WHO IS RADIO'S BIGGEST STAR?

RADIO'S listeners "grow up" to the new possibilities of air entertainment; having once heard fine broadcasts, they know what they can expect of other artists who ask their attention and favor. Thus old loyalties change—new stars lure listeners away. That is shown in the fourth annual RADIO GUIDE Star of Stars Election now in progress. Outstanding example of a star who has kept his following through the years is Jack Benny, Star of Stars in 1935 and 1936—and leading this year!

Frances Langford was not on the Star of Stars list for 1935 or 1936—but right now she's in third place! Conversely, the Star of Stars lists for previous polls show many names no longer listed: Jessica Dragonette, Grace Moore and Helen Hayes ranked last year, but now are not shown in the top group; Joe Penner, Frank Parker, Eddie Guest, Don Ameche, Jackie Heller scored heavily in 1935—but now are not listed.

Among musical programs, "Show Boat," last year's winner, has given way to Nelson Eddy's recent "Open House" show, which this week ranks No. 1 in that group.

James Melton has left the rankings of operatic and classical male singers. Nelson Eddy holds his first that he won last year—but on that list is a little girl none of us knew a year ago—Deanna Durbin, in fourth place this week among classical singers, and first among the promising new stars! Second to her in the latter group is Bobby Breen, her young partner.

These advances and reversals among the stars are your orders to the stars themselves. Your vote should be registered in this election. If you have enjoyed your radio during the past year, tell your favorites through this poll. Do it now—Vote today! (See Star of Stars standings on Page 16)

Fantastic Loves

OF RADIO'S MEN

BY JACK JAMISON

IF YOU read a letter like this, what would you think?

Dear Beloved: Oh, Darling, I'd like to be frank, like to tell you what I feel in my heart. May I? You'll never know how beautiful, how holy and divine your program was, baby dear. I love you with all my heart, body and soul. I had that awful longing and desire to reach into the loudspeaker and draw you down close to my breast and cuddle you in my arms, oh so tenderly, and love you, pet you, mother you. I want your arms about me. I don't want love from anyone else, not ever. After the man in the moon chimes his wedding bells for us, up there along the Milky Way, I'd love to explore the heavens with you . . .

You would think, wouldn't you, that it came from—at the very least—the acknowledged fiancée of the radio star to whom it was written? So would anybody. But it didn't. It came to Ralph Kirberry, the Dream Singer, from a girl he has never seen.

WHAT in the world possesses these women—women all over the country—thousands of them—who fall in love with men on the air whose voices alone are known to them? To Bing Crosby, Dick Powell, Rudy Vallee, Frank Parker, Ray Heatherton, Frank Munn, Kenny Baker, Wayne King, Fred Waring, Shep Fields—to every man in radio who has an appealing air personality comes the adoration of these women whom they have never met and will never meet so long as they live. Pretty girls of seventeen send in photos of themselves in bathing suits; sometimes in the nude. Mothers of large families with perfectly good husbands of their own hint that they will be delighted to secure a divorce if only Fred Waring will have them.

"Fantasy love," psychologists call it. Fantasy love is capable of provoking the strongest human passions because, in its very nature, it must remain one-sided and unsatisfied. A girl out in the country falls passionately in love with a radio star because her real-life sweetheart isn't romantic enough to suit her, because she is homely and has no boy friends, or simply to take her mind off her hard work and her ugly room. At first it is harmless enough. But soon—all too often—her dream romance takes possession of her and she comes to believe in it. She swears to her friends that Dick Powell has promised to fly to her home in a plane and have a date with her. She may even go so far as to tell the family doctor that she is going to have a child by some star who never heard of her. And the last step, as has happened more than once, is an asylum for the insane.

You may remember Frank Parker's article in RADIO GUIDE entitled "Love Begins At Thirty." Within a week after it was published Frank had a hundred offers of marriage. The women listed their qualifications as shamelessly, in some cases, as if they had been stockyard auctioneers describing prime heifers, rather than their own bodies and souls.

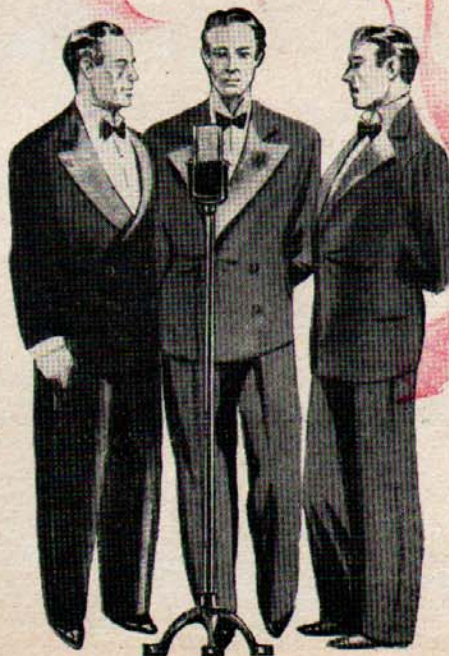

IT SEEMS there is a large portion of America's womanhood who would gladly marry for money, even overlooking the humiliation of becoming the wife of an orchestra leader," says Abe Lyman. His tone is cynical, but it is the pardonable bitterness of disillusionment; for Abe has been receiving fan letters for twenty years and knows all too well what they are like. "No—all is not romance with them!" he concludes glumly. On his personal-appearance tours he has had women actually accost him—jump out at him from behind potted palms in hotel lobbies, chase him down the street, tear his coat, and do everything but drop him in his tracks with a flying tackle.

Here is a letter that came to Nelson Eddy:

Your wonderful voice is still ringing in my ears as I write. Sweet Mystery of Life—ah, it is the sweet mystery of my life that I know you and can write to you. I've already told you how much your music means to me. Now my one dream is to meet you. Where there's a will there's a way—so the old saying goes—so I shall never give up hoping.

FRANCIA WHITE DOESN'T WANT BRIGHT LIGHTS—BUT DOWN-TO-EARTH LIVING!

BY

CHARLES REMSON

GATHER 'round, you girls who envy radio and movie stars their beauty. Step right up, you lads who are looking for a "different" sort of girl. Attention, you mothers and dads who don't quite know what to do with those zippy twentieth century youngsters of yours.

I want you to meet radio's girl in a million—Francia White! You know her as the lady with the delicious, lilting voice who sings as one of Fred Astaire's stars on the Packard hour each Tuesday night.

But she is more than that!

Francia White is the lone enemy of Hollywood's hokus-pokus. The girl who says: "You don't need glamor. You don't need important friends. You don't need romance. You don't even need great talent. No matter what the rule-books say, you can have success and happiness without any of these things!"

"Oh, yes?" I can almost hear a sardonic chorus from RADIO GUIDE readers. Well, we can prove it! I mean Francia can. I am only setting down what happens to be true—

That Francia White had "glamor" once, but discarded it as she would a too gaudy hat. That she could, if she wanted to, look like a movie star, but she doesn't choose to dazzle. That she could be a social queen, but scorns the insincerity of such a position. That she could match the endless, trivial romances of stars in Hollywood, but tilts her pert nose in disdain at the mere thought of it.

Back of all this is an untold love story. It begins with Francia White as a wiry, peppy and personable creature of fourteen. At this age she met a young high school chap who became her first "steady" beau. For the purposes of this story he shall be known as Don. This was just the usual high school affair. Don carried Francia's books home, quarreled with her occasionally and as often made up, took her to dances and generally monopolized her time. The two continued their romance into college.

WHAT finally separated the two youngsters was Francia's decision to join the Fanchon and Marco studio as a dancer. When she went touring with a ballet group, however, she made it a point to let Don know when she would be playing a town near the school at which he was studying medicine. On these occasions, he'd duck away from the campus for a while, during which they would pick up the threads of their long-distance romance.

You know how young people are. On one of their meetings, Don was considerably upset over an exam he had flunked. He saw Francia out in the world doing things. Years of work stretched ahead before he could hang out his doctor's shingle. How did he know whether this was really the career for which he was destined?

Francia, already schooled to hard knocks, laughed at him and gave him a friendly scolding. Was he going to be a quitter? Why, she thought he had more backbone than that! So, for the first time she and Don separated without bothering to patch up the quarrel that had been smoked up in the midst of an argument between sweethearts.

FRANCIA went her way, Don his. And those gods of fate who rule young love must have shrugged their shoulders and smiled as they made a note to get these two together again. But somehow the gods suffered a lapse of memory, for Don met another girl and quite abruptly they were married!

You may be sure that when Francia heard the news she was considerably upset.

This explains the why of Francia's utter independence of men in general, though as a child she was brought up with exactly the opposite idea in mind.

"I don't expect things from any man. I don't want him to hold my chair for me, insist on my going through a door first or put on my wrap. Heck, women nowadays are out earning their own living! They're in professions, they vote. Why shouldn't they be capable of pouring cream in their own coffee or putting on their coats without assistance?"

So there you have a girl who is not yet thirty getting along very well, thank you, without marriage, without falling in and out of love frequently,

Radio's The-in-a-

as those around her are doing. Yet, she is essentially a happy person.

But if Francia's reasons for blithely disregarding love in her scheme of things seems odd, her utter contempt for that prime essential known as "glamor" is really startling.

Mention glamor, and she says: "What of it? Where do you get it and how? If anyone can prove it has advantages, I'll be glad to take a bottle. Oh yes, I have been glamorous. During one whole radio season I was known as 'that glamorous young California prima donna.' Immediately I had to live up to the name—

"A new evening gown once a week and all the things that go with it. New street clothes, do's and don'ts from the publicity department so that the illusion wouldn't be disturbed.

"And so what? There is something essentially useless about pretending to be an orchid morning, noon and night. My singing wasn't one bit different, and here I was putting on a big front for a few hundred people who attended each broadcast. The thousands listening in would have liked me just as well if I had been wearing overalls!"

So Francia gave up glamor. Her friends liked her better that way. And just for the sake of proving her point, I convinced the unglamorous Miss White to let herself in for one of those typical Hollywood "duco finishes" for the picture you see on this page, just so RADIO GUIDE readers could decide for themselves whether she's right or not.

In the beginning I told you Francia insists that talent isn't a prime essential. Let's modify that a bit—to be a successful radio star you must have something that can be developed into talent by hard work.

FOR instance, before Francia did much of anything in the entertainment world, she heard that producers were looking for girls to appear in a play called "Good News," which was to open at the Mayan theater in Los Angeles. She rushed over and found out that they wanted only blondes.

Being strictly brunet, she hurried away and procured a wig. They gave her a trial, and she created a minor sensation. But just as she was about to sign, the director, who had been watching her closely, said, "Take off that wig! Now, can you dance?"

"Of course!" Francia exclaimed, thinking he meant ballet.

"Okay, report for rehearsal tomorrow morning."

She reported all right, but the director asked her to do a "buck-and-wing." She didn't know what he was talking about and was fired on the spot!

Now, this is the point. She didn't have talent for tap-dancing, but this failure was a challenge. She went out and learned to tap even though by now she had no reason to. But several years later she was stranded in New York.

"I didn't know quite what I was going to do," she remembers, "but I was composing a wire home that ran something like—'love and kisses and please send me some dough-re-mi,' when an agency called and asked if I could tap-dance. I could, so out I went in a road show. I danced, played the piano and sang. In fact, I did everything but pull the curtain. Would I have had all this grand experience if I hadn't been fired for not knowing how to tap-dance? I don't have to give the answer to that one."

There is another answer Francia doesn't have to give to an old, old theory about radio—that anyone has to have influential friends to get somewhere in the business. Hard work, an inner zest and charm, gave her a voice that couldn't be ignored. She didn't have to make "contacts" at parties or kowtow to executives to get her chance—all of which falls under the classification of what she terms "apple-polishing."

And what does she mean exactly by apple-polishing?

"Don't you remember," she explains, "when there were always one or two kids in your class at school who always brought teacher a brightly polished apple? As I recall it, only ten percent were apple-polishers and the other ninety percent hated them for it. But it seems that when people grow older a lot of them weaken and go in for it, with the result that it seems to be an accepted formula for success in radio or movies."

AS FOR going to cocktail parties with the hope that some important mogul will discover you, Francia laughs!

"I hate parties. Nothing is worse punishment for me than to have to 'sit up for company.' It seems so stupid to go to a party where you spend an evening with a lot of people you don't know, eating and drinking a load of things you'd never choose yourself!"

Can you help but warm to a girl like that? A songstress who could easily afford to put on airs and make-up as thick as a snobbish prima-donna on her opera debut, but who chooses not to?

You ought to see her as I have, standing before the mike during the Astaire rehearsals, mink coat draped carelessly across her shoulders, lovely dark hair tumbling almost to her shoulders, one hand on her hip with an utterly feminine air of swagger!

Francia White is genuine!

You can understand her when she says: "I can't stand hypocrisy in anything. Sometimes I wish I could be a little more flexible, but there are some things that get under my skin, and try as I may I can't be nice about them."

"One of these is broken promises. I guess that too has stuck with me from childhood. When my parents promised me anything I got it. Included were a good many spankings. Some of the spankings I got lasted twice as long as they might have because I wouldn't promise not to repeat the thing I was being spanked for. So when Mother finally gave up in disgust, the road was open for me to step out and earn myself another spanking.

"Sometimes even now I earn a spanking. If I do, I can take it. This is my life and I'll live it my own way!"

Would you change a girl like that?

Francia White may be heard Tuesdays on Fred Astaire's program over an NBC network at 9:30 p.m. EST (8:30 CST; 7:30 MST; 6:30 PST).

Left: Francia all dressed up and glamorous! But she doesn't like it!

Picking the Hits with Lombardo and his band. They play the hit-songs first!

IF YOU had bought $5,000 worth of a certain radio stock in 1931, today you'd be worth nearly half a million dollars! But you didn't. And why didn't you? The answer is simple: you didn't know which stock to pick!

As in the stock market, so in the song market. If you can pick the winners before the race, you'll be wealthy. That's why Guy Lombardo is rich—rich in hit-songs! He's America's champion song-picker!

When the average number of songs that attain to nation-wide popularity in half a year is only about thirty, it's an astounding feat for one man to pick and introduce twenty best-selling tunes within that time. And Guy Lombardo did just that during the last six months of 1936!

Remember "When Did You Leave Heaven"? Certainly you do! You've hardly had a chance to forget it. That was a Lombardo discovery. So was "In the Chapel in the Moonlight." So was "When My Dream Boat Comes Home," "I Love You From Coast to Coast," and "It's De-lovely."

