board, Movie-Radio Guide, with your own new or renewal subscription to Movie-Radio Guide for the big bargain of 17 issues for $1.00. Send your dollar and your own new or renewal subscription (no other subscription than your own can count in this Contest.) Follow the easy rules. You have nothing else to do. Be sure to mail YOUR entry TODAY!

HOW TO WIN

Follow These Easy Rules

1. Write plainly or print the name you submit for the little Baby Boy. Submit a "given name" only (not a last name). Your name may be just one word (such as Douglas) or two words (such as Michael John) but not more than two words. Write on the entry blank given here, or on one side of a sheet of paper. Be sure to give your own name and address.
2. Write a letter (of not more than 100 words) telling why you would give the little Baby Boy the name you submit, and send the letter with the name.
3. To enter this Contest and compete for the Prizes, you also send your own new or renewal subscription to Movie-Radio Guide for the bargain offer of 17 issues for $1.00, with $1.00 check, money-order or cash, to cover your subscription. If you already are a subscriber, your subscription credit will be extended for 17 weeks from expiration of your present subscription.
4. Entries, including both the names for the baby and the letters telling why the names are being submitted, will be judged for suitability, uniqueness and aptness. Judges' decision will be final. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be given to tying contestants. Entries cannot be returned and become property of Movie-Radio Guide.
5. Any resident of the United States and Canada may compete except employees of Movie-Radio Guide and their families. Contest subject to all United States, state and Dominion regulations. List of winners will be sent on request after final judging of entries. Winners will be notified by registered mail.
6. This Contest closes midnight, August 29, 1942. Final judging will be completed as soon as possible after August 29, 1942. Last entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, August 29, 1942. No person may submit more than three entries.

WARNERS TO FILM RELIGIOUS SPECTACLE "THE MIRACLE" IN TECHNICOLOR

Fredric March Will Star in Mark Twain Screen Biography; Brenda Marshall Refuses to Remove Wedding Ring for Movie Roles; Oomph Girl's Hubby to Enlist

By EVANS PLUMMER

ALL the News of the Fortnight: Cary Grant and dime-store queen Barbara Hutton were married July 8, and now Cary, who has been giving a third of his income to war charities, may give the other two-thirds; but there is talk of his entering the service soon . . . 20th Century-Fox's Cobina Wright, Jr., or Mrs. Palmer Beaudette, with the aid of a special mirror and a spinal anesthetic, watched her appendix being removed July 5 (Hollywood always does things with mirrors) . . . Another appendectomy on July 6—that of M-G-M songbird Kathryn Grayson—apparently marked the end of her separation from John Shelton that was indicated June 4 when Mrs. S. filed suit for divorce in Los Angeles; at the hospital the couple denied ever having separated, but the courts still show Katy filed suit! Will somebody please page Mr. Diogenes? . . . The divorce mill also ground one out for British actress Helen Moray, formerly the wife of RKO producer-director Tay Garnett, who complained that her husband used to go swimming in their pool at 3 a.m. and then awaken her and demand breakfast for himself and guests. Can't a guy get hungry any more? . . . Freddie Bartholomew and Jane Withers, both still minors, had new picture contracts approved July 7 by the Superior Court, and then Janie, who used to go out with Freddie, had a date of celebration with likable young A. C. Lyles, junior publicist at Paramount. Fickle woman! . . .

—Stork Club
WHEN Hollywood players go on a jaunt to Manhattan, they most always pay a visit to the famous Stork Club. Charles Winninger (left) and Charlie Ruggles, two of Movietown's top comedians, are no exceptions. The young lady with them above, concentrating on Mr. Ruggles, is Blanche Grady

Jack Briggs, RKO-Radio's romantic-story suitor of Bonita Granville and therefore copy-paper rival of Jackie Cooper for the fair young lady's hand, was just notified he would co-star with her in "Seven Miles from Alcatraz," whereupon Briggs did some notifying, too. He informed his studio he had enlisted in the United States Marine Corps and would be reporting for duty late in August. Tyrone Power, it develops, will be warrant officer in the U. S. Navy's recruiting service, and Richard Ney, who plays Greer Garson's son in "Mrs. Miniver," has gone to Notre Dame University for special instruction by the United States Navy, of which he was a reserve member before the war. Ney, by the way, has written a clever play that is being submitted to the various studios. George Brent, after his present picture, "You Can't Escape Forever," has been completed, will be another joiner-upper and has his spot picked with the U. S. Air Force . . . And can't you imagine his buddies requesting George for pictures of his missus, an Oomph Girl named Ann Sheridan . . .

Supreme confidence that the Stars and Stripes will again fly, and soon, over Topside in the Philippines was contained in a brisk communication to Brian Donlevy from the Post Office Department in Washington, D. C. Lt. Robert Bjoring, an Army pilot stationed at Manila and Bataan throughout the heroic stand and a friend of Brian's, sent him a letter stating that he was sending by money order eighty hard-earned bucks for Brian to put in safe-keeping. When money didn't arrive, Brian queried the P. O., the department answered: "The Manila office has been TEMPORARILY closed, but will be opened shortly for normal business and the matter will then be checked with the records" . . .

Brenda Marshall is going to be a very, very loyal wife to her U. S. Army-serving hubby, Private William Holden, for the duration. She has informed her studio that she will not remove her wedding ring, or cover it with any masking guard for a picture role. "I've removed it for unmarried roles in the past," Brenda said, "and maybe I'm being foolishly sentimental now. But until Bill comes home, that band isn't going to be removed again or covered" . . .

All of which causes us to lead up to a note in passing, which is this: If you happen to miss this writer's contributions to MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE after this issue, you will know (1) he succeeded in his effort to join the armed forces of Uncle Sam, or (2), failing his physical examination, he has gone into defense work for which he was trained once upon a time. Whatever the outcome, this is just to thank you all for ten years of patient

OVER in another corner of the Stork's Cub Room, photographer found Star Raymond Massey, veteran of World War One, with Mrs. Massey. A captain in the Canadian Field Artillery, Massey fought in France, and was seriously wounded at Ypres. While convalescing he was military instructor at Yale

—International
THE Cary Grant-Barbara Hutton romance which has had Hollywood buzzing for lo these many moons, culminated in marriage on July 8. Pair were married at the Lake Arrowhead, Calif., home of Grant's agent, Frank Vincent. With newlyweds is Mademoiselle Tocquet, bride's girlhood governess reading, and to say, save and buy bonds. Save and turn in rubber. Let's do our share to win the war now—TODAY! . . .

Back to Hollywood's crazy normal times is the note of a new slang phrase catching on about M-G-M. It's "Bring on the Lamarr!" But it doesn't mean, on the set of "White Cargo" at Metro, that Hedy is in demand right then and there. What it does signify, however, is that the "Lamarr," a newly patented gadget, is required on a movie camera. What it does is to permit closer focus or close-ups to be made. The special mount that permits proper lighting and focus at several inches distance was invented especially for "White Cargo" so that a close-up of Hedy's lips could be made . . . Yum, yum! . . .

Another funny business went on last week at Warner Bros. Three petticoats, lace pantalettes, a great, heavy satin gown and a bustle loaded the figure of Ann Sheridan down to the sound-stage floor on the set of "George Washington Slept Here." She was playing Martha Washington in a dream sequence, but she didn't care. Patriotically, she remarked to her co-star, Jack Benny, "It seems to me that women of the Revolution could have done considerable war-time conserving of clothing; remember the poor troops at Valley Forge?" "Yes," agreed Jack Benny, with legs tightly dressed in knee britches, "but the men of that time couldn't have conserved much. They didn't even have a whole pants leg to conserve on, let alone cuffs" . . .

Who's Doing What and Where: Warner Bros. preparing to film "The Miracle" in Technicolor. This deeply religious stage spectacle will be ready for release next Easter season . . . Gail Patrick's latest war effort is a sensible one—a drive in her neighborhood to provide and safeguard all fire hazards. This includes removal of all inflammable material, and a marking of all available water-faucets with red paint, easy for identification in case of fire . . . Fredric March will star in the Mark Twain film biography . . . Gale Storm ("Gateway to Hollywood" winner) will sing "Taps for the Japs" in Monogram's "Foreign Agent" . . . Simone Simon returns to RKO for lead in "The Cat People" . . . "Seven Miles from Alcatraz" gives teen-aged Bonita Granville her first completely grown-up role on the screen.

JOAN CARROLL looks glum as Tim Holt romances with Virginia Gilmore in "Laddie." In "The Ambersons" he loves Anne Baxter

MOVIE REVIEWS

"The Magnificent Ambersons"

Type of Picture: An historical romance which covers the transition period from horse-drawn carriage days to motor cars.

