"Vas You Dere, Sharlie?"

RUMOR is the bad apple in the American fruit-barrel today. And it's of the same ilk that hastened the downfall of France when it was placed there by Nazi propagandists at the beginning of World War II. That bad apple constitutes a weapon all Americans must guard against with unceasing vigilance. For all the tanks, planes, guns and ships rolling from our assembly lines cannot bar its entry into American homes.

Rumor served the Nazis well in confusing and befuddling the French, and what semblance of unity the country possessed soon disappeared.

In Russia one commander solved the rumor problem in his own unit. Severe punishment was meted out to those who said, "I hear that . . ." or "I understand that . . ." Unless the man could say, "I, myself, saw . . ." he was to say nothing.

So the next time someone reports a rumor in your presence, ask him, "Vas you dere, Sharlie?" —The Editors.

SLAPHAPPY Joan Davis isn't at all worried by the present bug-aboo of gas-rationing. Says Joan, above, "I carry spare gas in my purse and refill the tank with an eye-dropper. Two squirts and a half, and I slap her into high gear, and drive off happy!"

JOAN DAVIS LICKS GAS-RATIONING

JOAN DAVIS, screwball comedienne on Rudy Vallee's program, figures that she has the gasoline problem licked. Here's how: The day nation-wide rationing of gas was announced, Joan sold her big car, then went on a still hunt for a second-hand "buggy," and searched until she found a midget Austin, which ran a little better than forty miles on a gallon of gas. Now she has the edge on hose-saving, too, with her pint-size car. No danger of snags climbing in and out. Joan just steps right over the door, chirping, "I'll show 'em who's smart in this village!"

Photos by Gene Lester

READY to go, Joan, at right, turns up her nose at other sleek gas-consuming behemoths, as she drives out of NBC lot, and heads for home

What Makes Kay Kyser Click!

JAMES KERN, name he was christened, would fit a lawyer, but Kay clicks with Kyser the musician. Above: Kay as school cheer-leader

TODAY Kay Kyser is setting a pace which causes him to be pointed out in the entertainment world as the man most likely to crack from a nervous breakdown. But those who know him best don't agree with that gloomy prophecy. Why? Because of his sane formula for living. He sleeps eight hours each night, and allows nothing to interfere with that rest. Next, he refuses to accept telephone calls at meals or discuss business while eating. Food, he contends, should be eaten in a mood of relaxation. Which are some very good reasons why Kyser keeps clicking at such break-neck speed when he gets going.

Added to sane ideas about eating and sleeping is his tremendous desire to serve others in his work as an entertainer. Many men in high places could well take that leaf from Kay's book and profit by it. Besides his radio chores, he entertains servicemen in camps and finds time to fly from Hollywood to New York and back to appear personally before various groups of executives and explain his successful formula for selling war bonds and stamps. In one month recently, he traveled more than fifty thousand miles back and forth across the nation selling war securities. Climax of that month's work was Kay's appearance at Victory House in Los Angeles, where, in one afternoon, he rang up $6,000,000 worth of bonds for Uncle Sam's cash register.

Another characteristic of Kay's which makes him click is due to the fact that he's always been a doer and not a wishful thinker. Which keeps him always one jump ahead. Proof? When war was declared, the tremendous problem of entertaining thousands of servicemen confronted the Government. But long before that, Kay had been visiting camps and pepping the boys up with his music and fun. And when war was finally declared, Kay went all out for entertainment of servicemen.

Last, but by no means least, Kay Kyser clicks because he is a zealous American patriot who considers it a rare privilege to serve his country both in war and PEACE!

KIDS like Kay and vice versa. At a bond rally in Detroit, Michigan, the little girl shown above came out of the audience alone to present him with a boutonniere which was made of defense stamps

TYPICAL of the way Kay clicks with folks everywhere he goes was the welcome extended to him when he went to Catalina. Islanders, below, turned out in crowds to greet him as he drove to hotel

REGISTRATION for Uncle Sam's service brought Kay and his band to sign up en masse, below. Reason he isn't in uniform today is because Government officials insist that he's doing more good in his present job

1917 WAR
RUN BY TELEPHONE

1943 WAR
RUN BY RADIO

For Instance...

... from Hawaii came news that Lieut. Gen. Emmons was to discuss plans with officers and men by radio. Brig. Gen. Boyd commenting in a radio broadcast said: "The use of commercial radio by the commander to contact his troops spread over many square miles... is a new and important means of communication." (news item)

... one of the objectives at Dieppe was "destruction... of a radio location station which plays an important part in German attacks on... channel convoys." (news item)

Interesting!

Watch for radio use in the war news—you'll find it in the air—on the ground—and at home!

WITHOUT radio, the movement of war would still be anchored by telephone lines—the physical hazards of the courier and visual signals.

Now war moves swiftly over the whole face of the earth—instantaneous radio communication thru the ether instead of over copper wires has blasted the barriers of space and time.

So today all our radio production centers on war use.

But what of tomorrow—what effect will this have upon the future—after victory?

One thing is certain—it will revolutionize and speed the great new future form of transportation.

Radio has never been universally necessary in transportation before. In automobiles—on trains—it has been entertainment—in boats it has been a great aid but not an essential.

But today for the future, in that great new universal transportation that is forming itself—the airplane—radio is essential as the engine itself.

Zenith's leadership in the radio industry has been established by a constant achievement of "firsts." Repeatedly, ideas "brand new" when Zenith "first" introduced them, later became essentials on all radios. And that same "forward thinking" of engineers and factory and organization now concentrates on war production of the thing we know—radio—exclusively radio. We are progressing—we learn every day—and this new experience will inevitably reflect itself when Zenith again produces for peace.

For over seven years Zenith Radio Corporation has advertised on short wave sets—"Europe, South America or the Orient—every day or your money back." It has never been called upon for a refund.

—a Zenith Radio Dealer near you is giving reliable service on all radios—regardless of make.

EILEEN FENWICK, 20th Century-Fox player, visits Hulbert in his shop, above, and seventy-one-year-old inventor shows her how his nail-reclaiming machine works. Below: Eileen operates the turntable that straightens the nails in grooves and turns them out ready for use again on sets

He Solved the Nail Shortage

George D. Hulbert of 20th Century-Fox Reclaims 31,000 Daily!

WHEN it became impossible recently to purchase nails for building sets at 20th Century-Fox studios, production officials called in inventor George D. Hulbert, who has been on the lot for seventeen years. He listened to their problems, then went back to his shop and invented a machine that reclaims nails at the rate of 31,000 a day, regardless of size or shape. In three days' time, his invention reclaimed enough nails from the "Coney Island" and "Hello, Frisco, Hello" sets to prepare for four other productions. Soon this machine will be made available to other industries throughout the nation. Hulbert's also invented a routing-machine which represents a tremendous saving of essential materials in building motion-picture sets, proved that Yankee ingenuity can't be beat!