Recalling the list of recent Lombardo first-choices is enough to make you tune-dizzy. "I'm Riding High" leads the parade. Then there's "You Do the Darndest Things, Baby," "With Plenty of Money and You," "Sweetheart, Let's Grow Old Together," "That's Life, I Guess," "I Stumbled Over Love," "Now That Summer Is Gone," "I Was Saying to the Moon," "An Apple A Day," and "Same Old Line."

No, Guy Lombardo isn't infallible—but he's a little better than the best competition in the business!

HOW does he do it? Listen to Guy explain his success himself:

"Getting the songs is the easiest part of our job," he says. "We don't have to look for them. They're handed to us by the hundreds. Song-writers, music publishers and 'pluggers' camp on the doorstep, begging us to take their products. The problem is to choose from all these—and choose wisely.

"The selection of tunes is just as important as the way in which the

DO YOU KNOW A SONG IS A HIT—BEFORE IT IS A HIT?
GUY LOMBARDO DOES—
THAT'S WHY HE'S TOPS!

orchestra plays them. The numbers we introduce are identified with us, and if they aren't up to standard, we suffer for it. The audience doesn't know exactly what's wrong, but the natural inclination is to blame the band.

"It isn't a simple matter to analyze a hit before the song is launched. After it becomes successful, one can explain its popularity—it's unique, beautiful, catchy, and so on. But beforehand, when the composition in question is just one of many, diagnosis of its qualities takes real skill and discernment.

"The judgment of melodies requires a combination of common sense and good musical judgment. After a number of years in the business, one gets to the point where he can 'spot' a hit almost the instant it's played. But nobody can be right all the time!"

And that's why Carmen Lombardo has twelve hats!

Remember "When Did You Leave Heaven"? Did you know, the first time you heard it, that it would be a smash hit? No? Well, for once, neither did Guy Lombardo. But Carmen, his saxophone-playing brother, knew—and he has a dozen hats to prove it!

"When Did You Leave Heaven?" was submitted to the Royal Canadians last Summer with another number published by the same concern: the hit "Did I Remember?"

"Did I Remember?" will be a hit," the publisher wrote, "but the other isn't important. I just thought you might want it for your music library."

GUY LOMBARDO and all the boys of the band except Carmen agreed with the publisher's judgment. Carmen insisted that "When Did You Leave Heaven?" was slated for the top. To back up his argument, Carmen offered to bet a hat on the song. And every man in the orchestra, including Guy, took him up on it.

Not long ago the song hit the top and Carmen collected a dozen hats—the very best hats, too!

Brother Carmen is Guy's right-hand man in the difficult business of picking hit-songs. He knows a hit when he sees one; he should, he has written enough of them! And he has his own rigorous standards.

"A hit must be natural!" says Carmen. "The song's message should be so natural that people listening to it will say to themselves, 'Why, I've often thought that, too—I could have written that song myself!'"

Guy looks for simplicity, sentiment, infectious rhythm and lyrics that can be understood by everyone, and the brothers agree that a hit-song must express emotions which everyone has experienced at one time or another—love, grief, exaltation, regret.

If you'll think back, you'll notice that nearly every top hit-song falls into one of these four categories. Love? That's too easy. Grief? Remember "Gloomy Sunday." Exaltation? "I'm Riding High" fits that one. Regret? You've heard "Now That Summer Is Gone." And all these are simple songs; that is, the central theme around which they are built is simple, but beautifully presented.

LACK of this essential simplicity is one reason The Royal Canadians have avoided being the first to play songs out of the big musical comedies. They are usually too tricky and complicated, both in rhyme and rhythm, to become popular as dance music.

Songs by the so-called "sophisticated" writers, men like Cole Porter and Noel Coward, often depend for their effect on highly involved, complex lyrics and comparatively subtle melodies, and because of these factors, often do not achieve national success. Nor are they intended to do so.

"We don't want to give the radio public music lessons," Guy Lombardo says. "We don't want to make our music hard to listen to. If an unfamiliar song is too involved to be appreciated 'at first sight,' it is not our place to educate audiences to it."

Songs written for the movies, on the other hand, are considered excellent material, because they are intended for a universal audience. Films go into every city, small town and hamlet from Coast to Coast.

HOLLYWOOD, always in search of established talent, has drawn the best Tin Pan Alley writers, men who know the ingredients of a hit-song so well that they have reduced the matter to a formula. Their songs are scientifically designed to make the widest possible appeal, and that's just what they do!

Lombardo has the privilege of choice of such melodies, too. Before "Follow the Fleet" was released, he was offered seven songs from the picture, two of which he introduced: "But Where Are You?" and "I'm Putting All My Eggs In One Basket."

Back in the year 1924 of the wild and wicked "flapper era" Guy Lombardo introduced the first of the long list of hit-songs that was destined to make his reputation as a tune prophet. The song was "Gimme A Little Kiss, Will Ya, Huh?" and you probably still remember it now, thirteen years later. Since that time, The Royal Canadians have been first with so many hits that Guy himself can't remember them all. Try these over on your mental piano!

"You're Driving Me Crazy," "Little White Lies," "When the Organ Plays at Twilight," "Moonlight Saving Time," "You're Gonna Lose Your Gal," "Stars Fell On Alabama," "Annie Doesn't Live Here Any More," "When I Grow Too Old To Dream," "I Just Couldn't Say Good-by," "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?" "Little By Little," "Heartaches," "Blue Moon," fluence him in consideration of it. He plays no favorites, accepts no "cuts" or commissions, guards himself carefully against prejudice, and insists that the music publishers are doing him a favor in submitting songs to him—not vice versa!

That's a startling attitude for an orchestra leader to adopt! Musicians are the legitimate prey of song-pluggers, of course, and as such, they are bedeviled and harried with a rare persistence. Publishers' agents camp on their door-steps, haunt their offices, and lurk in wait for them in unsuspected places. But Guy Lombardo recognizes that they are both necessary and important, and he treats them accordingly.

Lombardo refuses lots of songs, of course—and for lots of reasons. Once he decides to refuse a song, he's not to be moved by arguments about the prominence of the composer, the number of great hits he's written, or any such considerations. Guy Lombardo listens to the song, and if he doesn't like it—he doesn't play it, and that's that. Recently he refused "The Girl in the Police Gazette," an Irving Berlin song from the film "On The Avenue." Although he accepted other songs from the same show, Guy felt that this one wasn't the type that could achieve national acclaim.

Guy Lombardo

Aboard ship! From rear, Victor, Carmen, Guy and Leibert Lombardo

CLEAN lyrics and danceable melodies of strong appeal to the majority of the people are what Guy is always looking for. He is vindicated not only by the success of most of his choices, but by the fact that the songs he rejects seldom "catch on" elsewhere.

A regular feature of Guy's Sunday evening broadcast is his Song of Tomorrow—one new song introduced each week as a potential top-notcher. In exchange for presenting these new melodies, Guy is granted exclusive playing rights for a period of four or five weeks, following which the selections are released to other orchestras.

Guy Lombardo is of course an earnest student of song trends, and his observations often lead him to amusing conclusions.

"All song-writers are moon-struck," he announced the other day. "They never get over it. Other song subjects may run in cycles, but the moon is always a favorite. Like 'Moon Over Miami,' 'Rocky Mountain Moon' and 'Moonlight on the Ganges' of seasons past, there has been no hit in the last five months to equal 'Chapel in the Moonlight.' Song-writers are moon-struck—but they love it!"

Guy's own favorite song has nothing to do with the moon, concerns itself not at all with young love, and never saw Tin Pan Alley. It's his own signature song—"Auld Lang Syne!"

"Broken Record," "It's Been So Long," "Whistling in the Dark," "I'll Get By," "My Fate Is In Your Hands," "Lullaby of the Leaves," "Too Many Tears," "Sweet and Lovely."

The Royal Canadians have introduced all of Carmen Lombardo's hit-tunes, of course. You remember "Snuggled On Your Shoulder," "Sweethearts On Parade" and "Coquette."

But even Carmen often has trouble "plugging" his songs with Guy. The first of the Lombardos is almost fanatical in his determination to allow nothing outside the song itself to in-

Guy Lombardo may be heard Sundays over a CBS network at 5:30 p.m. EST (4:30 CST; 3:30 MST; 2:30 PST).

An All-American Singer's

Life Story

by rose
bampton

THIS is the last instalment of my story, so I shall try to cram all the advice I can into it for those of you who want to sing.

Last week I told you how to choose, for your early training, a teacher located somewhere near you. Here are the things you should get from that teacher:

1. Help in developing your voice production.
2. Musicianship; the desire to know better music, along with the technical side of it. You should know what goes into the making even of a simple scale that a child might sing. A musical background. Repertoire. The selection of songs suitable for your voice.
3. Your ear developments. The pupil must be conscious at all times of true pitch.
4. Learning how to listen to music to learn the most from it.

HERE radio is helpful to all of us. Most of the voices you hear on the air today are examples of good singing without forcing of tone. When Bing Crosby first sang, he stood close to the mike. Now when you hear him you think he must be standing close to it, but actually he stands much farther away today than he used to. I have watched him. He has improved his voice so that it is no longer necessary for him to croon. Listen to the singers on the air today and you will fall into habits—good habits—of singing without strain.

If you are to be a singer, you must also be a scholar. If you are the sort of person who hated to study in school I advise you to give up any thought of a musical career at once. (Unless the one subject you didn't hate was music.) For instance, at the very start you must learn at least three languages, Italian, French and German. And you must learn them not as you do in high school, where you get simply a reading knowledge, but well enough to speak them fluently. You must also learn to play an instrument.

If you go to the Curtis or another institute you will find that everybody has to take piano lessons. Of course you must be able to read music.

Don't think for a moment that this musical background and ability to read is unimportant. Once, singing the part of Siebel in "Faust" in concert form, I suddenly felt people on the stage nudging me and whispering to me that I must sing the role of Marguerite as soon as I finished my own. The girl who was singing Marguerite had sat down after an earlier solo and completely forgotten that she was to sing again. The score was thrust into my hands. I had never seen it in my life. I had to read and sing it at sight, and I did. Such emergencies are liable to come up at any moment for you, and you must be prepared to meet them.

Now, what are some things you can do by yourself, when you are not with your teacher?

A breathing exercise which I recommend is that of panting, just the way a dog pants, for a few minutes. Rest for ten or fifteen minutes and then pant again for a bit.

Another exercise: Lie on your bed and take a deep breath so that the arch of your back makes a straight line and touches the bed. Then exhale as slowly as you can. The floor is even better than your bed. Count as you inhale and as you exhale. The object is to make the count longer and longer.

THEN lie on the floor with a heavy book on your diaphragm and breathe rhythmically. (You may remember seeing Grace Moore do it in the movies.) The biggest breath comes from the back of the chest, not from the front.

Don't be self-conscious about your work or your practising. Don't be discouraged by ridicule. Your family may laugh at you, but so have other singers' families. If you are sincere in your work you can take an untold amount of teasing. Every young singer must be sure of his or her course,

A GREAT STAR WHO

GLORY—WITH YOU!

"Ah, you must go to Europe to be a great singer," teachers said. But Rose Bampton studied in America, went later to Europe to thrill great audiences!

have courage, and be swerved away from the goal by nothing in the world.

And remember this. As you practise, be critically aware of what you are doing! Merely going through the motions is worse than useless. Concentrate on your exercises. Concentrate on your tone. Always sing correctly. Stop singing at once when you begin to feel a strain and become tense. Learn to relax.

Practise with a mirror is excellent. It teaches you to become visual-minded. Often, when you produce a fine tone, a glance at your mirror will help you to remember the positions of your lips and tongue. A mirror helps you, in addition, to overcome bad habits of facial expression. Grace Moore and Gladys Swarthout, Lily Pons and Jeanette MacDonald would never look so beautiful while they're singing on the screen if they didn't practise with their hand- or full-length mirrors.

READ all the musical biography you can locate. For a start I suggest the biographies of Maria Malibran, Calve, Sembrich, de Reszke, Caruso and Garcia. Also read:

The Unknown Brahms, by Schaffler

The Art of Singing, by Lily Lehmann

Study these Bach numbers, which are fine exercises and great music.

Laudamus, Qui Tollis, Agnus Dei, all three from the Mass in B Minor. Twenty Sacred Songs by Bach. Solos from the Sacred Cantatas, 1st and 2nd series.

To develop your sense of rhythm, practise swinging your arms and legs in different tempos as you walk to and from work. For instance, walk in four and swing your arms in three. If you think it's easy just try it!

As for your health, it is very important to be healthy and happy and rested at all times. A violinist may go to a party, stay up all night, and play well the next day. The violin is his instrument. But you as a singer are your own instrument and late hours will be reflected the next day in every tone.

Swimming and horseback riding in my opinion are perhaps the best exercises of all for singers. Riding, especially, improves the circulation.

HEAR as much music as you can. There are few towns too small to have a concert group of some sort. Join a chorus. (There is no better way to learn the great choral works!) Go to hear all the singers who come to your town. If you tell them at the box-office that you are a student they will probably give you a reduced rate on your ticket.

Should you make up your mind as to the type of music you are best suited to sing and then stick to that to the exclusion of anything else? Well—yes and no. It is a good thing, naturally, to “size yourself up” and consider the scope of your voice. On the other hand, don't have too many hazards for yourself. Nothing will be so damaging to your career as the inferiority complex resulting from a feeling that you can't encompass any field of reasonable scope.

For instance, I was discouraged in my early days about opera. They told me that my height was against me and that I would never be a success in opera because I was so tall. As a matter of fact, my height has been a great asset to me in opera. A tall woman can give such a character as Anneris, to name one, a commanding presence.

In conclusion—what are your chances of success? The American-born, American-trained singer has a better chance of reaching the top in his chosen field today than ever before. We are all of us, as Americans, pro-American, you know. You have the sympathy of your future audience with you from the start.

The plan which you should lay out for yourself runs something like this:

1. Learn all you can by yourself.
2. Study with a teacher near you, at first.
3. From your teacher, or one of the great musical foundations, learn the name of a musical preparatory school. Go there when you think you are ready for it. If they agree you are ready, a place may be made for you.

4. After your preparatory work, apply for admission to one of the big American schools on the list I gave you last week.

Does it work?

That depends entirely upon what sort of voice God gave you, plus your personal integrity, stamina and intelligence. As for myself, I spent five years at the Curtis Institute. During my fifth year, an audition was arranged for me at the Metropolitan Opera House. I sang just after singing in my first concert in New York and, either for that reason or because I had to take a bus to and from Philadelphia to save money, I sang badly. Anyway, I made another audition a month later and—realized my dream, the offer of a contract! I was still not completely certain that I was ready. Finally, however, I signed a contract for three years on a cautious weekly basis. Then after a year they gave me a new contract on the performance basis, which is the arrangement made for the better artists. Needless to say, it was a great compliment.

