THEY PRAY FOR PEACE. Lum and Abner's two children, Chet Lauck, Jr., and Gretchen Goff are asking for peace this Christmas rather than toys. Aside from war stamps for Uncle Sam, there will be few presents in the radio comics' homes this year, but their Santa Claus rigs keep Yuletide spirit

Christmas, 1942

LAST year the tragedy of Pearl Harbor brought World War II to the western doorstep of America. Many hearts were sad as Christmas dawned. But the spirit of her people rose in the lights that blazed from millions of candles throughout the nation on Christmas Eve.

Christmas of 1942 will find the homes of some Americans darkened by the war god's toll. In others the candles will not burn because of blackout orders. But the lighted candles in the windows were only the symbol of the light in the hearts of Americans—the light of faith, hope and love which no war can ever dim. For the real light of Christmas shines from within our own souls and says that we believe in what the day truly means. It shines brightest in the faces of little children; but it glows deepest in the eyes of fathers and mothers who watch over them. We see it, too, in the faces of men in our armed forces, who stand ready to make the supreme sacrifice that Christmas tomorrow will again find lighted candles in the windows of a world at PEACE. —The Editors.

HEDY LAMARR enlists the services of two willing helpers from Army Air Forces and Navy to hold her number while being photographed as an aid at the Hollywood Canteen

ALL branches of service helped Hedy with her identification-card chores. Lucky Marine above got the job of holding her hand for finger-prints!

SOON as all details were completed and okayed, Hedy went to work at the Canteen snack bar, handing out her autographs along with sandwiches to men in uniform Want to Join the Hollywood Canteen Girls?

IN SO far as the FBI (Federal Bureau of Investigation) is concerned, movie stars rank with Joe and Mary Doakes when it comes to identification cards for all persons doing war work. If stars decide to spend an evening at the Hollywood Canteen dancing with the men in service, or helping with the various chores around the place, they can't just pick up and go. No, sir! After a thorough investigation, they are finger-printed, photographed with a number, and, if proved okay, they are then issued the cards that let them pass through canteen portals.

Mother to Her Son Born Last Christmas

Radio listeners who tune in on the Christmas sequence of "Abie's Irish Rose" over NBC will hear the voice of a real-life mother when twins are born to Rosemary Levy. For Mercedes McCambridge, who plays the role of Rosemary, is the mother of a little son, born Christmas Day of 1941. Like all women to whom life's most precious gift came on the birthday of the Christ Child, Mercedes feels that she is especially blessed. Because the following letter to her little son reflects the true spirit of Christmas, we give it to our readers just as she wrote it.

—The Editors.

Christmas, 1942.

DEAR Little Son:

You are one year old today, little son, and so in a way this is your first Christmas. We are going to have a tree with shiny ornaments on it, and we are going to open presents, and listen to the Christmas music, and we are going to have a wonderful time—but, of course, you will know about all that because you will be with us, so I don't need to write to you about it.

I want to tell you about another Christmas which I don't think you remember very well now. It was really your first Christmas. It was a long time ago, a whole year. I don't suppose you can think back now to the time when you couldn't stand up, and didn't have four teeth, and couldn't crawl, (Continued on Page 33)

THIS Christmas many movie stars, along with thousands of other Americans from all walks of life—from obscure hamlets and teeming cities—will be away from familiar scenes of home that surrounded them in other years. They will be working, planning and fighting for the common cause of freedom, which must mean ultimate victory for the United Nations. They will be sharing the same experience side by side, shoulder to shoulder.

There will be a Santa Claus Lane in Hollywood this year as there has been in the past, but it won't blaze with the brilliance of other holiday seasons. Nor will there be the big parade of stars that brought thousands of visitors to Hollywood Boulevard. For this Christmas many of those stars will be with the armed forces of the nation, and those who remain in the film capital will be too busy with war work in canteens and USO centers throughout the nation to appear in the pageant. Yet, more than in years past, the true spirit of Christmas will prevail in Hollywood. For back of it will be a quiet determination, fed by hope and faith, to preserve the way of life that stands for America and freedom.

The lights have gone out in the Old World, but just as we see the stars most clearly only when it is darkest, so must the candles of freedom that still burn in America shine forth more brightly in a message of hope and deliverance to oppressed peoples in other lands. Let us think of that as Christmas dawns this year. And as our hearts turn toward our loved ones who are with the armed forces, let us remember that they left their homes to do their share in bringing lasting peace on earth and good-will toward all men; that there still remains for all people the promise of the Carpenter of Nazareth with its message of PEACE!

CHRISTMAS this year will find Private Jeffrey Lynn in the U. S. Signal Corps, stationed at Astoria, L. I., N. Y.

Bond Sales Boom as Hollywoodians Write Their Signatures on New P-38 Warplane

TRUCKS rolled through the night from the Lockheed plant to CBS studios in Hollywood recently. Police guarded the secret shipment closely. In the studio court mechanics took over the shipment and went to work. Under the skilled hands of mechanics the load was assembled into a sleek, deadly P-38 plane.

This, the first P-38 released for public exhibition, really "packed 'em in." The court filled with interested spectators. But the Lockheed plant didn't release the plane to satisfy public curiosity. The point of the whole move was to promote war-bond sales.

A booth was set up to sell the bonds and stamps that make such planes possible. Each purchaser of one dollar or more worth of the best investment in the world was given the privilege of writing his name on the plane as a salute "right in der Fuehrer's face."

Such sales gals as Ann Miller and Joan Leslie had no trouble finding customers. The appeal of putting his name alongside a machine-gun for a Jap or Nazi pilot to see during his last moments of life led John Q. Public to buy $25,000 worth of securities for freedom.