BEFORE AND AFTER. Eileen demonstrates below. Machinist Hulbert has applied for a patent on his invention; but studio pays him royalties on all nail-reclaiming work he does for them. And William Goetz, 20th's production chief, gave him $100 war bond as a special award

How Much Damage Have Our Subs Inflicted on Jap Shipping? George Hicks Interviews a Sub Sailor Who Has an Answer to This Burning Question

WHILE Axis subs go their marauding way in American waters, what have our undersea boats been doing to harass the enemy? How much damage have our subs inflicted on the shipping of our Nipponese foe?

These questions have been partially answered by recent reports of our sub activities in the Pacific. But these scattering returns seem only to have whetted our appetites for more information, and I decided to find out for myself.

Up to now, my most intimate contacts, as special-features reporter for the Blue Network, have been with the activities of our submarines in the Atlantic. But I had one splendid source of information regarding the job on Japan that remained to be tapped. And that was my friend, Ensign Samuel Clark. This veteran submarine fighter had just turned in to New London, Conn., where our Navy's submarine base is located, and, as he had seen plenty of action in the Pacific, I knew he would have a story to tell.

Ensign Sam Clark is a southerner—born in Alabama—thirty-three years ago. He's married, and has been in the Navy for twelve years—all of them, up to now—as an enlisted man in the submarine service. Sam Clark is frank and real. If what he says sometimes makes you wince, it's the truth—untampered.

He was on his way to Pearl Harbor—when the war began. He was chief electrician's mate on the sub. Also gun-pointer. When a sub comes up to do battle with its gun, all the gun crew rushes on deck. But the first man up must be the gun-pointer. He's the man who aims the gun.

They were easing along toward Hawaii after leaving Mare Island, California, where they'd had some new equipment installed. The men were doing their ordinary routine, peace-time jobs. "When," Sam said, "we received this order: STAND BY TO ATTACK ALL ENEMY SHIPS.

"At first," Sam said, "the men thought this was a maneuver." But the message ended: THIS IS NOT A DRILL. "We rigged for diving. As we got nearer to Hawaii, we crash-dived. We stayed down. Then the captain came below and said, 'Well, how does it feel to be shot at for the first time?' We didn't understand at first. Then he said we'd just been dived on, and strafed, by a Jap plane." I asked Sam then if his sub went on into Pearl Harbor. He said no.

Their next order was to search out enemy ships. "We were away for two days. This time, when we returned, we went right into Pearl Harbor. The Arizona was still burning. Everything was smashed and broken. And, in the streets of Honolulu, I saw bombed automobiles, with upholstery splattered by American blood."

His wife came to see him—that first day—for forty-five minutes. Next day he got an hour off—to go home. Three days later they left for their first patrol. "A patrol" means you go out to sink enemy ships.

"Where did you go on your first patrol?" I asked him.

"To Tokyo Bay," he answered. "We operated back and forth before the mouth of the bay, and up the coast."

"That's a long trip. You carry enough supplies for such a long time?" "Oh, sure," Sam said. "Plenty of food. The boat's very comfortable. But it gets monotonous. You lose track of time. You don't know whether it's Sunday or Friday—and no one gives a damn."

"On our first patrol I think we lost a little weight. Some of the men grew beards. We'd sleep always in our clothes. Well, there's quite a bit of suspense to it. You're standing by to dive at any time. I think the first trip's the hardest—because you don't know what to expect. My battle station—submerged—was in the conning-tower with the captain, manning the torpedo firing-board. Also raising and lowering the captain's periscope. On the surface, I was the gun-pointer."

"What happened off Tokyo?" I said.

"We sank three big ones. We were the first sub out there. The first to use our deck gun, too. We used to listen to their radio a lot—to Tokyo Rose, they called her—she spoke in English. At first she said American submarines were 'mere toys' and that the Japanese navy could easily dispose of them. Then, after we sank a few ships, she began to call us, 'the black panther of the Pacific,' and other such names. We got quite a kick out of Tokyo Rose."

I asked him how they got the three.

Sam said one was at night. "Running on the surface, we spotted this large freighter. We didn't know if she was a transport or not. We torpedoed her. A few nights later we got another. Then we changed position and, one morning, we spotted two large ships. We got one, but the second ran away."

"Were they attacking you—at any time—off Tokyo?" I asked.

"No," he said, "but this destroyer was looking for us all around. We kept

IN WHICH WE SERVE

Noel Coward's Epic Story of a Ship Is Even Greater Than His Film "Cavalcade"

THIS latest film of Noel Coward's, in which he takes the fivefold part of author, producer, director, composer and actor, is one of the greatest war dramas yet to appear. The theme is so profound and unique in its treatment, and Coward has filled it so full of flashes from living experience, that the story cannot be expressed except as he has expressed it—on the screen.

With utter simplicity the picture portrays all Britain at war, shown by flashbacks of a chief petty officer and his philosophizing; a seaman who meets a girl on a train and marries her, and the captain who says that he wants "a happy ship." All this against naval battle backgrounds.

Significant is the fact that Coward took the title for the picture, "In Which We Serve," from the prayer which captains of British warships read to their men "... receive into Thy almighty and most gracious protection the persons of us Thy servants and the fleet in which we serve."

Patriotic lass. Her name is Evelyn Ankers. Since husband Richard Denning has been in the Navy, he and Evelyn have been living on his third-class yeoman's salary. They have adjusted their budget and are living in a $40-a-month apartment. All the money that Evelyn makes in pictures is going into war bonds for Uncle Sam . . .

My goodness! Will wonders ever cease! Now the Hollywood wags have it that Orson Welles and Mickey Rooney may collaborate on a story for the screen. What the two boy wonders cook up should be something to write home about! . . .

The answer is no, but Cary Grant isn't taking it as final. Even though his plans to enlist have been temporarily thwarted by the new thirty-eight-years-old ruling. He wants to go into war work regardless. His latest idea is to take a troupe of entertainers to Africa. To date Cary hasn't received permission from the Government, but he's still trying and refuses to accept any more movie chores so he will be free to come and go as may be necessary . . .

Surprise third. News has come from England, where Carole Landis has been entertaining servicemen, that the star will marry Captain Thomas C. Wallace of Pasadena, California, who is stationed in Great Britain. Captain Wallace was one of the first of the RAF's American Eagle Squadron and is now with the American Air Forces. It will be Carole's third marriage . . .

MOVIE REVIEW

"The Palm Beach Story"

Cast: Claudette Colbert, Joel McCrea, Rudy Vallee, Mary Astor, William Demarest, Franklin Pangborn, Robert Warwick, Chester Conklin, Al Bridge and Roscoe Ates. A Paramount picture, written and directed by Preston Sturges, produced by Paul Jones.

Headliners all in Paramount's "Palm Beach"

Type of Picture: Laughable and lovable nonsense as only Preston Sturges can portray on the screen.

This is the Story: Initial question posed in the plot is: What should a girl marry for—love or money? Claudette Colbert takes love along with Joel McCrea. Five years later, with the wolf at the door, along with the landlord, Claudette figures that maybe she was wrong. She decides to leave hubby Joel to seek the comfort and security every girl, some time or other, thinks is her due. Persuading her husband to agree proves a problem, but she succeeds. With her charms she snares millionaire John D. Hackensacker (Rudy Vallee) and makes him sit up and cry, "Uncle!" The plot thickens when he asks her to marry him. And the way it thickens will leave movie-goers in stitches. We won't spoil your fun by telling you what really happens, but Rudy Vallee nearly steals the show.