DURING my first year at the Met I was lucky enough to be chosen by Stokowski to sing in his concert version of “Parsifal.” I sang the role of Kundry, a great experience. At the end of my second year I went to England for the first time and sang at the Golden Jubilee festivities and gave a concert at Lady Astor's home. I had five weeks there. But I think my greatest thrill came last year when I sang twice with Maestro Toscanini—first Debussy's “Blessed Damosel” and then, later, the Beethoven Ninth Symphony. This year I have been twice to the Coast and I am on my way to Florida as you read this. I expect to be in England for concerts during the Coronation and then I shall do another European tour. But it is only because I am firmly on my feet here at home that I feel ready to go abroad.

So, you see—it works!

Good luck! My heartfelt wishes for your success are with you!

American singers have more chance of success now than ever before. Rose Bampton believes. She should know!

MUSIC... of the Masters

BY CARLETON SMITH

Artist of the Week
RUGGIERO RICCI

RUGGIERO RICCI is the violinist's choice for top-honors among the youthful prodigies who have been cluttering up the newspapers and the concert halls during our bristling nineteen-thirties. Not so successfully exploited as others of his youthful colleagues, Ruggiero—who wants to be known as Roger—has a talent and an individuality all his own, which many authorities profess to prefer to that of other more highly press-agented and, perhaps, more colorful boy violinists. In a matter of taste, your preference should be your own.

When you tune in Sunday, observe the vigorous attack, the beauty and boldness of the tone, the cleanness of the rapid passages, the exactness of pitch in the double-stops and, above all, the sincerity of feeling which inspires his playing, and which makes his performance a joy to the understanding listener. ("In his playing," it has been said, "you will find all the lyricism and fiery passion of his race. For, although he was born in this country, his parentage is Italian.")

He has a quaint little clipped accent, peculiarly his own, and his opinions definitely are his own. If you know and understand him, he is a charming and agreeable companion. With strangers, he is shy in manner. At home, he is the "life of the party."

HE loves to fish and ride his bicycle and drive his car. Every Spring he wants to take part in the local baseball nine, but such sports are forbidden. His violin playing necessarily takes precedence over all sports in his life. As you watch him during an ordinary conversation, the fingers of his left hand move against his palm as though he were playing.

His taste in music is ultra-serious. His favorite composer is Beethoven. He hates jazz. In literature, he enjoys history most. Fiction does not interest him.

"Why read about something that never happened?" he asks. When he is performing, nothing confuses him. There he shows his genius.

Saturday, April 17, when the curtain falls on the Metropolitan Opera's performance of Carmen in Cleveland, the most successful operatic broadcast season in history will be ended. Nineteen full-length performances of seventeen operas will have been broadcast—Hansel and Gretel and Carmen were each given twice—to an audience living on three continents. A dramatization of each opera's plot was broadcast on an evening during the week of the opera's performance. The Metropolitan Opera Guild gave a series of "pep talks," informative and entertaining, on a week-day afternoon. Sixty-three singers were auditioned before the microphone, and two, Maxine Stelman of Brattleboro, Vermont, and Thomas L. Thomas of Scranton, Pennsylvania, were awarded contracts for the Metropolitan's Spring season beginning next month.

IN CASE you care, of the operas broadcast this season, none was in English, five were in Italian, and French and German each claimed six. We heard more than half of the company's entire current repertoire, seventeen out of thirty-three operas.

The English operas which we did not hear were Richard Hageman's Caponcacci, Domenico Cimarosa's Il Matrimonio Segreto, presented as The Secret Marriage, and Smetana's The Bartered Bride. The two operas in French not broadcast were Rimsky-Korsakoff's Le Coq d'Or and Delibes' Lakme. Five Wagnerian music-dramas, Gotterdammerung, Parsifal, Der Flie- heard this season. Here they are:

- December 24—Hansel and Gretel, with Irene Jessner and Queena Mario.
- December 26—Samson and Delilah, with Gertrud Wettergren, Rene Maizon, and Ezio Pinza.
- January 2—Tristan and Isolde, with Flagstad, Thorberg and Melchior.
- January 9—Carmen, with Rosa Ponselle, Raynor and Pinza.
- January 16—Die Walkure, with Marjorie Lawrence, Lotte Lehmann, Thorberg and Melchior.
- January 23—Tales of Hoffman, with Andreeva, Burke, Tibbett and Maizon.
- January 30—Siegfried, with Melchior, Flagstad, Thorberg, Hofmann and List.
- February 6—Aida, with Cigna, Martinelli, Castagna and Morelli.
- February 13—Manon, with Sayao, Maizon, Bonelli and Baromeo.
- February 20—Norma, with Cigna, Castagna, Martinelli and Pinza.
- February 27—Lucia, with Lily Pons, Frederick Jagel and John Brownlee.
- March 6—Traviata, with Sayao, Kullmann and Brownlee.
- March 13—Mignon, with Swarthout, Antoine, Hackett and Pinza.
- March 20—Faust, with Helen Jepson, Richard Crooks and Pinza.
- March 27—Lohengrin, with Flagstad, Maizon, Hofmann, et. al.
- April 3—Das Rheingold.
- April 10—Cavalleria Rusticana and Hansel and Gretel.
- April 17—Carmen.

Additional good news comes in the announcement that the Metropolitan box-office had its best Winter since 1930 and therefore next season is being extended to sixteen weeks, with all artists getting contracts for two years. This is the first time in six years that arrangements have been considered for more than one season at a time. Radio's influence on music is growing.

THE box-office reports Tristan and Isolde its best-seller, was also Broadway's first attraction: Eight performances brought an intake of $120,000, whereas two Broadway hits, for example, in a week of eight performances, drew only nineteen and fifteen thousand dollars apiece. The conclusion must be that Wagnerian opera with Flagstad is exceedingly popular. According to Mr. Olin Downes in the New York Times, "Public taste in opera has developed prodigiously in late years. A very important force in this development has unquestionably been the radio." This is the same radio that a decade ago was expected to kill music.

Sunday the Philharmonic-Symphony comes to its penultimate broadcast with a broadcast of Honegger's King David, Agnes Davis, Frederick Jagel as soloists, and Paul Leyssac as narrator. On April 18 we will bid the famous orchestra farewell until next Fall.

Ruggiero Ricci: "For top honors among prodigies" gunde Hollander, Tannhauser, and Der Meistersinger, and six Italian operas: two by Verdi, Il Trovatore and Rigoletto; two by Puccini, Madama Butterfly and La Boheme; Leoncavallo's I Pagliacci, and Ponchielli's La Gioconda, were not aired this season.

If there are any of these you particularly want to hear, send a note to Edward Johnson, Metropolitan Opera House, 39th and Broadway, New York City. He wants to know your preferences in regard to them.

For the amusement of his own children—the story goes—Engelbert Humperdinck wrote the fairy-tale opera "Hansel and Gretel." It is said that he had no intention of publishing it. It is a pretty little tale, treated with a spontaneous, light, deft touch. It is not, however, in consequence by reason of these things. Humperdinck was an extremely competent musician, with a deep and scholarly understanding of his art. "Hansel and Gretel" everywhere shows evidence of his instinctively fine workmanship.

As the opera opens, we find a family scene in the house of the Broom-Maker. Father and Mother have gone to market, leaving Hansel and Gretel behind. They are singing old songs and playing. Their mother returns, cross and tired, and the children complain of hunger. There is nothing to eat, so she sends them into the woods to pick strawberries, warning them to stay away from the Isenstein, a bewitched place inhabited by an old hag who entices children into her house, bakes them in gingerbread, and eats them. Act II, which is very brief, finds the children in the woods. Tired, they lie down as darkness comes, say their prayers, and are put to sleep by The Sandman.

The children are roused by Dewman, the Dawn Fairy, as Act III opens. The morning mist blows away, disclosing a wonderful gingerbread house. Hansel begins to nibble at it, and the witch pops out. Soon Hansel is in the barn, being fed almonds and raisins to fatten him for the roasting. Gretel is ordered to stoke the fire, but she traps the witch and pushes her into the oven. Hansel is soon free, and as the witch is burned, many little boys and girls who were her victims are restored to life.

Cavalleria Rusticana "Cavalleria Rusticana" enjoyed a quicker success on presentation than almost any other Italian opera. The composer, Pietro Mascagni, was an obscure music teacher when the opera was produced, but he became, overnight, the reigning sensation of all Italy.

Written in competition for a prize offered by Sozegno, a music publisher of Milan, "Cavalleria Rusticana" was turned out by Mascagni in eight days. The reception accorded it was frantically enthusiastic; Mascagni, still in his twenties, was hailed as a genius.

The story of the opera is of extreme simplicity. Turiddu, a young Sicilian, comes home from the wars to find his old sweetheart, Lola, married to Alfio, and in anger he makes love to Santuzza. Later, however, he takes advantage of Alfio's temporary absence from home to renew his relations with Lola. Angry and hurt, Santuzza informs Alfio, the men fight, and Turiddu is slain. On Easter Morning, in a Sicilian village, the opera begins with an orchestral prelude, and the voice of Turiddu is heard singing the "Siciliana," one of the most popular airs in an opera noted particularly for them. The people are going to the little church across the square from the inn owned by Lucia, mother of Turiddu.

Lucia is stopped by Santuzza, who wishes to know of Turiddu's whereabouts. She tells his mother of Turiddu's faithfulness to her. Lucia is not surprised, and tries to console the girl, who threatens vengeance. Lucia enters the church, and a moment later Turiddu appears, to quarrel violently with Santuzza. Lola appears, and enters the church, asking Turiddu to follow. Despite Santuzza's entreaties, he does so. Now comes Alfio, and Santuzza, enraged, tells him of Turiddu's love for his wife. He promises revenge.

In Scene II, Alfio has that revenge. He sees Turiddu and Lola drinking a toast, and approaches them. Offered a drink by Turiddu, he refuses, and a challenge is quickly made. The end comes soon. Bidding farewell to his mother, and asking her to take care of Santuzza, Turiddu rushes away, and shortly afterward the crowd is told that he has been killed by Alfio.

This writer wants me to ask you a question—and your replies will be the compass by which the future course of that story's plot will be set. . . . Here's the situation: A man has confessed to his wife that he loves another woman. . . . Now: (1) Isn't it immoral for him to continue living with his wife? (2) Would not divorce be the moral solution? (3) Isn't the second woman in a love triangle often right and justified? . . . Tapping on their glasses at the Merchandise Mart restaurant, Baritone Ed Davies and Hugh (Fibber's "Silly Watson") Studebaker began an argument over the pitch of the glasses' tinkle. Ed held out for A, but Actor Hugh, an ex-organist, insisted it was a C. Dramatically Speaking: Kaltmeyer Kindergarten's Yonny Yonson, played by Thor Ericson, expects to have his spare-time composition, "It's Time to Love Again," published soon. . . . The same show's Daisy Dean (Cecil Roy), who has a 6-year-old boy of her own, received a letter whose writer wished to adopt "Little Daisy"!

FOR a time rumors had it that Nelson Eddy would be head man of a new, one-hour variety show which would replace the current Sunday night "Do You Want To Be An Actor?" program at the end of its present contract. We're told that Edgar Bergen and his pal, Charley MacCarthy will also be part of the show to supply the comedy.

The NBC Rex Chandler show not only changes time but talent as well. Countess Albani and the vocal group known as the Caroleers depart from the show, with Richard Bonelli, the Metropolitan opera baritone, and Alec Templeton, blind genius of the ivories, coming in. Rex Chandler and the Landt Trio remain.

Mentioning Rex Chandler reminds me of an interesting story told to me recently. It seems Chandler is a friend of Larry Marsh who conducts the same sponsor's show on the CBS net. Marsh was playing the harp under Eugene Ormandy when he met Chandler, who was then an organist and choir director. They became very close friends and worked together often. When Rex took sick and had to leave town, Larry carried on the work. When Waring de-

Their contract had a few more weeks to go but they received a call from Hollywood to appear in Jack Benny's next picture and decided to go west and drop the radio show entirely, rather than pay the huge line charges from California out of their salary. Indications are that the entire show will undergo a change and revision in a few weeks in any event.

decided to leave the auto programs, the motor moguls called Chandler to Detroit to present an idea for a radio program. Chandler in turn called on his friend Marsh for guidance. Larry organized the orchestra, arranged and rehearsed it, but Rex was the one hired. His friend wasn't forgotten, because Chandler persuaded his new boss to give Larry the job on the CBS show. He got it and the boys are happy. There's a real friendship—heartening, sincere.

Getting back to program notes, I want to tell you that Schlemperman's brief appearances on the Jack Benny shows from New York created so much talk there is a strong possibility of the comic going to Hollywood soon to become a permanent member of the top-ranking comedian's program in the Cinema City.

As many of you probably know, Walter Winchell broadcasts his exclusive flashes twice each Sunday night. The earlier airing is for listeners in the East, and the repeat is for the West Coast-loudspeaker eavesdroppers. On Sunday, March 28, during his first period, the ace news dispenser directed a flash to Police Commissioner Valentine of New York suggesting that he send a detective up to the studio for a tip on the triple Easter Sunday murder. We tuned in the Winchell repeat broadcast from WBAP, Fort Worth, Texas, and heard him tell his audience of the flash on the early show and how the police officer arrived in the studios before he had finished his newscasting, the first time.

The auto broadcast with Fred Astaire and Charles Butterworth will come to an end for the Summer months when the present thirteen-week option expires in June. The agency handling will make no effort to save the present time, as it is not deemed the best obtainable. They will take their chances on securing a more desirable time in the Fall.

Studio Stick-Up!

THEY COULD BEAT UP TWO MEN
—BUT THEY COULDN'T BEAT RADIO!

"This is a stick-up, see? Hand it over—and quick!"

THEY were tough but natty, those two youths. And as they entered his little studio, the photographer, Salvatore Caputo, met them with a professional smile. Customers, he thought—and all dressed up to be snapped.

"Do you take pictures?" the younger one asked.

"Oh yes, of course," replied Caputo, still smiling.

"Then take a picture of this!"

Caputo's eyes widened. His smile vanished. For this was a revolver and there was a sneer upon the sallow young face of the man who held it.

"This is a stick-up, see?" the other youth announced. "Get it? A stick-up! Hand over your dough and be plenty quick about it."