RADIO'S SCROOGE: LIONEL BARRYMORE

A Great Actor Presents His Annual Performance as Scrooge in the NBC Production of Dickens' Ageless "A Christmas Carol" on Christmas Eve

NINETY-NINE years ago a man wrote a preface to a book. His pen traced the words, "I have endeavoured in this Ghostly little book to raise the Ghost of an Idea, which shall not put my readers out of humour with themselves, with each other, with the season, or with me. May it haunt their houses pleasantly, and no one wish to lay it."

The book was A Christmas Carol, the writer was Charles Dickens. His wish has been fulfilled. No one seeks to lay the Ghost of an Idea that haunts us pleasantly—the Idea bound up in the story of Scrooge and Tiny Tim.

The story lives on through countless editions of books. It is a mother-to-son tradition in the English-speaking world, a story of the past that remains a story of the present.

To those of us who love the story, Lionel Barrymore has come to be a living part of A Christmas Carol. For many years his portrayal of Scrooge has been a bright part of radio's celebration of Christmas.

Barrymore brings to this familiar tale the skill and tradition of a lifetime of stage, movie and radio acting of the highest caliber.

Barrymore loves the story he helps unfold. He has called Dickens "ageless." Here's what he says about Scrooge:

"Well, more of a caricature than a straight portrait. But essentially true for all that. A good caricature must be recognizably true, you know—and Scrooge is just an exaggeration of someone we've all met. A very lonely, very unhappy old man trying to get some interest and color out of life by pretending to be a 'tough guy.'"

A Christmas Carol will be presented on the Rudy Vallee show on NBC, December 24, complete to Tiny Tim's final "God bless Us, Every One."

"WHITE MEAT OR DARK, or some of both?" asks Cesar Romero (above) as he carves turkey for soldiers at the Hollywood Canteen on Thanksgiving Day. Below: Off on Coast Guard chores, Vic Mature was escorted to the train by Rita Hayworth, who, rumor has it, is his real love

New role for Dietrich. A young soldier in the Army Air Forces rushed up to Marlene the other day when she was busy at the snack bar in the Hollywood Canteen and said, "Miss Dietrich, will you do me a favor, please?" "Of course," she smiled, thinking that he wanted an autograph or a dance. But it wasn't that simple. Stationed in Australia, the lad had seen starlet Juanita Stark in a picture and had begun a lively correspondence with her. He had been assured that he would find her at the canteen, but he had looked in vain, and finally appealed to La Dietrich. So the most glamorous star in Hollywood did a pinch-hitting role for Cupid. She found Juanita's telephone number and made arrangements for the soldier boy to meet his dream girl . . .

Noblesse oblige. The most recent member of Hollywood's younger set to enlist as a private in America's armed forces is Freddie Bartholomew. Born in England, Freddie came to the States when he was ten and became a famous child player.

(Remember him in "Captains Courageous" with Spencer Tracy?) Now he's a handsome youth of eighteen and just beginning to establish himself in more mature roles. Queried as to why he was enlisting, Freddie replied simply, "America gave me my opportunity. I am glad for a chance to serve her". . .

Hollywood handyman. That's Franchot Tone, who putters around with the best of them. Franchot has a complete workshop in the basement of his new Beverly Hills home, and has promised Mrs. T. (Jean Wallace) that he will build her a whole set of patio furniture. But there's method in his present madness, which is really to familiarize himself with tools for his new role in a Paramount picture . . .

Fun—if! Republic Studios has bought a novel called "Gone With the Draft," a hilarious tale of a rookie's experiences. They plan to get ten of Hollywood's leading comedians for the picture to be made from the book, but unless they hurry it looks as though most of the talent they hope to sign will be gone with the draft—and literally . . .

NEW YORK

By E. KAY

Christmas in radio this year will be devoted to entertainment for our men in uniform on all fighting fronts.

The Special Services Division of the Army in cooperation with the OWI and the Bureau of Public Relations of the War Department will air a big Christmas radio show over all networks, in which leading stars of screen, radio and stage will participate. This program will be heard by the men on all war fronts and also those on the home front. One of the difficulties the Special Services Division has run up against is the problem of getting the program to the forces in different time zones. However, there is one thing we can be sure of—they will get their Christmas radio cheer from home ON TIME. In all probability, President Roosevelt will be heard!

Coca-Cola will also do its share in bringing fighting men and the homes from which they came closer together in a series of broadcasts from camps and stations all over the nation, starting at noon (EWT) Christmas Day and running until midnight. Forty top bands of the country will play from Army camps and Navy, Marine and Coast Guard stations in every part of the country. Each band will be on the air for fifteen minutes, Coast to Coast over the Blue Network. At the close of each fifteen-minute period the band will give a three-hour show for the fighting men of the camp or station from which the broadcast originates.

The program will bring the best in popular music and also music appropriate to the Christmas season.

CBS will have its scheduled pick-up of the two-hour Elgin show from Hollywood which will be ethered to our lads here, there and everywhere . . .

Garry Moore's morning program on NBC is one of the most informal we have ever attended. "Everything Goes" is the title, and you can take our word for it, anything and everything goes. We managed to get ourselves to the studio ten minutes before the show went on the air. Though the program is strictly on the zany side, we listened to one of the fiddle-players practising Paganini. After the broadcast (and we hadn't had our one cup of coffee allotment for the day) we found ourselves in a gay mood as we left the studio. Here's a program that will help solve the problem for those who need their coffee to start the day right . . .

Come December 30 Mr. and Mrs. North will replace the "Thin Man" . . . Frank Parker has enlisted in the Merchant Marine . . . Katherine Emmett has been added to "Front Page Farrell."