Verdict: A picture the whole family will enjoy!

Betty Rhodes Talks Back to Hitler!

Blond Blizzard-Head of "This Is the Hour" Program Gives Axis Tit for Tat!

DEFENSE-STAMP corsages are popular on Betty's program. Above: She presents one to an RAF cadet, who thinks it a wonderful memento to send his homefolks

TIME OUT for snacks is the order of the day at "This Is the Hour" rehearsals. RAF men like American pop, hotdogs and mustard (above). Below: Betty practises song "Praise the Lord and Pass-the Ammunition" with maestro Dave Rose

"DIVIDE and rule," says Hitler. "Stand together and smash Fascism," answers Betty Rhodes, triple-threat girl of radio, pictures and television.

There are all kinds of ways to fight a war—you can spray bullets over a people and break up their homes and families. Or you can throw disquieting words throughout a land and kill a unity that bombs can never shatter.

Hitler uses words to attack the alliances of the United Nations. With lies he'd breed distrust between the Anglo-American allies.

So Betty Rhodes, the blond blizzard-head of Thomas S. Lee's television station W6XAO, Miss Priority of Charm on the Paramount lot and singing-dramatic star of Mutual-Don Lee's "This Is the Hour," counter-attacks with more words—the potent kind that spring from facts based on truth.

"You can't start a squabble among the friends of democracy," Miss Rhodes says in effect, "nor can you start a fifth-column disruption of our alliance. Because we have the means of destroying every word grenade you hurl. We don't rely on your interpretations of intent and action; we get together and talk it over—every week on 'This Is the Hour.'"

Quoting From "This Is the Hour"

HITLER: Delightful! Another pushover. The world is ours.

ANNOUNCER: Yes, Fuehrer, as soon as the English surrender.

HITLER: What? I thought our bombs had leveled their cities. I thought we had defeated them.

ANNOUNCER: We have, dear Fuehrer. But they don't know it yet.

HITLER: Didn't you told them?

ANNOUNCER: They won't believe us.

HITLER: Send over more airplanes. That will fix them.

ANNOUNCER: The only trouble is, Fuehrer, they keep shooting them down.

ANNOUNCER: And then, as once they came with news of whole countries captured, they came now saying, "Fuehrer, great news. Our boys have captured a whole city block in only eighteen hours."

HITLER: So?

ANNOUNCER: And yesterday they captured a big factory after bitter fighting. Only—

HITLER: Only what?

ANNOUNCER:—only the stupid Russians didn't understand.

HITLER: What did they do?

ANNOUNCER: Took it back.

ANNOUNCER: Things didn't look so good to the Fuehrer this first November week. He heard from his partners, too.

MUSSOLINI: Hey, Adolpho! What'sa matter you? Why you leave this guy Rommel run out on my boys, eh?

JAP: Honorable Adolf: This person most unhappy with situation. Think your army showing most unfortunate lack of spirit. Not taking victory in Russia. Must realize. Honorable Fuehrer, this make Japanese back wide open for kick in teeth!

ANNOUNCER: And not only that, the people began asking questions, too.

HITLER: Come right in, boys. Sit down. We got to do some fast thinking. The crowds are getting impatient. How is you, Benito!

MUSSOLINI: I'm hungry, Adolpho!

HITLER: And you, Admiral?

JAP: Must beg to withhold answer until outcome of several precarious situations.

HITLER: Okay, then. Let's get down to business! Benito, first you make a report.

MUSSOLINI (hilarious): What'sa matter, Adolpho? You ain't got the answer in your panzers?

HITLER: Don't talk foolish! Listen to the people down in the Wilhelmstrasse. They're demanding victory. We got to figure out something.

MUSSOLINI: Okay, You figure. You the fella that start the whole thing.

HITLER: I started it! That's an insult! By golly! You shouldn't say such things, Benito. It was the Admiral here that started fighting first.

JAP: Must ask why does not Fuehrer send fresh men from western front to make forces in Russia stronger and eliminate Russian threat to Japanese back door?

HITLER: Well, you see, Admiral, that is very difficult.

Jay Jostyn, Mr. D. A., and his rival in murder dramas, Ed Jerome, who plays "Crime Doctor," were lunching together when a customer discovered his overcoat had been stolen. # JOHN CHARLES THOMAS BEGINS NEW SUNDAY SERIES OVER NBC JANUARY 10

Toscanini Continues Brahms Cycle Sun., NBC; Mitropoulos Directs New York Philharmonic, Offers Schubert, Brahms Symphonies Sun., CBS

By ROBERT BAGAR

New York World-Telegram Music Critic and Associate Program Annotator for Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York

JOHANNES BRAHMS, who seems to be having a run of popularity second only to that of Tchaikovsky these days, took a long time to make the grade with the general public. Now, besides, his name stands side by side with those of Bach and Beethoven as one of the greatest composers of all time.

It was Robert Schumann, a prophet whose prophecies were seldom fulfilled, who "discovered" Brahms. In an article entitled New Paths, which appeared in a Leipzig publication, which he had founded, Robert Schumann first made the big musical world aware of the fact that a genius, or something mighty close to that blessed state, was in the offing. Usually, I steer clear of incorporating long quotations into a story, but this one of Schumann's is revealing and tremendously interesting. This is what he wrote on that eventful day of October 28, 1853:

"Ten years have passed away, almost as many as I formerly devoted to the publication of this paper, since I have allowed myself to raise my voice in a territory so rich in memories. Often, in spite of an overstrained productive activity, I have felt moved to do so; many new and remarkable talents have made their appearance, and a fresh musical power seemed about to reveal itself among the many aspiring artists of the day, even though their compositions were known only to the few. I thought to follow with interest the pathway of these elect; there would, there must, after such promise, suddenly appear one who should utter the highest ideal expression of his time, who should claim Mastership by no gradual development, but burst upon us fully equipped, as Minerva sprang from the brain of Jupiter.

"And he has come, this chosen youth, over whose cradle the Graces and the Heroes seem to have kept watch. His name is Johannes Brahms; he comes from Hamburg, where he has been working in quiet obscurity, instructed by an excellent, enthusiastic teacher in the most difficult principles of his art, and lately introduced to me by an honored and well-known master [he meant the celebrated Joachim].

"His mere outward appearance assures us that he is one of the elect. Seated at the piano, he disclosed wondrous regions. We were drawn into an enchanted circle. Then came a moment of inspiration which transformed the piano into an orchestra of wailing and jubilant voices. There were sonatas, or rather veiled symphonies, songs whose poetry revealed itself without the aid of words, while throughout them all ran a vein of deep song melody; several pieces of a half-demoniacal character, but of changing form; then sonatas for piano and violin, string quartets, and each one of these creations so different from the last that they appeared to flow from so many separate sources. Then, like an impetuous torrent, he seemed to unite these streams into a foaming waterfall; over the tossing waves the rainbow presently stretches its peaceful arch, while on the banks butterflies flit to and fro, and the nightingale warbles her song.