Salvatore Caputo half raised quivering hands. He backed to a desk in the corner of the studio. The scowling youngster with the gun kept it pointed at his stomach.

"Don't shoot!" murmured Caputo.

"I've got—there's money—here. Over $300. But don't shoot!"

"Now you're talking," said the man who had no gun. "Well, get it up!"

Caputo fumbled with the drawer of the desk, got it open, then opened a green metal cash-box. He seized a double handful of bills.

"You take it. I'll keep him covered," said the kid with the gun. And the other man snatched the money and stuffed it into his pockets.

"Okay," he said. "And now—"

Abruptly, the young thug stopped speaking. For there had sounded, quite clearly, the opening of a door. The youngster with the revolver stepped back so that he could cover the photographer and whoever might enter that door. Black eyes gleamed viciously in his pointed, dark face. His trigger-finger was quivering.

The door opened. A husky, dark youngster of about twenty stood for just the fraction of a second in stunned amazement as he saw the two thugs.

"Stick up your hands!" snarled the youth with the gun.

"Yes, yes, Lawrence," cried Salvatore Caputo to the newcomer. He turned to the gunman appealingly. "My son," he said. "My—"

And then young Lawrence Caputo did a rash but utterly brave thing.

With an eager snarl of rage he hurled his broad-shouldered body across the room. The white trigger-finger of the gunman tightened. The father cried out in horror.

And the gun misfired!

THERE was a click, as though the very jaws of death had snapped together. And then Lawrence Caputo had clamped his arms around the gunman's legs and brought him crashing to the floor in a perfect football tackle.

Down they went in a heap, and the unarmed thug leaped, cursing, to help his pal. But Salvatore Caputo was a worthy sire of a worthy son and he brought his fist around in a haymaking are which sent the second bandit staggering, dazed, across the room.

For a couple of minutes that studio rang with the sounds of battle. But it was an unequal contest. Father Salvatore's wind was naturally not equal to his courage, and the man with the gun brought it down in a vicious, chopping, slashing blow to Son Lawrence's skull.

"No! No!" sobbed the father, breaking away from his own antagonist. "Take our money—don't kill my son!"

"How do you like that, you —?" the gunman snarled, bringing the gun crashing down upon the older man's head. Caputo's knees buckled.

"Come on, kid!" the unarmed thug snapped. "Let's get outta here. We got the —"

As the two thugs ran out, young Lawrence pushed himself up from the floor like a groggy boxer whose sheer courage and gameness won't let him quit fighting.

AND in a few seconds, the entire police radio force of New York City heard this flash:

... Two men ... one armed ... just left a photographic studio at 165 East 116th Street ...

That was enough. The two thugs were hurrying down the street when the radio car containing Patrolmen Nicholas Grecco and Joseph Tracy raced down 116th Street.

Panicky now, utterly demoralized by the fierce wail of the patrol car, the two stick-up artists broke and ran. One ducked into a tenement house at 2239 Second Avenue.

"Get that other guy!" snapped Officer Tracy, as he swung himself expertly off the running-board of the fast-moving patrol car. His buddy, Grecco, slowed the car, then spurted as Tracy landed on his feet.

A quarter-block ahead Grecco slammed the car to a stop and raced after a cringing figure that had no swagger left.

Meanwhile, Tracy had sprinted into the tenement house. Covering in a small room, his pasty face a sickly green, was a youth of about twenty. On the floor at his feet was a .38 caliber revolver.

"Don't—shoot!" faltered the kid, lifting his hands.

Later, at headquarters, he was identified as a paroled prisoner, Peter Capiello. And an examination of the gun revealed one cartridge which had been struck by the gun's firing-pin—but hadn't exploded.

Death had failed—but not police radio. Its duty was done—again!

A Calling All Cars Story—by Arthur Kent

YOU'VE probably never heard of Jerry Vogel. But if you are a radio listener, this man has touched your life many times. For he is a professional "song-rememberer"—as far as I know, the only one of his kind!

Where do all the good little popular songs go when they die? The men who plan, prepare and play radio's musical programs know the answer: They would go into oblivion were it not for Jerry Vogel's fantastic memory. Mr. Vogel knows not only the tune but the date of publication and the full name of the lyric writer, composer and publisher of every song hit in the last thirty years!

Recently, Ken Christy, who arranges the Wonder Show program on WOR, wanted to use a song called "Convict No. 84." Somewhere, a long time ago, he had heard it. He wasn't sure of the name, he didn't know who published it and he didn't remember all the words. But it had just the right "tears in your beer" flavor for his Gay Nineties program.

Christy stopped people he knew in the studios and hummed for them. He sent out scouts to try to track the song down. The American Society of Composers and Publishers confessed defeat. As a last resort, Ken called Vogel.

Vogel's genial, broad face wore a triumphant smile as Ken told him his troubles and hummed the haunting tune over the telephone. Quicker than you can say "Tin Pan Alley," Vogel had the song "placed." He hummed it back to Ken, interpolating whatever words he could remember. He told that the better-known name of the song was "Picture No. 84." Most important, Vogel told him that the song was in public domain and could be used safely. The show went off as planned, thanks to Vogel's prodigious memory.

About six months ago, someone asked Vogel about a song called "Just a Word of Consolation." Vogel remembered it all right. He remembered that it was written in 1905, the words by Frank B. Williams and the music by Tom Lemonier, both Negroes.

Vogel had always been fond of this song. The chance question reminded him of it; he would republish it.

HE SOUGHT and found Williams, blind and broke in Harlem. He got in touch with Lemonier in Springfield, Illinois, where he had a menial job in the State House. They turned over the thirty-one-year-old song to Vogel, who secured them in their rights to royalties. Vogel's friend, Arthur Fields, of the Streamliners, sang the song over the air. His friends, Fred Waring and Rudy Vallee, included it in their broadcasts. "Just a Word of Consolation" went over with a bang.

Orders from sheet music jobbers are still pouring in from all over the country. Two broken-down composers are back on their feet (at the present writing Vogel is trying to get blind Williams on the Hammerstein Music Hall program).

Old music and old songs are vital to radio. Lazy Dan, Ed McConnell, Happy Jack Turner, Frank Crumit, Harry Frankel, Ted Hammerstein's program—all include the songs of yesterday and even the songs of the day before yesterday. They find the fans like it. Even the big "name" orchestras go in for old favorites much more than you would think at first glance. Do you remember what Rudy Vallee did with "A Tavern in the Town," which had been dead for a number of years? Abe Lyman, Fred Waring, Horace Heidt, Wayne King, Meredith Wilson, Morgan Eastman, Walter Blaufuss—shrewd showmen all—know the pulling power of old songs—and keep the wires busy, humming them to Vogel.

OF THAT SONG? ASK

He gives information cheerfully and without charge. "That's published by Harms," he says to somebody on the other end of the wire, "it's out of print, though." To another he says: "You are looking for a song on Nellie? Sure there is one—there is a song about any woman's name you can think of. 'Wait Till the Sun Shines, Nellie,' that's a good one. It goes like this: dum-da-da, dum-da-da . . . It was written in 1905 and it's a Harry Von Tilzer song."

Arrangers for orchestras know Vogel's phone number as well as they know their own home number.

Big advertising agencies call on Vogel quite often. They are planning a special broadcast. They want to include this song. Does he recognize it? Of course, that's "Meet Me in St. Louis, Louie," written way back in 1903.

A woman calls up about national anthems of all the South American countries. A little out of his line, but Vogel knows them anyway. He tells her what they are and where she can get them.

Vogel is up to his ears in work—but he wouldn't have it any other way. He thinks, talks, dreams popular songs. He reads newspapers and magazines only because there might be a possible mention of songs. He goes to the movies only to hear new songs. He buys only books which mention songs—but he buys all of those. He attends the premiere of every musical comedy—and can usually call the turn on them on the strength of its songs.

He has a philosophy of life, too—simple but, he claims, very effective. "If you do good, it will come back to you that way." And Vogel tries to do good.

His hobby is charity—not just sending away a check to an organization now and then, but the old-fashioned, personal, basket-for-the-needy-Smiths kind of good-will charity.

FOR years, he has collected Thanksgiving funds with which he personally arranges for Thanksgiving dinners in municipal lodging houses and hospitals. He solicits contributions from all his friends in the business—he hints that all those who at some time or another have "asked Jerry" give something. Contributions range from $1.00 to $100, most of your radio orchestra favorites contribute and the fund has already reached as high as $5,000. With the money, he buys not only turkeys and cranberry sauce, but tobacco, shoes, socks—and greeting cards. The original "spread a little sunshine" boy, he insists on these down-and-outers, who may not have held a pen in their hand for twenty years, sitting down and writing a card to the "folks back home." He often sits down and helps them write. Vogel explains it thus: "When I was a kid and we were poor, a kind family used to make us very happy every Thanksgiving. I swore then that if ever I were able I would try to make some other people happy on Thanksgiving and maybe other days."

Vogel's charity takes other forms. He believes that there is nothing like a piece of candy to cheer up adults as well as children. So, he has a standing order for about $1,000 worth of candy a year and he spends his free moments and his Sundays packing this candy in little bags which will appear on the trays of patients in Central Islip and other hospitals.

He sends a lot of candy to the Leper Colony in Carville, La. "They are all washed up," he explains sadly.

Popular songs, like the good, die young. And radio has often been called "baby killer" because it has been responsible for songs being played to death.

But while radio does look for new songs all the time and it does give hits the "rush," it also knows the value of old favorites.

And so Vogel, who knows more about Tin Pan Alley's thousands of "ghosts" than any other man in the world, is a godsend to those who are haunted by snatches of melody but who can't place it.

"Hum it to Vogel!" has been the advice to the perplexed in Tin Pan Alley for years. And it is fast being adopted by Radio Row as well!

French Singer, Kostelanetz Together

Absent from the air for more than eight months, Lily Pons is coming back. The great French singer returns to the air, with Andre Kostelanetz and his orchestra, on April 14, for the premiere of a new weekly program.

The association of Miss Pons and Kostelanetz is one of long standing, and for a year or more rumors have had them married, about to be married, or at the very least, engaged. During Miss Pons' absence from the air one of her activities was the making of a motion picture, "That Girl From Paris," and for thirteen week-ends Kostelanetz flew to Hollywood to conduct the music for the picture, flying back again just as regularly for the two programs weekly he was conducting in the East.

In Hollywood, Kostelanetz appeared as guest conductor with the Los Angeles Symphony orchestra with Miss Pons as guest soloist. The concert broke all attendance records for the Hollywood Bowl.

One of the songs from "That Girl From Paris" will be sung by Miss Pons for her premiere. The song is "Seal It With a Kiss," remarkable for the fact that several records were established with it.

The song was written in New York by Arthur Schwartz. It was finished on one Friday morning and played for Kostelanetz, who liked it. A telephone call was put through to the Coast, and an arranger heard the melody played in New York. Kostelanetz outlined his ideas about the arrangement. The same night, Kostelanetz flew to Hollywood. On arrival Saturday afternoon he found the arrangement complete, rehearsed it and had it on the sound track in less than two hours' time.

Fibber McGee And Molly On New Time

Fibber McGee, famous teller of tall tales, and his persistent heckler, Molly, will be heard at a new time on their Monday broadcasts beginning April 12 when they go on the air at 8 p.m. (CST) one hour later than their present schedule.

The repeat broadcast for the West Coast remains unchanged at 9 p.m. PST. Fibber and Molly are moving into their second-hundred broadcasts. They passed the century mark on Monday, March 8, and show no indications of slowing down.

So impressive are Fibber's exaggerations that in 1936 he won the world's championship liar's title awarded by the Burlington Liars' Club for that year, a much coveted honor.

Burns And Allen To Start New Show Monday Night

When George Burns and Gracie Allen change over to a Monday night spot for their new show on April 12, Gracie will probably be all confused and George will probably be indignant. They'll have Monday instead of Wednesday, Dick Foran instead of Tony Martin and Ray Noble instead of Henry King.

As to the outstanding biographical characteristics of Monday, there's not much to be said, but Dick Foran and Ray Noble both have interesting histories.

Foran's choice as successor to Tony Martin came as a surprise to a lot of radio and screen luminaries, but not to George and Gracie, who spotted him long ago, predicted great things for him. Now ranking as one of the top Western stars in Hollywood, Foran has outstanding roles to his credit in pictures such as "Petrified Forest" and "Black Legion" as well. And he can sing.

Ray Noble, son of a well-known British surgeon, is a graduate of Cambridge University—and outstanding as a pianist, arranger, composer and conductor. For five years prior to his arrival in the United States in 1935 he served as general recording supervisor for British Victor, and his novel orchestral ideas brought him immediate success here.

Kathryn Meisle, concert and operatic contralto, Victor McLaglen and Florence Lake of the screen will star for Bing Crosby on the Kraft Music Hall program Thursday, April 8.

McLaglen, who sprang into stardom last year as the result of the film classic "The Informer," has made frequent appearances on network shows during the past season.

Miss Meisle's appearance is in line with Crosby's recently announced policy of presenting a concert artist each week. She has sung with practically all of the world's leading opera companies and with many symphony orchestras.

The students to be heard in the finals are men and women who survived earlier rounds of competition in which representatives from 21 colleges and universities in the metropolitan area of New York participated.

Subject matter has been left entirely to the choice of the individual contestant. The speeches, therefore, will cover a wide range of topics.

Only four and a half minutes will be allowed each contestant. All will speak from NBC's New York studios.

Judges, as yet to be selected, will hear the contestants through loudspeakers in other studios. They will judge according to the broadcast qualities of the speeches.

An all-baseball feature, "The Babe's" show will be made up of timely National and American league news, and comments on the sport in general. Ruth will share his insight into the comparative strength of the major league teams and even go so far as to predict winners. In addition to all that, he'll review important games and interview players.

The sponsor of the show, moreover, is promoting a contest, object of which is to out-guess Babe Ruth as to winners every week.

The genius of Johannes Brahms will be commemorated on the occasion of the 40th anniversary of his death in a special international broadcast from Vienna on Wednesday, April 14.

Brahms was born in Hamburg, Germany, in 1833. During his later life, save for occasional appearances in concert as a pianist, he dedicated his existence to composition. Many critics believe that he alone is comparable to Beethoven.

"FATHER TONY"

BY CARL TAYLOR

THAT mellowed richness of voice and understanding of character portrayal which makes J. Anthony Smythe of "One Man's Family" fame one of the most versatile actors in radio isn't the result, merely, of a happy, natural gift.