This Is the Story: Tim Holt as the arrogant and stubborn scion of the wealthy Amberson family, carriage makers, interferes with the marriage of his widowed mother (Dolores Costello) and Eugene Morgan (Joseph Cotten), her girlhood sweetheart. He can't see his mother marrying again. To complicate matters, he falls in love with Morgan's daughter (Anne Baxter). But because of his meddlesome hotheaded tactics, he breaks up his own romance as well. In the meantime, the Amberson carriage business gives way to the automobile manufacturer Morgan. Complications mount to a heart-breaking peak, before Holt finally gets the jolt that makes him see where he has been absolutely wrong. Reduced to poverty, he admits his mistakes. Movie-goers who dote on dramatically happy endings will like this one especially.

Verdict: Orson Welles does an outstanding three-way job in filming this Tarkington novel. "The Magnificent Ambersons" is an inspired screen offering, and a definite "should see" for adult theater-goers.

"Bambi"

Cast: Bambi, a deer, and his woodland playmates. A Walt Disney Production in Technicolor, based on the charming story by Felix Salten. An RKO release.

Type of Picture: This time wizard Disney gives a beautifully executed and clever story about the life of a deer from birth to romance and mating.

Highlights: A skating-lesson given to Bambi by Thumper, a frolicsome rabbit . . . And Friend Owl, the woodland philosopher, one of the most fascinating characters ever dreamed up.

Verdict: Sheer entertainment and a feast of fun for the whole family!

WASHINGTON

By LT. COL. CURTIS MITCHELL

Gene Autry will soon be with us here in Washington, according to a report from Hollywood. Gene will not be commissioned, it is said, but will serve in the office of the Air Forces.

Early in the spring, the Army decided that it needed money for its Army Emergency Relief Fund, and an officer wrote to Autry's agent asking him to persuade Gene to devote a portion of the earnings of his rodeo to that fund. Autry replied that he would give a complete tour just for Army Emergency Relief, provided he wasn't in the Army himself. A few weeks later he arrived in Washington. I saw him then and learned that he wanted to serve in the Army. That was nothing new, of course, for Washington is full of persons, celebrities and otherwise, who are looking for commissions.

The Autry case is different, in that he didn't want a commission. The word that he joined up as an enlisted man will be good news to those who have been perturbed about the number of stars commissioned . . .

Certain phenomena of Washington have appeared in these columns from time to time. This week's subject is the Union Station and the trains to and from the South.

Union Station is a huge stone building which once was spacious and quiet as befits the capital of a great nation. Now it is a cross between Coney Island and Grand Hotel. Soldiers make the difference.

The trains pulling out for the North are filled to the last seat. I took one just the other day. Soldiers in rumpled khaki were everywhere. Some of them were colored, wearing clean, fresh uniforms which indicated they had just left some near-by camp. A few Navy men were sprinkled through the cars, wearing khaki, too, but distinguished by their different caps and collar ornaments. The appearance of a civilian was so odd that, at first sight, one had the feeling that he definitely did not belong.

As I traveled with those home-going soldiers and listened to their talk, I became proud and certain that our destiny is secure in their hands. Young men have a habit of talking about many things besides their jobs; but most of these fellows talked shop.

They were explaining maneuvers to each other, and the action of gun crews and supply outfits. They traced designs on seat cushions and pillows, and I heard words such as "tank-killers" and "high-velocity" and "logistics" . . .

It has already been remarked that a war brings out the finest impulses and instinct in many people. I have seen that proved over and over again. This is another story to prove the point: Irving Berlin's great new show, "This Is the Army," has been acclaimed by the critics as one of the greatest productions of all time. Using soldiers as entertainers, it revives some of the scenes from Berlin's original "Yip Yip Yaphank," and Berlin himself sings the same number, "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," that he sang in 1918. All profits, you know, if you have read these columns, go to Army Emergency Relief.

The movie rights to this show were sold to Warner Bros. for a $250,000 down payment and a fifty-fifty split of the profits. Which looked like a splendid deal all around, as it was, but Albert Warner and Jack Warner decided to do even better.

"We want to make this one of the greatest pictures," the Warner brothers said to Berlin. "We want to make this in Technicolor, and we want you to play yourself in the film. Lastly, we don't want to make a penny out of it for ourselves, but will give every cent of profit to Army Emergency Relief."

Berlin accepted. The Army accepted. You'll be seeing "This Is the Army" on your screen this autumn, and almost all you pay for admission will help some soldier's family. Before that, if plans work out, you may hear it as a regular weekly radio feature. If you do, you can know some smart and patriotic sponsor is doing his bit, too. The price per week will be $10,000.

By GLEN ANDERSON

"Curlilocks" Phil Harris—or, as Jack Benny would call him, "Corny Joe of the Wilshire Bowl"—is about to be a military bandmaster. He might even be waving a baton over an Air Force or a Coast Guard band by the time this reaches print. At any rate, Harris, who is caught short right between the first and third draft with a self-supporting wife and a baby, feels that it is about time he does his stuff for the service . . .

Not only is Hollywood's star contingent being fast depleted by service enlistments but the fever has spread all up and down the line. Now Lum and Abner lose their RKO movie producer, Jack Votion, to the Army. Scheduled to start their new movie in August, Lieutenant Votion already has reported for active service, leaving an assistant to take over. Known for their infrequent use of feminine talent on the show, Lum and Abner had Margaret Brayton, Hollywood actress, appear long enough to leave them a mysterious baby and disappear. No wonder the boys are wary of females! Of course, MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE readers know all about the infant boy—except his name! . . .

The theme song which millions of listeners have recognized nightly for fourteen years as the Amos 'n' Andy introduction has been altered. In these topsy-turvy times when changes are inevitable, precedents upset, and history made momentarily, the blackface comedians are injecting a timely note by preceding their theme song with a verbal vignette aimed at some current event . . .

Odds and Ends: There's many a slip—and Hedda Hopper slipped over a whopper the other day when she announced that a certain young actress "is under suspicion by her studio because she refused to play one of the virgins in 'Arabian Nights.'" What she meant to say and should have said was "suspension". . . Jerry Hausner, who is currently crying the part of the baby on the "Lum and Abner" program, recently cried on six shows in that many days without speaking a line. That week, auditioning for the same kind of role on the Shirley Temple show, he was rejected because "he wasn't the type!"

CHICAGO

Behind the chrome-and-glass glitter of the studios there are plenty of heartaches. And, since radio people are just plain American folk, their heartaches are the same you'll find up and down your own street. For instance, Bernadine Flynn (Sade of "Vic and Sade") is watching the mails anxiously for the War Department letter that will call her husband to active duty with the Medical Corps . . . Muriel Bremner ("Road of Life") is proud of and lonely for her husband, just called up as a Navy lieutenant . . . And Eloise Kummer ("Guiding Light") has learned that her husband was injured when he drove a jeep into a tank trap in Iceland . . .

Les Tremayne (lately "First Nighter," now "Woman in White") acts in the first off-Broadway production of "The Moon Is Down" in Chicago . . .

NBC's sound-effects storeroom is a magnificent junk pile. Twenty-six doors, ranging from crackling sopranos to dull, thudding basses; bags of corn starch for footsteps in snow; a doll's baby buggy with a radio voice like a stage coach; water tanks with tin roofs for rain to fall on; a sliding weight that once enacted a perfect guillotine execution—and was ruled off the air forever as too horrible; assorted squeakers to mimic ship frames, shoes and hinges. The sound-boys love to tell of a new hand who, just before a broadcast, took a hinge that had been water-soaked to rusty perfection and oiled it . . .

Make the kids give you a place by the speaker when "Lone Ranger" comes on the air. Program is featuring two-and-a-half-minute talks by real heroes of the present war. A wounded Bataan vet talks July 27 . . .

Active flying duty for the Government probably will use up Louis Roen's entire three-week vacation this summer. The announcer on "Guiding Light" and Alex Dreier's broadcasts is executive officer of a Civil Air Patrol squadron of seventy volunteer pilots who fly their own planes whenever and wherever the Government wishes. They're subject to call for extended duty, and Roen's eagerly awaiting his assignment . . . Art Kohl of "Author's Playhouse" is an OCD block captain . . .

"Way back when, here's what "Road of Lifers" were doing: Ken Griffin (Dr. Brent) was a carpenter and radio engineer; Louise Fitch (Carol Evans) fiddled for a living; Sid Breese (Doc Thompson) was a cavalryman; Muriel Bremner and Sarajane Wells were the only ones to be actresses from the start; and Mary Patton (Jean Todd) is the only cast member in this super-medical serial who has a medical background. She was assistant to her doctor-dad, helping in operations.