"Whenever he bends his magic wand toward great works, and the powers of orchestras and chorus lend him their aid, still more ideal glimpses of the ideal world will be revealed to us. May the Highest Genius help him onward! Meanwhile another genius, that of modesty, seems to dwell within him. His comrades greet him at his first step in the world, where wounds may await, but the bay and the laurel also; we welcome this valiant warrior."

Yet with all the interest and encouragement of Schumann and his circle intime, with the enormous success he made in the musical capitals, Brahms did not write his First Symphony until he had gone past his forty-first birthday. One of the reasons he gave for that was, "You do not know how it feels to hear behind you the tramp of a giant like Beethoven." When he did take the plunge he produced a First Symphony of extraordinary worth. Then, it seems, he labored almost feverishly at producing symphonies and other orchestral works.

The "Academic Festival" overture followed in chronological order the Second Symphony. This, in turn, was followed by the "Tragic Overture" and the Third Symphony and, finally, a Fourth. So that in nine years he wrote those masterworks that are the daily bread of concert programs in our time.

Arturo Toscanini, continuing with his Brahms cycle, performs the "Academic Festival" overture and the Fourth Symphony. The archives contain, perhaps, numbers of works inspirationally greater than either of these, but none are superior to them in construction, in seriousness of purpose, in a sincere expression of musical ideas.

(Arturo Toscanini and the NBC Symphony continue with their Brahms cycle on Sunday, January 10, via NBC.)

Early Schubert

Seven weeks after Franz Schubert's eighteenth birthday the Symphony No. 2, in B flat major, was completed. Not, regrettably, a thoroughly trained composer, Schubert had one of the most divine of melodic gifts. He proceeded, sometimes, by pure instinct, writing works that hold together marvelously, despite their obvious faults of construction. Melody just rushed to his pen-point, to use a figure. He could no more have written an unmelodious composition than he could have tossed off, say, the Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue.

The Second Symphony of Schubert is not a frequently performed work, nor, by the same token, is it totally neglected. The influence of Mozart and Beethoven are strong in it, Mozart noticeable particularly in the theme and variations which comprise the second movement, andante.

(Dimitri Mitropoulos and the Philharmonic Symphony will play the Second Symphony of Schubert, as well as the Third of Brahms, in their CBS broadcast on Sunday, January 10.)

By Request

John Charles Thomas begins a new series of programs over NBC on January 10. His sponsor for these is Westinghouse. The programs will have a concert orchestra under the direction of Mark Warnow, as well as a Lyn Murray chorus.

Mr. Thomas plans to base his program chiefly on selections requested by the listening public. He expects these requests to be varied, as well as valid. In short, he aims to please, but only if it makes for first-class program making. The American baritone has always been noted for the balance and diversity of his presentations. And it isn't likely that he will go erratic in this series. Requests will be given careful attention, but foremost the program's to be the thing.

(John Charles Thomas, the Mark Warnow Concert Orchestra and the Lyn Murray Chorus will be heard over NBC on Sunday afternoons beginning January 10.)

POPULAR MUSIC

AN ACQUAINTANCE of mine made an interesting observation the other day. The acquaintance, a well-known musician, said, "The best American music of our time is being written spontaneously by performers at 'jam sessions.' Its energy and rhythmic variety are not to be dismissed, for they possess the power of immediacy that you almost always find lacking in the works of more formal writers."

Asked just what he meant by immediacy, he replied, "The quick and intimate relationship between the music and the listener. You see," he went on, "these young men who know their jazz, their hot licks, if you prefer, their swing, are at their most creative when they gather together informally, all set to blow and pound out their brains in a 'jam session.'"

"Not too long ago," he continued, "I attended one of these impromptu seances—let me call them that, seances. With the usual camaraderie that always prevails at these things, the musicians started in like friends. They were going to make music—on the spot. Well, they hemmed and hawed musically for a time, then someone got a bright idea, a neatly balanced phrase. And immediately everyone picked it up. They worked together, teamed up on it. Before I knew it, I was listening to some very orderly, purposeful stuff."

"What is important, though, is the fluency and smoothness with which they performed. Of course, most of the music was just rhythm, just percussion. Notes were being played, all right, but they were more beats and accents than they were melodic notes. Harmonies, as you can well imagine, didn't count for too much. They were equal to the occasion, and that was that. But out of many measures—several thousand during the course of the session—there were about a hundred or two that I considered at the time really great music."

"Everything jelled in those passages. The melody was pure melody, the rhythm interesting, the harmonies almost exciting. The musicians had hit a stride at which creation could be possible. I felt then that I had not heard such tingling, rousing music before."

"Looking back on it now, it strikes me that the element of spontaneity had a great deal to do with the worth of those measures. So I said to myself that a composer who is, let's say, a good piano technician, might sit down at his instrument some day and just play, just improvise. Before long ideas would surely come, ideas that he couldn't possibly receive in a stiff or very formal state of being. I think that our so-called serious composers might try it. They couldn't lose anything by it. On the contrary, I think they'd gain a lot."

RETURNING to the airwaves as star of new NBC series, baritone John Charles Thomas may be heard this Sunday on premiere

George was a marine in World War I. While there he reached into his pocket for a handkerchief and pulled out—guess what! The boys grabbed it, thanking him for his thoughtful contribution to Uncle Sam's silk-stocking salvage drive. That's how George acquired his unusual slant on the hardships of war. And worse: Now he's got to match the precious missing nylon or else . . .

My first call found NBC's press department in a dither. Seems the editor of a Bohemian newspaper was raising a terrific fuss over the phone about a printing mat he claimed had been promised. Nobody on the staff knew anything about it. While the gentleman on the phone fumed, with a decided accent, the staff took turns flipping through the files for the missing mat. After about forty-five minutes of commotion, one of them caught on. Bill Thompson, dialectologist of Wallace Wimple and Old Timer fame, was back in town for his annual holiday visit. ## Betty Rhodes Talks Back to Hitler!

And so they do, the allies—from England and America.

Each Saturday afternoon at 5:30 p.m. (PWT), Betty Rhodes and cadets of the Royal Air Force meet in KHJ's Hollywood studios and, with words and ideas exchanged among them, go right after the stealthy, snide word barrage loosed by the Hitler propaganda agents bent on creating disunity between the Allies.

"What do you hear from your home in Kent, Rob?" Betty asks of a young flier from one of the busiest areas in England. Her guest reads part of the letter in which his mother tells him how she is working to keep the British fliers supplied with ammunition, while Rob's brothers fight in the air battles that have made Hitler squirm uneasily in his saddle of erstwhile power.

"How do the young girls of England compare to those you meet in Hollywood?" Betty asks of Ken, a minister's son on leave from his Lancaster, California, training-base.

Ken compares the activities of his sisters, who drive ambulances, ferry planes and work in hospitals and war-production factories, with the American girls, who devote their time and energy to the same victory aim.

"And even if we talk about something else than the war," cuts in Lawrence, a tall blond fellow with an Irish twinkle matched to a Cockney accent, "English girls and American girls speak the same language—if you know what I mean."

"Sure, we know what you all mean—that when people have the same aims and ideals, and when they get to know each other, rumor can't break them up. That's why we're so proud of 'This Is the Hour'."