HOLLYWOOD

By AVERY THOMPSON

Two more of our top bandleaders have moved off the air and into the war. Phil Harris has gone to the Merchant Marine, and Meredith Willson has won the two silver bars of an Army captain . . .

Powder-rooms are something of which desert training-camps of the U. S. Army do not boast. Pretty Julie Conway, singer with Kay Kyser's band, was a bit in a dilemma after arriving with the rest of the boys and Kay for a recent concert. Mussed up after a dusty jeep ride, Julie took the bull by the horns, asked the commanding officer what a gal does. He said, "That's all taken care of, follow me." He then took her over to a tent, took a freshly lettered placard out of his coat and hung it up. It read simply, "Ladies," and was made by the commanding officer himself. These Army men think of everything . . .

Mayor La Trivia really got a swell send-off by the Fibber McGee gang before going into the Coast Guard. And Fibber's crabbing about the "A" card made a lot of us feel awfully silly for doing the same thing . . .

We hear that the "Kraft Music Hall" show will be cut down to a half-hour program shortly after the first of the year. What will be eliminated in Bing's variety program we don't know, but there may be some connection between the cut and the fact that comedian Victor Borge has been signed as a steady on the Nelson Eddy show . . .

First guest-star casualty on the Rudy Vallee show was Joe E. Brown, who was forced by an AFRA ruling to cancel a December booking with Rudy because of having reached the Government salary ceiling. Although Joe E. wanted to guest for free, he was not allowed to do so. Hence you may look for the wide-mouth grin on January 7 on the Vallee guest spot . . .

Newest juvenile that is making the industry sit up and take notice is little Shirley Dinsdale, fifteen-year-old ventriloquist, who made her debut on the Eddie Cantor program a few weeks ago. Shirley, who with her dummy Judy Splinters is being made all kinds of offers, can remember the first $15 she earned—not too long ago, we might add—when she and Judy put on a show at the dedication of the NBC studios in San Francisco. Even then they drew such a crowd that they had to have a police escort to get out. Look for a story on Shirley in MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE before too long.

We always thought Des Moines, Iowa, was a grand town. But we've a specially warm spot in our hearts for its citizens now, thanks to their splendid reception of the Quiz Kids the other day. TOSCANINI DIRECTS BRAHMS CYCLE SUN. ... KIDDIES CONCERT BY GANZ

Dimitri Mitropoulos Directs New York Philharmonic Sunday, CBS;
Bernard Herrmann Conducts Berlioz' "Infancy of Christ" Christmas Day

By ROBERT BAGAR

New York World-Telegram Music Critic and Associate Program Annotator for Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York

ARTURO TOSCANINI has not too infrequently, during his long career, devoted concerts to the music of one composer. In fact, he has even gone in for cycles, that is, a series of programs based on the works of one man. With Beethoven he has done that most often. Brahms, too, has had his Toscanini attention in such events.

With the Maestro's return to the NBC Symphony podium, the cycle idea returns and Brahms is the subject. For the December 20 concert of the NBC Symphony, Mr. Toscanini has devised a program consisting of the Variations on a Theme of Haydn, and the Third Symphony. Both of these works, I need not remind you, are masterpieces.

The Variations Brahms wrote in two forms—for symphony orchestra and for two pianos. There has been much controversy over which came first. In any case, Brahms came across the theme he employs in 1870, when one Karl Ferdinand Pohl showed him some Haydn manuscripts. The extract came from a piece for two oboes, two horns, three bassoons and a strangely named instrument, the serpent. Title of the work is "Divertimento with the St. Antoni Choral."

Even now it is not known whether or not Haydn wrote the "St. Antoni Choral." Some have advanced the idea that it is of different origin. Brahms, however, confidently saw it as Haydn's own.

A great deal has been written—and a great deal more will be written—about the Brahms development of the allegedly Haydn music. Certainly few works in the orchestral repertory—or the piano repertory—possess the magnificent structure and wonderful scope of these Variations. In this music Brahms the master, the amazing intellect, the singer of lofty melody appears. The pattern of the intricate composition requires a conductor of great penetration, splendid control over musicians to be clearly stated. The piece is a challenge to conductors. Most of them accept it, play the notes and that is about all. A Toscanini interpretation of his music is like nothing else in the world. It is clarity personified. The composer's ideas are conveyed to the listeners in a wizardly manner.

By all means tune in to this program, for you shall hear Brahms as he is at his best. And that includes the Third Symphony, of course.

(Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony play Brahms' compositions on December 20, at 8:00 p.m. EWT, over NBC.)

A Stormy Petrel Returns

Ernst Krenek, one of the much-discussed musical figures of a decade or so ago whose music has not been heard much since, reappears by way of the Philharmonic-Symphony broadcast program. Dimitri Mitropoulos, functioning as guest conductor of the orchestra, has listed for performance the variations on a South Carolina folk-song, "I Wonder as I Wander."

Ernst Krenek, Vienna-born, though of Czechoslovak origin, studied music in the Austrian capital until his twentieth year. He worked with Frank Schreker in Vienna and later in Berlin, and in 1923 he composed his first opera, "Zwingburg," which was premiered at the Berlin State Opera in 1924. For a period of ten years he was conductor at the state opera houses of Wiesbaden and Kassel, during which time he wrote ten more operas, among them being "Jonny Spielt Auf," which is based on American jazz idioms. It has been produced in many of the world's theaters, including the Metropolitan, where it was given in 1929.

Still other operas came from his pen, one of them "Karl V," a work of psychological implications. In this the composer took up anew his interest in atonality, which had been his predilection during his student days. He wrote, as in others of his operas, his own text.

