ALWAYS READY!

Radio Honors Birth- day of Coast Guard!

THE United States Coast Guard will be 152 years old on August 4. To honor the birthday of the nation's oldest armed sea force, Meredith Willson (shown here with the Coast Guard flag) and his orchestra will play the Guard's song, "Semper Paratus" (always ready), on his NBC Coast-to-Coast program (8:30 p.m. EDT). Founded by the first Congress of the United States in 1790, during peacetime the Guard operates under the Treasury Department; but in war-time it operates as a branch of the Navy, an ever watchful military force that wards off enemy invasion threats. Honor the Coast Guard by listening in Tues., August 4!

Two Letters from Home

YOUR pen can build morale or tear it down. The right letter can cheer a far-from-home soldier or put him deep in the dumps. Mary Astor, movie-radio star, whose husband is in the R. C. A. F. and who writes to scores of soldier fans, has this to say:

"When you write to a soldier, sailor or marine, try to put yourself in his place and picture him as he receives the letter, and tell him the things you know he wants to hear.

"A fellow in a training-camp is usually far away from home, and despite the fine efforts made by the USO and other facilities to keep him happy, there is nothing like a letter from home to buck him up. If that letter has even one line in it of some small complaint, the boy in camp, thinking it over as he drills and trains, is apt to magnify it."

How would you like this letter?
"Sorry not to write for a couple of weeks, but I've had a cold, and I've been working too hard, and Dad's been fretting about the office. Saw your girl out with Bill Smith last night. I'm afraid Jimmy's going to flunk algebra. Hope things improve soon."

Instead, try this tone:
"Everybody's fine, and Dad's out fixing that hole in the tennis court. Jimmy's sporting a new Boy Scout merit badge. Jane was over asking about you. Dad says to tell you the town ball club looks like a pennant winner."

Miss Astor adds one more comment: "There is no sense in recounting the petty annoyances all of us suffer in civilian life, but there is a great deal of sense in telling your boy in camp of the pleasant little things that happen to all of us here at home. So when you write, write about things you would like to hear if you were in his place, defending us from the horrors Europe suffers, and asking in return—just a letter from home."

MICKEY'S READY: War is a young man's job, and Mickey Rooney's ready to put his youthful energy and drive to work in the grim struggle of today. Mickey is in the so-called "second draft," the twenty-to-twenty-one-year-old bracket. He is very likely to be called up by the time his twenty-second birthday rolls around in September. In the photo above, the fiery star of the Andy Hardy series makes one of his numerous radio appearances for charity. Mickey has always given freely of his time for worthy causes, and now that the worthiest cause of all—the cause of country—may demand a greater, more dangerous service, Mickey is satisfied to join his youthful fellows in uniform. And when his call comes, it's our guess that he'll keep up the fine fighting tradition that goes with his Irish face and Irish name.

LION'S ROAR
Published in this space every month. The greatest star of the screen!

The minutes of the last meeting, read and approved, placed "Mrs. Miniver" right up there on all ten-best film lists of all-time.

Now we can get on to present and future business.

Clark Gable (Honky) and Lana Turner (Tonk) ignite again in "Somewhere I'll Find You".

"Tish", based on the popular stories by Mary Roberts Rinehart, dusts off the mantle of Marie Dressler and tenders it to Marjorie Main, who plays the title role.

The inimitable Mickey Rooney becomes "A Yank at Elton" and the role becomes Mickey Rooney.

Judy Garland's out-and-out starring vehicle is one of the out-and-outstanding entertainments on the horizon. "For Me and My Gal".

"Red" Skelton and Ann Sothern are in "Panama Hattie". You'll see Red—and Ann.

"Random Harvest", the James Hilton best-seller, is in the able hands of Director LeRoy and stars Ronald Colman and Mrs. Miniver Garson.

"Seven Sweethearts" brings prominently to the fore those up-and-coming artists, Kathryn Grayson, Van Heflin and Marsha Hunt.

Hedy Lamarr plays the enviable role of Tondeleyo in "White Cargo". Hedy Lamarr also plays opposite the enviable Walter Pidgeon.

This completes the agenda for pictures current and in the immediate making at M-G-M, whose promise of great motion picture entertainment has always been fulfilled.

YANKEE DOODLE

GOES TO TOWN

James Cagney as George M. Cohan Is a Sure-Fire Hit in "Yankee Doodle Dandy"

"YANKEE DOODLE DANDY" is the life-story of George M. Cohan, Broadway producer, playwright and song-writer. During his years of almost incredible effort in the theater, he wrote and produced forty plays, was actively and financially interested in 125 others, and wrote well over 500 songs and musical numbers. Through nearly half a century he turned his talents to the instilling of patriotism in the hearts of Americans through music and song. From the multitude of highlights in his amazing career, Warner Brothers built the screenplay. When Cohan okayed it, he did it on the one condition that Jimmy Cagney play the original Yankee Doodle Dandy. Jimmy, who seldom expresses an opinion about his screen roles, says he believes it's the best thing he's ever done. And when moviegoers see him in the Cohan role, we believe they will agree that Cagney really goes to town as the "Dandy." Even if they don't, they will most certainly thrill to the famous Cohan songs, some of them lavish production numbers, spotted through the show; for the 1942 version of "Over There" and "You're a Grand Old Flag" makes every American want to rise and cheer as they did in 1917!

On May 1, 1940, the Nation's Chief Executive presented the Congressional Medal of Honor to George M. Cohan for writing "Over There," America's greatest war song. First sung at Camp Merritt in 1917, "Over There" will be spotlighted in film "Yankee Doodle Dandy"

THE trumpets of war are again sounding over America as George M. Cohan (James Cagney) enters the closely guarded gates of the White House to call on President Roosevelt. Born on Independence Day in 1878, Cohan, for nearly half a century, has promoted patriotism through his songs, stage productions

GREAT DAY! George, at seven, joins mother and dad (Walter Huston) in a vaudeville act called "The Cohan Mirthmakers," goes on tour (above) and his education in show life begins

SUCCESS! Cohan writes "George Washington, Jr.," which brings the four Cohans to Broadway in a smash hit (above). Sister Josie (Jeanne Cagney, left) completes the quartet

STORY highlights as shown in the film "Yankee Doodle Dandy" are: George Michael's arrival in Providence, R. I., holding flag that he is to honor in song and drama when he grows up. Rosemary DeCamp (above) plays role of Mother Cohan

ROMANCE! George encourages stage career of sweetheart Mary (Joan Leslie). His first meeting with this girl he is to marry highlights comedy angle

Heroism of Army Nurse

Jane Wyatt Stars in RKO-Radio's Film "Army Surgeon"

WARRIORS of mercy are the surgeons and nurses of our armed forces—the men and women who practise the art of healing under gunfire. To honor these heroic people, RKO-Radio has produced "Army Surgeon," a dramatic story of military medical service. Jane Wyatt, co-starred with James Ellison, plays the part of an Army nurse. Lacking knowledge of the nursing profession, Jane learned how a real nurse works during operations by taking an intensive training-course at a hospital. Here she learned the work of the emergency ward, where gunshot wounds and other injuries were similar to those suffered by soldiers. Then worked in the operating-room, assisting real surgeons in their fights for lives. The pictures show she learned well.

King Rumba Takes Over

By
XAVIER CUGAT

Latin Maestro Explains How Anyone Can Dance the Rumba, Conga and Samba

Cuba (Professional) Rumba

WHEN someone asks me, "Is the rumba losing its popularity?" I want to start tearing out the few hairs I have left after thirteen years of selling the rumba, the conga and the samba to the dancers of North America!

The mere suggestion that the rumba is passe is without basis of fact. I don't know whether these people who ask this question are just trying to make conversation, or what. All I can say for the rumba is that it is here to stay, is already tremendously popular and is gaining more followers throughout the United States every day. The fact that college kids are now dancing it and crying for more should actually testify to this.

Frankly, I was surprised myself when our band was invited to play the commencement dance of the University of California at Berkeley on May 16. Always before, the college jitterbugs wanted a hot swing band—and here they were asking for Cugat and his Latin rhythms.

Because my band, for years, has made long-term appearances at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York—and in Chicago—with occasional trips to Hollywood. I have had little opportunity actually to see people, especially the young crowd, dancing the rumba in other cities. I was flattered at the invitation and accepted it for no other reason than to get the reaction of the collegiate dancers.

Let me tell you, it was terrific! My band boys and I went on the bandstand at 11 p.m.—and stayed there until six o'clock in the morning! Even though my Camel Caravan "Cugat Rumba Revue" on the radio (CBS, Fridays, 10 p.m. EWT) brings thousands of fan letters from college kids, and I know they like our music, I didn't think they would be satisfied with seven solid hours of swingless rhythms. So I took along to San Francisco all of my books of American numbers just in case.

You can imagine the thrill we got when those kids set up a howl when we played just ONE fox-trot! They wanted rumbas—and we played them! They requested numbers that my band hasn't recorded for eight years.

And congas! The sight of three thousand college graduates, all dressed in their super-best, in a conga line that filled the huge dance floor of the

XAVIER CUGAT taught Rosalind Russell the conga steps she executes in her new Columbia picture, "My Sister Eileen." The conductor just completed "You Were Never Lovelier" for the same studio. Spanish-born Cugat has "sold" Americans on Latin rhythms for many years, despite the competition of swing. Cugat is a splendid caricaturist and once earned his living as a newspaper cartoonist. The amusing drawings on this page are his work

Park Ave. Rumba

Street Rumba

Palace Hotel was a revelation. And they knew how to conga—just as they knew how to rumba. They all crowded around the bandstand and literally showered us with requests, and they knew the names of all the songs.

For thirteen years, as I said before, it has been my dream to see all of America dancing the rumba, the tango and the conga. Even when swing was king and it looked as if the Latin rhythms were headed for oblivion, I stuck with the native tempos—played them, yes, played more of them than I had played before. I knew that some day these tempos would come into their own. Now they have.

If rumba music were not of equal commercial value and popular appeal as swing music, would our record contracts parallel those of the swing kings? Would Columbia Studios, to whom I am now under contract for an acting role (with my band) in the current musical starring Rita Hayworth and Fred Astaire, offer me the same money that they offer the leader of a swing band?

If the work we have done—my band boys and I—to popularize the rhythms and melodies of the Latin-American countries is not significant, would I have received the highest decoration the Cuban government can bestow? This is the Grand Cross of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, which carries the rank of commander. It was presented to me by Mrs. Fulgencio Batista, wife of Cuba's president, last summer in a special ceremony held at the Waldorf in New York. Present also was Dr. Conchoso, Cuban ambassador to Washington. This great honor was conferred upon me (in the words of Mrs. Batista) "for promoting good-will between Cuba and the United States of America through the popularizing of native Cuban music, and for creating jobs for Cuban musicians and composers in North America."