CHILD PRODIGY LORIN MAAZEL CONDUCTS SUMMER SYMPHONY SATURDAY

Bernard Herrmann Conducts Concert Suite He Wrote for "All That Money Can Buy," Sun.; Maestro Jacques Renard Returns to Radio

By ROBERT BAGAR

New York World-Telegram Music Critic and Associate Program Annotator for Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York

CHILD prodigies have been leaning toward the violin in the past decade or so. We have had the Menuhins, the Riccis, the Carroll Glenns and ever so many more. There have been some pianistic prodigies, too, who have streaked across the musical heavens in the same period—Ruth Slenczynski, for one. But the child conductors have been a straggly few.

The musical highways and byways have been full of the talk of little twelve-year-old Lorin Maazel of late. This youngster is really twelve years old, already the proud possessor of several notable achievements in the batonistic line.

Of course, there is always this to be said about any child prodigy, no matter what his genre, he can't be fully matured musically in the tender years of childhood. And of course, too, there always comes up the shining example of Mozart. But the answer to that one is usually that Mozart was Mozart, and no argument.

Master Maazel has made a good impression on very thoughtful men and women. He is young, they have noted, adding that his is the assurance of the born musician. He knows, in other words, a good deal of what he conducts—not only the simple matters of notes and their orchestral presentation but also much of what the music implies, much of its inner self.

One thing about him that has earned him the admiration of many is his courage; he doesn't believe in making it easy for himself. On the contrary, he devises programs the conducting of which requires knowledge and experience and a strong authority.

We notice, for instance, that he has scheduled what might be considered light stuff for him in the "Summer Symphony" broadcast. There are the overture to "Rosamunde" by Schubert, the nocturne and scherzo from the Mendelssohn "Midsummer Night's Dream" and the overture to Wagner's "Rienzi."

Not having been exposed enough to Master Maazel's conducting, we are perfectly willing to listen further before making critical comment on it. It wouldn't do, you know, to wrap him up in some phrase of dismissal for his youth and skip on to the next topic. You see, we are one of those people who are constantly on the lookout for more Mozarts.

Franz Schubert wasn't such an older himself when he wrote the bulk of the music incidental to the play by Helmina von Chezy, "Rosamunde, Princess of Cyprus." The play was produced in 1823, when Schubert had just about turned his twenty-sixth year. Unluckily, the play ran a span of two performances, in spite of the beautiful music the composer had penned. In fact, the overture was so well liked by the audience at the premiere of the play that it was encored twice. The odd thing is that the overture had been written, it is said, three years before the rest of the score, when Schubert was a young man of twenty-three.

As for "Midsummer Night's Dream," Mendelssohn was thirty-four years of age when he completed the work. But the important thing, since this is a story of youth and music, is that the overture to the same composition was finished when the author was barely seventeen years of age! And so good was it that Mendelssohn utilized it for this score just as he had written it.

In other words, the passing of seventeen years did not make a difference, for the overture fitted the rest of the piece as snugly and properly as if all the music had been done at the same time.

Wagner wrote the libretto for his opera "Rienzi" when he was twenty-five. The music for the three acts was completed in August, 1840, when he was twenty-seven, and the overture was written the following October.

What we are trying specifically to point out is the fact that music which is to be interpreted by twelve-year-old Master Maazel was all written when the composers were well beyond that age. What he does with this music is for the listener to judge. Confidentially, we think we'll listen, too. (Lorin Maazel conducts the "Summer Symphony Concert," Blue Network, Saturday, July 29.)

Another Young Man

Bernard Herrmann is thirty-one. He is staff conductor and composer at CBS. Already several of our major symphonic organizations have presented works by him. If you saw the movie "All That Money Can Buy," then you must have heard the music that accompanied it. It was composed by Mr. Herrmann and it won for him the coveted Film Academy Award for the best original score of the year. The film, as you may remember, was based on the Stephen Vincent Benet-Douglas Moore opera, "The Devil and Daniel Webster." For reasons best known to experts in Hollywoodiana, the Moore music was replaced by Mr. Herrmann's score.

From that music Mr. Herrmann has made a concert suite, which he will conduct at a broadcast of the "Columbia Broadcasting Symphony." The suite consists of five sections. They are, "Mr. Scratch," "A Sunday Sleigh-Ride," "Ballads of Springfield Mountain," "Miser Steven's Waltz," and "Swing Your Partners."

(CBS, Sunday, July 26, "Columbia Broadcasting Symphony," Bernard Herrmann conducting.)

Concert Records

Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, as recorded for Victor by Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony, is completely in accord with the best you might expect from the noted Italian batonist. The work is a perfect gem of the symphonic art and, like a perfect gem, it has an imperishable beauty of form and essence.

Another major achievement by Victor is the performance of the Grieg A Minor Piano Concerto by Arthur Rubinstein and the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy's direction. For your mellow moments there is the Clemens Kraus-Vienna Philharmonic album of three Johann Strauss waltzes—"The Song of Love," the "Morning Papers" and "You and You" from "The Bat."

POPULAR MUSIC

Jacques Renard's fumble led to a comedy formula

JACQUES RENARD, well-known maestro, comes back on the air after an absence of three years. His last appearances on the radio were on the program starring the late Joe Penner, whose "Wanna Buy a Duck?" became a household phrase.

During his sabbatical from the airlines Mr. Renard has devoted a good part of his time to making transcriptions, which in itself can amount to a full-time job. But, besides that, he has made numerous personal appearances.

We are all familiar with the duties of orchestra-leaders in contemporary sponsored shows. They double between conducting and playing foil for the comedians who are the features of such programs. Jack Benny has his Phil Harris Charlie McCarthy his Ray Noble Bob Hope his Skinny Ennis and now Phil Baker his Jacques Renard.

"Take It or Leave It" being the kind of show it is and Baker at his best as the ribber par-excellence, one may expect almost anything to happen during the course of the coming broadcasts—with Renard as the goat. Yet it was he who first appeared in the role of stooge orchestra-leader when he worked with Burns and Allen back in 1935.

One night he was given one line to read. He fumbled it badly, too badly for its original purposes. However, it brought the batonist forward in the light of a foil when the noted comedy team began to clown about his weight in order to cover up the slip. Certain informants insist that at that moment the popular comedy formula, which makes a bandleader a stooge, was born.

In taking over the musical assignment for "Take It or Leave It," Renard becomes reunited with Phil Baker, since they worked together previously on a show that followed the Burns and Allen series. The comic used to have himself a time kidding the maestro about his superabundant fat, all of which was taken in stride, what with this and that, a living to make and a good joke to appreciate, whether it slapped him or not.

However, it doesn't seem likely that the same sort of thing will prevail, for Renard has gone and lost a neat 100 pounds between then and now. The conductor, we'll have you know, is currently down to a sprightly 198, which should discourage harpooning.

EARL GODWIN STARTS SEVEN-DAY WEEK . . . SEVAREID PROMOTED

Winchell's Replacements Set; Gunnison, Prisoner of Japs, Honored; Alex Dreier, Skelly Commentator, Escaped From Berlin December 6

By BILL ANDREWS

Godwin Talks for Ford

EARL GODWIN takes over a unique spot in the American network picture. With his new series, he becomes the only net commentator to be aired seven days weekly. Godwin's broadcasts also represent the return to the air of war-busy Ford Motors. Godwin is a Capitol Hill veteran and has twice been president of the White House Correspondents Association. His keen humor and clear analyses have won him hosts of listeners, White House folk among them. Earl Godwin is heard nightly on the Blue Network.

Dreier Takes the Morning Watch

Early morning listeners are finding real pleasure in Skelly Oil's new commentator, Alex Dreier. He's a thoroughly trained foreign correspondent, and was one of the last Americans to escape from Berlin, where he was NBC's reporter before the Nazis declared war on us. His return trip to freedom was a four-continent flight by clipper. Dreier landed his first foreign job by faking a knowledge of German, but speedily learned the language in Berlin. He represented the United Press, then switched to the post of Berlin NBC correspondent. Dreier was born in Honolulu, played football at Leland Stanford University and won a degree in political science. When he fled Germany on December 6 of last year, he had to hide his notes in the coupling of a Switzerland-bound train. He had become familiar with such conspiratorial methods during his last year in Germany, when he was constantly

Sevareid Replaces Warner

When Albert Warner followed Elmer Davis into Government service, Eric Sevareid won Warner's former post as head of Columbia's Washington bureau. Warner is now a major in the Army's public-relations staff. The new Washington CBS head saw the fall of France at first hand. He fled Paris just before the first German troops arrived, then moved with the French government to Bordeaux and later to Vichy. Sevareid's next stop was London, and for the last eighteen months he has broadcast from Washington.