Years of tramping, in stock companies and road shows as well as on Broadway, lie behind the polished technique which marks every role Tony plays—and he can play any kind of a role. Outstanding, of course, for the role of "Henry Barbour" in "One Man's Family," Tony Smythe can—and has—played everything from dour-visaged villain to eccentric comic. His Henry Barbour, the long-suffering but not too patient father in "One Man's Family," has become a very human figure to lovers of the serial. Smythe fans feel that they know him almost as well as they know of visiting foreign cities would make their son contented to stay home, they were wrong, for he returned to the United States and almost immediately achieved his first stage part. It was in a play which was being presented at the Chestnut Theater in Philadelphia, and Tony can't recall anything about it now except that he was the juvenile, and had to bounce around with the zest of youth, when all the time he wanted to do something stern, quiet and repressed, like the leading man.

HE WAS lucky, for he had to spend only a year in juvenile bouncing. He was a leading man at twenty-one, and has been one ever since. He played opposite Florence Reed in a number of productions seen in the West—"Magda," "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," "Madame X" and "Roads of Destiny." He played with Maude members of their own families. Their admiration is deep—and lasting. One of the longest fan letters on record was written to J. Anthony Smythe! The writer was an attorney, and he filled four pages, fifty-six lines to a page, right out to the margins! The total was 5,200 words!

SMYTHE has played Henry Barbour now for so long that he lives the part—as does the whole of the "One Man's Family" cast, for that matter. Stubborn, honest, fair within his own limits and genuinely anxious to do the best for his family was the way Carlton E. Morse, author of the serial, conceived Henry, and the manner in which Tony Smythe realizes this picture makes many a father, listening, sigh with fellow feeling.

Smythe was born in San Francisco, and christened Joseph Anthony by his fond parents. He became Tony to his schoolmates the day he entered the first grade, and Tony he has been, ever since, to the myriads of friends he has met in the theatrical world. His family, not too sympathetic toward his ambition to become one of that world, destined him for a far different career, and sent him to the University of San Francisco to study law.

When he was graduated, he went abroad and toured Europe at his father's behest. One of the reasons why Tony interprets the harried head of the Barbour family with such intelligent understanding undoubtedly is because he can recall the desperate attempts of his own father to tame the wandering spirits of a young man.

If Tony's family hoped that a year

Fulton in "The Brat" and "Dulcy" and Holbrook Blinn in "The Bad Man."

He was the leading man of the company which opened the Bishop Playhouse, now the Fulton Theater, in Oakland. It was at the Fulton that he first met Minetta Ellen, the lovely actress who now plays opposite him in "One Man's Family." At that time, however, they came together only to part. They played opposite each other for an entire season, then never met again until the first episode of "One Man's Family" brought them together once more. From the Fulton, Smythe went under the egis of Henry Duffy, appearing in a number of Duffy productions. His last engagement in San Francisco was as "Handsone" in "Rain" at the Alcazar.

SMYTHE made his radio debut in NBC's Split-Second dramas, and played the Cardinal in the "Golden Flame," and baffling characters in mystery dramas before becoming the most famous father on the air.

To do that and remain a bachelor in private life is one of those feats of versatility impossible to anybody but an actor so rich in experience as Tony Smythe. As a matter of fact, he has been for some years the financial backstay of a large family of nephews and nieces in Los Angeles. The devotion with which he commutes between there and San Francisco several times a month seems to bear out the assertion of Carlton Morse that every member in the One Man's Family cast, if not like that character in real life, would be so under different circumstances—including Tony!

Meals That Fall Short Of Vitamins Served In Many Homes

You Don't Realize Whether Your Vitamin Supply is Short Until Poor Health Shows It.

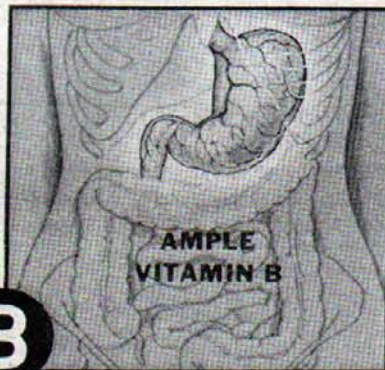

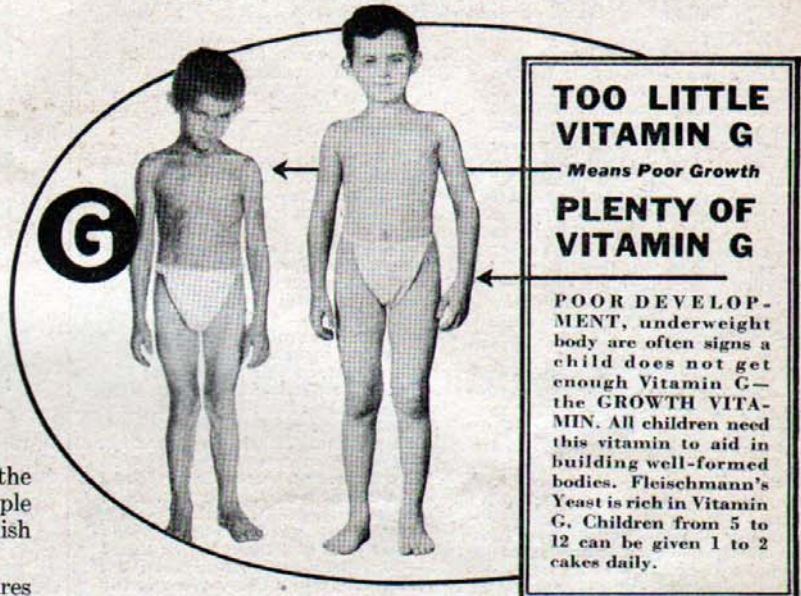

But, by Adding ONE FOOD to Your Diet EVERY DAY, You Can Make Sure of a Regular EXTRA Supply of these 4 Vitamins

THESE 4 vitamins, A, B, D and G, are needed daily for the best health of vital parts of your body. Yet—many people are victims of poor health because their meals do not furnish enough of these essential food elements.

The addition of just one food to your ordinary diet assures you a SPECIAL extra supply of these 4 vitamins daily.

That one food is FLEISCHMANN'S fresh YEAST. No other one natural food provides such a rich supply of all 4 of these vitamins combined.

Give yourself the benefit of these extra vitamins in addition to what your ordinary meals supply. Eat Fleischmann's fresh Yeast regularly—3 cakes a day, a cake about 1/2 hour before each meal. Eat it plain, or dissolved in a little water. Begin today! Order two or three days' supply at a time from your grocer. Fleischmann's Yeast will keep perfectly in your icebox.

A STRONG stomach (see picture above), healthy bowels and intestines and steady nerves need an ample daily supply of Vitamin B. Fleischmann's Yeast added to your regular diet helps to increase your supply of Vitamin B. It is one of the richest natural foods in this essential NERVE VITAMIN.

CROOKED BONES that result in bowlegs and knock-knees can come from too little Vitamin D—the BONE VITAMIN. An ample supply of this vitamin is especially important for mothers during pregnancy and while nursing. It helps to lay the foundation for strong, straight bones, and well-formed teeth in the child.

INCREASED SUSCEPTIBILITY TO COLDS, a weakened condition of nose and throat membranes, and lowered general resistance can come from a shortage of Vitamin A. Recent tests show a large percentage of people are not getting enough Vitamin A. Let Fleischmann's Yeast help to keep you better supplied with this necessary vitamin.

LUCYLE ROBERTS—famous woman Rodeo Bronco Rider—has the glowing health, vitality and stamina that show she is well supplied with these 4 health-building vitamins.

THE FANTASTIC LOVES OF RADIO'S MEN

I suppose you won't ever be coming here, will you? We don't even have a movie here. I have to go to Lansing to see your pictures, but I visit my aunt when I go and she thinks you are wonderful, too. Only she likes Clark Gable just about as much, and that burns me up. How can any mortal think of you except as occupying a pinnacle all by yourself!

If you would drop me a line sometime you would make me the happiest girl in the world. I want it to come only from you, though. Coming from a secretary, it wouldn't mean much to me. And please don't think that I want it just to show it off. I feel too deeply for that. I don't wear my "red heart crumpled" on my sleeve. If you knew me you'd know that. I'm the serious type. I know that you're the serious type, too. I think we would have a lot in common, only I don't sing. I am waiting until I hear from you. Please don't fail me.

RAY HEATHERTON has been receiving regular letters for a long time from the daughter of a family that is extremely prominent socially. Now and then they have proved to be vaguely suggestive, but for the most part the girl writes of her personal problems—her clothes, her friends, her parties, such things. (She also criticizes his singing. They frequently do that. It gives them an excuse to write.) Then for about a month the letters stopped. Recently—a week or so ago—Ray heard from her again. "You have never seen me, but I was in the audience at every one of your cigarette programs," she wrote. "My family insists that I marry a man who has proposed to me. I simply can't go through with it. If you will have me, I will give up my parents, my friends, my money, everything, and be your wife."

Rudy Vallee, of course, is fair game for every romance-starved woman in America. A young girl in Denver once started writing him long letters full of "I love you" and "I belong to you." Her name for him was Dearest Buggy-Man. That was harmless enough. If she loved him, it was perhaps natural that she should feel that she belonged to him. But the next step—and this always happens—was for her to begin to feel that he belonged to her. She went down to the Court House in Denver, took out a marriage license with Rudy's name on it, and then sued him for $250,000 because, three thousand miles away in New York, he did not put in an appearance to marry her. She claimed she had been on the stage with him.

"I didn't know her," Rudy says, "I had nothing to do with her, I never met her. She never played in the same theater with me, and I don't believe she ever played in any theater."

BUT this affair was nothing compared to Rudy's palpitating "romance" with another woman. She was a little old spinster lady with snow-white hair, but she certainly had young ideas! She first met Rudy, she claimed in court, when she overheard him threatening to kill himself. According to her wildly implausible story she followed him down the street, gave him a crucifix, and led him penitently home. And what did he do to repay her? Why, he repeatedly sang a song about her in public!

In addition—so she said—he caused people to embarrass her by addressing her as "Mrs. Vallee" when she was out shopping, which was extremely annoying. Poor Rudy! By the time the judge threw that case out of court he was beginning to think he was a Buggy Man. Or at least that there were an awful lot of buggy women loose.

The Dream Singer runs Vallee a close second. "Though you are unaware of it," one woman wrote to him, "who knows but I am the Dream Girl you sing to? It almost seems too good to be true that such a person as you should be existing and really looking for the kind of companionship which will make your life complete. A few years ago I would have thought this a brazen thing to do, but now when I see something I want I go after it. At least I can see no harm in writing to you. Nothing venture, nothing win!" Another request, made to him by a girl, might have had extremely serious consequences. She wrote—

All I'd care for, and it would be the greatest reward of all to me, would be a sweet, clean love like yours, to feel your arms around me, to rest against your big shoulder, Packie darling. That's all I'd care for, Ralph—just your love and what you want to give me. And here is a little secret, pet. Listen—in the silver, still night when all is at rest, the sweetest, most precious thing in life would be the mystery of the love that exists between two lovers. You are all I've ever dreamed of; all I want and need, you possess. Ralph, do you mind if I ask you something? If that ring on your finger in that picture where you are holding that book in your hands—remember?—well, dear, if your mother or a friend didn't give you that ring as a gift—do you think you'd miss it if I'd wear it a while dear? Here is the size of my finger . . .

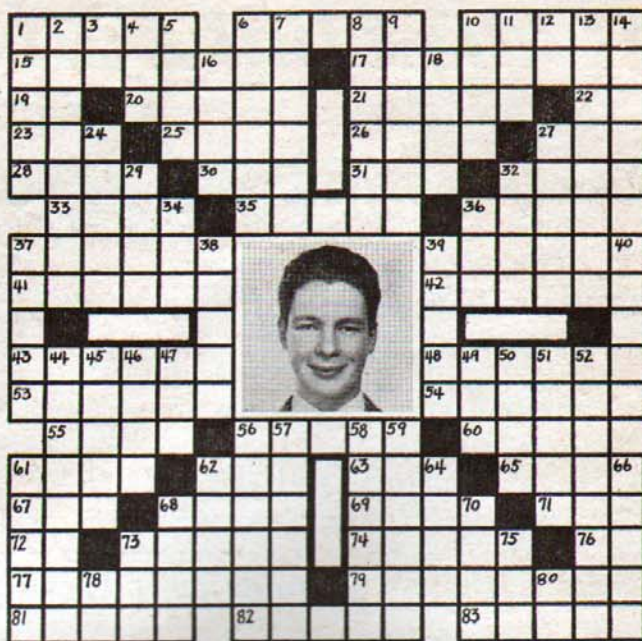

THAT sounds innocent enough; but suppose Ralph should generously send her the ring she asks for? It could be identified from the photograph which she mentions. What if she went into court, swore Ralph had promised to marry her, and offered his "engagement ring" as evidence? At the very least he would have a nasty breach-of-promise suit on his hands. And you can never tell what a jury is going to do.

Innocent—or not so innocent? Recently a hat-check girl sued a prominent bandleader for breach of promise in New York. A little investigation produced the fact that the poor innocent girl whom he had allegedly promised to marry had already been married once—at the age of eleven! And not only that, but she was married again to a man who, on his part, had another wife, from whom he had never bothered to obtain a divorce, and three children!

But there can be no doubt that most of the girls and women who develop fantastic attachments to the men of the air are perfectly innocent—innocent, and pitiful. For they would not need to do it unless they were leading starved, cramped lives. As a rule the women who write such letters and make such proposals are shy, timid; rather vain and egotistical in their natures. They are the sort who never get along well at a party or social gathering but nevertheless believe that—secretly—half the men in the room are mad over them. Girls who do a lot of day-dreaming have the kind of mind which renders them liable to fantasy-love affairs; and so curiously enough, have women who tend to walk in their sleep. Or so say the psychologists, at any rate.

About all the men in radio to whom they write can hope is that they will do a lot of walking in their sleep—and no talking. Imagine the awful things that might happen if Mr. John Q. Public woke up in the middle of the night and heard his wife murmuring: "Oh, Bing, I love you too. Yes, I'll meet you at the post office next Wednesday afternoon at four."

Solution to Puzzle Given Last Week

THE COVER PORTRAIT

BETTY LOU GERSON taught a considerable lot of youngsters how to act—before she took a part in a radio show to help a friend who had written the script, and became one of radio's outstanding young actresses herself!

After that career-making appearance, a few short months brought Betty the lead in "First Nighter," opposite Don Ameche. But before that appearance was the life that made her ready for top parts.