As to the trick of dancing the rumba. Actually there's no trick to it. At first, people here in the United States were afraid to try the rumba. They were afraid to be exhibitionist—because you have to have a little "ham" in you if you expect to do a good rumba. That "ham" business includes all of us—so everybody should be able to rumba.

Henry Ford used to come night after night to listen to our music when we were playing at the Statler Hotel in Detroit. He would sneak in through the kitchen of the hotel and stand behind a screen near the bandstand. He stood for hours, just listening. And the motor king wasn't above executing a few rumba steps himself just for practice.

Rumba doesn't have to be danced as the dancing-school formula—with a lot of showing off and fancy twirls. There are many "figures" (types of steps) to be danced to the rumba tempo, but they are simple, just like the waltz, which is an "open square" or "box" step. The best is primitive and elemental. It strikes some chord deep inside of us which remains from our savage ancestors.

At first, people do fox-trot steps to rumba tempo and find that they can "get by" in a crowd on a dance floor. Gradually they gain confidence and begin letting themselves go and allowing their knees to bend with the music. Rumba rhythm never changes in count—merely increases in speed, in certain types of numbers—and keeps the same,

If you already are a subscriber, your subscription credit will be extended for 17 weeks from expiration of your present subscription.
4. Entries, including both the names for the baby and the letters telling why the names are being submitted, will be judged for suitability, uniqueness and aptness. Judges' decision will be final in case of ties. Duplicate prizes will be given (by contestants). Entries cannot be returned and become property of Movie-Radio Guide.
5. Any resident of the United States and Canada may compete except employees of Movie-Radio Guide and their families. Contest subject to all United States, State and Dominion regulations. List of winners will be sent on request after final judging of entries. Winners will be notified by registered mail.
6. This Contest closes midnight, August 29, 1942. Final judging will be completed as soon as possible after August 29, 1942. Last entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, August 29, 1942. No person may submit more than three entries.

JOEY and the Birdhouse With Red Shutters and a Window-Box

As Told to Pauline Hopkins by Joey Brewster

Joey's Generosity Almost Wrecks the Brewsters' Rosy Schemes for Mother's Day

JEEPERS, I guess I'm just a sadapple, but I always feel sorry for people who haven't got a mother and a dad and a sister as dreamy as mine. So when we all chipped in to buy Mom some rose-bushes for Mother's Day, and I met this fellow with the swell birdhouse who couldn't buy his mother a Mother's Day present unless he sold the birdhouse, I—well, I felt sorry for him. So I bought the birdhouse for Mom.

Hey, and it was plenty sharp—with red shutters and a window-box! But when I brought it home Dad and Nancy and her boy friend, Phil, all jumped on me. They said we already had five birdhouses out in the yard and that Mom expected rose-bushes. And when I explained that the man sold me the birdhouse so he could buy his mother a Mother's Day present, they all laughed—and Dad asked "Why didn't he give the birdhouse to his Mother?" Yeh—I never thought of that!

Well, anyway, Dad and Nancy and Phil chipped in again and gave me five-fifty—and Dad said, "Joey, the corner of Main and Central—Arthur Cook's Florist Shop—hybrid tea rose-bushes—five dollars and fifty cents worth."

And Phil said, "And Smalfry, this time come home with rose-bushes!"

Jeeppers, why does everybody worry about me?

Well, on the way to the florist shop I met Lefty. He's an orphan who lives with his Aunt Mabel. Lefty came into the florist shop with me, and all the time Mr. Cook was showing me rose-bushes, Lefty kept staring at the flowers. "Hey, get a load of these!" Lefty pointed to the geraniums. "Get a load of these geraniums!"

But Mr. Cook told him they were Pelargonium—commonly called geraniums. Then Lefty spotted a stand with four petunia plants, and I thought his eyes would pop out. "That's what I call real class! That's what I'd like to buy my Aunt Mabel for Mother's Day!"

Well, Mr. Cook said they cost five dollars-and twenty-five cents—and Lefty whistled and said he could never get that much money together. I sure felt sorry for Lefty—but I just had to get those rose-bushes for Mom, so I made a business proposition to Mr. Cook. "Would you be interested in hiring someone to deliver your flowers at ten cents a delivery? I could do it on my bike."

Mr. Cook thought that idea was plenty sharp, so I bought the petunia plants and gave them to Lefty, and I told Mr. Cook to save the rose-bushes until I'd earned enough money delivering flowers.

Then on my first delivery trip I was passing Mrs. Baldwin's house—she's a widow and a very good friend of Mom's. "Joey," she called to me, "what are you doing with all those flowers on your bicycle?"

Well, when I told Mrs. Baldwin I was delivering flowers for Mr. Cook, she said that was fine; that I'd have an order for her soon; that her boy, Clifford, never forgets her on Mother's Day, and that he always sends the order to Mr. Cook.

Well, I made deliveries all day Saturday and clear into Saturday evening, but I still didn't have quite enough money for the rose-bushes. I'd earned six dollars, and the rose-bushes were seven-fifty. But as I explained to Mr. Cook, "Jeeppers, I should get the roses wholesale."

Mr. Cook said maybe he could knock off fifty cents, and I said, "Well, would it be any cheaper if you knock off a couple of buds?" So finally Mr. Cook wrapped up the rose-bushes and gave them to me for six bucks. Then I remembered Mrs. Baldwin. "Hey," I asked him, "didn't an order come for Mrs. Baldwin?" But Mr. Cook said, "No, I'm afraid her son forgot her."

What would you have done if you were in my shoes? Wouldn't you have taken the rose-bushes to Mrs. Baldwin and said they came from her son Clifford? And wouldn't you have been real pleased to see the tears come to her eyes 'cause it made her so happy?

Well, at last it was Sunday morning—Mother's Day—and Mom opened her present at the breakfast-table. Mom looked awfully surprised to get a birdhouse from us—and Nancy gave me a dirty look—and Phil groaned—and Dad said he wanted to see me right after breakfast! Boy, was I in for it!

Just then the doorbell rang and it was Mrs. Baldwin bringing Mom the rose-bushes. "Here, Mrs. Brewster," she said, "I think these are for you. Joey stopped in to see me last night and he thought Clifford had forgotten me, so he left these. But Clifford came home late last night and he brought me a present. That's how I knew these were meant for you."

Mom just looked at me, but she looked real proud. And then Mrs. Baldwin said, "Clifford was in town earning money so he could buy me a present. He's been selling birdhouses." Jeeppers, her Clifford was the man who had sold me the birdhouse with red shutters and a window-box!

JOEY BREWSTER himself is heard every Friday on CBS with Eddie Firestone playing the lively part of a typical American boy

Well, after Mrs. Baldwin left, Mom put her arms around me and she said, "Joey, the rose-bushes are lovely, but I'll always cherish that birdhouse. It was wonderful of you to think of other mothers as well as your own." And I looked up at Mom and I said, "Aw, Mom, what a sugarpuss you are!" Mom seemed puzzled, "Sugarpuss, Joey?"

"Yeah," I told her. "Commonly called 'Sweetheart.'"

This merry short short story of Joey Brewster was written by Pauline Hopkins, the creator and author of "That Brewster Boy," heard on CBS Fridays at 9:30 p.m. EWT, sponsored by Quaker Oats in behalf of Sparkies.

Bud Abbott Is Surprised! And should the man who surprised him happen to read this column, he'll probably be surprised too! Event was staged last week at Bud's barbecue, a brilliantly lighted place located not far from his home, a few hundred yards from the Encino highway. Bud, who dotes on dressing up in a chef's outfit and broiling steaks, was preparing some for a late dinner when a couple drove up and ordered two of them. Now, Bud, like his rotund teammate Lou Costello, is a hospitable soul who's forever inviting folks out for a swim and a barbecue, so he said genially, "Where do I know you from, neighbors?" "Nix on the gab, bud, we're hungry," shot back the "guest," while his wife looked annoyed. Well, at least they knew his name, Bud thought as he served them two juicy steaks just off the coals. But all his efforts to find out who they were proved fruitless. The couple insisted they were in an eating- not talking- mood. It wasn't until they finished their meal and the man asked for the check that Abbott realized his barbecue had been mistaken for a roadside stand. But Bud was equal to the occasion. He grinned, and shot back, "It's on the house, stranger, seeh's how you're my first paying guest" . . .

Sarong, slendang, lurong! Dorothy Lamour started it with her sarongs, Maria Montez took it from there with her slendang; and now along comes Hedy Lamarr with a perfect priority costume, the lurong, for her role in "White Cargo." Hedy's version weighs only eight ounces, requires no fitting, no snaps, no hooks, zippers, straps or bands! "It's all in the way you twist it!" says the orbful Hedy. How? That's production, in which she will play a Russian woman guerrilla, clad in rags, facing almost unbelievable tragedies of war. But if it becomes too harrowing, theater-goers with imaginations can always close their eyes and visualize her in that lurong! . . .

Michele Morgan Wants a Baby! We can't say whether the war brought on that serious thought or whether it's just because her friends are having babies. Be that as it may, Michele has suddenly decided she wants to marry and raise a family. Much squired about Movietown, Michele has admirers by the dozen; but if she decides to marry one of them, the lucky man will have to make up his mind to the idea of being a pater. And that's that! Michele admits that night-clubbing is a heap of fun, and that getting up to feed the baby during the early hours wouldn't be as glamorous or exciting; but she added sagely, "It would be a lot more gratifying!" Atta girl, Michele! Only be sure you pick the right husband. Fathers are important, Joo, you know! . . .

Dispatch to Dublin: Because of the war, Ireland, Maureen O'Hara's native land, faces a serious food shortage. So Maureen has just sent a five-pound case of concentrates and vitamins to her parents in Dublin, the limit individuals can send. Before ordering the case, Maureen conferred with her physician, who gave her a list of the essentials which would substitute for the lack of bread, fresh vegetables and fruits which we in this country are so fortunate in having. With the package went instructions from Maureen to her family that they were to use only what they absolutely needed, and that the rest was to be distributed to needy families. Needless to say, Maureen will send similar packages as often as postal authorities allow her to; for besides her parents, she has three sisters and two brothers living in Dublin . . .

Hollywood's Busiest Citizen: He's Joe E. Brown! After finishing "The Daring Young Man," Joe E. will appear in "The Show Off" on the Detroit stage!