Commentator Comment

Four top commentators step to the mike in as many weeks to pinch-hit for Walter Winchell when he vacations next month. They're John Gunther, Raymond Clapper, Clare Boothe and Frazier Hunt . . . Silver plaque was presented to MBS commentator Royal Arch Gunnison by the National Headliners' Club. Presentation was in absentia, however, for the man who made radio history with his broadcasts from Manila during the Battle of the Philippines is a prisoner of the Japs . . . Blue's new commentator, Roy Porter, saw action as an AP correspondent with the French army during the Battle of France . . . Edward R. Murrow, CBS London correspondent, is co-producer with Norman Corwin of a series of broadcasts from the British capital beginning July 27.

LISTENERS BRAVE NAZI TERROR TO HEAR FREEDOM BROADCASTS ON SHORT WAVE

America Talks Frankly to British Allies; A. E. F. in Australia Is Rarin' to Go; Religious Station in Andes Fights for Democracy

Germans Brave Death to Hear U. S. Broadcasts

THROUGHOUT enslaved Europe, and particularly in Germany, countless courageous patriots are secretly listening to the radio voice of America and its allies, according to members of the German section of the NBC International Division.

American short-wave broadcasters helping to destroy Germany's gigantic lie foundry have substantial evidence that their work has not been in vain, the NBC short-wave experts declare.

They are certain that, while the swastika may be seen on the front of houses in Germany, the people inside sit in terrible darkness, straining their ears to listen to the voice of freedom, to capture a breath of enlightenment, always, however, dreading the sudden approach of the Gestapo garroters.

Trained members of the NBC International Division point out that the bootleg listeners in Germany are willing to risk imprisonment in the torture camps, the concentration hell-holes of Dachau, Sachsenhausen or Buchenwald in order to learn what is happening outside their own fetid world.

Said one NBC official: "We know our programs are getting through. Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels would not now be promulgating sterner measures for illegal listening if our democratic radio were not reaching more and more people in Nazi-dominated countries."

Another staff member of the NBC German division declared that the people of Germany want news and facts. "We must satisfy their eagerness for this news, and we must, by the quality of our information and the attractive manner of our presentation of the news, recompense the many efforts the German people make and the many risks they take to hear us," he said.

Still another voice in the foreign division spoke up: "A single mistake can be exploited against us so far as to ruin completely all the rest. If, by making a single error, we give Goebbels the opportunity to prove that we are wrong or misled in only one question, all our news and declarations can be doubted."

"We're piercing the armor of the German people with 'spiritual ammunition,'" said another spokesman in the International Division. "We're doing it with the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth!"

Hongkong Internment Camps

Those who have friends or relatives interned in prison camps in Hongkong may receive some consolation from learning that the reported horrible conditions in these places may have been somewhat exaggerated. Ac-

By CHARLES A. MORRISON

President, International DX'ers Alliance

According to Tokyo Radio, Mr. Eagle, a representative of the International Red Cross now in Hongkong for the purpose of establishing a Red Cross office there, is purported to have said in an interview with the Domei News Agency that he was agreeably surprised at the conditions he found in the internment camps in Hongkong. He said that they were quite different from what had been rumored. He stated he had visited three prisons and had not only found living-conditions to be satisfactory but had found them to be the best conducted of any camps he had visited in greater east Asia.

"We Want to Fight"

According to Martin Agronsky speaking from Australia, the morale of our doughboys in Australia is excellent. He related that the other day he visited an American military camp to get, among other things, a real old-fashioned American hamburger. He not only got four juicy hamburgers, each with a big, thick slice of onion, but a chance to talk over the table with two American boys from midwestern states. Their only complaint was a lack of excitement. They were in the ordnance department and spent most of the day wrestling guns and other equipment from one location to another. "The trouble with Australia," said a boy from Sheboygan, Wisconsin, "is that it is too much like home once you get used to their accent. We haven't found all of this romance of foreign service. Believe it or not, we had to go to a zoo to see a kangaroo. There is just one thing most of us want to do and that is get back home as quickly as possible, but since that is impossible at this time we want to start killing Japs as soon as possible. We want to fight." "No," concluded Martin Agronsky, "there is nothing wrong with the spirit of this man's army."

From Us to England

"New York Calling London" is a frank, invigorating discussion of America's war effort, presented especially for listeners in Britain by Maurice English, who is being described there as "the American J. B. Priestley." This feature, designed to offer a friendly and candid discussion of the gigantic common war efforts of the two great democratic powers rather than to disseminate news or "propaganda," is broadcast thrice weekly, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 10:45 a.m. PWT over NBC stations WRCA (15.15), WBOS (15.21) and WNBI (17.78).

Compliments on the programs have been received from England's man in the street as well as from Prime Minister Churchill.

Ecuador Station Joins Fight for Freedom

Ten thousand feet high in the snow-capped Andes Mountains of Ecuador nestles the picturesque city of Quito, site of short-wave station HCJB, probably the best-known broadcaster in South America. A powerful 10,000-watt transmitter, a unique antenna system and an excellent location all combine to give this station such powerful signals that it can be heard with great clarity throughout North America. Owned by American missionaries, the programs of HCJB are in the main of a semireligious nature. They are, however, so simple and inspirational that they should delight any listener, regardless of his or her religious creed. In addition to the daily devotional programs, such as "Morning in the Mountains" at 5:00 a.m., "Ecuadorean Echoes" at 3:00 p.m. and the "Friendship Hour" at 6:00 p.m. PWT, HCJB also broadcasts interesting travelogues, educational programs and excellent concerts of symphonic and native Ecuadorean music. Realizing that the fight for freedom is not limited by race, creed or nation, HCJB has also kept step with the spirit of the times by adding programs of such timely importance as "Service Night" which, broadcast on Tuesdays at 7:00 p.m. PWT, is devoted to special music, talks and features for soldiers of the United Nations in all parts of the world. On Sundays at 10:45 a.m. PWT a forty-five-minute devotional and musical program is radiated for listeners in Great Britain, while at 11:30 a.m. on the same day a special program is broadcast for English listeners in Sweden. HCJB operates simultaneously on 12.455 and a new frequency of 9.96 megs.

News About the Stations

Melbourne has been conducting more tests in an endeavor to find a suitable hour and frequency for evening reception in the eastern states. The latest tests were broadcast over VLG9 (11.90) between the hours of 3:30 and 5:00 p.m. PWT . . . VLW6 (9.68), Perth, West Australia, broadcasts a detailed English news bulletin from 5:00 to 5:30 a.m. PWT, which includes Australian and New Zealand news as well as world news . . . American prisoners of war from the Philippines may be heard sending messages home occasionally at 11:20 p.m. PWT over Tokyo stations JZJ (11.80) and JZK (15.16). Other nights at the same hour American prisoners may be heard giving impromptu concerts . . . JIE3 (9.69), Taihoku, Taiwan, broadcasts the news in English at 5:30 a.m. PWT . . . Radio Saigon (11.775), Saigon, French Indo-China, broadcasts three English news periods daily: 4:30, 8:00 and 8:45 a.m. PWT.

TO KEEP in tune with the musical tastes of listeners in all parts of the world special arrangements are frequently written for broadcasts to other countries. Joseph Littau (seated) and Agustin Llopis de Olivares collaborate on musical arrangements for many of NBC's short-wave programs

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Program Section begins with the listing of complete programs for Saturday on page 16, followed by complete programs for Sunday.

The new revised Monday-through-Friday daytime program section begins on page 21. This section is made up in a new style designed to give the reader greater service value and eliminates the necessity of looking in two different sections. All daytime programs are listed complete for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday between the hours of 7:00 a.m. and 3:15 p.m., inclusive. See page 22 for complete instructions on how to use this section.

HOW TO USE THIS SECTION

All daytime programs for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday between the hours of 7:00 a.m. and 3:15 p.m., inclusive, are listed in this section.

The daytime programs listed under the heading "Monday Through Friday Programs" are all programs broadcast Monday through Friday at the same time each day.

Half-way down the same column and under the same time line you will note the word "exceptions." All programs listed under this heading are those which are not broadcast at the same time Monday through Friday but are different every day or broadcast in a series of two or more, such as Monday-Tuesday, Monday-Wednesday-Friday, etc. In other words, if you are looking for a news program or a dramatic serial broadcast at the same time each day it will be listed under the "Monday Through Friday" heading. All other programs will be found under "Exceptions."