She was born in Chattanooga, Tennessee, in 1914—not very long ago, at that! Most of her life Betty has lived in Birmingham, Alabama, the "Pittsburgh of the South." In 1931, after having written and acted in plays in schools and in amateur theaters, she went to Chicago to continue her dramatic studies. There she taught "creative dramatics" in a school of music—but after her first appearance in radio, she reflected that since her pupils were finding success after her teaching, she might have greater possibilities herself in acting rather than teaching. She appeared in several other amateur parts, and then auditioned for NBC in June, 1934. Within only a few days she was cast in her first network show. Shortly the "First Nighter" lead came to her. Now she is heard in the popular serial, "A Tale of Today," and in several other regular parts.

Betty's talent allows her to play a wide range of roles. She is capable in French and English parts, has a natural Southern drawl when she wants to use it, and can handle ingenue or straight parts.

Her characterizations are popular not only because of her acknowledged ability in widely varied roles, but because of the freshness her youth lends to her acting.

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

The "Voice of the Listener" letter-forum is a regular feature in Radio Guide each week, offered to the readers as a means for expressing and exchanging opinions about radio.

Radio Guide will pay $10 for the best letter published each week and $5 for the next best. Other letters deserving our readers' attention also will be published.

CRIME CRUSADE

($10 Prize Letter)

Voice of the Listener: There is another side to radio's crusade against crime. I agree that the true-life stories of notorious criminals are strikingly dramatized and to the adult mind present a graphic lesson. But what about children—especially the hypersensitive, nervous type, the introverts who live almost totally in their dream-world and whom I have seen hang over the radio in ecstasy—half-repulsion, half-delight? These children live those stories—and since the punishment comes as an anti-climax and often is merely stated, the horrible underlying truth is lost to them in the terror and excitement of the moment. Meanwhile, they acquire the vocabulary, the psychology of the very lowest underworld type . . . To the childish imagination, the criminal becomes a hero, a superman, holding at bay, for the time being, at least, the gigantic, mysterious forces known as The Law and Society. I do not believe that the portrayal of crime is ever a deterrent to crime.—Mrs. Herbert Johnson, Washington, D. C.

MANTLE OF PRUDERY

($5 Prize Letter)

Voice of the Listener: . . . I believe that radio has merely scratched the surface as far as educational value to youth is concerned.

Right now the government is behind a great campaign to combat the "Great Pox," known otherwise as syphilis. The one and only way to teach the youth of the land who require this information is through radio. Dull, uninteresting literature means nothing to them—but a frank, open discussion by someone who knows his business and can speak interestingly is the only way the message can be broadcast.

There are they who feel that such a discussion has no place in a medium which is accessible to folks of all classes and ages, but I believe this is where they are wrong. The way to fight such things is openly. Let everyone know the symptoms, the preventions and the cure. Teach it to them, preach it to them—by radio!

It is appalling the millions in this country who are now suffering and those countless ones who will suffer in the future through ignorance if something is not done . . . It behooves us Americans to take off the mantle of prudery and come out in the open to fight what is now our worst disease—and is that only because of our ignorance of it.—Vance G. Vasbinder, Alliance, Ohio.

BROADWAY ON THE AIR

Editor, RADIO GUIDE: After listening Saturday after Saturday, and thrilling to the performances of the Metropolitan opera, I have wondered if some of the legitimate plays of the season could not be broadcast in the same manner. It is not everyone who can travel to New York to see the hits of the year. Why can't radio bring them into our homes? Wouldn't this revive an interest in drama, as it has in opera?—Milton Carson, Bridgeton, N. J.

HOLLYWOOD PREVIEWS

Editor, RADIO GUIDE: While I can't afford to go to the movies every night, I can listen to radio programs that help me decide what I want to see when I am in funds. The movies' best advertising is done in the radio theaters!

Personally, I'm watching mighty carefully for the new Carole Lombard-

Fred MacMurray production of "Swing High, Swing Low"—and all because I heard them in a short sketch from this picture on the air.

I believe the producers of motion pictures are making a grave mistake in trying to eliminate such programs. They are planning to cut out their widest and least expensive form of advertising.—Betty Grimes, Minneapolis, Minn.

DEEMS TAYLOR DEBATE

Voice of the Listener: In commenting on his very delightful "Looking Glass Suite" as played by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra over CBS, Deems Taylor advocated that the Lewis Carroll "Alice in Wonderland" stories should be read by every child and required in the training of every statesman. Just now that statement is of special interest to children, teachers and parents. Dr. Paul Schilder, research professor of New York University, at a recent assembly of the American Psychoanalytical Society, stirred up much interest when he inveighed very strongly against what

"I WOULDN'T TRADE JOBS" CONTEST WINNERS

EDITOR'S NOTE: In a recent issue, Radio Star Benay Venuta and Interviewer Katherine Albert told why they would not trade their jobs. At the same time, RADIO GUIDE asked for letters from readers telling why they preferred their jobs to all others. From the many letters the editors were gratified to receive, the following win the three announced $10 prizes.

I'm a housewife and mother. I haven't had a new coat in four years. A trip across the state is an event in my life, which is made up of a routine of household duties.

The glamorous lives of high-salaried movie and radio stars enchant me. How grand to wear mink and ermine, to cross the continent by plane, to leave household tasks to servants!

But when my baby puts his little arms about my neck, and my husband (the only one I've ever had or hope to have) tells me he loves me, I wouldn't change places with any of them. No, sir!—Mrs. Robert H. Miller, Tiro, Ohio.

No, thank you, I'm perfectly satisfied. I wouldn't trade jobs with anyone. You see, I'm an humble grocery store clerk, a lowly job, I will admit, but you know, even a grocery store can be fascinating to an eager, creative person. Oh, yes, I'm discouraged at times, but aren't we all?

People wonder why I, as a class valedictorian of 1936, prefer to remain a stick-in-the-mud and not seek a better position. What's better than working with a kind, lovable father? Love it? Yes! Leave it? No!—Miss Josephine Kalil, Meadville, Penn.

There's nothing finer than teaching Youth to look for the really fine things of life—that there is a big place in Life for them if they are willing to work—and want it. I teach biology and show the boys and girls—with live animals—how life has progressed and as it goes on with and about them. My salary isn't big—but the letters from my grads is salary itself! If I knew I couldn't get another teaching job, I wouldn't change places with anyone. "Learning is a luxury, but it is not to be compared with the luxury of teaching—shedding light in dark places and pointing out the joy of Life ahead for the coming men and women of tomorrow!" This is my philosophy of WORK!—H. Theodore Stubbs, Weehawken, N. J.

he believes to be the pernicious influence of the adventures of Lewis Carroll's Alice.

Would it be possible for these two prominent men to discuss their views on the subject over the radio? Surely many would join me in wishing to hear Deems Taylor defend his "Suite" and the book that is the background for his music that so many enjoy, and, likewise, to listen to Dr. Schilder's justification for his belief.—F. E. Teager, Bloomington, Ill.

SPECIALIZED STATIONS

VOL: I think specialized radio stations would solve our problems of balancing programs. Powerful key stations, each specializing in one type of program, would permit us to balance our own programs. A specialized personnel in each of these stations would also give us a superior program. The only trouble would be, at present, that our radios give us a limited daytime reception and we might not be able to reach our favorite stations.

It would be a good thing, if it could be done. We could balance or unbalance programs to our hearts' content . . . —Robert S. Lavender, Charlotte, N. C.

"I'd be an eskimo!"

He hasn't many comforts—but I'm plenty envious of one thing that old Eskimo has! He enjoys good teeth! . . . His teeth are kept strong and healthy, as Nature intended, by exercise on the tough chewy foods of primitive man's diet. Even Eskimos when they change to soft, civilized foods, find that their teeth and gums suffer from too little wholesome exercise.

DENTYNE HELPS KEEP TEETH STRONGER, WHITER! We civilized folk find Dentyne a wonderful, natural aid to mouth health. Its specially firm consistency invites more vigorous chewing, gives teeth and gums healthful exercise. It works in Nature's own way to help you keep your mouth healthy, gums pink and

for yourself—that fragrant pink rectangle is loaded with mellow, spicy flavor! And notice the flat package (exclusive Dentyne feature)—made to park so neatly and handily in your pocket or purse.

THE most important short-wave item in several weeks concerns the inauguration by EAQ, Madrid, Spain, of an extremely powerful new transmitter on Sunday, March 21. This station, broadcasting on an announced frequency of 9.48 megs, but actually heard on 9.488 megs, has been reported by numerous listeners. Although the claimed power of EAQ2, The Voice of Spain, is only 20,000 watts, it is easily the loudest station on the 31-meter band. The musical portions of the programs, consisting principally of recordings, are of rather poor quality but all voice transmissions are excellent. At present, the station comes on the air nightly at 7:30 p.m. EST (6:30 p.m. CST) with a reading of the latest war news in English, which is followed on Monday, Tuesday and Friday nights by an all-English program, featuring talks by American or Canadian war correspondents or journalists, for publication in United States newspapers and periodicals. This broadcaster is owned by the Loyalist or government forces, and, in fact, utterances against the rebel forces are so vehement that I can't help but wonder just how long it will be before a well-placed aerial bomb terminates its service. Transmissions are usually concluded at 9:30 p.m. EST (8:30 p.m. CST). Reports or comments on the war talks should be addressed to Herbert Kline, in care of the Madrid Bureau, Madrid, Spain, while reports on the station's regular broadcasts for verification purposes should be sent to Apartado O. C. R., P. O. Box 951, Madrid, Spain.

CHARLES GUILBERT of Paris, France, reports a new mystery short-wave station, which comes on the air daily at 4 p.m. EST (3 p.m. CST) on a frequency of 10.07 megs, and announces itself as the station of the German Communist Party. At 4:50 p.m. EST (3:50 p.m. CST), this dual-personality broadcaster appears on a new frequency of 10.42 megs, announcing as "Radio-Milano," station of the Italian Communist Party. . . . The Nationalist authorities in Spain have inaugurated a new station, Radio Reghepe (7.192) at Burgos.

Norman Schultz, Spanaway, Wash., gives the schedule of XEBR (11.83), Hermosillo, Mexico, as daily from 7 p.m. to 12 mid. EST (6 to 11 p.m. CST).

The overseas broadcast from Tokio directed upon Europe is being transmitted daily from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. EST (1:30 to 2:30 p.m. CST), over JVM (10.74) and JZJ (11.8). . . . JVM is being heard with excellent strength on the morning transmission ending at 7:40 a.m. EST (6:40 a.m. CST). . . . According to Akifusa Saito of Kumamoto, Japan, JVH (14.6) of Nazaki, may be heard transmitting to Manchuquo, daily as follows: 5:20 to Radio Tunis of Tunis, Tunisia, may be heard on 7.265 megs near 7:30 p.m. EST (6:30 p.m. CST). . . . A new Tunisian, "Poste Bizertin" of Bizerte, Tunisia, may be heard on a frequency of 6.16 (and on a harmonic of 12.32) megs, nightly from 5 to 7 p.m. EST (4 to 6 p.m. CST) according to Joseph Mercieca of Sliema, Malta.

The official schedule of CR7BH (11.718), Lourenco Marques, Mozambique, Portuguese East Africa, will heard throughout the western United States, is: Weekdays from 6:45 to 7:30 a.m., 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 1:30 to 5 p.m. EST (5:45 to 6:30 a.m., 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 12:30 to 4 p.m. CST); on Sundays from 12 noon to 2 p.m. and from 4 to 5 p.m. EST (11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and from 3 to 4 p.m. CST).

The Photo-Story of RUDY VALLEE'S LIFE

IN THESE PHOTOGRAPHS—MANY OF THEM NEVER BEFORE PUBLISHED—YOU'LL FIND A HUNDRED SECRETS!
PART 2

1. Time: 1926. Place: The Yale Bowl. Rudy, marked by arrow, was then director of the football band, members of which are seated directly behind him. Note the megaphone beside him. Years later, Rudy remembered that megaphone—and the memory helped him to fame!

4. Rudy Vallee made only one trip to Europe—that was in 1924. While he was in England he formed a band and made records. Above: In a London studio

5. Back in New York in 1929, Rudy Vallee played at the Villa Vallee. Here it is—not impressive outside, but an impressive man inside!

6. The marriage that was to bring bitter tragedy! Rudy with Fay Webb Vallee shortly after they were married, with Herman Bushel, his attorney. Their union ended in divorce. Fay Webb died last year

10. Capable of intense concentration, Rudy can work anywhere, anytime. Here, from a picture taken at rehearsal, is Rudy's busy left hand at work

13. Here's Rudy's cottage in Maine. In the peaceful seclusion of this wood-side hideaway, he has spent some of the most restful, pleasant hours of his life. Here, he can be himself!

12. When the burden of work becomes too great, and a vacation is imperative, then Rudy goes to his cottage on the shore of this beautiful lake in Maine

2. Rudy played sax with a dance band while he was in college, too. Here's the band, The Yale Collegians, and there's Rudy under the arrow. But in those days, someone else led!

3. The first picture of Rudy Vallee's first band: The Connecticut Yankees in 1928! Left to right: Lowy, De Vorzon, Patent, Toland, Vallee, Burwell, Miller and Charles Peterson

11. Below: A clenched fist, a tightly held baton—Rudy Vallee means business when a rehearsal gets under way. Hardworking Rudy is a forceful boss

7. Rudy and Alice Faye in a scene from "Vagabond Lover." Rudy discovered Alice, gave her a chance

8. Here's "Boy," one of Rudy's two pet dogs. Boy and "Himmel" hold a high spot in his affections

9. Someone has said that the eyes are the windows of the soul, and if that is true, Rudy Vallee's soul is sad, gentle, filled with strange dreams and troubled longings

14. Here's a scoop! It's probably the only picture you've ever seen of Rudy smoking. And surely, as to pose, one of the rarest of the rare. It seems to whisper of peace and great contentment

15. Perhaps the most famous saxophone in the world—Rudy Vallee's. And a pair of the world's most famous hands playing it! It's made of burnished gold!