EXPLANATION: Ratings of pictures are in Vs—"for Victory"—and VVVV, a four-V rating, is accorded only a top-ranking, almost perfect production. VVV is a winner, excellent film fare; VV is average, and V, unfortunately, is below average. Multi-color films are so indicated as "In color" right after the title, and A&J films are judged as "adult," "family," or simply "juvenile" fare.—THE EDITORS.

Brown created this role originally and again appeared in the play last year at several New England summer theaters. Henry Duffy, who will stage the play, wants Brown for twelve weeks, but it's doubtful whether he will get him. Besides having previous commitments, Joe E. is busy doing a great job keeping the service men in America's armed forces happy. Without fanfare, the comedian goes about the business of keeping everyone informed of the men's needs, particularly those boys in foreign countries; in fact, he is enlisting the help of every willing person in securing and getting to them everything possible. Joe's middle name should be "Service" . . .

A "Prince" Replies: Recently knighted by the British government, Alexander Korda and his wife (Merle Oberon) have become Sir and Lady Korda. The other day Miss Oberon called Mike Romanoff's eatery, one of the most exclusively star-studded night-spots in town, and the conversation ran like this: "Lady Korda speaking. I should like to make reservations this evening for a party of four. Is this the head waiter?" Came the reply: "No, Milady. This is Crown Prince Romanoff speaking, but I will see that your reservations are made!" . . .

Attention, Michael Shayne Fans! Twentieth Century-Fox has long since abandoned its Jones Family, Charley Chan and Mr. Moto series, but Michael Shayne, played by Lloyd Nolan, still goes on. Nolan has proved so popular in this series, and there has been such a demand from both exhibitors and public, that the studio has lifted Nolan's option for another three Michael Shayne episodes, to be made in the next year. First of the trio will get under way in about two months. Nolan is currently on the Fox lot playing the lead in "Manila Calling" . . .

Same Song, Second Verse: Lana Turner, M-G-M star, eloped to Las Vegas on July 17, married Stephen Crane, Los Angeles mercantile executive. Maid of honor at second wedding was lovely Linda Darnell, and best man, Alan Gordon, Movietown publicity man. Linda and Alan discussed the idea of making it a double wedding, but decided against it at the last moment. Miss Turner was divorced from Shaw in October, 1941.

GARY COOPER, playing Lou Gehrig in "The Pride of the Yankees," goes into a huddle with some veteran baseball players

MOVIE REVIEW

"The Pride of the Yankees"

Cast: Gary Cooper, Teresa Wright, Babe Ruth, Walter Brennan, Dan Duryea, Elsa Janssen, Ludwig Stossel, Virginia Cumers, Bill Dickey, Ernie Adams, Pierre Watkin, Harry Harvey, Robert W. Muesel, Mark Koenig, Bill Stern, Addison Ricardus, Harde Albright, Edward Fielding, George Lessey, Edgar Barrier, Douglas Crett, Betty Avery. A Samuel Goldwyn Production, directed by Sam Wood, from an original story by Paul Gallico, screenplay by Herman J. Mankiewicz and Joe Swerling.

Type of Picture: The life-story of Lou Gehrig, a great American and a great baseball player.

This is the story: New York-born Lou Gehrig early showed an aptitude for the sport that was to make his name known the world over, but this was a source of worry to his mother, who had her heart set on his being an engineer. It wasn't until his mother's health failed that Lou signed a contract with the New York Yankees in order that she might have the skillful medical treatment needed to save her life. As a student at Columbia University, where he excelled in both football and baseball, Lou earned the sobriquet of "Columbia Lou." But within a short time after signing with the Yankees he became known as Larrupin' Lou, the Iron Man, and was on his way to a record that has never been touched so far by another player—2,130 consecutive games. The drama of his life and work is portrayed deftly. In it is shown the great player's days as a rookie; his romance with the girl who called him "Tanglefoot" the first time she saw him; his many and spectacular exploits with the famous Yankees during their pennant go-getting campaigns, right up to and through the tragic days when Lou realizes that he's been "struck out" by a dread disease. Graphically portrayed then are the cruel, dragging years, leading up to the unforgettable climax—Lou Gehrig Appreciation Day in the Yankee Stadium, where 82,000 cheering fans pay tribute to a great ballplayer and a greater man.

Verdict: A picture to which the phrase "An epic of courage" truly applies. Every movie-goer, even those who've never seen a ball game, will find it an inspiration. For the whole family!

DAVIS SHAPES OWI RADIO ORGANIZATION . . . XAVIER CUGAT TURNS SCENE PAINTER

Mary Astor Drops Radio Work to Fly in Civil Air Patrol; Lunt and Fontanne Look Radioward; Bing Crosby's Golfing for Army-Navy Relief

WASHINGTON

By LT. COL. CURTIS MITCHELL

The biggest news of recent weeks is the arrangement under which your Government will give you news about the war. The office established for that purpose is called the Office of War Information and its director is expert commentator Elmer Davis.

OWI (everything in Washington is known by initials) is democracy's reply to Herr Goebbels' Propaganda Ministry. The Axis method is to tell the German people what to think. Their newspapers and their broadcasters are carefully instructed in periodic conferences. Any individual who divulges information not favored by the Nazi government is sent to a concentration camp. Contrast such treatment with Elmer Davis' first statement.

He said, "This is a people's war, and to win it the people should know as much about it as they can. This office (OWI) will do its best to tell the truth and nothing but the truth, both at home and abroad" . . .

The story of America's war effort will be told by three men who, under Mr. Davis, will be his generals in the field. The domestic branch will be under Gardner Cowles, Jr., of Des Moines, Iowa, president of the Iowa Broadcasting Company (KSO-KRNT, WNAX). The overseas branch is headed by Robert Sherwood, playwright. The policy branch is headed by Archibald MacLeish, Librarian of Congress and former director of the Office of Facts and Figures.

Most important to us who are radio listeners is the disposition of radio interests. These obviously fall under Mr. Cowles' domestic branch. In a special radio department called the Radio Bureau, we find activities divided into five groups. These will be concerned with (1) the amount of radio time devoted to various Government projects and campaigns, and the support of the radio industry therefor; (2) the coordination of programs from all Government agencies; (3) the preparation of radio scripts and announcements for radio stations; (4) contact with the radio industry itself, both broadcasting and manufacturing; (5) the production of radio programs in behalf of Government projects.

It is reassuring to a former radio editor that the key jobs in the Radio Bureau of OWI are held by successful radio men . . .

Several seasons ago I went to a Toscanini concert in NBC's 8th studio. To it were invited the cream of New York musical society. Just before the doors closed, a party swept out of an elevator and through wide-flung doors. Women in ermine and men in white tie and tails epitomized the sort of important, powerful persons Noel Coward writes about. They were led by a strong-looking man in his fifties. "Who is that?" I asked.

"That is Sarnoff. He is president of Radio Corporation of America, which owns NBC," was the reply.

The other day I stood among a group of officers before the Army and Navy Club. There were admirals and major generals, even one lieutenant general. We were waiting for the bus which runs from the club to the War Department. One of the lesser officers looked familiar despite his crumpled-from-the-heat khaki uniform and his colonel's eagles. Yes, it was the same David Sarnoff, now on active duty with the Army Signal Corps.

"They Live Forever," the CBS program that pulled no punches recounting exploits of Americans who are dying that Americans may live, returned to the air because of public command. There is nothing fictionalized about this program. It uses the names of real people, places and events, and its foremost idea is to make citizens understand and value our way of life . . .

Xavier Cugat, who at one time was a top newspaper cartoonist, has returned to the profession. In his spare time you can find him in a CBS playhouse painting a backdrop for use during the "Camel Caravan" broadcasts. Upon it will be the caricatures of Connie Boswell, Lanny Ross and other members of the show. For samples of Cugat's art, see page five . . .

A deep cut-throat to Helen Menken. It was because of her energies that "Stage Door Canteen" was sold to radio. Miss Menken beat on the doors of almost every agent in town, who either opened them just wide enough to stick their heads out to say "no" or didn't stick their heads out at all. Now Helen has these same agents trying to batter down her door. They have talent to sell, and Helen is the booker of all talent for the show. Did anybody say there ain't no justice? . . .

Another audition program is being built around Al Jolson as the star. Jolson turned down many offers to take a summer series so that he could entertain the boys in camps . . .

Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer, is planning to record a series of "black-out serenades." They will be songs to entertain and while the time away when and if radio stations go off the air during blackouts. The records will have luminous labels . . .

The Coast Guard trainees at Manhattan Beach will be entertained by top bands every Sunday. WOR-Mutual, in cooperation with bandleaders and the Coast Guard, is now airing the programs for which musicians have volunteered. A different name-band will entertain the boys each week.

GOSSIP for "Luncheon Date with Ilka Chase" is passed to the program's hostess by Jimmie Fidler, Hollywood columnist. Ilka's smile hints that she thinks the item's worth an air mention

MISCHA AUER, star of the Sunday night show "Mischa the Magnificent," seems puzzled by the script which announcer Bob Le Mond holds up before the actor's popping eyes

RECORD KISSES are bestowed on Barbara Fuller by Seaman Bill McFall and Sergeant Paul Cox. Barbara rates high with these lads, for she collected and donated 500 records to the Chicago Servicemen's Center, The lovely young lady stars on the air in the WGN feature "Painted Dreams"

The line-up thus far includes Johnny Long, Glen Gray, Vaughn Monroe, Sammy Kaye and Charlie Spivak . . .

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, who have been again doing much in the broadcasting field, will be heard more frequently from now on. Their change of heart can be attributed primarily to the war—all moneys they receive from acting go to patriotic funds, and they see gold in these here microphones.

The first inkling of Bing Crosby's whereabouts while on his vacation was, just as he predicted, contained in a brief item on the sports page of a Santa Barbara paper recently. Next to horses, his avid interest being golf, Bing appeared with pal Jimmy McLarnin, former world's champion welterweight boxer, in a thirty-six hole golf match, proceeds of which went to the Army and Navy Relief Funds. All this in typical Crosby style, with no fuss, fanfare or publicity. Meanwhile, brother Bob, who has no little interest in golf himself is complaining no end. Between his band engagements and taking over Bing's spot, he has had less than no time for his favorite sport . . .

An all-out worker in all branches of the war effort, Mary Astor has taken a leave of absence from her radio show to serve with the Civil Air Patrol in the vicinity of the Gulf of Mexico. Besides being a busy wife and mother and loving it, Miss Astor has been active in aiding the civilian group for some time, now gets her first opportunity for active service. The actress' husband, Manuel del Campo, was also one of the first to join the service. Between doing war work, carrying on with her career and family life, Mary Astor is a mighty busy person these days . . .