BESS JOHNSON

If BESS JOHNSON weren't so charming, she would be rather alarming. For she is one of those women who get things done, whether it be in the home, on the stage, before a mike, or in a business office. She was a model, wanted to sing, but was stopped by a throat infection. She was a stage actress for several years, came to radio in 1932, holding a part in "Today's Children" for five years. She also worked in directing, producing and selling radio shows, once heading the radio department of a Chicago advertising agency. Over a year ago she launched a new serial, in which she stars and which takes her name as its title, "The Story of Bess Johnson." This drama is still a favorite. Bess Johnson has a charming daughter in her early teens.

Phil Tully, Sergeant Donovan of the "Perfect Crime" series on "Johnny Presents," has a contract stipulating that he cannot utter the famous "Step down!" on any other program.

HELEN MENKEN

FIVE years ago, Miss Menken created the starring part of a new radio serial drama, "Second Husband." This was a most newsworthy item for stage and radio columnists, because Helen Menken was already a reigning queen on Broadway. Her stage career had begun in 1906 when, at the age of five, she played a fairy in "Midsummer Night's Dream." From then on, she was an actress to be reckoned with. After several hits, she created the beloved role of Diane in "Seventh Heaven." Among her greatest triumphs have been her Queen Elizabeth in "Mary of Scotland" and Charlotte Lovell in "The Old Maid." She has often been seen in Shakespearian roles. An active sportswoman with a flare for horses, she is blond, blue-eyed, vivacious.

SWING SHIFT LOG

This log lists stations broadcasting for two hours or more after midnight. It is presented for the use of war industry workers who often search for radio entertainment during the early morning hours. Time shown is Pacific War Time.

Table with columns: Call Letters, Kilo-cycles, Location, On The Air. Lists various radio stations and their broadcast times.

Short Career

Tenor Frank Sinatra, heard on the Tommy Dorsey series, tried his hand at newspaper work once. He was a cub on a New Jersey paper for a couple of paragraphs or so. Evidently the parting of company was by mutual consent.

Why Lone Ranger Wears a Mask

Many an admiring fan has asked why that hard-riding crusader of the West, the Lone Ranger, always wears a mask. And here's the lowdown—straight from his official biographer, Fran Striker.

It seems that six Texas Rangers were ambushed by outlaws in a canyon. Five were killed outright. The sixth, left for dead, was found by Tonto, who nursed him back to health. However, when Tonto buried the five slain Rangers, he made six mounds of earth to give the impression that all had died. This left the one man free to hunt down the assassins and bring them to justice.

Since everyone thought he had perished, this Lone Ranger decided to conceal his identity with a mask during his campaign of reprisal. By the time that mission was completed, the masked figure—like his white horse, Silver—had become a symbol of justice which struck fear into the hearts of badmen wherever it was mentioned. He had become known throughout the territory as a hard-fighting, straight-shooting avenger, despite the fact that he had never used his guns to take a life.

It was only natural, when the Lone Ranger pledged himself to continue his fight against outlawry, that he remain behind his mask, leaving his real identity buried with his fallen comrades.

Can You Beat It?

Carlton Brickert thinks he's set a record for the men in radio serials. Carlton, who plays David Post in "Mary Marlin," is the only actor of the original cast to have played his part consecutively since the program started. Eight years come October.

End of Friday Programs

Of course the prime interest in Charlie's life is the fair sex, and his unprejudiced views on this pleasant subject are summed up in the following . . . "When it comes to feminine pulchritude, I definitely favor blondes, brunettes and redheads . . . preferably the last three."

Taken all in all, I believe that Charlie's psychological reflexes represent the same desires and inhibitions that are present in all of us under that thin veneer of sophistication we call civilization.

Mortimer, on the other hand, dwells in the lower I. Q.'s. His world offers no problems. He takes life as he finds it . . . is frank in admitting his mental deficiency. An example of his intelligence and philosophy may be brought to light by his directions on how to reach his home in Snerdville, I said, "Mortimer, how do you get there?" He said, "Wal, there's different ways to go" . . . "I mean, how far is it as the crow flies?" . . . "You ain't goin' by crow, are you?" . . . Then he volunteered, "Take Route 32 'til it crosses 51" . . . I said, "I make a right turn?" . . . "Yup, you can if you want to . . . but it won't get you there." When he told me that he preferred raising hogs to corn, I asked him why. He answered, "You don't have to hoe hogs" . . . All of which caused me to remark that he certainly had a head on his shoulders, and he replied, "Yup, I figure that's the place for it."

Well, I guess that about clears up the short analysis of my two favorite people, and while some may wonder about their future in life, I am sure they will do as well for themselves as they have done for me.

ROAD of LIFE

In This Instalment Linden Wade Tries to Solve the Mystery Surrounding Claudia Wilson's Strange Disappearance

PART 4

The tense story of the radio program "Road of Life," fictionized by Wiley Maloney, is broadcast Monday through Friday over NBC at 11 a.m. EWT, 10 CWT, 9 MWT, 3 p.m. PWT, under the sponsorship of Procter and Gamble for Duz. When Dr. Jim Brent, ace surgeon, is permitted to bring in his own resident physician, City Hospital's chief of staff, Dr. Reginald Parsons, considers the matter a personal affront. The board of directors refuses to reconsider the decision and the proud Dr. Parsons resigns.

A few days later a strange case comes under Dr. Brent's supervision. The patient is a twenty-year-old girl named Claudia Wilson, an orphan who lives with her aunt and uncle, the Hurleys. Dr. Brent's skill as a surgeon saves her life. But the Hurleys don't seem to want their niece to get better, suggest that she isn't in her right mind. They request that Miss Radcliff, her governess, be allowed to stay with her during convalescence, but Dr. Brent will not consent to this.

Claudia gradually becomes more friendly and surprises Doc Thompson,

Jim's resident physician, when she confides that she does not want to go home. Then one day while visiting Claudia, Miss Radcliff forces the girl to stand on her feet. The strain is too great and she collapses. Doc Thompson is furious and orders Miss Radcliff to stop interfering with the case.

That same night, while still on duty, Doc is notified that room 318 is empty. He rushes to Claudia's room, wondering how she could have possibly left the hospital when she was unable to stand that morning. Now go on with the story.

—The Editors.

IT WAS impossible. At least Doc thought it was impossible as he hurried through the corridors of City Hospital to room 318. A patient literally spirited away from a busy hospital—a patient who had been too weak to walk that very morning? Who ever heard of such a thing?

Doc found a concerned Sally Barnett, the third-floor night supervisor, at the door of room 318, in which Claudia Wilson had fought her way back to life with the aid and skill of Dr. Jim Brent. For days the strange, child-like, twenty-year-old girl had dreaded leaving the hospital to go home. Now she was gone. But where? How?

"I can't believe it, Sally," Doc said excitedly. "How could it happen?"

Sally frowned. "I don't know, Doc. I couldn't be expected to know. You know what visiting hours are around here. Miss Wilson was going home in a few days; she was put on general care this morning after her nurses were dismissed."

Doc was doubly disturbed about the mysterious disappearance because for days now he had been trying to tell his superior, Dr. Brent, that there was something behind the case other than a medical problem.

There was only one thing to do—call Jim. Doc did so guardedly without going into detail over the telephone. In fact, he said nothing about the disappearance whatever; merely told Jim that he better come to the hospital at once. Jim was disturbed. And, like Doc, he couldn't believe the truth when he first heard it.

"Have you made a search of the hospital?" he asked Doc and Sally. "Miss Wilson hasn't been herself for the past few days, Doc, and you know it. It's more than possible that she's wandering around somewhere."

"Don't be a fool, Jim," said Doc. "The girl hasn't been out of bed; wasn't able to walk, and, for your information, there isn't a thing in that room to indicate that she'd ever been there. A patient doesn't get out of bed, pack a bag and wander around a hospital without anyone seeing her. I'd like to believe it, too, but I can't and neither can you."

In Jim's mind was a lurking fear. What if the news should leak out to the newspapers?

"We just can't have that happen," Jim said.

"But, Jim, the hospital authorities have got to know."

"Of course, Doc, of course. The hospital authorities is one thing—the newspapers—that's something else again. This can't hit the papers—remember that. There must be some kind of explanation."

"There is," Doc replied. "The Hurleys and Miss Radcliff were afraid to have Claudia Wilson in this hospital one day more—"

"Hold on a minute, Doc!" Jim cried eagerly. "If she's been taken out of City Hospital by her family, that's where our interest in the case ends. There's nothing we can do about it. That's going to be my recommendation to the board when I report the matter tomorrow."