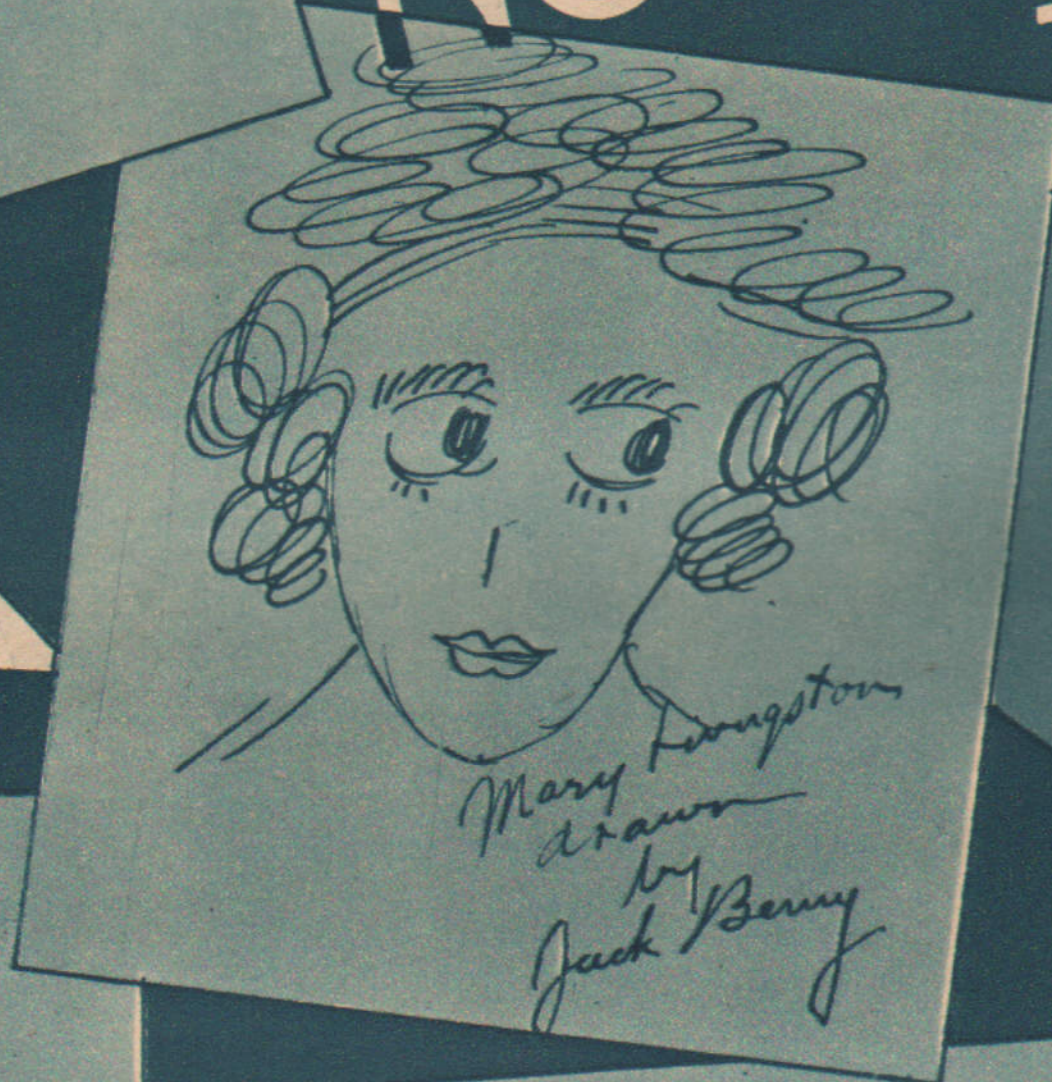

16. Here, finally, is Rudy Vallee today—April, 1937—at the top but still going forward, a great star with even greater prospects of glamorous fame in the future

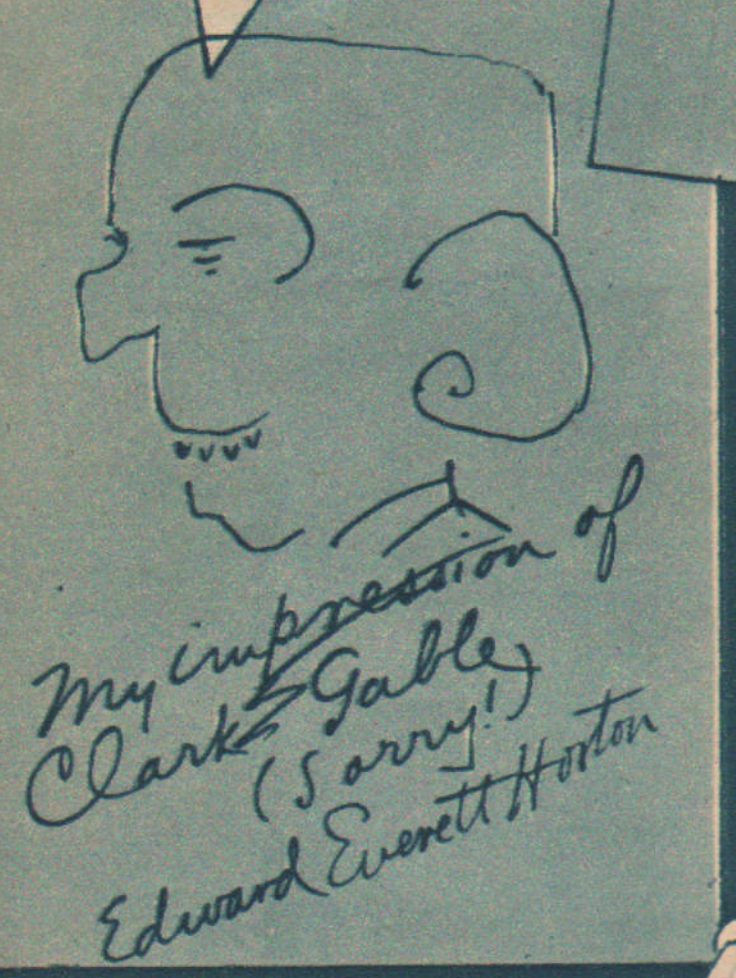

How the Stars to each Look other!

RADIO GUIDE GAVE STARS THE IDEA—THEY LIKED IT, TURNED ARTISTS FOR A DAY, DIPPED PEN IN INK, DREW PICTURES LIKE THIS—FOR YOU

Right: Joan may not believe Phil Harris' "ardent" signature here!

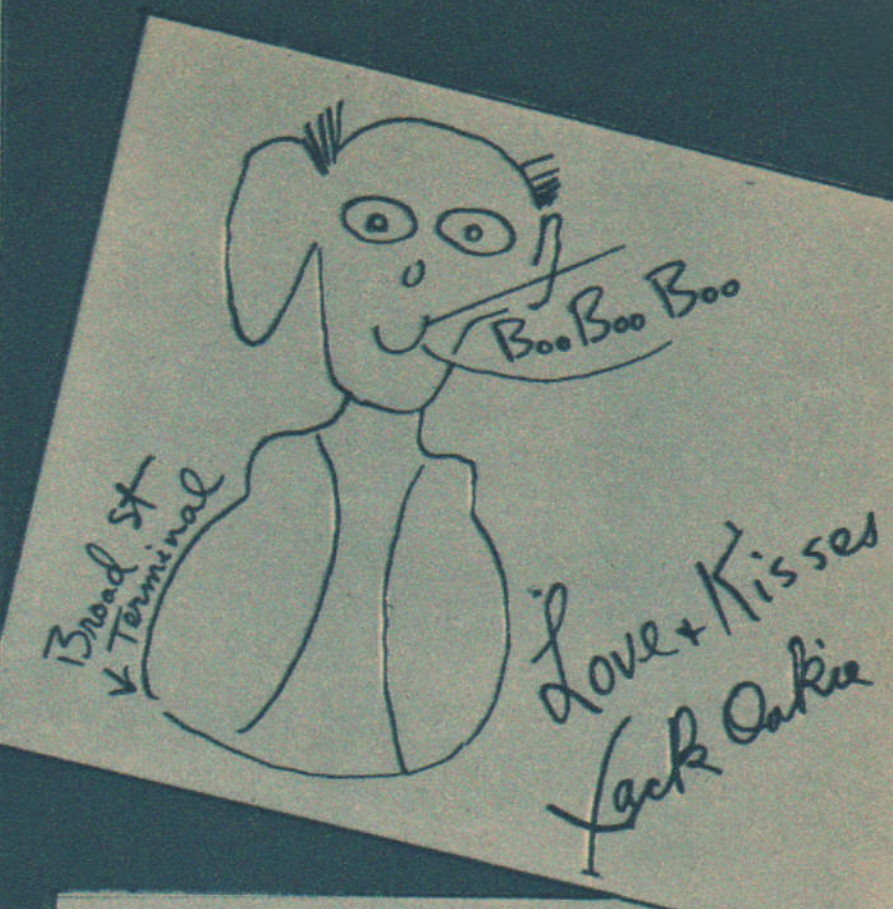

Below: Al Jolson poses "Mammy"—but Kenny Baker lets imagination do all the work for him!

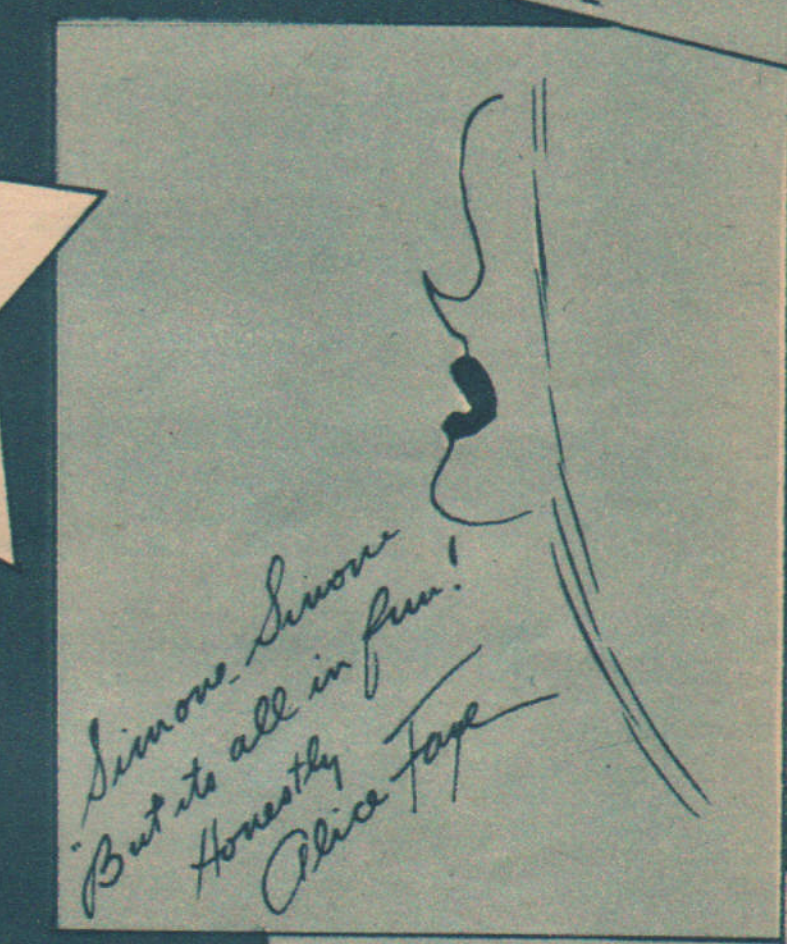

Above: Gertrude Niesen goes modernistic in an interpretation of La Mae West!

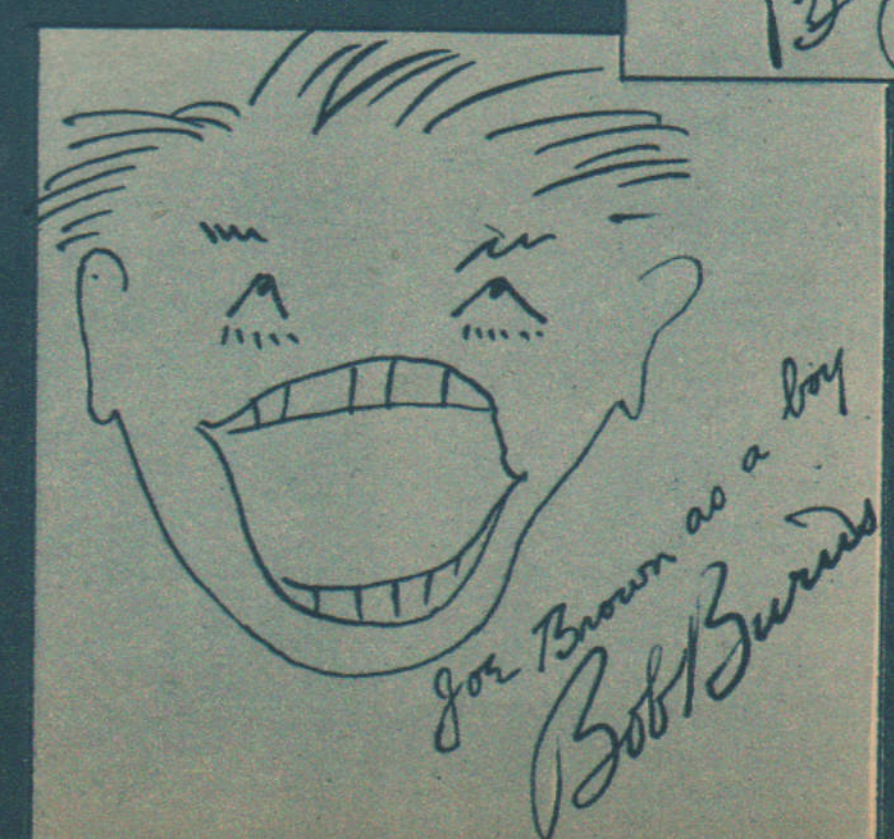

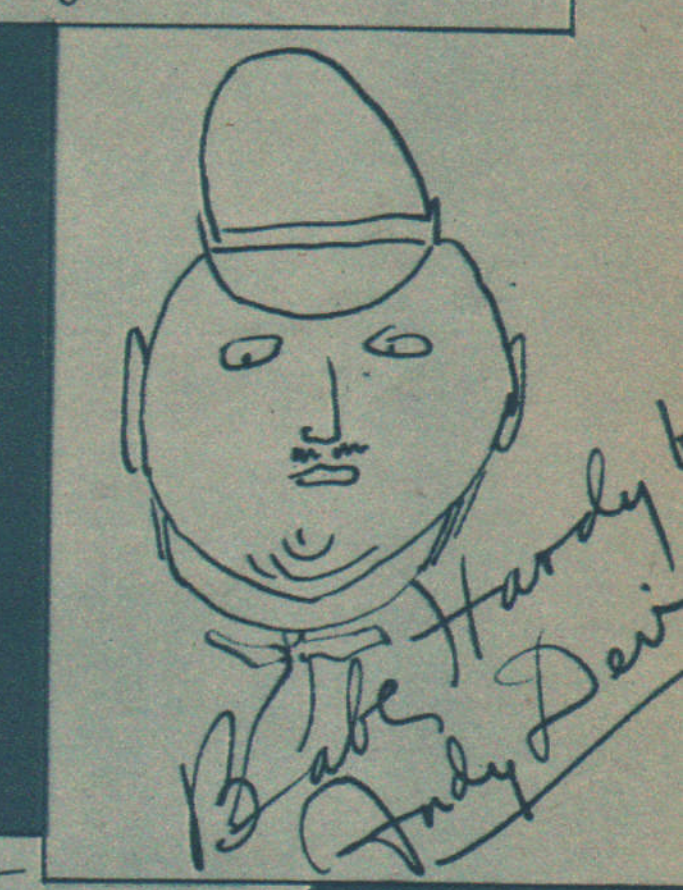

"Sad Gracie," by Burns; "Boo Boo" Bing, by Oakie, and Simone Simon, by "Funster" Alice Faye