Nelson Eddy, who in the public mind is associated only with soft music, charm, romance and gentility, became a "gunman" for the first time in his life on the occasion of his recent birthday. He was presented with an authentic Red Ryder air-rifle by his manager and couldn't wait to put it into use. Equipped with ammunition (b-b's to you) Eddy went agun'nin' for an unwelcome gopher which has been foraging in his gardens for the past couple of years. After waiting two hours for the rodent's appearance Eddy took aim and shot the gopher dead! So pleased was he with his accomplishment, we have a hunch he will be looking for more gophers—which is notice to his neighbors to duck when they see their gun-totin' baritone. His aim may not always be that good . . .

CHICAGO

By BILL ANDREWS

Maybe I'm a terrific Midwest partisan. Maybe my jaw ought to drop open when I hear of the high-flying antics of Hollywoodians and the overwrought conflicts of Broadway. Inon the face of Bess McCammon (Agatha Anthony of "Helen Trent") when she reports that her son, Bill, one of the first draftees, won an appointment for officer's training . . . And the joy of Hal Dickinson, trumpeter with Glenn Miller, when seamen-guests on "First Line" reported to him that his kid brother is safe after the sinking of his ship, the Lexington, in the Coral Sea. Hal even learned the boy's address from the visitors . . . And the embarrassment of Bob Eison, MBS baseball expert and World Series regular, when, for the first time in three years, he was knocked out of the box by a seven-run blasting of his pitching by the WGN softball team . . . And Betty Lou Gerson's happy chatter about the dairy farm she's readying for early occupancy . . . And the proud-papa beaming of Cleve Conway, whose Pamela arrived July 14. Pam needn't worry about new shoes, for daddy just won the announcing spots on Tommy Dorsey's show and the "Fitch Bandwagon" . . .

Radio folk are human, so there's a sad note occasionally . . . Such as the abrupt, emphatic, personality-grounded split-up between Glenn Miller and his vocalist, Ray Eberle . . . And the loneliness of "Lone Journey's" Betty Ruth Smith, whose boy friend, an aviator, just joined the Army . . . And the fact that Blue can't find a better spot for "Servicemen's (formerly Blue-jackets') Hop." Saturday morn is in-attention-time in the Navy, and few sailors can get leave to take part in the first-rate entertainment and studio dance the "Hop" provides . . .

News Roundup: Linda Keene, late of "Duffy's Tavern," is practically set to sub for vacationing Marion Mann, "Breakfast Club" songstress. Linda—a sweet from Dixie—has been filling in for Nancy Martin of "Club Matinee" . . . And Mary Ann Mercer spells Louise Massey on "Plantation Party" in mid-August, when Louise takes a two-week holiday . . . Tom Post ("Ma Perkins," "Woman in White," etc.) leads a gray-headed set of old-timers who are featured with Tommy Tucker's band at the Palmer House. The fifty-and-up boys do a snappy dance routine with chorines in a skit kidding the absence of drafted chorus boys. Ray Suber ("Ma Perkins," "Bartons") is in the line.

VIVIAN FRIDELL, star of "Backstage Wife," poses against a Star-Spangled Banner. The patriotic actress has flags on her fingernails stead, I find the easy, friendly, normal life of the radio folk in Chicago more impressive. In my simple way I'm tickled that I can beam more often than I sneer as I listen to the gossip of the studio lobbies . . .

I like the "sweet girl, grand guy" comments that greet the leak on the marriage plans of Nojma Jean Ross ("Lonely Woman" and "That Brewster Boy") and singer Wayne Van Dyne. Ring and license are bought, and actual hitching probably occurs before you see this . . . And the pride

JASCHA HEIFETZ SCHEDULED TO APPEAR ON "TELEPHONE HOUR" MONDAY, NBC

My Concert Poise, Lily Pons Reveals, Requires Kostelanetz' Steadying Hand; Eileen Farrell Guest of Columbia Concert Orchestra Sat., CBS

By ROBERT BAGAR

New York World-Telegram Music Critic and Associate Program Annotator for Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York

LILY PONS is allergic to music. She says so herself. At her roomy studio in East 57th Street, New York, Miss Pons seemed relaxed, not at all the diminutive dynamo of KOSTELANETZ concerts, featuring Lily Pons and Andre, attract record crowds. This talented team has a heavy schedule this season song one is accustomed to on the operatic stage. But this was a synthetic relaxation, for the diva was on the point of departing for her home at Silvermine, Connecticut, where, she confided, she can really relax.

Andre Kostelanetz also looked phlegmatic, but he always looks that way, although the word is that he can become mightily excited over an improperly sounded A during a radio rehearsal.

"There is no rash, as you can see," Miss Pons said, "but I am definitely allergic to music. Maybe I need a long rest. Too much work, too much work."

She repeated the phrase several times more, almost as if it might have been some ritualistic expression for self-hypnosis. Then she recoiled from it with alarm.

"But no, I cannot say that. I do not really mean that, because there is much singing I have to do for the servicemen. That is funny," she mused. "It is too much work to appear in my regular schedule of concerts and operas, but it is not too much work to do twice as much work for the soldiers and sailors . . . and the marines and the fliers," she added in afterthought.

Mr. Kostelanetz, an amused expression over his bland features, took all this in stride. His wife looked at him and said, "He is the boss."

"I am the boss; what do you mean?" he asked.

"Oh, in music you are the boss," was the emphatic answer.

Miss Pons turned to the writer and explained. "In the times when I sing he is the boss. And when I do not sing he is the boss in the house. So, you see, he is the boss."

These sentiments are as simple and, at the same time, as profound as Chinese philosophy. Miss Pons clarified the situation for us. She related that she has come to depend more and more on her husband in concert. At first it was a novel experience to be under his musical direction. Now, however, she is not only accustomed to it but she requires his steadying hand, she said. And, by some miraculous transference of cause and effect, the situation repeats itself in their domestic life. In other words, "He is the boss."

The studio with its white protective coverings on the furniture and paintings—they must have been paintings—looked like something in the throes of summer. Only three chairs had been uncovered for the occasion—the ones we three were sitting on.

Miss Pons, noting our interest, said dreamily, "Ah, but it is much different at Silvermine. There," she said, "we have no coverings on the furniture. There we live, you see—when we are not working."

But, as we remarked before, the Kostelanetzes work all the time, so figure it out yourself.

They have been doing the joint program thing rather heavily this season. Already they have put behind them several concerts, and there are others in store.

We asked Miss Pons if it were true that they had drawn 30,000 people for their joint appearance at Grant Park, Chicago, two seasons ago.

"But no," she speedily rejoined, "we appeared before 300,000 people, 300,000!"

We felt properly chastised. After all, such a figure is scarcely conceivable in writing. Why should it be less so in talk?

Originally destined for a pianistic career, Miss Pons turned to singing quite by accident. She was taken suddenly ill. The illness lasted for two years, during which time she was prohibited from indulging in any but the lightest possible activities. But her interest in music could not be downed and she began to work on songs, learning them, softly singing them. When she was cured she appeared one day before a group of convalescent French soldiers, victims of the last war. After she had played a number of piano pieces, one of the men asked her to sing for them. She obliged. The applause deafening, it was heady wine. But more than that it proved to her something she had suspected all along—that she had a voice.

"The rest of the story you must surely know," she said. "First an ingenue in a musical comedy, then trouping with small opera companies in France, and finally the Metropolitan—and from there to movies and radio."

Mr. Kostelanetz started out as a pianist—naturally, after due study. He soon became interested in conducting and when he was a mere twenty he received the post of assistant at the Grand Opera House, St. Petersburg. He came to America not long after that, and in 1924 he became affiliated with radio.

"You know the rest of that story, too," he said to us. "But I'll tell you a secret. My wife is the famous one. After all, doesn't she have a town named after her?"

UNHUMANLY perfect describes Jascha Heifetz' violin technique. His "Telephone Hour" appearance (Mon., NBC) promises a rare treat

Recommendations

There are such things as musts in radio listening and even with the summer decrease in serious music programs the situation still holds. The following are definitely worth while: "Telephone Hour," with Jascha Heifetz, on August 3 (NBC); the Columbia Concert Orchestra, presenting Eileen Farrell, on August 1 (CBS); the Goldman Band, August 3 (Blue), and Egon Petri's piano recital, August 2 (CBS).

Mr. Thornhill is not interested in serious music

AN INDIANA boy, Claude Thornhill, whom you have probably heard described as "The amazing Mr. Claude Thornhill," was born in Terre Haute. Thornhill here was a mining man and his mother a church organist and choir director. She still works at those occupations.

At the tender age of four—four is really tender—Claude began to toy with the piano. At the tender age of six—still tender—he gave his first recital, still toying. However, to his lasting fame, he was adjudged a boy prodigy, which suddenly changed matters.

He began to see something in this piano-playing stuff and by the time he was a tender twelve he formed a six-piece band with himself to lead it. First engagement for this outfit was at an oyster supper. Pretty soon the six-piece band became a twelve-piece band, and the name The Twelve-Piece Harmonious Outcasts was selected as being the most representative of their musical gifts.

The biography becomes more complicated as we learn that Mr. Thornhill ran away from home when he was fifteen, and from that moment, it can be truly said, he began to get on to life, as is. He got a job on an Ohio River show-boat. His musical agency on those trips was the calliope. Presently he left that sort of thing to take up with a band. While performing one day it occurred to him that he might matriculate at the University of Kentucky, which happened to be handy. At the university he did his pianistic stint with a local band and later he joined Austin Wiley's organization, which boasted another future great, Artie Shaw.

From there he went successively to Hal Kemp's band; to Jacques Renard's program; to Benny Goodman; to Ray Noble; to Andre Kostelanetz, and to Hollywood. In the film capital he did arrangements for Bing Crosby, Skinny Ennis and Judy Garland.

In 1940 he organized his own band, an old custom of his, and this is where we find him still, a successful young leader and first-rate musician. Despite all his travels and experiences, he found time to study at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

Mr. Thornhill has been often advised to devote himself to serious music, one of the advisers being the noted pianist, Josef Lhevinne. But "The amazing Mr. Claude Thornhill" just can't see it that way.

UNLIMITED COMMERCIAL EXPANSION OF FM POSSIBLE AFTER THE WAR

FM Stations Must Keep Faith With Set Purchasers by Maintaining Schedules; W55M Presents Exclusive "Music Under Stars" Series

By DICK DORRANCE

Vote of Confidence

WHEN unusual faith in the future of such a new radio service as frequency-modulation broadcasting is expressed by no less a personage than the chairman of the Federal Communications Commission—and in the course of a Congressional hearing—it's reason for FM enthusiasts to feel considerable pride.