We know how much faith Hitler has put in his propaganda devices. And we knew that many of those who heard Hitler's rumors would unwittingly become assistants to his plan unless they were told by direct contact what our allies are like. So we decided to turn Hitler's guns right back on him. If false words could carry his message, our true words could pull the teeth from his lies and make them useless. For always, in every script, "This Is the Hour" answers the latest lie ballooned across the seas by Hitler's propaganda factory.

And since the program is presented without fanfare, with the sincerity of the young singer emphasizing the feeling of all who hear it, it's a deadly weapon as well as a half-hour of entertainment, for every second of it is aimed to destroy Hitler's propaganda barrage that would dissolve the strength of the United Nations fighting together all over the world to defeat his vicious program.

"This Is the Hour," featuring Betty Rhodes, is broadcast Saturdays over MBS at 8:30 p.m. EWT, 7:30 CWT, 6:30 MWT, 5:30 PWT.

NEW SCHEDULE OF FREE CHINA STATION . . . SOVIETS REVEAL SKI-TANK TACTICS

Fuzzy Wuzzies Receive Christmas Parcels; Schedule of Russia's English Broadcasts; Australia Lifts Ban on Communist Party

Santa Visits New Guinea Natives

ACCORDING to a letter from ABC correspondent Hayden Lennard "somewhere in New Guinea" broadcast over the Australian short-wave station, Christmas parcels were delivered to native boys who had assisted Australian troops in New Guinea who were sick or wounded. The parcels were provided by the Australian Red Cross out of funds derived from the sale of the poem "Fuzzy Wuzzy Angels of the Owen Stanley Track," written by an Aussie soldier.

Each parcel contained a box of matches, three sticks of tobacco, a package of cigarette papers, two handkerchiefs, a quarter-pound parcel of brown sugar, a piece of soap and a can of condensed milk.

Included in each parcel was a Christmas card carrying in English and native tongue the following words: "New Guinea Boy helped wounded Australian soldier . . . Now Australian men and women say 'Thank you, Native boy. Merry Christmas.'"

Soviet Skiers Hitch on Tanks

According to a radio dispatch from the central front in Russia, a new winter of war has developed new forms of team work between various arms. For the first time, Soviet skiers are effectively cooperating with tanks in piercing the German defenses on the central front. In some cases the tanks pull the skiers behind them on huge sleds, in others the skiers themselves follow closely in the wake of the tanks. During assaults on strongly fortified centers of resistance, Tommy-guns on skis, clad in white gowns and protected by a mass of anti-tank weapons, infiltrate into the enemy dispositions singly and in groups and strike at him from the rear, disorganizing his anti-tank defenses. Simultaneously tanks attack from the front, and in most cases succeed in carrying the enemy positions with few casualties. These groups of skiers cooperating with tanks are also equipped with light trench mortars and machine-guns mounted on sledges. Skiers are also very helpful to tanks in overcoming various obstacles. They fill in anti-tank tracks and clear mine fields.

Japs Overlook Buried Gold

The Melbourne short-wave station revealed the other morning how G. M. Carr, engineer of the Bulolo Gold Mining Company in New Guinea, saved $175,000 in gold from the clutches of the Japanese. He said: "When the Japanese landed at Lae and Salamaua I was left behind at Bulolo to carry out demolition work with my own native boys, who were thoroughly trustworthy and efficient. I used 60 cases of gelignite, and destroyed bridges, cranes and all machinery that could be used by the Japanese. We blew holes in the airdrome and set fire to the fuel dumps. The last of the exploding petrol blew me off my feet. About 2:00 a.m. I rolled the gold out of the guardhouse down the steps and 400 yards into the dense jungle, where I buried it in a hole three feet deep beside a tree. About three days after the demolition work I reported to the Army authorities that the gold was safe, as earlier it had been reported missing."

Shorts From the Short Waves

(Berlin)—British troops in India are suffering badly for lack of quinine, most of which formerly came from Malaya now in Japanese hands. The British have requisitioned all stocks in New Delhi . . . (Rome)—Rome commentators express grave doubts that we are able to turn out ships as fast as we report, unless, as one speaker said, they are "made of cardboard" . . . (London)—According to a report from Tokyo, Allied nationals interred in Shanghai received several hundred letters and some Christmas parcels during the holidays . . . (London)—An Italian newspaper complains that the air-raid wardens of Turin quit the city as soon as air-raid alarms are sounded . . . (Vichy Radio)—"The present population of France would be about 80,000,000 instead of little more than half that if the birthrate of 1876 had continued. This is what the Republican regime did for France. Now under the Nazi new order this will all be corrected." . . . (Australian Radio)—

Australian troops, as part of their regular military training, are being taught to find sustenance in the bush, as aborigines do. The new instruction course is designed to make the soldier independent of ordinary supplies if he is cut off or isolated. Troops will learn how to get water from roots of trees and from shells dug from drying mud; that the bark of a certain tree, crushed and thrown into a river, will dope fish and bring them to the surface within an hour; and that onionweed bulbs, thistles, wicity grubs and ants' eggs can be made palatable. Wicity grubs are large, white wood grubs regarded as aboriginal delicacies. The authorities don't claim that they are satisfying but say they will keep a stranded man alive for weeks . . . (London)—According to Radio Newsreel, the largest and friendliest "army in exile" enjoying the hospitality of Britain is the eager, young and enthusiastic Polish army quartered in Scotland. The armies of Poland in exile rank sixth among the armies of the Allied powers. The one aim of the Polish army is "The shortest way back to Poland" . . . (Melbourne)—The ban on the Communist party and its press has been lifted by the federal government. The Communist Party in Australia was declared an illegal organization by the Menzies government in June, 1940. Announcing the lifting of the ban, Attorney General Dr. H. V. Evatt said the Communists had given satisfactory undertakings of maximum support for the war effort. Dr. Evatt made it clear that the decision evidenced no sympathy by the government with Communist views or actions.

Soviet Broadcasts to North America

Soviet transmissions in English for North America can be heard currently at the following times and on the following frequencies (only those frequencies best heard are given) (all time EWT)

7:40-8:20 a.m. on 15.75, 9.86
9:15-9:30 a.m. on 9.86
5:15-5:40 p.m. on 15.23, 15.11

Death of Founder Terminates Cadle Tabernacle

The passing of Howard Cadle, founder of the Cadle Tabernacle, a Sunday religious feature on MBS, has caused the program's termination. The great tabernacle in Indianapolis, one of the largest auditoriums in existence, was the broadcasting site used by the world-famous radio pastor, and became one of the outstanding religious institutions in the country. Mr. Cadle, on accumulating a fortune in business, severed all business connections twelve years ago to devote his time and money to furthering his religious work.

George Burns is sometimes called "Pee Wee" by Gracie Allen but not because of his size. That's Gracie's way of gently reminding him of his singing days. He sang the lead with the "Pee Wee Quartet" when he was seven years old.

Tough Job

Miss Gracie Fields' hardest problem is selecting her numbers for her nightly programs. She has so many requests to repeat certain numbers over and over again that she finds it almost impossible to even scratch the surface of the vast repertoire of songs at her command.