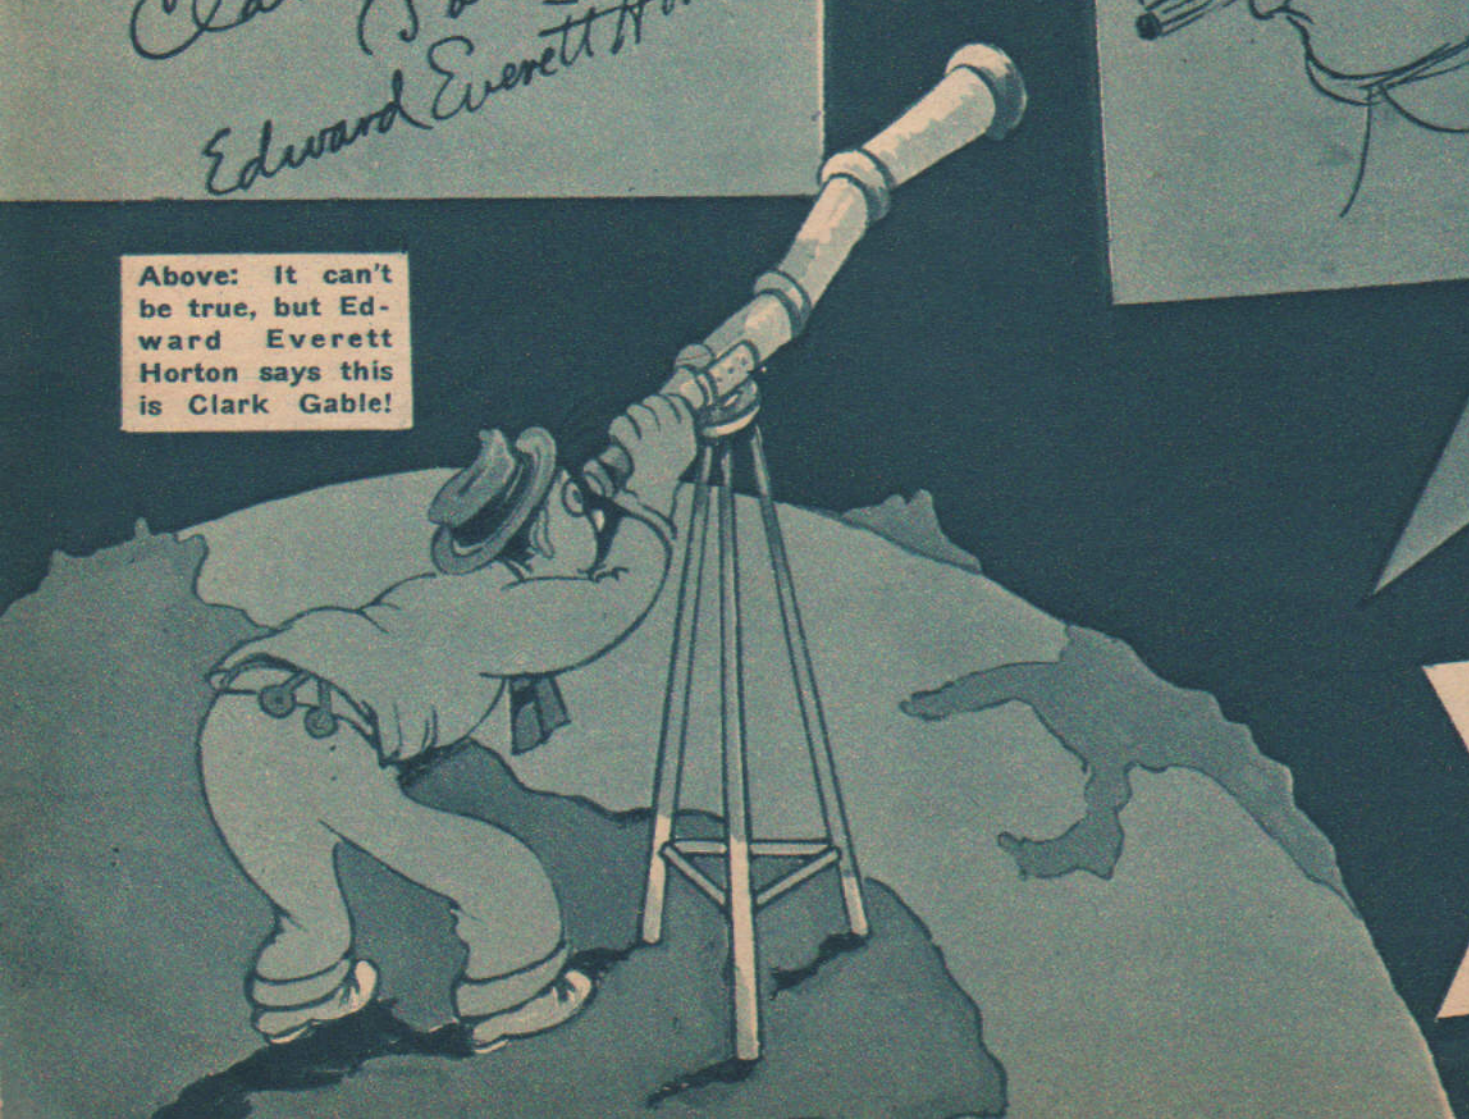

Love + Kisses Jack Oakie

Right: Andy Devine deals with Oliver Hardy in as kindly fashion as possible

Left: "Bazooka" Burns goes to the past for inspiration in his epic pose of Joe Brown!

If you look closely at the photo on the left, you'll see a grinning guitarist (near the harp). He is watching Radio Guide's cameraman, who is on a twelve-foot ladder. In the upper left-hand corner, near the front mike, is another candid lensman—shooting Al Goodman unawares!

RADIO GUIDE Steams Up the RIVER with SHOW BOAT

"HERE COMES THE SHOW BOAT!" IT'S REHEARSAL TIME, AND YOU'RE BEHIND THE STUDIO SCENES WITH RADIO GUIDE

Right: Cote's Modern Choir, with sweet songs of the Old South—and all points North, West and East—issuing from wide-open mouths. There is music in the air—and on the air!

Above: Radio Guide's ace lensman crept up on all-fours—and this behind-the-scenes view of Al Goodman is the result!

Above: Show Boat's "Modern Choir" Director Emile Cote's finger-on-nose sign means only that he wants more "through-the-nose" quality!

Left: In NBC's big studio 8-H, seating 1500 persons, Radio Guide's lensman snapped Irene Hubbard (Show Boat's Aunt Maria) and Tom Revere (advertising agency radio head). Revere is happy—smiles, laughs, as the Show Boat show progresses, knows it will click on the air—and Irene agrees. They are old studio cronies Left: Lanny Ross and Adele Ronson romance, sing a love duet. Adele is a famed radiactress. You've heard her in the "Buck Rogers" serial, in "John's Other Wife." She stands five-feet four, has reddish-brown hair, brown eyes, weighs 119 pounds—if you're interested! She began acting in Yonkers at $10 a week—but she's made the big time now!

Right: Guests are part of Show Boat policy—and Radio Guide saw one-night stars Ruth Etting and George Jessel at the mike

Above: After drama-and-music rehearsal, lunch is served—right in the studio! Actors start rehearsal at 9 a.m., music rehearsal follows, the two are joined, then script re-reading and lunch-eating starts at 1:15. Lanny devours chicken—and script; Adele Ronson digests a tongue-on-ryc sandwich—and more words

Right: Recent Show Boat Director Kenneth McGregor master-minded the program when Radio Guide's cameraman saw the show. He untangled wires on his stand, telephoned control-room engineers, checked minutest details. Note light on stand; that is radio's telephone signal: it flashes when callers want him

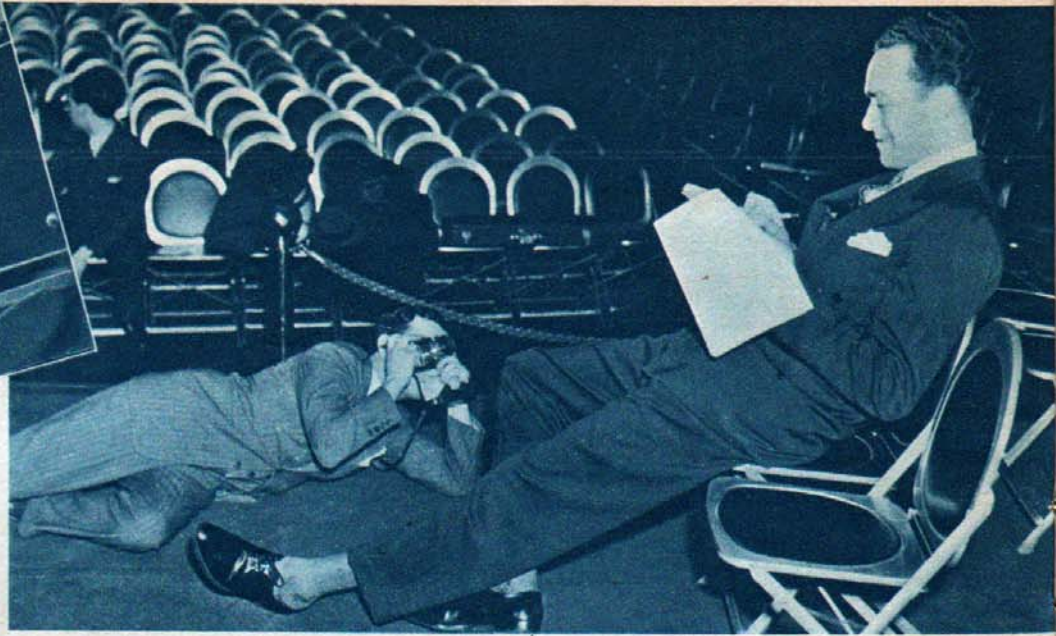

Orchestra leader Al Goodman writes a change into the Show Boat scores. On the right, crowding the maestro, is a tuba, an instrument known to the trade as a "grunt iron"

Right: Six-foot-six live-wire announcer Tiny Ruffner disagrees with the script—and says so—but nicely! Adele Ronson, Lanny Ross listen, Bandman Al Goodman waits, recent Director McGregor looks on. Cast members often disagree, suggest improvements, help the show to click!

TURN THE PAGE PLEASE

Above: Tiny Ruffner finds a joke in the script, writes in another line to sharpen it as he laughs. Right: Tiny Ruffner, at the same time, doing the same thing—but there's Radio Guide's candid photographer lying on the floor—getting the picture you see above. It's a strange business—but it brings you good pictures!

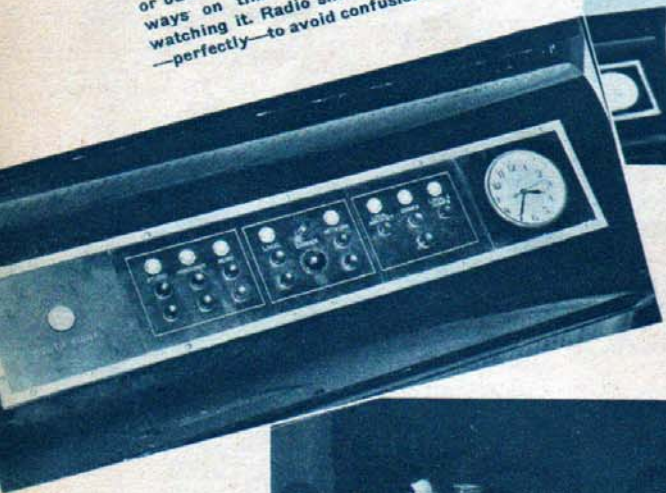

And this, gentle reader, is a gadget known as the "delite box." In other words, the announcer's stand. The formidable array of little buttons and lights is used by the man at the proper place, inside or outside of the studio. The clock is always on time—the announcer always watching it. Radio shows must be timed perfectly—to avoid confusion on the air

Here's the control room—heart and brain of the broadcast. The man with the mustache is Engineer Edwin Miller. If he's not on the job, Lanny Ross won't sound like himself—on the air!

Tiny Ruffner makes sure the studio audience applauds at the proper time and with the proper amount of enthusiasm. The wooden signboard is one of the most important of all studio "props" for audience shows

Right: It's the last picture here—and was the last taken by Radio Guide's lensmen. The studio audience files in—young girls, old ladies. The first girl is anxious; the older women, eager. The show begins!

Without Suffering A Hungry Moment Ugly Fat Lost WILL you do only two pleasant things to take off your ugly fat? First, eat sensibly. Second, mix 3/4 of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with 1/4 of a glass of water and drink before meals, and at bedtime. No strict dieting, exercising or taking drugs. YET! — weight losses of 7 pounds a month have been credited to this safe method. Use Welch's—made from the finest grapes grown; always full strength; always pure. WATCH YOUR HUSBAND'S WEIGHT Insurance Companies warn about the dangers of overweight. For they have definitely proved that overweight places too much of a load on the heart, is often associated with such diseases as diabetes and kidney trouble—and shortens the normal span of life. Don't allow your husband to become overweight. Suggest this amazingly easy, pleasant, safe Welch way to reduce. Tune in IRENE RICH on the Air— Every Friday—N.B.C. at 8:00 p.m., E.S.T. Helen Jepson tells why she chooses a light smoke

"A season of opera and concert means my voice and throat must be consistently in perfect condition. Therefore, although most of my smoking is done while I am on vacation, it is all important to me that I be careful in choosing my cigarette. I smoke Luckies because I enjoy their taste and, because I feel it is wiser for me to choose a light smoke for my voice."

Helen Jepson

LOVELY PRIMA DONNA OF THE METROPOLITAN OPERA

The Finest Tobaccos—
"The Cream of the Crop"

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Jepson verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.