Chairman James Lawrence Fly, whose presidential reappointment as head of the FCC has been recently confirmed by the Senate, was among witnesses late last month at a hearing in Washington on the Sanders bill. If you've followed this matter in the papers, you'll remember that the Sanders bill seeks to revise the present laws that pertain to broadcasting.

During the course of his testimony—which was before the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the House of Representatives—Chairman Fly painted a bright picture of radio as we may know it when this war is over.

"I have the greatest of hopes," he told the Congressmen, "that both television and FM will be important factors in staying off any possible depression in the industry." By "industry," of course, he refers to the business of broadcasting. He implied that a great many outstanding developments are being made today, but within the depths of zealously guarded war laboratories. These, when eventually adapted to civilian use, will have a profound effect on radio communications and broadcasting of the future.

"Both the FM and television fields are now set," he continued, "for unlimited commercial expansion immediately after the war. There is already one FM network, and the linking of television stations into one or more networks is clearly foreshadowed."

It's Only Rumor

From an enthusiastic FM listener in New Jersey has come this query: "I've heard that most of the FM stations will probably close down in a few months because of the war and the small number of listeners. Is this really so?"

Of course not. There has naturally been curtailment of daily operation by some FM outlets, but not because of any small audience. The main problem faced by FM stations is a lack of skilled manpower, since many engineers have entered the armed forces and careful distribution of those left is necessary until women and draft-deferred men can be trained to perform these technical jobs.

No FM broadcast station may operate less than six hours daily, and at least three of these hours must be after 6 p.m. local time. This is a rule of the Federal Communications Commission. Any station owner who is so short-sighted as to close down his FM transmitter thus violates regulations and may forfeit the license and channel assigned him by Washington.

A "Small" Audience?

As for the "small number of listeners," most FM broadcasters do not consider it so appallingly tiny. More than 80,000 sets are now within range, for example, of all FM stations in New York City, and—with due respect to smaller cities—this represents a greater audience than AM radio can reach in such places as Duluth, South Bend, Sacramento, Utica and many more.

Have no fear that FM commercial stations are likely to close down entirely. They may have to use more electrical transcriptions and shorten their broadcasting day, but not a single one has given any indication of going off the air for good.

It might be well to quote a recent statement by one of the nation's leading FM outlets, located in a city where the audience is unfortunately small:

"To us it is inconceivable not to keep faith with the purchaser of an FM receiver. After all, he bought it in good faith and we told him what we would do for his increased expenditure. We told him he would enjoy the inherent advantages of this new system of broadcasting. We told him our program structure and we told him how many hours a day we operate. We therefore became obligated with each new purchase. We accept that as a debt we care not and dare not back down on. We know the factor of goodwill is secured by your products, your service and your integrity. Break faith with the public on any score and you're out of business. FM stations should appreciate this before they ask for a license."

Music in Milwaukee

Milwaukee FM fans who tune to the Milwaukee Journal's 50,000-watt FM station, W55M, are being offered an exclusive series of FM programs titled "Music Under the Stars" each Tuesday evening, 9:15 to 10:15 CWT. Presented under the auspices of Milwaukee County, the broadcasts will run weekly until August 18, offering personal appearances of such concert favorites as Lily Pons, Lawrence Tibbett, John Charles Thomas, Richard Crooks and Jean Dickenson.

"Frequency Modulation" is now a monthly feature of MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE instead of weekly. Your letters regarding the wisdom of this change or offering suggestions for further improvement are always welcome.

Britain's Real War Effort

ACCORDING to Thomas North, who spoke the other night from London, we in America have not yet been told the real story of Britain at war. Said he: "Britain is not satisfied, but we have attempted much and achieved something. We sent all we had to France. After Dunkirk, we had less than one division to defend our country. Those were nightmare days and nights. We were dog tired. We worked incessantly to get ready for invasion. During the second half of 1940 we didn't keep all our men and ammunition home. We sent them to the Sudan, Eritrea and Libya when they were needed at home. We stood almost alone in those days. All of Europe was being armed against us . . . Those feverish days are over, but we still have a long way to go." He then explained that the British people have been at war for three long, exhausting years; that most of the luxuries of life and many of the necessities of life are denied them; that many items of food are impossible to obtain or procurable only in very limited quantities; for example, meat is allowed only about once a week, about four eggs a month. When he recently visited the United States he could hardly eat our meals after having become accustomed to the war-time diet of Great Britain. He said, "It took me several weeks in Britain to get a strap for my wrist-watch. Our shops are almost empty. This is because everything in this country is being devoted exclusively to the war effort. Eighty percent of our munitions are being sent abroad. We have sent over two thousand tanks to Russia. Every man we can spare and for whom transport can be found has been sent to fight abroad. We have lost millions of tons of shipping. We have had a very exhausting campaign in North Africa. We have been fighting all over the world. We have had serious reverses but we have also had our victories. We cleared the enemy out of the Sudan; we drove the Italians out of Eritrea and Abyssinia. We won Syria with the help of the Free French. It took six weeks to drive our small force out of Greece, thereby gaining very valuable time."

Concluded Mr. North, "Consider these things when you judge us. Think of us as a steadfast, determined people who are not going to give up. We have fought hard and have tried hard and have accomplished a little. We should know each other better, for we are comrades in this war, and in the years to come."

Heard This One?

The CBS Listening Post, at headquarters in New York, is a constant center of interest to visitors whose business takes them past the glass-enclosed room where foreign broadcasts are recorded. Lord Haw Haw, British-accented, lie-spouting Nazi propagandist, is a steady favorite because of his obvious exaggerations.

Death for Sabotage

According to James Ferguson of the BBC program "Listening Post," sabotage in France will now be punishable according to the same terrible code forced upon the Czechs in Bohemia, namely, death by shooting, not only for the guilty male but for all adults in the family, including brothers-in-law, stepfathers, first cousins; forced labor for all females in the family; incarceration in reform schools for all children in the family.

"Paul Revere" Visits Munich

In an endeavor to impress American listeners with the fact that art and the theater are still running full blast in Nazi Germany, Berlin commentator "Paul Revere" (alias Douglas Chandler of Baltimore) described his visit to the Art Exposition at Munich. "Here I found 154,000 objects of indescribably lovely art (did he count them)," he said. "I ate lunch in the Art Halls. My meal consisted of tomato soup, roast lamb, broiled speckled trout, vegetables and a huge bottle of red wine.

Later I went to the Hoperoy House, where I consumed a couple of mugs of their famous beer, which can still be had as always (he admitted, however, it was a bit thinner than formerly); Munich's nine theaters are sold out nightly, but I did manage to get a ticket to the National Opera, where I enjoyed the six-hour spectacle of "Faust." Chandler had better watch his step when it comes to getting too enthusiastic about his fancy meals. Jane Anderson, formerly heard over the Berlin station, waxed quite poetic one night about her iced champagne spiked with cognac, and crepes suzettes. Jane Anderson doesn't broadcast for Goebbels anymore. After all, the common listeners of Germany might not like to learn how the chosen few dine while they get along as best they can on their meager ersatz rations.

China Plans World's Largest Army

According to a station commentator over WJQ (10.01) of New York City, China is to have the largest army the world has ever known. Six million new men are to be added, bringing the army to an unprecedented total strength of twenty-six million men. The present army consists of about six million actives, fifteen million in reserve or in training and almost one million guerrillas. The new army will be chosen from men between the ages of eighteen and forty of all classes. It will no longer be possible to buy oneself out of military duty as formerly. China has almost unlimited reserves of manpower but never before has had the necessary equipment with which to equip such a vast army. Now with the help that is coming and that is to come from the United Nations, it will be possible to give the army proper air protection despite the shortage of tanks and heavy guns.

"Britain to America" Bows

"Britain to America," an all-British short-wave program written by such well-known British writers as Noel Coward and J. B. Priestley, originating in the BBC studios in London and starring illustrious names of the British entertainment world, made its bow over NBC last Sunday. It will be heard next Sunday and every week thereafter at 5:30 p.m. EWT. "Britain to America" is a typical British variety show, bringing to American listeners comedy and dramatic sketches, songs and orchestra numbers plus a message designed to help the people of America understand the people of the British Isles.

News About the Stations

Melbourne's transmission for morning reception in eastern North America, broadcast daily from 7:25 to 8:30 a.m. EWT, over VLQ2 (6.54) is not so well heard as formerly due to side-band splash from WGEQ, Schenectady, operating on the adjacent frequency of 9.53-megs. Due to this fact, the English news from Australia is being heard with better signal strength and intelligibility at 8:00 a.m. EWT, over VLW6 (9.68) of Perth, than at 7:30 a.m. over VLQ2 . . . VLG7 (15.16), Melbourne, broadcast an English news bulletin at 11:30 p.m. EWT . . . Leopoldville, Belgian Congo, is broadcasting an all-French transmission daily from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. EWT, on 11.72, 15.175 and 17.71 megas. The last-named frequency is by far the best heard of the three . . . SUV (10.055), Cairo, Egypt, can often be heard relaying program pick-ups to American networks near 9:00 to 9:30 p.m. EWT . . . FZI (11.97), Brazzaville, Middle Congo, main short-wave station of the Fighting French, can be heard afternoons at 3:45 p.m. EWT, with a short news bulletin in English, primarily intended for listeners in Great Britain . . . Roger Legge of Binghamton, New York, informs me that he recently received a letter from CR6RC (9.47), Radio Clube de Angola, Luanda, Angola, Portuguese Africa, which stated that this station operates with a power of 250 watts, daily from 7:30 to 8:45 a.m. and from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. EWT. This last-named transmission is often heard in the U. S.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Program Section begins with the listing of complete programs for Saturday on page 16, followed by complete programs for Sunday.

The new revised Monday-through-Friday daytime program section begins on page 28. This section is made up in a new style designed to give the reader greater service value and eliminates the necessity of looking in two different sections. All daytime programs are listed complete for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday between the hours of 7:00 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., inclusive. See page 22 for complete instructions on how to use this section.

Ross Voice Enlists

Tenor Lanny Ross, who is co-starring with Connee Boswell and Edward Ellis on the new CBS Caravan, is devoting all his spare time to singing for Army and Navy Relief, the USO and the Red Cross. After a tour of thirteen Army camps from New Orleans to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, Ross flew to Boston to help raise $45,000, then dashed to New Haven with Charles Kullman of the Metropolitan to draw $4,000 for the Red Cross at the New Haven Arena. Ross, Sophie Tucker and Bojangles Bill Robinson were the stars of the Buffalo Evening News "Carnival of Champions" benefit for Navy Relief.