Doc stopped pacing the floor. He looked Jim in the eye and spoke calmly.

"Jim," he said, "you and I—aside from the medical angle of the case—haven't from the beginning seen eye to eye on it—"

"Granted," Jim interrupted. "I haven't the time, Doc, to pry into the personal affairs of a patient."

"But, Jim, you're throwing good sense to the four winds—you're acting like a stupid fool. The job of chief of staff looks like a nice plum, doesn't it?"

Jim's face reddened in sudden anger. "Hold on—you're going just a little too far. Do you realize that you're talking to your superior?"

Doc's mouth became a harsh, tight line. "Would you like my resignation, Dr. Brent?"

For a moment the two doctors—the two friends—stood looking at each other. It was Jim who broke the terrible silence. He managed a tight little grin and looked at Doc rather sheepishly.

"Listen, fellah," he said, "the two of us are acting like a couple of kids. You know what I think of you and I have an idea of what you think of

REFRESHING is the word for a tepid tub on a hot day. It keeps the body cool, the nerves eased, the spirits high, and charm intact

NO "ATHLETE'S foot" foot will mar your dancing pleasure if you, like the lady at right, dry toes, dust with powder after bath

WATCH the seals in your neighborhood zoo (if you haven't any you'll just have to take our word for it), they know when they are well off! Plunging in a moatful of water . . . diving under a cascade of steam . . . seals are the flap-happiest fish. And they're not there to promote the "Cleanliness next to Godliness" slogan, either . . . nor to sell soap . . . they're just trying to find the pause that refreshes. Humans, take the hint!

There's more to this business of bathing than the soap-suds that gather at the surface. And if you're a duty-dipper (definition: one who tubs in a wink 'cause Saturday night has a habit of turning up every week), cup ear and hearken. Baths are fun—taken the right way! Fact is, everyone has his own pet formula for a scrub session; but to really do a job, it should be the place where you're really alone. You can make your tub the ringside seat to a world of things merely by luxuriating in its soothing embrace. And just let your thoughts flow with unfauceted freedom—it will top a view through rose-colored spectacles.

If you're of the opinion that bathing "the ritual way" is a peace-time pastime—one you can forego till the war is won—ponder its real purpose. Medical science long ago realized the becalming, vitalizing advantages of tepid water. And making the good old-fashioned tubbing under the prescribed phrase hydrotherapy, they managed to dunk highly emotional patients with the most gratifying results.

Set aside a few minutes every day—early A. M. or late P. M. preferably—to bathe in luxury. Soak that weary body of yours in a warm tub of water. Extreme hot or cold temperatures should be avoided except in specific instances. Hotter'n hot will do a job of unkinking Charley Horse muscles and colder'n cold will tone up and exhilarate your listless nerve-ends. But be sure you can take it when you turn on the heat—or the cold.

Crystals, oils and bubble-bath fluids on the market will help you set the stage for your glamour bath. "Practically" created, bath preparations provide an economical means of softening hard water, lathering it, and scenting your body with clingy odors. For this reason it is important that you match-mate fragrances in bath toiletries. Soap, dusting powder, salts and bubble fluid must be in harmony to achieve a really pleasant effect. Even the blitz shower can have a satisfying end, taken correctly. Soap-filled bath mitts and shower oils were prepared specifically to key in with the tempo of your "stall-life." And if you're thinking of hoarding soaps or reducing your present consumption, realize that the sudsy stuff—far from depriving our boys of bombs and bullets—is actually a by-product of war-weapon glycerine. So use soaps freely, with the comforting assurance that each scrub is "rubbing out" an enemy scoundrel at the same time that it sweeps away "enemy dirt."

When you're heading for home—and bath—stop just long enough to shop for some luscious bath toiletries. You'll cheer for the super American Beauty fragrance recently introduced by the Luxor family. And an ideal way to beat the heat—psychologically and physically—is to drop into a lather-whip of Ice O'Bubbles. Kept in a refrigerator, a few drops of the frosted foam makes you kin to a polar bear.

After bath, becloud yourself in Yardley's "hot-weather-escapist" body powder. It absorbs dampness and preserves that just-out-of-bath sensation. A colossal, easy-to-handle, last-a-long-time marketing-must, it can be bought for less than a dollar. And if your summer skin is sun-parched, treat yourself to a soothing bottle of Rubenstein's "Body Smooth." Finger-massaged into dry, wrinkled areas, this apple-blossom lotion leaves your skin soft and scented.

Gentlemen:

Congratulations, MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE, for your splendid editorial "Shall We Hate?" Hitler has said that unless men hate him he cannot conquer them, and the martyrs of his Gestapo are the innocents. This paradox reveals a lack of intelligence incongruous with our American ideals. In every part of the world today prayers of hope and faith rise from sincere parents for their youth being sacrificed to Moloch. Shall these supplications go unanswered, even though skeptics deride by holding up its horror pictures?

We do not seek war, but are fighting hate manifested in the avariciousness of power, greed and selfishness. These are cardinal vices which would obstruct the moral and ethical codes of nations and the sane pursuit of happiness in the lives of individuals. If such disintegrating thoughts presented themselves to the minds of any sane man or woman they would be quickly eradicated. What we are doing is fighting evil forces, and it is these we are wiping from land, sea and air, ever heeding the voice of Lincoln, "With malice toward none." Firm and strong we must be, and vigilant every moment, but with a song in our hearts as we go marching on to victory.

Many times while traveling in Europe we have heard it said that we of the United States are too cock-sure of ourselves, and declaim our chauvinism too loudly. Forgive us, world, if we are proud of our land that has no quarrel with her neighbors, that harbors no suspicion. We are not looking for wars to prove our power. Yet we know how to fight when called upon to do our part.

Our boys are game in all sports. They know how to win and how to lose, and so they will fight this war. When it is over they will come home—some tired, others disillusioned; many with deep wounds of body as well as spirit; but there will be a jaunty snap in their stride, and it will not take long for them to forget the evil men do. To them it will be another victory won and faith kept to the Unknown Soldier. There is no hate in the heart of a gentleman, and every boy out there is a gentleman—a sporting gentleman—who fights fiercely to defend his honor but who lives to laugh and love.

On "Command Performance"

Dear Sir:

I was away in Cleveland at the time your two-page spread on "Command Performance" broke, and this is the first opportunity I've had to send you a thank-you note. You certainly went the whole hog in calling to the attention of the folks at home what we're attempting to do to entertain the armed forces abroad . . . It was terrific from every standpoint, and I want you to know that I'm deeply grateful. Most cordially,

Vick Knight, New York, N. Y.

● Thank you, Mr. Knight. We had the folks at home in mind, too, when we published "For Soldiers Only."

Every Wife Must Face
This Intimate Problem...

HERE ARE THE FACTS!

Safe new way in feminine hygiene gives continuous action for hours!

Whenever you see a happily-married woman, you can be fairly certain that she knows the truth about the vital, intimate problem of feminine hygiene.

You can too! Today no woman need trust the half-truths told her by misinformed friends! No woman need rely on weak, ineffective "home-made" solutions—or risk using over-strong solutions of acids which can burn, scar and desensitize delicate tissues.

Intelligent, well-informed women everywhere have turned to Zonitors—the new, safe, convenient way in feminine hygiene.

Zonitors are dainty, snow-white suppositories which spread a greaseless, protective coating... and kill germs instantly at contact. Deodorize—not by temporarily masking—but by destroying odors. Cleanse antiseptically and give continuous medication for hours.

Yet Zonitors are safe for delicate tissues. Powerful—yet non-poisonous, non-caustic. Even help promote gentle healing. No apparatus; nothing to mix. At all drugstores.

FREE: Mail this coupon for revealing booklet of intimate facts, sent postpaid in plain envelope. Zonitors, Dept. 5803A, 370 Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Bulls & Boners

Bulls and boners are a part of broadcasting. No matter how experienced the performer or how famous the star, chances are that he will make an occasional slip or a statement with twisted meaning which is extremely funny. See how good your ears are. Try to catch broadcasters in some error—the funnier the better—and send your entry to MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago. The most humorous entries will be printed in this column. Watch for your contribution!

Question Service

Miss Helen Martin, New London, Wis.—After many years as the announcer for "Amos 'n' Andy," BILL HAY is taking a much-deserved vacation at Palm Springs. During his absence, DELL SHARBUTT is taking his place at the mike. Come fall, Bill expects to announce some other program.