Knows His Pipes

Dr. Charles Courboin, NBC organist and composer, has designed 144 organs in the United States, including the world's largest, in Wanamaker Hall, Philadelphia.

Kaye Tooters Tout Bonds

Uncle Sammy Kaye needs men! Some time ago, the "Sunday Serenade" bandleader inaugurated a policy of having a different musician deliver a one-minute bond talk each week. Now he has gone through the orchestra roster of seventeen men, called upon George Gingell, his road manager, and, if no alternative presents itself, will start the whole procedure all over again.

"Brewster Boy" Gets Measles

It's just what you'd expect of Joey Brewster! But this time it's Eddie Firestone, the young actor who portrays Joey on CBS' "That Brewster Boy." After his December 18 broadcast, Eddie became worried. Three of his fraternity brothers at Northwestern University were down with measles. He wasn't feeling well, so his doctor sent him to the hospital to await developments. Sure enough, he broke out. It turned out to be a very light case and Eddie was back on the show Christmas Day. Said the doctor: "I've got to get you out in time for the broadcast. My kids listen to you."

WANTED

We pay big cash prices for thousands of different titles. We have bought over 9,000 books from men and women in every state in the Union! We have paid as much as $500.00 for a single book. We paid
Mr. Kuchler of Wisconsin over $1,000.00 cash!
For example, we will pay you cash for the following books as described in our price list:
Pilgrim's Progress ..... $4,000.00
Adventures of Tom Sawyer ..... 200.00
Old Swinmin' Hole ..... 75.00
Black Beauty ..... 100.00
Treasure Island ..... 50.00
Scarlet Letter ..... 35.00
Venetian and Adonis ..... 5,000.00
Snow-Bound ..... 45.00
Uncle Tom's Cabin ..... 50.00
Leaves of Grass ..... 250.00
Ben Hur ..... 25.00
Last of the Mohicans ..... 50.00
Moby Dick ..... 100.00
Little Women ..... 25.00
McGuffey Primer ..... 100.00
Tamerlane & Other Poems ..... 5,000.00
These are but a few of the many thousands of books we want. DON'T SEND BOOKS until you have checked our latest list giving full information. Don't delay—a single old school book, story book, Bible, poetry, history, travel, almanacs, newspapers, letters, autograph, etc., may bring you $25, $50, $100, $500 or even $5,000 cash for certain books. Better investigate NOW. Send 10c coin or stamps to American Book Mart, Merchandise Mart, Dept. 477, Chicago, and we will send you latest list of old books we want to buy and cash prices we will pay.

TO achieve lovely lip-appeal, apply all lipstick with a brush. It's worth more than a dozen of the slapdash old-fashioned jobs

—Revlon

FEMININE FORUM

By EDITH HAMPTON

Tips for Your Lips

"A BEAUTIFUL mouth can make any woman attractive—and any woman can have an attractive mouth!" Wise words indeed, and they come from one of Hollywood's most-famous make-up men. He has taken a man's-eye view of countless feminine faces—he realizes the charm of lovely lips! They're one of the first things a man notices—and nothing is more revolting to the male sex than a helter-skelter lipstick job! So take those words of wisdom to heart—and learn to make the most of your mouth!

Even though very few of us have beautiful mouths to start with, we can make them appear beautiful if we know how. It's easy! Of course, you must choose the right shade of lipstick—but don't stop there. There's many a slip 'twixt the stick and the lip—so be sure you apply it correctly. Then go in for the tricks of the lip trade! However, the old custom of copy-cutting the lip-pattern of your favorite film star is out! So be a rugged individualist when you dress up your mouth! It will pay off in compliments.

Here's the important thing to remember when you select your lipstick: Be sure the color harmonizes! For instance, if you're a blonde with fair skin, don't try the dark, luscious shades that belong to your brunette sister. However, if your skin and eyes are dark, avoid those baby pinks—although they may look perfect on blondes, they're definitely not for you! Above all, blonde, brunette or red-head, choose a color that flatters—it's the first step to beauty.

Maybe you never considered yourself an artist, but just for a minute pretend that you are. In this case, your paint will be a lipstick and your two lips the canvas. For an expert job, go completely artistic and also use a brush—a lipstick brush, of course! Revlon puts out a fine one. First, wipe off every remnant of left-over lipstick, you need a clean slate to work on. Now take a long look into your trusty mirror. Analyze your mouth—decide whether it is too wide or too narrow, too long or too short. Determine just what should be done to remedy this fault. Then take your brush in hand and trace a new outline—the one that is most flattering to your features. Use a smooth, even stroke, starting at the center of your lip and working slowly toward the edge. Keep your artist's hand steady—avoid ragged, blurry lines like the plague. They make for a messy mouth! Next, fill in the outlines you've made, using an up-and-down stroke to go with the grain of the lip-tissue. Follow through with a light dusting of face-powder. This is a trick from Hollywood and it sets the color perfectly. Blot off the excess lipstick with a bit of cleansing-tissue. That's to prevent ugly smears on your cup and spoon. Now step back and take a good look at your handiwork. If it isn't just right, remember this was only the first time! Wipe it off with cleansing-cream and try again. It won't be long before you've learned your lip-lesson by heart!

OF COURSE, you want to be your most beautiful when evening falls, so—Lady, be bold! For the utmost in lip-appeal, use two shades of Dorothy Gray lipstick, your every-day color and a luscious darker shade. Use the deep color on the lip you want to accent—to bring out its lovely curves. And if your mouth is too full, darken the edges all around. If it's too long, apply the night-time shade in the center and blend the lighter color out to the corners. Don't be afraid to experiment, just try everything on your faithful mirror beforehand.

Now that you've mastered the fine art of lip loveliness, you're set! You know that your mouth is beautiful, and that does as much for your private morale as a brand-new hat! But there's one thing more—the most important beauty rule of all! Remember, no matter how you've restyled your lips, narrow or full, rosy pink or deep garnet, they'll be most appealing if you keep the corners turned up!

HERE'S WHY CHAPPED HANDS HEAL SO MUCH FASTER

with medicated
NOXZEMA

Badly chapped, red, rough hands are a form of skin irritation. Painful tiny cuts and cracks appear—especially in the knuckle areas.

If you have red, rough, irritated chapped hands—make this test. Apply Noxzema frequently day and evening. Notice how soothing it feels. Next day... see how much better your hands look—how much better they feel!

Noxzema is so effective because it's not just a cosmetic cream. It's a medicated formula that not only soothes the burning, stinging soreness—but aids in healing the tiny skin cuts—helps soften the dry, rough skin and helps restore normal, soft, white loveliness.

Surveys show that scores of Doctors and Nurses (who have trouble with their hands from frequent washings) use Noxzema themselves and recommend it to their patients! Noxzema is snow-white, greaseless, non-sticky. At drug and cosmetic counters. 35¢, 50¢, $1.

★ MEN IN THE SERVICE WANT NOXZEMA

—use it for chapped hands, face and lips—for chafing, sunburn, windburn, tired, burning feet—and especially for cool, soothing shaves! Makes shaving easier even in cold water! It's a grand brushless shave, too, without water!