MONDAY THROUGH FRIDAY PROGRAMS
Missus Goer's Shopping; WABC
Texas Jim Robertson; WFTL

HOW TO USE THIS SECTION

All daytime programs for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday between the hours of 7:00 a.m. and 3:45 p.m., inclusive, are listed in this section.

The daytime programs listed under the heading "Monday Through Friday Programs" are all programs broadcast Monday through Friday at the same time each day.

Half-way down the same column and under the same time-line you will note the word "exceptions." All programs listed under this heading are those which are not broadcast at the same time Monday through Friday but are different every day or broadcast in a series of two or more, such as Monday-Tuesday, Monday-Wednesday-Friday, etc. In other words, if you are looking for a news program or a dramatic serial broadcast at the same time each day it will be listed under the "Monday Through Friday" heading. All other programs will be found under "Exceptions."

Just Like Mother's Cooking!

Staff Sergeant Ezra Stone visited the Stage Door Canteen this week and was served a wonderful meal. Sergeant Stone was so pleased with it he commented, "This is as good as my mother's cooking," and asked to be taken to the chef so he could offer his compliments. Imagine his surprise when he was introduced to the woman who had prepared the meal. She was Kay Raht, volunteer canteen worker who is the scriptural mother of Sergeant Stone on the air Thursday nights. He hadn't seen her since the program started its summer vacation a few weeks ago.

Truth Will Out

The mammy voice in Walt Disney's little kitten cartoons in the movies is that of Lillian Randolph, Negro actress, heard as Ramona the maid in "The Remarkable Miss Tuttle" (Sunday, NBC).

ALICE REINHEART

GREEN eyes danced along countless piano scores when Alice Reinheart was a little girl. When college years rolled around, the eyes look on a curiosity gleam, and journalism replaced music as her major interest. But Alice when the stage-bug bit. She played in a San Francisco stock company, then took to the road as a trouper. She was on Broadway before she was twenty-one. The young brunette won quick recognition and success. She appeared in many Theater Guild productions, Radio dramatics soon called, and Alice found good parts waiting for her in the studios. Her major role today is the starring part of Chichi Conrad in the "Life Can Be Beautiful" (Monday through Friday, CBS) series. Alice is a short five feet two inches, has chestnut hair and olive complexion.

Announcer Ted Husing was on the spot. He was master of ceremonies for the "Cheers from the Camps" show at Fort Riley and the script read: "What is your name, soldier?" Listeners were startled to hear the answer: "Corporal Joseph Louis Barrow." Husing gulped and went on: "And what did you do before you joined the Army?" Corporal Barrow answered: "I was a boxer from Detroit. I am learning to be a cavalryman. I hope I will be a good one. This country did a lot for me and I would like to pay a little of it back." Joe Louis had scored another knockout, this time with dialers from Coast to Coast.

"Murdered" Woman on Cavalcade

Adelaide Klein, who gets murdered every night in the Broadway stage play, "Uncle Harry," is the latest addition to the roster of "Cavalcade of America" players.

Allen Turns a Trick

When Major Robert S. Allen put aside his typewriter and microphone to join the U. S. Army, his partner, Drew Pearson, and other Washington colleagues gave him a farewell party on his birthday.

Bob Allen, however, turned the tables on his partner by presenting at his own farewell party a present to his partner. The gift, a gold pencil, was presented with the notation, "Keep it sharp, Drew, and keep it fighting the battles of the home front—the battles we have fought for so many years together."

Music in His Life

George Barnes, the Blue Net's whirlwind guitarist, literally swims in music. When he isn't entertaining others musically, he lets others entertain him—via his large collection of recordings.

Industry Statistics

There are 30,600,000 radio families in the United States, operating more than 56,000,000 radio receivers, who depend upon 924 stations for entertainment, information and education.

A.E. Jones, Dept. 2, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago

Being the daughter of a prominent St. Louis lawyer and a member of the smart set held no attraction for Peggy Mayer. She ran away from home when she was eighteen because she wanted to be a radio actress. She wasn't a good actress, by her own admission, but she made her mark, for now at twenty-four she is script-writer for the "Story of Miss Johnson," outstanding NBC serial.

Vacation While Working

For the first time in several years of broadcasting Lum and Abner are able to take their vacation while working! With their schedule shuffled Mondays through Thursdays, they have three idle days in a row each week until work starts on their new motion picture in August.

ROAD of LIFE

In This Instalment Claudia Wilson's
Mysterious Disappearance Threatens
Dr. Jim Brent's Promising Career

PART 5 The tense story of the radio program "Road of Life," fictionized by Wiley Maloney, is broadcast Monday through Friday over NBC at 11 a.m. EWT, 10 CWT, 9 MWT, 3 p.m. PWT, under the sponsorship of Procter and Gamble for Dax. When Dr. Jim Brent, ace surgeon, is permitted to bring in Doc Thompson as his resident physician, City Hospital's chief of staff, Dr. Reginald Parsons, considers the matter a personal affront and resigns.

A few days later a mysterious case comes under Dr. Brent's supervision when the Hurleys bring their niece, Claudia Wilson, to City Hospital. The girl is suffering from a ruptured appendix but Dr. Brent's skill as a surgeon saves her life. For some strange reason the Hurleys don't seem to want their niece to get better. They intimate that she is not sane and try to persuade Dr. Brent to permit Claudia's governess to stay with her during convalescence. That Claudia, who is twenty years old, should have a governess arouses his curiosity, and he refuses. At first the girl exhibits a fear of people but gradually becomes more friendly, surprising Doc Thompson one morning when she confides that she does not want to go home. Then one day, while visiting Claudia, Miss Radcliff dismisses the nurses and forces the sick girl to stand on her feet. The strain is too great and she collapses. When Doc Thompson learns of this he is furious and orders Miss Radcliff to stop interfering with the case. But she is very insolent about the matter and threatens to report him to Dr. Brent for showing too much interest in Claudia. That same night Doc Thompson finds Claudia's room empty.

Claudia's mysterious disappearance creates much excitement at City Hospital. Contrary to the advice of Doc Thompson, Dr. Brent does not notify the police. Instead, to avoid unsavory publicity, he hires his friend, Linden Wade, to investigate the case privately. Wade questions the nurses and learns that the Hurleys were made Claudia's legal guardians on a charge that she was incompetent. Brent tries hard to keep the case a secret, but a nurse accidentally lets a hint slip to a newspaper reporter. Like a bombshell, the news of Claudia's disappearance breaks in the paper the next morning, concurrently with the announcement of Dr. Brent's appointment as City Hospital's chief of staff. "Strange that on the eve of Dr. Brent's appointment," the news story reads, "rumor should have it that one of his patients disappeared a week ago. Why weren't the police notified?" Now go on with the story.

—The Editors.

DR. JIM BRENT brushed the City Times from his breakfast-table with an angry gesture. The tiny worry-lines deepened on his face. He was upset.

The feeling of personal satisfaction Jim should have felt over the news of his appointment as City Hospital's chief of staff in place of Dr. Reginald Parsons turned to bitterness because of one small, suggestive paragraph in the news item the Times had printed.

"Strange," the Times story read, "that on the eve of Dr. Brent's appointment as chief of staff rumor should have it that one of his patients disappeared from City Hospital a week ago. Why weren't the police notified? Is there anything to this rumor?"

For a moment Jim sat toying with a spoon as his mind dwelt on the case of Claudia Wilson, the patient who had been spirited away from the great institution of which he now was the medical chief. Had Doc Thompson been right in suggesting that the police be notified? What was behind the disappearance? Where had the girl been taken? Was someone at the hospital responsible for the disappearance?

Jim nodded curtly to his housekeeper, took his hat and went outside. On the drive to the hospital, he continued to fret over the case and worry about his own responsibility to the hospital. As he stepped from his automobile, parked at the doctor's entrance of the massive building, he noticed a large group of men who appeared to be waiting his arrival. The reporters!

With note-books, pencils, paper, the group crowded about the newly appointed chief of staff.

"Is it the truth?"
"When did the patient disappear, Doc?"

"How did it happen?"

"Give us a story, Doc?"

"How about an interview?"

Questions. Questions.

Questions. Dr. Brent walked grimly to the door of the hospital with the reporters at his heels. He disregarded them, smiling frozenly and remaining as impassively cool as he could under the circumstances. He said nothing, but he knew the fat was in the fire. The story could not be suppressed much longer.

Once inside, he felt safer from the prying questions of the newspapermen. Linden Wade, the private investigator, was waiting for Jim in the first-floor office. He, too, had read the story in the Times, and the first question he asked Jim was how much the reporters had been told.

"I didn't tell them anything, Lin, but I don't see how we can sit on this story forever. What can we do?"

Lin was more optimistic than Jim. "I know you're on the spot, Jim, but I think we'll get a break. It's merely a matter of time. If we can hold off the police a few hours, I think we're going to get somewhere. I have an appointment this morning with Judge Randolph—he's the judge who declared Claudia incompetent two years ago. I believe he'll be able to give me a clue, or at least a motive for the girl's strange disappearance. Play 'em close, Jim, and keep a stiff upper lip. We'll come through this thing. You wait and see."

JIM could not share Linden Wade's optimism, but he did take the investigator's advice. He went about his duties at the hospital that day as though nothing unusual had happened. He tried to disregard the rumors he knew had spread rampant among members of the staff and he succeeded partially in restoring his own confidence by maintaining a calm, professional manner.

Lin Wade, meanwhile, visited Judge Randolph's chambers and his mission was successful. The judge revealed that Mr. and Mrs. George Hurley and Miss Sarah Radcliff had come to him two years before with Claudia Wilson. They had appeared sincerely concerned over the girl's alleged condition. They told the judge that they believed she was incapable of handling the estate her parents had left her and asked that they be appointed her legal guardians. George Hurley even offered to have the court make an investigation of the case, and two physicians appointed by Judge Randolph did make an examination and a report. Everything appeared to be aboveboard and legal. Even Dr. Brent and Doc had admitted the girl was mentally retarded, and Linden Wade knew it had been easy to deceive the doctors who were unfamiliar with the case.

"How much money did this estate involve?" he asked.

"It's my recollection," Judge Randolph said, "that it was around a million and a half dollars."

Wade rounded his lips in a low whistle. "A million and a half! That's a lot of money, Judge," he said. "You know as well as I do what people will do for even a fraction of that amount. I think I've got a motive now for the things that have happened to Claudia Wilson!"

"I can't understand it," the judge said. "These people appeared to be everything they said they were. To me they seemed to have only the girl's welfare in mind when they came to me. I'll admit that your outline of the case has changed the picture and I do hope that you'll find the girl."

Wade hurried to a public phone booth when he left Judge Randolph. He dialed a number and spoke to one of his own investigators.