Miss Jane Meyer, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—Bob Elson's wife, the former Jeanne Kuhl, was never in radio, but was a model for five years before her marriage. Jeanne is five feet six inches tall, weighs 107 pounds, has brown hair, blue eyes. She was educated at Bradford Junior College in Bradford, Massachusetts.

Bob Elson's wife, Jeanne

Mr. Clarence V. Schultz, Detroit, Mich.—Yes, "Those We Love" did come back on July 1, and NAN GREY is again taking the role of Kathy Marshall. In the story "Bachelor's Children," MARJORIE HANNAN is handling the role of Ruth Ann and HUGH STUDEBAKER is still Dr. Bob... Come again!

Dorothy Hunt, El Centro, Calif.—DON NORMAN has gone to New York to continue having dates with different women. His policy is a bit changed, for now he tries to get some well-known woman on his program each day, and when he has finished asking her questions about romance and marriage, he tells the listeners who the celebrity was. Don isn't married himself, and perhaps that's why he's more at ease asking those personal questions. Don was born in 1907 in Crossnoe, Missouri, went to school there, moved to Cincinnati, went through high school and two years of college, and then landed a job at a radio station as an engineer. Don lasted one week at this because he was made an announcer. Until he came to Chicago in 1932, Norman worked in Cincinnati, Cleveland and St. Louis. Once in Chicago, he joined a foreign-language station in the hopes of being a news commentator.

Don Norman's a New Yorker now

But he stayed to learn more than ten languages. In 1935 Don turned to freelancing, took up street-parading with a microphone, and now reads all the women's magazines on the market to gather material for his question-shooting. Don is five feet six inches tall and he weighs 130 pounds.

Mrs. R. F. Stiles, Evanston, Ill.—Glad you like our department. You can read about BILL HAY above. As for QUIN RYAN, he is out of radio, probably for good.

Mrs. W. H. Bayles, Huron, S. D.—Hope you like the fictionization of "ROAD OF LIFE" now appearing in MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE. You can hear this program at 10:00 a.m. CWT over station WDAY or station KSTP.

WHAT'S COOKING!

By GEORGIA SCOTT

—Skinner

BARFLIES ain't what they used to be—not now when a foot poised on brass points the way to milk, pop, fruit- and vegetable-juice bars. The liquid stuff they pour out of "bars" nowadays goes straight to your tummy—not your head. And bartenders are doling out a new kind of stimulating spirits—vitamins and minerals. America's "on the wagon"—imbibing bromides of nourishment and health.

Warm weather and that down-in-the-doldrums feeling you've been toting around belong to the cause-and-effect family. For excessive perspiration, spurred on by the hot summer season, results in a potent loss of vitamin C, and we experience an equal loss of energy. Citrus fruits, suppliers of said vitamin, are a "must" in your summer diet for this very reason. Lemons, in particular, are an excellent way to take nourishment along with health. And lemonade is a perfect suggestion for play or work lunch-box thermos. Vary it with the luscious all-day, all-meal beverage—

Lemon Shake

Use the juice and grated peel of one-half lemon for each glass prepared. Add two tablespoons sugar syrup, one-half cup water, dash of angostura bitters, one-fourth cup crushed ice and one egg white, well beaten. Mix thoroughly in shaker. Pour into glass.

I've added the angostura ingredient so that your lemon drink takes on a healthy glow. Besides pointing up taste, angostura gives your wishy-washy beverages a color transfusion. If you're conserving your supply of sugar you'll be interested in knowing that syrup goes much further in drink preparations and promises a smoother, better-mixed concoction to boot. Prepare your own supply of the sweet stuff and keep it in the cupboard for quick mixing. Fill a soda-bottle with sugar to the three-quarter level. Add a few pinches of salt to sharpen flavor. Top the grains with water and shake vigorously until the mixture is completely diluted.

With coffee supplies cut and grocers rationing on their own, a tall glass of iced coffee takes the glamour edge off "bubble in my nose" champagne. And now that it's precious stuff you'd do well to treat it with luxury respect. For patriotic reasons, as well as good home economics' sense, never buy more than a week's supply at a time. And be sure your grocer is giving you freshly ground and roasted coffee. Quality of aroma and flavor, in addition to blend, determines the ultimate goodness or "badness" of coffee. Roast and grind it yourself if you must, or market in stores that have a rapid coffee turnover. Dated containers should mark the day roasted, not delivered, so note labels carefully. Deterioration sets in immediately after roasting, regardless of packaging. "Dripped" coffee produces a better brew than other ways and means, and be careful not to let the coffee boil. Brush-scrub your coffee pot, use freshly drawn water, and follow measurements accurately. A heaping teaspoon to a cup of water is standard. And for guests' and coffee's sake, serve immediately!

Add some cloves and sticks of cinnamon to your iced coffee before serving. These spices are still available in abundance and they put zip into every sip. And if the vegetable-juice devotees in your family like theirs zingy, a spiced tomato juice will prove torridly he-man.

Spiced Tomato Juice

- 2 cups tomato juice
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/8 tsp. cayenne
- 1/8 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/8 tsp. ground cloves
- 1/8 tsp. onion, chopped fine
- 1 1/2 tbs. lemon juice

Add the salt, pepper, cinnamon, cloves and onion to the tomato juice. Allow to stand a few hours. Strain and chill. Add lemon juice and serve.

Encourage your youngsters to bring the gang home after ye olde swimming-hole or their expedition to the movies. Porch-swinging is as traditionally American as apple pie and it's up to you to keep it swinging. When the jitterbugs and jivers swoop home, greet them with c-o-o-l drinks. Single- or double-strawed chocolate milk shake is a teen-age favorite.

Chocolate Mint Shake

- 6 tbs. prepared chocolate syrup
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/4 tsp. peppermint extract
- chopped ice
- unsweetened whipped cream
- cinnamon

Make individual servings. Combine the chocolate syrup, milk and peppermint extract and chopped ice. Shake well and pour into glasses. Top with unsweetened whipped cream, adding just a dusting of cinnamon over the cream.

Road of Life

me. But on the level, Doc, you don't know what harm publicity could do to an institution such as City. The point I've been trying to make is this: We were prepared to dismiss this patient within a few days. The operation was a success and the patient has recovered. We've done our end of the job—the case is over and done with."

"Wait a minute, Jim. We're responsible until the patient is dismissed. Now, aside from my interest in Claudia, I've considered that the Hurleys might be playing a game. What's to prevent them from coming to the hospital tomorrow morning, walking into room 318 and being terribly surprised to find the room empty? You've heard of shakedown before—you've heard of blackmail. I'm telling you, Jim, that neither you nor the hospital can afford to keep this on the QT. It's got to be reported."

The upshot of the matter was that Jim decided to present the situation to the board in a factual way and let it make the decision. But the next night, his draft board called him for a physical examination, and it was Doc who stated the facts in the strange disappearance of Claudia Wilson.

SEVERAL hundred miles from the great metropolis of Chicago, the first light of dawn broke over the countryside. Some distance from the main road, a small, white, rambling building was somewhat hidden from passing vehicles by stately oak trees and green, flowing shrubbery. There was a sign at the entrance to the private drive leading to the building and it read, "Private Sanitarium."

In an attractive room on the second floor, a middle-aged woman sat at the bedside of a sleeping girl—the girl who had disappeared from room 318 at City Hospital the night before. The woman with her was Sarah Radcliff, the girl's only companion for eight long years. Claudia Wilson slowly opened her eyes and looked at Miss Radcliff with a puzzled expression.

"Is it morning?" she asked.

"A very bright morning, Claudia," Miss Radcliff replied. "The countryside looks so green and so lovely."

"Countryside?"

"Yes, my dear," Miss Radcliff said casually. "You're just where you've been for the past weeks."

"No, no," cried the white-faced girl. "This isn't City Hospital!"

"City Hospital? Claudia, what are you talking about? You've been a very sick girl, Claudia. For a time, we didn't think you'd pull through. You—you were delirious for days—"

"Sarah! Don't tell me I don't know what I'm talking about. Where's Dr. Thompson, Miss Bradley—Dr. Brent, who operated on me? Miss Bradley—she was one of my nurses."

Miss Radcliff walked to Claudia's side. Her whole attitude suggested that she was dealing with someone almost beyond human help or understanding.

"Claudia," she said, "those things never happened. Those people don't exist—at least not to my knowledge. Dear, I'm afraid you've been dreaming—you've been asleep so much of the time. Really, dear, I've heard of people having hallucinations before, but—"

"What do you mean, hallucinations?" Claudia was almost weeping and her voice trembled with fright. "For years, Sarah, you've been telling me that I'm not like other girls. You've made me believe that I couldn't be with people; that there's something strange about me—something that set me aside from others. You've made me believe that I—that I wasn't to be trusted out alone. You've kept me away from everyone and everything—you and Aunt Jane and Uncle George. And now this. What happened? What did you give me to drink there at the hospital last night? How did I come to be here?"