In writing of the event for "Musical America," H. H. Stuckenschmidt declared that "Karl V" had been banned in Vienna because the composer was of "bolshhevistic" tendencies. At any rate, that reviewer found sections of worth in the opera and he even welcomed the composer back to "the sphere of pure and intellectually refined art."

Not having seen a score of the variations on "I Wonder as I Wander," I do not know whether Krenek has gone atonal or twelve-tonal again on us. Whatever he has done, however, promises to be interesting.

(Dimitri Mitropoulos conducts Krenek's variations on "I Wonder as I Wander" on Sunday afternoon, December 20, over CBS.)

Music for Christmas

I notice that Bernard Herrmann, inquisitive young conductor of the Columbia Concert Orchestra, has been making further researches. This time he comes up with an appropriate Christmas gesture, for he has scheduled the Berlioz "Infancy of Christ."

This work is what is known as a sacred trilogy or oratorio. Its three sections are entitled "The Song of Herod," "The Flight into Egypt" and "The Arrival at Sais." Hector Berlioz completed it in 1854. Brahms, for one, was enchanted with the "Infancy of Christ," and particularly with the second section. Berlioz' own succinct description of it is revelatory. He said, "The entire work is summed up in this vocal expression [he meant the concluding choral epilog]. It seems to me to contain a feeling of infinite, of divine love."

Calling for a narrator (tenor), other solo voices and chorus, "The Infancy of Christ" is not, as one might expect, a creation typical of Berlioz in that he is anything but overwhelming in the size and sonority of his orchestration. The characters in the Trilogy are Herod, Joseph and Mary. Most of the writing for the voices shows Berlioz' clear understanding of the art, the Chorus of Shepherds in the second section being a particularly effective one. There are poignant lines for a duet between Joseph and Mary in the last section. All in all, as has been observed by J. H. Elliott, this work, "at its finest moments is exquisitely beautiful."

(Bernard Herrmann conducts the Berlioz "Infancy of Christ" over CBS on Christmas Day at 3:15 p.m. EWT.)

For the Children

The youngsters should find a good deal of enjoyment in the concert promised them by the Philharmonic-Symphony under Rudolph Ganz' direction on December 19. Mr. Ganz' program is certainly calculated to catch the elusive attention of children, and it wouldn't hurt some of the grown-ups to listen in, too.

The list holds the Weber "Euryanthe" overture; the first movement from Haydn's G Major Symphony, No. 13; the aria, "C'est bien l'Air," from Meyerbeer's "The North Star"; two Christmas songs, the polonaise from the Rimsky-Korsakoff "Christmas Night" and Tuthill's "Bethlehem Pastorale."

(The Children's Concert of the Philharmonic-Symphony, Rudolph Ganz, conductor, will take place over CBS on Saturday, December 19, at 11:05 a.m. EWT.)

POPULAR MUSIC

Billie Rogers: Woody Herman's star trumpeter

ALMOST every little girl who sets her mind on a musician's career, begins by studying piano or violin. She usually winds up as a pianist or violinist. But take Billie Rogers, for instance, who started as a piano student. She is now a hot trumpet player, a featured trumpet player, if you don't mind, with Woody Herman's orchestra.

Odd as that may seem—a girl giving out with the hot licks in the company of top-notch jazzists—it is the gospel truth. This pretty, slender brunette has made the grade; the grade of her own choosing, what's more.

She is a native of North Plains, Oregon, a place which isn't exactly a metropolis. When she was one year of age the family, showing a singular lack of civic pride, moved to Rainier, Washington. Because her parents and older brother had been trained musically, it was thought imperative to provide her with the lessons. At the age of six, accordingly, she began with the piano. Young as she was, however, she manifested strange rebellions. She could take only two years of the piano stuff, then she gave it up. There was a cornet lying loose around the house. It was an instrument that her brother had done some fooling with. She became interested.

In the space of a few weeks she was able to do things with the instrument. She could play scales, "hated scales," as she puts it; she could play little tunes, and, most important, she had devised a fingering-system of her own.

One day the cornet fell to the floor. The valves and tubing broke. She cried. It was the end of everything. But her joy was unbowed next day when her parents presented her with a shiny new brass instrument—a trumpet.

By the time she was fifteen she was already quite a virtuosa, making amateur appearances at local dances, in theaters and such. Then she got her first professional engagement, specifically a job with a band that played at surrounding resorts and at school hops. Later, at college, she joined her brother's band, which was the talk of Mis-soula University. When her brother died she decided to give up college and take up the band work seriously. She formed her own unit and did quite well with it.

A short time ago Woody Herman heard her at Columbia Pictures. He offered her a job with his orchestra. After some hesitation she decided in favor of it. And there she is.

WONDERED what it was like to prepare an honest-to-goodness dinner on a submarine. I had heard that the entire cooking-compartment on even the largest submersibles was hardly bigger than a telephone booth, and, with fifty husky bluejacket appetites to appease, it seemed to me impossible to do the job to anybody's satisfaction.

So I got in touch with some of my old buddies at Uncle Sam's submarine base at New London, Conn., and they arranged to take me down in one of their newest subs.

Since Pearl Harbor, volumes have been written about life on the U. S. Navy's undersea boats, how each sub is divided up into numerous watertight compartments, how every inch of space is utilized to meet the needs of subsurface warfare. But one of the most remarkable features of a sub, and one that has been pretty much overlooked, is the feat our sub cooks accomplish in cooking swell, wholesome meals in galleys that are never larger than four by four feet, five by two, and sometimes even more cramped.