"Frank," he said, "this is Wade (Continued on Page Facing 36)

"WE'LL SEE who's boss around here," Sarah Radcliff said menacingly, walking toward her. Claudia recognized the hypodermic needle and stood transfixed with horror and fear

How to Plan Your War Wedding

YOU'RE a "short-order" bride. Married in the blitzed space of a furlough, your dreams of middle-aiding it with traditional orange-blossom trimmings have been pfted. Well, take heart, m'dear! You're going to get that dream boy of yours and that's all that really matters. We're making no bones about it—we're of the "tis better to have lived and loved" school of song copy.

Frankly, there's much that is downright thrilling about war weddings. They're as exciting as an elopement, yet demand stimulating ingenuity, intelligence and logical planning. As a matter of fact, you can make the most of the opportunity and prove your husband-to-be a slick picker—merely by planning the ceremony and honeymoon so that there's nary a hitch to this business of "getting hitched."

You've two great problems—you're short of time and money! And you can solve both merely by making the ceremony a small, intimate affair. Nearest of kin and close friends are the only "musts" on your invitation list. Forget about hurt feelings. If acquaintances complain 'cuz they weren't asked to toss rice, they're the ones who are inconsiderate.

Plan on having your wedding at home—surrounded by the things you've grown up with and have come to love—if it's at all possible. Dad will get a tremendous lift out of decorating your wedding bower, and Mom will still be boasting of the wedding cake she baked when your Junior takes a wife.

And if you want to stretch your bridal budget, market for non-priority clothes—they're available at Bridget-budget prices. MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE's beauty department took lovely Nancy Coleman, Warner Brothers starlet now appearing in "Gay Sisters," on a trousseau spree, just to see what the well-dressed "ersatz" bride is wearing. We found the wedding ensemble she's modeling and paid only $29.50 for it—bouquet and all! And if you think we're off our mathematical beam, haul out the adding-machine and total:

|-----------------------|-------------|
| Organdy wedding dress |$19.75 |
| Lisle hose | 1.25 |
| Linen shoes | 5.00 |
| Cotton gloves | 1.00 |
| Bouquet | 2.50 |
| | $29.50 |

We chose a bouquet of artificial flowers when we discovered that "the real thing" was too high for our bridal budget. The florists we spoke to justified the high price of fresh flowers by explaining that the hot-houses are working overtime to produce fruits and vegetables for national consumption. The U. S. needs US nutritionally strong, and victory gardens will feature vitamins instead of violets for the duration. However, be sure you're using a heady perfume when you carry artificial posies. Bourjois' "Mals Oul" will leave a flirtatious aura in your wake.

The war-time scarcity of silks 'n' satins encouraged us to choose non-priority cotton, linen, lisle and organdy for the wedding outfit. It's in key with the cotton-textile industry's promotion. As a matter of fact, a national campaign is in progress this very minute to impress us gals with the economical "smartness" of choosing a cold-weather cotton wardrobe.

Several other bridal bargains caught our eye while we were shopping for your war trousseau. A matchmate "Keepsake" set, engagement and wedding ring, impressed us with its extremely excellent color, cut and clarity; and we especially enjoyed reading the "Keepsake" booklet for bride and groom. If you're in a dither 'bout the doe and don'ts of saying "I do," by all means send for it.

A Woodbury gift kit, on the market for $2.50, is a practical unit to pack on your brief honeymoon. Your beauty bromides are all there—lotion, cold-cream, soap, base cream and famous color-controlled powder. It will fit into an overnight bag conveniently. And if you need "quick get-away" luggage, the Dresner "Deb"—a fitted case with cosmetic, sewing, manicure and jewelry compartments—will prove a bridal boon.

unchanging beat throughout the entire number.

Anybody—and I mean ANYBODY—can do a rumba after one lesson! This in spite of what the dance instructors may claim. In Cuba, native land of the rumba, couples dance it with their bodies very close together. They never circle the floor, merely dance in the same spot, their movements very subtle and beautifully rhythmic. Here in North America, couples dance the rumba almost at arm's length. When people ask me why, I tell them it probably is because the majority of girls and women here have more beautifully formed bodies than our women have and, by dancing apart from their partners, are able to show off their figures to greater advantage!

Now that the rumba is definitely here, we are ready for the samba. I wanted to feature it prominently a year ago, but feared it would only add to the confusion of American dancers. The samba is the rhythm to which Carmen Miranda sings her exciting Brazilian songs—and her sister Aurora will sing with our band at the Waldorf next winter.

The samba (pronounced zãmbáh) is simply the American one-step. Already it is gaining in popularity because its simplicity appeals to everyone. As for the conga, its spirit of fun, frolic and good fellowship appeals to the American sense of sportsmanship.

About a year ago, certain columnists began a campaign against the rumba, claiming that it threatened to replace American rhythms. This is absurd, because Latin rhythms always have been and always will be strictly a novelty in this country, just as in the Latin countries the American "jazz hot" catches the popular fancy as a novelty. But to say that jazz or swing will ever replace the rumba, conga, samba or tango in their own countries, is as without sense as it is to suggest that the American swing fox-trot will ever die here in America!

Vice President of the United States Henry Wallace says, "The best way to learn Spanish is to sing Latin songs." And people of this nation are singing everything from "El Rancho Grande" to the very intricate "Babalu."

One thing which has helped to build the native dances of Latin America to their present popularity here is the halting of tourist travel to Europe—which swings the tide to lands south of the border. Once in Mexico, Central or South America, North Americans find themselves dancing the native steps as naturally as they pick up the native language.

The truth is that there aren't enough good Latin rhythm bands in the United States to supply the demand for the music. To counteract this shortage, I always have encouraged any Latin with ability to head a band and to start giving me some competition. That is why I encouraged Desi Arnaz to organize a band and helped him get started. It is difficult for a rhythm specialist such as I to maintain popularity, because there is too little opportunity for comparison with other bands in the same field.

Personally I should like to see excellent rumba bands in every city now featuring leading swing bands. If this were possible, I sincerely believe that rumba would ~~run~~ swing to a phistic finish!

Miss Florence Gising, Milwaukee, Wis.—She relaxes by reading, knitting and attending movies, but she works at being Sally Barnett in "Road of Life." NANNETTE SARGENT was born on June 14, 1914, stands four feet eleven, weighs 102 pounds, has blond hair and blue eyes. At the age of two Nannette played the role of the bride in a home-talent production of "Tom Thumb's Wedding." A year later she began taking dancing lessons and pursued a career in dancing until she suffered a spinal injury, which stopped her dancing for three years. Turning to dramatics, Nannette found herself before the footlights. Then in 1935 her sister persuaded her to audition for a role at a local radio station. Since then she has snagged nice roles in various shows. Nannette doesn't like cards, but she enjoys Dorothy Parker, Chopin, steak and spinach. Her best friend is her pet Pomeranian, "Mitzie."

WHEN an accident cut short her dancing career, Nannette Sargent (l.) turned to dramatics and radio. Earliest ambition of ambidextrous Arthur Godfrey (r.) was "to see and do everything." He has pretty well succeeded can help the war effort on the "home front." Before turning to radio for a career, Godfrey was a coal-miner, a Navy radio operator, and a clerk. He won his reputation at station WJSV in Washington for his ad-libbing and smooth talk. A lieutenant commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve, Godfrey likes to ride, fish, swim; is a flying enthusiast, owns his own plane. He was born in New York on August 31, 1903, weighs 165 pounds, has auburn hair and blue eyes.

Lilly Geringer, New York, N. Y.—While he was still in high school, announcer HUGH JAMES decided that he wanted a radio career. He started "at the bottom" as a page for NBC. Soon, graduating to a position as touring guide, he conducted the first group of sightseers through the studios at Radio City. In 1935 James was again promoted—this time as announcer with a Philadelphia station, and in less than a year was transferred to the regular NBC staff in Washington. In 1937 he went back to New York, and today he is a busy man announcing "The Thin Man," "The Voice of Firestone," "Famous Jury Trials," "Just Plain Bill," "The Parker Family" and the Lowell Thomas news program. Hugh James McIlrevey was born in Bronxville, New York, on October 13, 1915, has dark-brown hair, blue eyes, weighs 170 pounds, stands five feet ten inches. One of the outstanding jobs of his life was his announcing the 1937 inauguration of President Roosevelt.

WHAT'S COOKING!

By GEORGIA SCOTT

FOOD— Handle With Care!

WITH food prices at a war-time high and our standard of living on the swift downgrade, your responsibility as a homemaker is not an easy one to tote around. Care of foods—their marketing, storage and preparation—is, more than ever before, of personal and national significance. For by knowing the dos and don'ts of housekeeping, you will be doing your part to create a nutritionally strong America.

Well, foods—the right kind—cost money and labor. And, as Farmer's Bulletin No. 1734 phrases the opinion, they deserve the best care possible. This U. S. Department of Agriculture pamphlet insists that we learn to safeguard foods from bacteria spoilage—deterioration produced by changes of temperature, light, moisture degree and animal parasites.

To begin with, it is important that you learn to make the most of your kitchen aids—refrigerator and range. Bad management provedly wastes fuel and food both. And incidentally, the principles governing the economical and intelligent operation of household apparatus help preserve natural food values. There is a national advantage to boot! Money saved on correct care of food can be converted into bonds and stamps; fuel conserved by proper management can be redistributed for national consumption.

In caring for the "cold spot" in your house, remember to scrap grocer wrappings and add them to paper salvage piles. They use fuel unjustifiably and could be put to better advantage elsewhere. Keep your refrigerator doors closed tightly. A systematic cooking procedure will eliminate excessive trips to the ice-box; plan to remove and replace food in one fell swoop. It is important that you cool hot foods sufficiently before "refrigerating" them. And remember not to crowd your box. Food keeps better when air circulates freely. Your fuel bills will be lower, too, since each item utilizes a certain amount of current and is recorded on your bill.

Your table left-overs should be waste-free before arranging them on small-space platters. And dish covers, waxed paper or commercial wrappers, created specifically for the purpose, will "lock in" food odors. They help food retain their natural flavor and moisture, discouraging belligerent odor transfers. Choose ice-box containers that are convenient in size, washable, and light in weight. The latter, you'll find out, will help keep your fuel bill at a minimum.

When you're home at the range "turn on the heat"—but with moderation. If you're cooking with top-of-stove burners see to it that the flame is low and directly "neath your cooking-utensil. A jet "on high" wastes fuel and utensils! Bring food to a boil as quickly as possible, but turn it down immediately—warding off destruction of food value, texture and quantity. In general, you'll find it is best to cover foods or steam-cook them (use as little water as possible).