LIBERTY LIMERICKS

"These Bonds," said a student, B. Wise,
"Will bring about Hitler's demise,
And on the Pacific
We'll be so terrific
This Rising Sun never can rise!"

WHAT'S COOKING!

Entertain a Service Man!

By GEORGIA SCOTT

"A RMY food's swell, but there's nothing like Mom's cooking! Boy, what I wouldn't do for a piece of her chocolate cake right now!" There's a tribute for the fine art of American home cooking, and one that's echoed over and over in Army camps, especially when Sunday dinner-time rolls around. Remember how those boys of ours used to hang around the kitchen of a Sunday morning, watching what went on, taking licks of frosting and getting in the way? Yes, eating is one of their favorite indoor sports—and your cooking is probably one of the things they're fighting for!

Maybe your particular boy is too far away to get home right now. So this Sunday, instead of leaving his place at the table empty, invite a military man—soldier, sailor or marine—to share that roast chicken with you and the family. If there's an Army post near by, get in touch with them. Perhaps you live within easy distance of one of the Navy yards or maybe a Marine base. No matter where, you'll find at least one youngster, far away from home and just a little lonely—one who would love one of your home-cooked meals and a chance to talk to folks like the folks he left back home.

So choose your menu carefully—this should be a gala occasion! Try to include all the touches that military chefs must omit when an entire regiment is being fed. Our boys miss those little "extras" even though they may not admit it! Here's a meal to bring joy to any man's heart:

- |                      |                                    |
|----------------------|------------------------------------|
| Fruit Cup            | Relishes                           |
| Celery               | Roast Chicken with Potato Stuffing |
| Broiled Tomatoes     | String Beans                       |
| Chocolate Layer Cake | Cucumber Salad                     |
|                      | Coffee                             |

Set the table with one of your nicest cloths and a gay center-piece. Use your best silver and glassware. And when you bring on the dinner, watch that boy's face. His expression will more than thank you!

Then, when he's had all the "seconds" he can possibly hold, serve dessert in the living-room. Coffee and an easy chair are a combination he doesn't often find in the service! As for entertaining him, you won't find that hard at all! He'll make a bee-line for the Sunday paper to catch up on his favorite funnies. Turn on the radio, let him find his own program, and later on, if he hasn't had too much drilling during the week, maybe he'd like to stroll around and see the neighborhood. And when he leaves, pack up a little of that chocolate cake—it won't last long once he gets back to camp, but while it does . . . U-M-M! Try these recipes:

Roast Chicken with Potato Stuffing

- 2 cups potatoes, cooked, riced
- 3 tablespoons melted butter
- 2 tablespoons parsley, chopped
- 2 egg yolks, beaten well
- 3 tablespoons cream
- Salt and pepper
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- ½ cup onion, chopped
- 1 tablespoon butter

Combine potatoes, melted butter, salt and pepper to taste, paprika and egg yolks. Beat until well blended.

Put the tablespoon of butter in a frying-pan. Add onion and parsley. Brown. Add to potato mixture. Add cream. This makes three cups of stuffing. Stuff a four and one-half pound chicken and roast (basting frequently with one-half cup butter and one-half cup water) in a medium oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for one hour. Serve with giblet gravy.

Broiled Tomatoes

Cut tops and bottoms from tomatoes, then cut in two crosswise, leaving half a tomato for each slice. Season with salt and pepper and sprinkle with sugar. Cover each side with fine crumbs. Broil, turning once, until soft, not mushy. These may be fried instead.

Chocolate Layer Cake

- 2 cups sifted Swans Down Flour
- 2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
- ½ cup butter or other shortening
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg, unbeaten
- ¾ cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking-powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat very thoroughly. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased eight-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) twenty to twenty-five minutes. Spread with chocolate frosting and nuts if desired.

A Yankee Sub in King Tojo's Court

dodging this destroyer for over a week. Our captain—one of the best in the business—is almost entirely bald, really shiny-headed. Well, we'd got down to our last torpedo—our patrol was about over. The captain said, "That destroyer has been in my hair for over a week now. I'm going to get that so-and-so with this last torpedo!" I wanted to say, "What hair, Captain?" but I didn't have the nerve."

"Did you get the destroyer?"

"No, we missed, and that nearly broke our hearts."

They went back then to one of their bases—to Pearl Harbor—for a two-week rest. On their second patrol they went to the Yellow Sea, on the direct sea route between Japan and China.

"Did you get anything on this trip?"

"Yes, and one that was especially good."

"What kind?" I asked.

"I don't know," Sam said. "She was a big one—maybe she was an ammunition ship. I was standing in the conning-tower when we hit her. She exploded. God, what a roar . . ."

"Had the men got over being jittery by now?" I asked him.

"I wouldn't say they ever were jittery," Sam said. "I don't think anybody was scared. They were tense. Especially on the first trip." I asked him what he thought made a good submariner. After twelve years, he seemed to have that pretty clearly in his mind. "He's got to be a fellow who doesn't mind work—there's plenty with such a small crew. He's got to be able to stand close quarters, heat—got to have a good sense of humor—be calm and have common sense. He doesn't have to be any superman," added Sam.

Then I wanted to know if the men were glad when they sank an enemy ship. "Yes, they're glad. When they hit one, they cheer, like at a football game. When we missed that destroyer off Tokyo with our last torpedo, some of the men cried," said Sam. "Once, off the coast of Japan, the captain stuck his periscope up, and we were in the midst of fifty-four Jap sailing sampans. I begged the captain to surface and to let me go after them with guns. It would have been like a wolf among sheep. But the captain said it was too risky so near the beach.

"Yes, I'm bloodthirsty," said Sam. "So is the whole crew. One look at that base in Pearl Harbor and you wanted to go fight 'em with a butcher-knife. My conscience hasn't hurt me yet for anything I've done."

They went back to headquarters again. Then they went out on a third patrol . . . off a naval base in Japan. That's all . . . just a naval base—one of the most heavily guarded places anywhere—on the sea. Their prey was to be certain specified ships, which cannot be mentioned. It was big game! They were saving their torpedoes for them. When I asked him if they got any ships—this trip—he said yes, with their deck gun . . . but he wouldn't say about the torpedoes. Maybe they did, I don't know. I do know they tried awfully hard.

The first ship they got with a gun was a large Jap trawler. She was steering an erratic course, so they stayed down all afternoon, watching. "Then the Captain said, 'Now, when we go up, I want you to hit that bridge with the first shot. They have a radio in it . . . and I don't want any messages going out.' We could see the lookout on the bridge," said Sam, "by the periscope. His back was toward us. They had a red Jap ball painted on the side of the bridge. The Captain said, 'I want that first shell—right through that ball!' I wasn't any too sure about this first shot," admitted Sam.

"We 'battle surfaced.' And the first shot tore his bridge off."

"What became of the lookout?" I asked. "He disappeared. He was gone—blown up. The second shell went through their living-quarters. On the third shell, I told the trainer to put the gun on his stack, and put that one right through his engine room. It was live ammunition . . . and she caught on fire.