Next time you feel inclined to complain about getting up a man-size dinner in your kitchenette, pause and consider the problems our sub cooks face every day under the sea. Remember—they don't just get up three squares a day; to satisfy our undersea gobs, who normally lose weight consistently when on cruise, food has to be on tap at all times. Whenever a subsurface sailor feels like eating, the grub has to be ready and waiting. To best appreciate this space limitation, measure out an area of sixteen square feet on your living-room carpet. Then realize, if you can, that into this space must fit an electric stove, oven, sink, potato fryer, work table, closets for huge pots and pans, food storage, bread-box, refrigerator, etc., etc.

The stove is a two-burner. I know many housewives who would become so confused trying to cook a complete dinner for three or four people on a two-burner stove that they'd end in the booby-hatch. But Calvin Crouch, cook first class, who showed me how it is done on the submarine I boarded at New London, had good, well-prepared food all day long—not for three or four people but for fifty hard-working gobs with ravenous appetites.

Traveling Cook of the Blue Network

That's How Big the Galley Is on a Submarine, But the Boys on Uncle Sam's Undersea Craft Have Plenty of Good, Well-Cooked Food

I had a sneaking suspicion that no one would believe the story I brought back from my visit on the sub. People would say, "Oh, he probably just hands out ready-cooked foods, and simple fare, at that."

So here's a sample luncheon menu served our boys a hundred feet under the ocean:

Cream of Tomato Soup
Fried Chicken and Mashed Potatoes
Buttered Peas and Carrots
Cole Slaw and Raisins
Thick Brown Gravy

Cocoanut Cream Pie
Bread and Butter and Coffee
And for dinner the boys really went to town. Here's what they got:

Creamed Chicken on Toast
Fried Potato Patties
Steamed Rice
Combination Salad
Chocolate Pudding
Bread, Butter, Milk

Food fit for kings? Well, Uncle Sam appreciates the great job our sub sailors are doing, and there's no stinting on food on a submarine.

Richard Kent, "Traveling Cook" of the Blue Network, may be heard Thursdays at 12 noon EWT, 11 a.m. CWT. (Not available to the West Coast.)

The Movie Front

Personal triumph. For years Barbara Stanwyck has been terrified of speech-making. Fear was planted when Barbara was in grade school and was chosen to make a graduation speech for her class. She studied it backward and forward, but when the time came to deliver, Barbara's terror tied her tongue, and all she could say was "Silence is golden," before her knees buckled and she sat down. So when Barbara gave the closing address at the Hollywood Canteen one night last week without a slip, it was a personal triumph for her . . .

Double purpose. Rita Hayworth went east last week, purportedly to meet the press, but the fact that Vic Mature is also there and is due any moment to be sent to parts unknown with U. S. troops could be another reason, too! Guess it's love, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding . . .

Duck tale. Brian Donlevy's backyard has a swimming-pool. On one side there is a white iron duck. Going up the driveway the other night, Brian thought he had lost his senses when he saw the duck waddle over to the pool for a drink. When he had the courage to look back, the iron duck was still there. But as he walked up to the live duck it flew off. The next morning it was back again. Now Ducky's a permanent guest on the lawn, where it sits contentedly beside its iron mate . . .

Dancing pilgrim returns. During her days as a dancing star with Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers longed for dramatic roles. After satisfying that ambition and getting an Academy Award for her efforts, Ginger's now cast in "Lady in the Dark," which gives her a chance to do three dance numbers—and she loves them. After rehearsal the other day, Ginger remarked breathlessly to the director, "It's a relief not to have to act for a few minutes! Could it be a case of the grass being greener . . . ?" . . .

Remerging. Betty Grable and Jackie Coogan were a surprise twosome at the Hollywood Palladium last week, dancing, dining and having a grand time generally. Jackie's always kept the weak spot in his heart for Betty, and now that there's rumor of a definite rift between Miss Grable and her erstwhile swain, George Raft—well, you figure it! . . .

Jottings from Movietown. Lew Lehr's Dribble Puss Parade is back. First of a new series of shorts by "Monkeys is the cwaziest people" Lehr will be "Monkey Doodle Dandies" plus typical Lew lingo . . . Dona ("Road to Morocco") Drake has a grievance. Folks insist on pronouncing her first name with a short "O," when it really should be DO as in doughnut . . . Susan Peters does a swell job in her "Random Harvest" role, loves her work so much that when she was given a vacation after eight months of solid movie-making, she spent it on the lot watching other actors go through their paces . . . Julie Bishop, young Warners comer, found a new source of scrap-metal supply in unused tools in her car, turned them over to the drive. Swell idea, Julie. Thanks for the suggestion . . . Lon Chaney, Jr., who specializes in horror roles, will play the lead in the remake of "Phantom of the Opera," movie in which his famous father starred seventeen years ago.

GUERRILLAS FOIL NAZI ATTEMPTS TO GET OIL ... DUTCH SCHOOL CHILDREN RELAY NEWS

Listeners Warned Not to Send Stamps Overseas; American Doctors' Experiences in Buna Described; Schedules of West Coast Stations

No Maikop Oil for Nazis

ACCORDING to a Soviet correspondent the Maikop oilfields in the Caucasus continued to burn for many days after the Germans seized them. The flames spread rapidly and forests in the proximity also caught fire. Several German oil experts arrived in the town together with the troops, intending to begin the exploitation of the oilfields immediately. The Germans sought for wells but found it impossible to discover them, since all were completely ruined. Oil stocks and equipment had been evacuated in time. To resume work, a tremendous amount of electric power would be required, and the huge power station serving the oilfields had been destroyed long before the Nazis arrived. For three months the Germans have been searching for maps and charts of the oilfields, and for experts and workers in order to obtain information. But all their attempts have been futile. The Germans hanged many oil workers and shot whole families. Placards read, "For sabotage of oilfields." Trade has ceased in the whole district. Stores have been converted into stables. The population lives on wild forest pears and chestnuts, for the Germans have announced that no bread will be issued until the citizens help the German command to restore the oil industry. Several times the oil industrialists would have one well almost restored, but their work was always foiled by guerrillas, who have turned the whole area into a battlefield. After one of these attacks the workers would flee, and the equipment, which the enemy had succeeded in scraping together, would be destroyed. The Germans continue to search frantically for oil experts but the majority of the oil experts are with the enemy guerrilla forces. For three months of the German occupation these guerrillas have been engaged in the one task of struggling against the restoration of the oilfields. The Maikop oilfields remain dead to the enemy. Whatever the Nazis claim about the improvement of their economic position with the help of Maikop oil is a sheer lie—they have failed to obtain a single drop of Soviet oil in the course of these three months.