DON'T CROWD your ice-box. Bess Flynn (above), author of "Bachelor's Children" (NBC), manages to cut her fuel bills with this thrift habit

RIGHT: To help retain natural flavor and "lock in" odors, be sure to cool hot foods and wrap in waxed paper or oilskin before refrigerating

And by all means use the oven! But when you do, be sure you're giving the "hot spot" in your house capacity orders. Bake and broil at the same time.

Try recipes that take approximately the same time and temperature. You'll do well to stagger your oven pans—good circulation is as essential to your range as it is to your refrigerator. You'll do wrong, however, if you're a Peeping Tom. Just remember you're piling on the pennies every time you sneak a squint!

Food should be "handled with care"! To be specific:

Milk and dairy products keep best in the coldest spot of your refrigerator—out of light and in tightly covered containers.

Meat, poultry and fish should only be washed immediately before cooking. Keep them clean, cool and dry. And "seal in" fish odors with heavy-lidded covers.

Eggs must be washed just before using, too. They should be kept in a dry, clean place at a room temperature.

Fruits and vegetables are best kept when (thoroughly cleaned and closeted in well-ventilated containers at a temperature of forty to sixty degrees F. Wrap fruits individually after washing with running water.

Fats and oils should be kept in cool, clean, light-proof containers that are well covered.

Baked goods must be "cooled" when taken from the oven. Then store them in a well-scalded tin box and cover securely.

Left-over foods are eatable when chilled as quickly as possible and kept in a cold storeroom or refrigerator. Boil or heat thoroughly before serving. Cold food remains are both unsafe and distasteful.

Check every private hospital and sanitarium in the state. You've got a description of the girl—and her guardians . . . Yes . . . That's right. Okay. Get word back to me as soon as you can.

The investigator returned to City Hospital, where he found Doc Thompson and Jim discussing the case. Doc advised Jim to notify the police. He insisted there was a possibility that Jim might be accused for having a hand in the girl's disappearance, particularly after he heard Wade's report of the estate valued at $1,500,000.

The investigator discounted his first theory that anyone at the hospital had been responsible in any way for the girl's disappearance. Miss Alice Jamison, the student nurse who at first had been suspected of helping, was cleared by Wade's new theory.

"I've looked up Miss Radcliff's record," Wade said, "and I find that she actually had been a trained nurse. It would have been easy for her to step into a dressing-room here at the hospital and change to a nurse's uniform while George Hurley waited outside the window on the fire-escape to take the girl down to a waiting car. Miss Radcliff probably gave the girl a hypo, then helped her through the window to Hurley. After that she probably locked the window on the inside and walked boldly down the hospital corridor in her nurse's uniform. There was no one here, you know, who would take notice of a nurse in the hallways. There are so many private nurses here that a strange one could walk out of the building without being noticed."

Jim breathed a sigh of relief. The theory exonerated the hospital of blame and it sounded plausible. Wade then told the two doctors that he was having an investigation made of all the private hospitals and sanitariums in Illinois. After listening to this new activity on the part of the investigator, Doc suggested another startling possibility.

"What if she should be taken out of the state?" he asked. "Your investigation would be useless, Lin, and we'd be up against another stone wall."

"I don't believe that will happen, Doc," Wade replied. "I've studied the psychology of these people, and I think they'll remain in Illinois. If it were a case of blackmail, we'd have heard from them by now. You know my theory: I believe they were actuated by other motives, and the fact that the hospital has admitted nothing officially will have given them an assurance of safety. They probably figure the hospital will want to hush up the case almost as much as they want it hushed up. Don't forget that Claudia has property in Chicago and they'll want to get their hands on it. No, Doc, I think they'll stay in the state and I believe that we'll find them."

But all that day Jim continued to worry over the case and his position in it. That night, when the three men gathered again in the first-floor office, Jim admitted that Doc had been right in the first place about notifying the police.

"The way it looks right now," he said, "both City Hospital and I are going to have to face exactly what we would have had to face a week ago, only it will be worse because we haven't brought the police into our confidence."

It was at that moment that a call came for Lin Wade. The investigator picked up the receiver, then looked up at Jim and Doc. "It's Frank," he said, grinning. He continued to listen carefully to his operative's report and the lines of worry seemed to leave his face. Finally he hung up, grabbed his hat.

"We've located the patient!" he said over his shoulder as he hurried from the room without giving Jim and Doc any of the particulars.

Now, on the morning that the City Times published the news of Dr. Brent's appointment as chief of staff at City Hospital, three other persons read the news with acute interest. They were not as impressed with Dr. Brent's promotion as they were with dreaming. I haven't been packing, just picking up a few things in the room. Darling, you've been talking strangely. What's come over my very sweet little girl?"

"Don't call me a little girl," Claudia said indignantly. "I'm not a little girl. I'm a woman. For years you've been telling me that I'm a little girl, I'm not—do you understand? I'm not! And I haven't lost track of the time like you've tried to make me believe, either. I know it's a week that I've been here. You tried to make me believe I'd been here for weeks, but I know it isn't so. I've been able to put things together when I've been awake sums in the state, but they were determined, in any case, that Claudia Wilson would be removed from Crestview that night.

But when evening came and the shadows darkened the lawns on the sanitarium's private grounds, Sarah Radcliff faced a stubborn charge. Claudia refused to go to bed. Miss Radcliff tried to give her a sedative. Claudia refused.

"I'm not going to bed tonight, I tell you!"

"Claudia!" "And I won't take another sedative." There was fear and determination in the girl's voice. Miss Radcliff's mouth became more grim than usual.

"Keep quiet, you little fool," she said, reaching into her purse and fishing out a small, glittering object.

"What have you got there?" the frightened girl asked.

"We'll see who's boss around here," Miss Radcliff said menacingly and walked toward the girl. Claudia recognized the hypodermic needle the older woman had in her hand and retreated to the far side of the room. She knew Miss Radcliff meant it when she said, "We'll see if you won't go to bed tonight!"

"Sarah," the girl cried, "don't come near me! You're not going to give me a hypo—you're not!"

At that moment there came a knock at the door. Claudia stood transfixed with horror and fear. Miss Radcliff paused, listening for a moment before she cautiously asked:

"Who's there?"

"Open the door, please." It was a man's voice. Neither Claudia nor Miss Radcliff recognized it.

"Who is it?" the older woman again asked.

"I'm asking you to open this door," said the authoritative voice.

Within a fraction of a second, Sarah came to a decision. She looked at the startled Claudia, who still stood at the far side of the room.

"See here, Claudia," Sarah said quietly. "I don't know who that is, but I'm going to let him come in. I don't want you to do any talking—not a word out of you, do you understand?"

"I—" But Claudia was interrupted before she could say anything more.

"Not a word out of you, I said. I'll handle this situation. If you do any talking, you're going to be sorry—remember that—you're going to be sorry."

"Open this door," came the command from outside. The man was becoming more insistent.

"Sarah—"

Sarah whirled on the girl. "You understand that you're not to do any talking?"

"Yes—yes, I heard you."

"For the last time," said the man outside, "open this door!"

"Just a minute," Sarah replied, walking toward the door and looking suspiciously over her shoulder at Claudia.

In Miss Radcliff's eyes Claudia saw confusion, hatred and something akin to fear. Had something gone wrong with the older woman's plans? Was the man outside a friend? Would he help her escape from her aunt and uncle? Would she dare tell him the truth when he came into the room? More important, would he believe her?

the few lines concerning a rumor that a patient had disappeared from the hospital. The three persons were George and Jane Hurley and Miss Sarah Radcliff.

"It means we've got to get the girl out of the state," George Hurley said, and Sarah agreed with him. Mrs. Hurley seemed strangely silent as the two others discussed what must be done to meet the new situation.

"I think," Sarah said, "that we'll drive out of Illinois, then register at a hotel. Claudia's well enough now to be at a hotel. Of course, we'll have to do a little name-changing because our own names will be in the papers before long. If we're lucky—well, the disappearance of a patient from City Hospital will die down, but I don't believe in taking a chance on luck."

"Neither do I," Hurley said. "I think we're wise to get out as soon as possible. Can we make it tonight?"

"We'll have to make it tonight," Sarah said. "Claudia's become a real problem, and it's rather difficult to cope with her at this stage of the game. Now, without Claudia . . ."

GEORGE and Sarah exchanged meaningful glances. "I've been thinking the same thing, Sarah," George Hurley said in a low voice.

But Jane caught the meaning written in the others' baleful eyes. "No—not!" she cried. "I've gone as far as I can . . . I won't stand for that!"

Sarah pursed her thin lips and looked contemptuously at Jane Hurley, who sat limply in a chair, nervously knotting a handkerchief. "Don't upset yourself, Jane," said Sarah. "Nothing's going to happen to Claudia."

That morning, while Claudia Wilson lay in her room at Crestview Sanitarium, Sarah Radcliff tiptoed about, picking up the patient's belongings, which she packed in a small traveling-bag. She believed that Claudia was sleeping and was astonished when the girl opened her eyes and asked where they were going.

"What do you mean, Claudia?" Sarah asked. "You must have been

—when you haven't given me something to make me sleep—"

"Claudia! Don't get so excited. Remember you are different—"

"I am not," Claudia cried. "I'm just like other girls—you know it and Aunt Jane and Uncle George know it. But why have you been doing this to me? Doc Thompson told me—he told me I was like other girls."

"But you're not," Sarah insisted.

"I am—I am—I am!"

"You're not, Claudia," Sarah said in quiet, suggestive tones. "The accident—remember your injury. You've been very strange since then. People would have noticed. We've kept you away from other people because you're just a little girl—just our dear, sweet little girl."

"Why are you doing this to me?" Claudia pleaded. "Where are we going? I saw you packing, Sarah. Look at me. What are you going to do with me?"

"Nothing, Claudia, nothing. I didn't want to tell you until we were ready to leave, but—"

"I'm not going anywhere with you again," the girl said with conviction. "You're not going to make me."

Sarah watched the girl with cold calculation but remained silent. Later in the morning, while Linden Wade, Jim and Doc discussed the case of the missing girl, George Hurley and Sarah Radcliff came back to the private sanitarium and entered the patient's room.

Claudia was trying to climb out the window! She wanted to escape!

Sarah called nurses and attendants and the girl was put back to bed. The sanitarium—an honest institution—had been told the girl was suffering a mental disorder and the attendants were not surprised at Claudia's effort to escape. She was a prisoner! George Hurley, Claudia's uncle, was doubly convinced that Claudia was becoming a difficult problem.

The day passed quietly enough. The Hurleys and Miss Radcliff had no way of knowing that Linden Wade's investigators were making a quiet check on all private hospitals and sanitar-