"On our patrols we got seven of the eight ships we fired on. On the one we missed, we had a large freighter lined up. The firing-pin was broken in the gun. I was pushing the firing-pedal—but nothing happened. The Old Man was shouting, 'Fire . . . fire!' The gunner's mate (he's the one in charge of the gun's upkeep) broke right down crying."

"Why didn't you torpedo this ship if she was a big one?" I asked him.

"We were saving our torpedoes . . . for a special job. Then several nights later, running on the surface, we saw five large trawlers. The Skipper said, 'Now I want you to get one with the first shot . . . and the next one with another shot, before they scatter and you lose them in the gunflash.' "We got them. The first blew up. On the next the first shell tore off the stern. We put the next shell in the bottom."

I asked Sam Clark how it felt to line up a live, human target. It wasn't a very pretty question. He said it as simply as I asked. He said it was a hell of a thrill. "You knew in one way," he said, "that those few minutes were the answer to all the training you'd been through." Then he told of the time they were making an approach on what they thought was a merchant ship. They couldn't make out her lines clearly because of the darkness. She proved to be a destroyer. And then, in turn, three other destroyers were making an approach behind the submarine.

They crash-dived. Then "rigged for depth charges." "What does that mean," I asked, "'rigged for depth charges'?" He said, "That means you close all water-tight doors in order to shut off any compartment which might be burst by explosions. Shut off certain valves which might flood the sub, if broken by concussion, and have all men not on watch get in their bunks so that they wouldn't be knocked down or thrown against the machinery.

"Those four destroyers," Sam said, "really worked on us. You'd stand there wondering if the next one would get you . . . it would all quiet down . . . then it would break out all over again." Sam said they stayed down for a long time before it was safe to come up. Then they changed position—to a narrow passageway—close to a beach. Around an island another destroyer came upon them—and spotted them. They couldn't dodge this time because the destroyer had them cornered . . . against the beach. He was following up—following them with his sound gear—which can detect them under the sea.

"But, luckily," Sam said, "we got in a rip-tide which was running near the beach. Two fast cross-currents—one running against the other. This rip-tide drowned out our noises—so the detector couldn't hear us. We stayed in it about half an hour," Sam said. "By that time, we'd got far away enough to speed up and get away."

They were still hunting. They were hiding and diving and crouching, and clinging tenaciously to the front of this Jap naval base. They got a small oil tanker. "I was just going on watch," said Sam Clark. "I'd just got a cup of coffee. This ship blew up with the first shell. We surfaced, shot and blew her up so quick my coffee was still hot when I went below again."

Then they got orders to leave the area—to return home. He wouldn't say whether they got the big game or not.

When they were going back, they sighted a vessel lying to. At first it looked like a destroyer. The sub submerged—to make an approach—to attack. Then they saw it was a trawler—and "battle surfaced" . . . "and that was the first one we missed by the first shot," said Sam. The first shot had misfired.

"Did you get him?"

"Yeah. We put three into him . . . That finished it up."

Well, I hadn't more to ask Sam—but I thought of this job. It was war, all right—clear, brutal, swift and killing. That made me ask, "Do you like this service?"

"Sure, why not?" he answered.

It was also dangerous. At least I thought so.

"Why do you like it?"

"Well, I guess it's the type of people you live with, I think," he added. "We have a better type of officers and men—a small crew like a big family—more friendly all the way around. And it's really pretty safe—about the safest place of all—in time of war."

So I said, "What are you going to do now?" He said he was now learning the officer end of it—as chief engineer—at the New London school. Also, he taught enlisted students on practise runs.

"I've worn the dolphins (the diving fish worn only by submarine men who have qualified for a particular duty in the service) as an enlisted man," Sam said. "I've worn them on my jumper sleeve twelve years. This is the first time I've ever been without them . . . and I don't like it. I'm going to qualify now as an officer—and then I'm going to wear them—right here—on my breast."

And this is the way Sam told it to me—as a fighting submariner.

George Hicks, Special Features Reporter of the Blue Network, may be heard on "Men of the Land, Sea and Air" over the Blue Network on Mondays and Wednesdays at 3:45 p.m. EWT, 2:45 CWT, 1:45 MWT, 12:45 PWT.

The Movie Front

set at M-G-M were discussing the possibility of a Japanese invasion in southern California. Red listened and broke out in smiles. "What's so funny about that?" one extra demanded. Said Red, "Why worry? We're plenty safe here. Just imagine what a tough time the Japs will have trying to get into M-G-M studios without a pass." Which reminds us that few folks around Hollywood know that Red sneaks out night after night, when work is over at the studio, and entertains servicemen at the various camps. Sometimes he does as many as five shows a night. Studio has asked him to let up a little, but Red doesn't listen . . .

More bambinos scheduled for Hollywood. Recipients will be stars Maureen O'Hara, Joan Bennett, Madeleine Carroll and Ruby Keeler. And some of us can remember the days when stars weren't supposed to have babies because it might detract from their glamour stock. Ho, hum. Time marches on, and the old order changes—for the better, at that! . . .

"The Thin Man Goes Home." But right now the question is—with whom? Irene Dunne, who was slated to play opposite Bill Powell in the piece when Myrna Loy bowed out, will be doing another picture when "The Thin Man" is scheduled for production. Latest "perfect wife" candidate is Lucille Ball, and the general consensus is that she may be the winner. One thing is pretty certain—the "Thin Man" series will not be discontinued, because it packs a tremendous box-office wallop . . .

"Victory Fleet." That's the name of the newest super-duper production that Republic Pictures has on the line for 1943. It will be based on the life of miracle man Henry Kaiser, ship-builder extraordinary . . .

Casting-kinks. Trouble with casting in Hollywood these days is that people don't look like the people they're supposed to resemble. For example, in "Mission to Moscow" the cast picked to portray the Russian delegation consists of a Belgian, an Austrian, an Englishman, a German, a Swede and one lone Russian. Why? Simply because the Russians interviewed for the roles "weren't the Russian type!" . . .

No rest for a "Nazi." Otto Preminger, who was a sensation as a Nazi captain in "The Pied Piper," no sooner let his hair grow, after shaving it for the role, than he had to shave it again for "Margin for Error." Otto heaved a sigh of relief, but it died a-borning, for he has to shave it again for a national magazine layout titled "Shades of Hitler" . . .

We've lost count. George Brent, who is now divorcing Ann Sheridan, is not keeping it a secret that he's now head over heels in love with Ilona Massey and will marry her as soon as he's free. Which sorta stamps him as a marital marathoner, this being Georgie's fifth or sixth race altarward . . .

Jottings from Movietown. Ginger Rogers denies that she and Phil Reed are serious. We believe you, Ginger . . . Noel Coward's "In Which We Serve" has all Movietown buzzing, as it should . . . Busmates you're apt to meet in Hollywood these days are George Tobias, Ann Sheridan and Alan Hale . . . Spangler Arlington Brugh and Ruby Stevens Brugh have made application to the courts to have their names changed. And why shouldn't they when Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck (Mr. and Mrs. in private life) suits them so much better . . . After fifteen consecutive Saturday nights of playing at the Hollywood Canteen Kay Kyser and his boys are referred to there as the "House Band."