Dutch Children Spread News

Scene: A Dutch schoolroom in occupied Holland. The teacher, a Dutch girl, is speaking to her class: "Now, children, I know your parents are anxious to see examples of your work, so I am going to allow you to take your exercise books home tonight. Be sure to show them to your mother and father. Now take down this dictation: 'The King and Queen of England visited our queen today (she speaks slowly, spelling out the larger words) ... The Russians advanced on two fronts—at Stalingrad and at Rzhev ... Thousands of Frenchmen are taking part in the advance in Tunisia!' ... Even the smallest children realized they were carrying home something more important than ordinary exercises. Take, for example, one small boy who carefully shielded his book on the way home, and when greeted at the door by his father with, 'Well, my boy, what did you learn today?' silently passed into the house and securely shut and bolted the door before showing his parent 'the exercises.' According to London's 'Radio Newsreel' this is only one of the many tricks those in occupied countries are using to spread news items received in secret from London by short-wave.

A Jungle Hospital

ABC correspondent Hayden Lenard's description of a jungle hospital was read the other morning over the Melbourne short-wave station. "Not far from the advanced line," he wrote, "some American doctors are attending their first local cases ... from the fighting along the Soputa-Buna track. Capt. Charles Lawrence of Chicago and Capt. Felix Schwartz of Colorado are at the moment operating on a pilot who just a quarter of an hour ago was fighting the Japanese ... The hospital is a cool shelter made by natives from jungle materials. The operating-table, too, was made by the natives. By the doctors' side is a large dixie of boiling water over an open fire ... The doctors, stripped to the waist, are working like trojans. Other American doctors are working in an Australian clearance station four hundred yards away, helping our doctors deal with a steady stream of wounded being brought back from the direction of Gona. Now and then a group of natives comes trudging along, bearing another injured man. The natives are covered in mud almost to their waist. They trudge through miles of swamps ... And when the natives put down their burden, they know, and the Australians know, the war of the jungle would have taken an even heavier toll of our forces were it not for their faithful, unselfish service ..."

Don't Send Stamps Overseas

For years short-wave listeners have been accustomed to the courteous habit of enclosing a mint stamp of that country—for return postage—when writing to foreign short-wave stations. This is no longer allowed. Postage stamps may be sent to points outside of the United States only upon permit issued by the Office of Censorship. Applications for permits should be made to the Philatelic Control Unit, U. S. Postal Censorship, 244 Seventh Avenue, New York, New York.

Jottings From the Short Waves

(From London)—According to a New Zealander speaking on "Behind the Battlefield" program, New Zealand's present social security system is simpler and broader in scope than that recently proposed for Britain by Sir William Beveridge. Every adult in New Zealand, he said, pays each week into the national treasury a definite sum, ranging from twenty-five cents to five dollars, depending upon his or her income. This one payment guarantees sickness, accident, unemployment, old age and death benefits for all ...

(From Moscow)—A Soviet correspondent who visited a house in Stalingrad reported: "If you took a look into apartment No. 9 of this house, you would see a Red Army man sitting comfortably in a leather armchair and fitting a mine into his mortar as coolly as if he were fitting a cigarette into a holder. In the next room, which used to be a nursery, two men are busy pouring incendiary liquid into bottles."

Notes Concerning the Stations

"Radio Alger" (12.12), Algiers, Algeria, is being heard again occasionally. It has been heard from as early as 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. CWT ... Radio Dakar, Dakar, Senegal, can be heard daily with excellent signal strength from 12:15 to 12:35 p.m. CWT on a frequency of 15.345 megs, just below WRUW, Boston, which is operating at the same time on 15.35 megs ... August Balbi of Los Angeles, California, reports almost daily reception of "Radio Tananarive" (9.70), Madagascar, from 10:00 to 11:00 a.m. CWT. This station is seldom heard in the U. S.

Radio folk don't, as a rule, go in for Hollywood superlatives, but the Thanksgiving "Cavalcade of America" production, "Feast from the Harvest," written and narrated by Louis Bromfield, is being discussed as "super-colossal." It took sixteen principals to portray "the quick and the dead," seven Cavalcade apprentices to create the mob scenes, and nine voices to sing the barn-dance music and hymns.

Material for the Waacs

Shirley Dinsdale, the voice of Judy Splinters now heard weekly on Eddie Cantor's "Time to Smile" program, has other talents besides being able to toss her voice into a wooden doll.

A funny new character has put in his appearance on the "Breakfast at Sardi's" program. The name of this new radio personality is Corny, and he is replacing Joe, the express messenger, on the Monday through Saturday broadcasts. Corny, if he can get the hayseed out of his eyes, will deliver the Good Neighbor orchid each morning to the outgoing plane which will take it to some honored woman.

Joe Kelly's Son Enlists

Joe Kelly, genial inquisitor of the "Quiz Kids," reports that his son, Joey, eighteen, has enlisted in the Army. Private Kelly is at Fort Sheridan, pending his departure for training in Wyoming.