Back at the hospital, Doc and Jim discussed the board meeting and Jim's physical examination for the Army. Jim was depressed. The draft board had rejected him because of chronic myocarditis.

"What does that amount to, Doc?" he asked sarcastically. "The heart muscle's a little weak—so what? Listen, Doc, I'm in better condition today than I've ever been and don't think because my local board turned me down on the first physical examination that I'm going to stop there. I'll be examined by another board—higher up."

"Well, Jim, if you want to take the time, that's up to you. I don't think it'll do you any good. You might just as well make up your mind to accept the hospital board's offer of chief of staff and do yourself a job right here. Do something for Claudia Wilson, for instance. Why, Jim, a few years ago you'd have turned the world upside down to find out what happened to this girl. Has the knife become your mistress? Are you on the way of becoming a second Parsons?"

Jim smiled at his friend and resident physician. Doc was so sincere and meant so well that Jim at last was convinced. He told Doc that they'd find out what happened to the missing patient. He said he'd get in touch with his friend Linden Wade immediately.

And so the mysterious Linden Wade took over the case. His manner instilled confidence as he went about his investigation in a business-like way. He listened carefully as Jim and Doc gave him the facts in the strange disappearance, then he asked to see room 318. He made only a cursory examination of the room, but seemed interested in the window that opened onto the fire-escape. He crawled out on the steel steps and walked down a flight. It was on the second-floor platform that he found a ribbon—the ribbon that Miss Bradley had put in Claudia's hair almost a week before.

Wade's conclusion was that the disappearance of Claudia Wilson had been arranged with inside help. He believed that someone had gone down the fire-escape with the girl while a second person, perhaps someone at the hospital, had locked the fire-escape window from the inside. Wade insisted this person must have been a hospital employe, for anybody else would have attracted attention. The thing seemed incredible to Jim, but he arranged to have Wade interview Sally Barnett, Miss Bradley, Miss Alice Jamison, the nurse who had made rounds just before Claudia's disappearance, and Miss Clark, who had been on the telephone switchboard.

Jim stepped to the third-floor chart-room, where Sylvia Bertram was on duty today. The day supervisor voiced her opinion in no uncertain terms.

"Jim," she said, "you've been connected with the hospital too long to shut your eyes, as you're doing, to the fact that things get out; that the proverbial grapevine not only gets the facts but distorts them, adds to them. In view of everything that's happened, you shouldn't attempt to suppress the facts. The police should be brought in—there should be an open investigation. I think you're making a mistake."

"In what way?" Jim asked.

"Well, supposing someone in the hospital is connected with the disappearance as your friend Wade thinks. Supposing that person is found—supposing that person involves you? The thing will leak out. There are police in the receiving-room every day—and so are the reporters. They'll hear gossip and—"

But Jim was firm about the private investigation that Wade was conducting and the private investigator was given a first-floor office where he began questioning nurses and others who were on duty the night Claudia disappeared.

Miss Bradley, Claudia's special nurse, was called to the hospital and she told Wade that she'd felt there was something wrong with the case from the start. She said she'd discussed it with her roommate.

"I think I told her at least a half-dozen times that there was something sinister about the set-up—about the people who were connected with this girl. I tried to figure out why these people who seemed so—so overly kind—were constantly suggesting, in a very insidious way, that Claudia wasn't normal. But, Mr. Wade, that's all I know about the case. I was dismissed, as you know, at noon of the day she disappeared."

Miss Bradley was permitted to leave the hospital, and Miss Alice Jamison, the student nurse, was called to Wade's office. She was almost hysterical. Even before the investigator had a chance to speak to her, she cried: "I don't know anything about it, I tell you, I don't know anything about it. I won't be dragged into this thing! I don't know anything about it!"

The girl's obvious fears aroused Wade's suspicions, although he made no accusation against her. His suspicions were strengthened when he learned that Miss Jamison had accepted a box of candy and a compact as gifts from Miss Radcliff, while the other nurses—the women who were closer to the patient—had received no such favors. Did the fact have any bearing on the case?

Wade dismissed the weeping girl, then sat alone as he contemplated his next move. The night shift came on duty. In the third-floor chart-room, Sylvia Bertram finished her day duties as Sally Barnett came to take over for the night. Sally was about to be questioned by Wade, when Miss Bradley returned to the hospital with the surprising news that she had remembered an important detail she'd forgotten to tell the investigator. She hurried down to Wade's office to tell her story.

She told the investigator that the incident had occurred on the day Claudia had regained consciousness for the first time. While Claudia slept, Miss Radcliff had taken Miss Bradley aside.

"She said it was just to warn me that my patient might seem a little strange. She told me not to pay too much attention to what Claudia might say. I thought it rather strange and now I can recall her very words,

'There's nothing that can be done,' she told me. Two years ago—well, legally, she became of age, but the Hurleys didn't feel that she was capable of taking care of herself, nor of the estate that her parents had left her and—well—Judge Randolph declared her incompetent—the Hurleys were made her legal guardians.' That's what Miss Radcliff told me, Mr. Wade. Don't you think that might be important?"

Wade pondered. Judge Randolph—an estate—the Hurleys legal guardians! He looked at Miss Bradley and his eyes brightened.

"I wonder," he said, "how much that estate amounts to. I think, Miss Bradley, that you've given me something to work on—a motive, the thing I've been looking for ever since I started the investigation."

RUMOR spread through the cool corridors of City Hospital. Nurses and supervisors were tense. Interns went about their duties with grim faces. The "grapevine" was working. Then came the leak that Doc and Sylvia had predicted. It occurred innocently while one of the nurses was talking to Jack Sanders, a City Times reporter. She told him there was no news at the hospital—only a couple of smash-ups.

"Oh, yes," she said, "maybe it's news that the board's holding a meeting tonight at which Dr. Brent will accept a position as chief of staff."

"He's rather young, isn't he?" the reporter asked lazily. "Well, maybe I can get a story out of him."

"I'm not so sure about that. I think Dr. Brent dislikes publicity. Matter of fact, I know he dislikes it. If he had wanted publicity, he could have had it within the last week and plenty of it. One of his patients disappeared—right into thin air!"

Sanders did his best to obtain more information from the reluctant girl who had made a slip of the tongue, but he was unsuccessful. Sanders, however, was capable of using what little he had. The City Times went on the stands the next morning with a story of Dr. Brent's appointment as chief of staff of City Hospital that was to profoundly affect the lives of several persons and change the whole course of Linden Wade's investigation.

One person who read the story with surprise and interest was beautiful Carol Evans, the woman above all others who hoped Dr. Brent would again become like the old Jim she had known before their marriage plans fell through. Carol picked up the paper casually as she sat with her mother at breakfast.

"Why, Mother!" she exclaimed suddenly, "Jim's been made chief of staff at City Hospital. I didn't think he was going to accept it. I didn't see how he could knowing what it will do to Dr. Parsons. . . . Well, for goodness' sake, what does this mean? Mother, listen to this: 'Strange that on the eve of Dr. Brent's appointment of chief of staff, rumor should have it that one of his patients disappeared from City Hospital a week ago. Why weren't the police notified? Is there anything to this rumor?'"

Carol dropped the paper to the floor and stared into space.

"I wonder," she asked, "what this will mean to Jim? How will it affect him?"

PROOF!

First, here is proof of what may happen to health from lack of but a single Vitamin, the important Vitamin B-1. At Rochester, Minnesota, in a world leading hospital, six healthy people were given every food element necessary to health—except Vitamin B-1. Now, after they were kept on this diet lacking Vitamin B-1 for eighty-eight days they became depressed and discouraged. They complained of dizzy spells. They developed neuritis like pains, backaches, sore muscles and spent sleepless nights. They lost appetite, and became nervous and quarrelsome. But, when the very same people again were given enough Vitamin B-1, all six of them quickly recovered his health and vigor. Just think, friends, each and every one of them quickly recovered. Parr Vitamin Capsules contain a powerful supply of not only the important Vitamin B-1, but Vitamin B-2 (called the "beauty Vitamin"), B-6 (a nerve Vitamin) and Pantothenic (called the "acid of life"), and other necessary health giving Vitamins. This special Vitamin formula is obtainable in NO OTHER WAY. So make up your mind to test Parr Vitamins today, now, while Parr is making it easy for you to find out what B-Complex vitamins may be able to do to help you.