Flying Kid

A one-hour dual flight in a Piper Cub plane recently was awarded twelve-year-old Ronny Liss. Ronny won the prize for the best Piper Cub Model Plane entered in the "Wings for Youth Competition," a New York newspaper contest. During the flight, Ronny was allowed to handle the controls briefly.

Whadaya Think of This, Fibber?

Molly McGee, housewife, and Don Wilson, Hollywood commentator, are two radio personalities who are assuming new characters for the benefit of America's fighting men stationed in the Australian area. The Office of War Information has accepted the volunteered services of Fibber's famous frau (in private life, Marian Jordan) to read home-town news notes for the boys, while Jack Benny's announcer will call off the Hollywood chatter. The series will be transcribed and short-waved to the troops down under five times weekly.

Knows His Music, Too

Hugh Studebaker (Ichabod Mudd in "Captain Midnight") is an actor, but he also has had a liberal musical education. He studied in conservatories in New York, Chicago and Kansas City.

Coincidentally Speaking

Sitting on Lyn Murray's desk is an old cylinder recording of "Casey Jones," identified as by "Murray and Chorus." It was one of a collection just acquired by Barry Wood, "Hit Parade" soloist, who turned that record over to Murray. The chorus on the record was led by Billy Murray, famed gramophone artist of the early 1900's, and Lyn says the arrangement, even by present-day standards, was not bad! By a strange coincidence, the tune "Casey Jones" was Lyn Murray's first choral offering on his "Radio Reader's Digest" Sunday night series.

Take a tip from Harriet Hilliard and Ozzie
Nelson (husband-wife musical team on the Red Skelton show) on keeping a photographic record of your family. Harriet and Ozzie and their two boys, David, six, and Eric, two, are photographed every year in the same positions with the same background for Christmas cards sent to friends of the family.

Superman a Putnam Fan

Superman, in person, is one of George F.
Putnam's ardent fans. Putnam, m. c. of "The Army Hour" and NBC newscaster, recently received a cartoon drawn by Superman's creators, Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster, showing Superman holding the studio door against a horde of people trying to get in to see Putnam.
Superman is admonishing them to wait until
George finishes his news broadcasts.

Christmas Child

and couldn't almost talk; but there was such a time once. I want to tell you about that time, because that was the time of your real first Christmas.

You are growing up here in New York City and so, of course, you think of Christmas as a very cold and snowy time, and a Christmas with snow is a lovely kind of Christmas. But there are other kinds of Christmases, too—warm, sunny Christmases. And because we were in California on the Christmas when you were born, your first Christmas was that kind of Christmas. You mustn't be sorry about that, because Santa goes to the warm places, too. You see, his sled runs nicely on clouds when there is no snow. And your mother thought it was nice that your first Christmas could be a warm Christmas, because, little son, the first Christmas of all—the birthday of another little boy whose birth the world has honored through the centuries—was a warm, sunny Christmas in a country where there is almost never any snow.

The little boy who was born on that first Christmas was born on a bed of straw in a manger while the animals rested near by and the angels watched over everything, and a bright star shone in the sky. Your mother thought of that first Christmas just a year ago while she lay waiting for Christmas morning to come with the wonderful gift it was to bring her.

It was such a warm, bright Night-Before-Christmas, little son. The Christmas stars were shining so beautifully, and it made Mother happy to see them. She was very happy waiting for Christmas to come and waiting for her wonderful Christmas gift, just as you will be, little son, so many Christmas Eves to come.

Then a lovely thing happened. A group of boys and girls passed by along the street below Mother's window, and the boys and girls were singing Christmas carols. They sang "Silent Night, Holy Night," and "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear." The very songs that you will hear on the radio while we unwrap the presents on this first Christmas Birthday of yours. The silent stars looked down out of the sky, little son. They were very pretty and sparkly. And Christmas came, and with it such a wonderful Christmas present. The Christmas present was you, little son. Do you think it is funny that you were a Christmas present?

And now I want to write down for you a few words from the story of the first Christmas. You may not quite understand them, even though you are a wise little boy, but you will understand them some day.

The shepherds, who were the friends of the baby boy and His mother Mary, have seen the child Jesus, and now they have gone out and told other friends about it. Then the story says . . . And all they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds, but Mary kept all these things and pondered them in her heart.

Merry Christmas, little son, and Happy Birthday.

Mother.

Bulls and boners are a part of broadcasting. Miss Stella Galayda, Yonkers, N. Y.—In "YOUNG DR. MALONE," Ken Daig-neau has the part of Dr. Thomas, Bartlett Robinson plays the role of Frank Palmer and Ethel Morrison plays Daisy Mathews. In "ROAD OF LIFE," the part of Junior Stephenson is taken by Jack Bivens and the role of John Brent is portrayed by Roland Butterfield.

Miss Ella Stalp, Brooklyn, N. Y.—DONALD WOODS, who plays Dr. Leslie Foster in the NBC serial "Those We Love" made the jump from the University of California to leading roles on the stage with little or no trouble at all. Donald was born on December 2, 1906, in Winnipeg, Canada, and was educated at King Edward High School in Vancouver, and from there went to the University of California. After several years on the stage with a stock company, he was signed by Warner Brothers and has played in many movies. Nine years ago Woods made his radio debut. He made several other appearances on the air before landing his present role. Don is over six feet tall, weighs 160 pounds, has brown hair and eyes. He is married and has two children, Conrad, aged nine, and Linda, aged five.

SANTA SLICES an appetizing baked ham. Tasty and cheerily decorated ham makes a perfect entree for your Christmas feast. Your dining-room will breathe the spirit of Yuletide cheer if you give your table some extra trimmings and a pleasant center-piece

WHAT'S COOKING!

By GEORGIA SCOTT

Spread the Festive Board

IT'S Christmas again! And even with the war and the many problems that it has brought to us grown-ups, let's make it a happy one for the children and others in need of cheer who may gather in our homes for this Yuletide season. If your home has been chosen as the center of festivities, you will have the job of chef. So by all means plan a simple and appetizing menu. Cook well in advance so you can join the children and other guests in the living-room, knowing that all's well in the kitchen.

Fortunately for all concerned, the modern Christmas dinner doesn't include the complicated preparations it did in early American days. Certainly they are amazingly simple when compared to the elaborate spreads our grandmothers set forth on the holiday. But even so, there's a job to be done, and it's your responsibility.

First make sure that the dining-room conveys the holiday spirit. Hang Christmas bells, and go decorative for the table center-piece. Red candles and sprigs of holly are old, old decorations, yet always new and lovely each Yuletide. Of course a small fir tree is an ideal decoration, but with trees so scarce this year, try this unusual departure. Get a bunch of wayside weeds, dip them in paste made from laundry starch, and sprinkle them with quantities of Christmas "snow." Arrange them carefully in a frog and place on a small mirror in the center of the table. Your guests will admire your attractive center-piece.

And with the children in mind, Santa Claus will be the byword of the day, so bring him to the table, too. You can use a polished red apple for the body. Then place a marshmallow on one end of a toothpick and insert the other end into the top of the apple. That makes the head! Eyes and nose can be made from cloves—the mouth from a bit of cherry. Dampen a wee bit of cotton and place on Santa's chin for the proverbial whiskers. Make his hat from red crepe paper and his belt from a strip of plain white paper. There he is—as true a Santa as was ever made!

Generally speaking, table decorations should be kept simple. After all, it's the food that is important—not the frills! So let's consider the menu. Try this on the family!

If a precooked ham is used, follow the directions on the wrapper around the ham in baking. If a smoked ham is used, scrub with brush. Soak twelve to fourteen hours in cold water to cover. Drain. Place skin side up in open roaster. If you have a meat-thermometer, place it in ham so bulb will be in center of ham but not touching the bone. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit), allowing thirty-five minutes per pound for whole hams and thirty minutes per pound for small or half-hams, or cook until the final reading on meat thermometer is 170 degrees Fahrenheit. Take ham from oven, remove skin and glaze.

At three and one-half years of age, Gloria made her first stage debut by singing "When I Take My Sugar to Tea." At eleven Gloria made her first screen appearance in "The Under Pup" and since that time has been seen in many movies. Gloria was born in Buffalo, N. Y., on April 14, 1928, where her father was a welding instructor. When she was six months old, the family moved to Scranton, and her father became a piano salesman. Gloria is one of four daughters. Oldest is Sally, seventeen, a Pennsylvania champion swimmer. Lois, twelve, is Gloria's stand-in, and Bonnie, six, has displayed singing talents of her own. Gloria Jean is five feet tall, weighs ninety pounds, has blue eyes and sandy-brown hair.

cover ham with boiling water. Cook covered over low heat, simmering very gently until tender, allowing about thirty-five minutes per pound. Uncover and let cool in stock twenty-four hours. Take from liquid, remove skin, bake and glaze.

Follow these directions for glazing: After removing skin from cooked ham, score fat with knife. Spread entire surface of ham generously with orange marmalade. To make holly-leaf design, cut leaves from angelica. Arrange leaves in decorative fashion over top surface of ham. At the base of each leaf, arrange three uncooked cranberries to resemble holly berries. Bake in uncovered roasting-pan in a hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) about thirty minutes, or until the surface is nicely glazed. A ten-to-twelve-pound ham will make twenty to twenty-five servings.

The Radio Front

There's talk that Danny Thomas will replace Red Skelton when the "dooder" enters the Army. Danny's Saturday night variety show on Blue has established him as an air favorite. He's a night-club emcee . . .

I'm a little unclear on the etiquette of these things, but isn't Jane Webb ("Lone Journey," "Brewster Boy") overdoing a little? She's the proud owner of five pairs of silver wings, sometimes wears three at a time. I kinda had the idea, in a vague masculine way, that the wings were scalp trophies of about the same class as frat pins a few years ago. All I've got to say is that I hope the Air Forces' morale isn't permanently shattered by this seventeen-year-old blitz . . .

Joe (you remember, the pigand who is the bane of my life) is in a serious state. He's been bitten by ambition. "I want," says Joe, "to be a radio soundman. I can stage battles single-handed. I'll bring auto wrecks right into the studio—and put the producer in the middle. I'll be colossal!"

"Stop right there," I said. "You can't be colossal. Not in Chicago. It's against the city ordinance, and, anyway, the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce and the Motion Picture Academy would sue you for plagiarism."

"All right," replied Joe, "I won't be colossal. But can I be Brown?"

"Did you say 'brown'?" I asked, for I knew Joe was proud of his piebald-pink color scheme.

"Not brown, Brown. Capital. Upper case. Mr. Brown."

That stumped me. I said so. Joe explained, "Look, I've been doing research. If a man wants to work in sound-effects for NBC here, his name's got to begin with 'B.'

Here's the list: Bailey, Bashaw, Bay, Bickler, Bubeck, Blatter. Every one of them an NBC soundman. Blatter—there's a name that can't miss in sound-effects. Will you name me Joe Brown?"

I debated. I thought, at first, I'd give in. It seemed a perfect way to get rid of Joe, to stop him from misspelling words and gumming up program listings. But my better instincts conquered. I thought of my dear friends of NBC and steeled my heart against the pigand's pleading. So I think I deserve an award as the Man Who Saved Radio from Joe—From a Fate Worse Than Death.
