Medal of Merit

A Weekly Award for Excellence in Broadcasting

AWARDED TO VOX POP

"VOX POP" is an all-amateur broadcast. Setting up microphones on street corners, in hotel lobbies and other public places in New York City, Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth, the program's conductors, interview passers-by from Podunk to Manhattan on all types of subjects. Some questions are serious, others timely, and some are amusing. No one who is interviewed knows beforehand what questions will be asked. No one knows until just before broadcast time who'll be on the show. Interviews are strictly impromptu, informal, and friendly—and it's a cardinal rule never to embarrass an interviewee.

The original "man in the street" interview broadcast, "Vox Pop" is aired over the NBC-Red network to West Coasters on Mondays, to the East and Middle West on Tuesdays.

Originating in Houston, Texas, "Vox Pop" was "discovered" by a talent-scout for one of the large advertising agencies specializing in radio. Coming to New York in June of 1935, the show took over the summer schedule of a program sponsored by one of the Standard Brands products, and in the fall of that year the "Vox Poppers" were engaged by their present sponsor—Molle Shaving Cream.

"Vox Pop" demands a lot of research work from its propounders — Johnson and Butterworth —to get questions. They are aided in no small measure by the thousands of their listeners, who send them hundreds of brain-teasers.

Born in Sheffield, Alabama, Johnson wanted to grow up to be a professional baseball player, and for a short while he did play in the South Atlantic League. He's been a newspaper feature-writer, an advertising man, and is one of the original interviewers who brought the program to New York from Texas.

Wally Butterworth, a Pennsylvania lad, has been a well-known radio announcer for many years. He stepped into broadcasting naturally in 1928, coming from the radio-set selling field and from previous experience with the Victor Talking Machine Company.

"Vox Pop" firmly believes that every human being owns a dramatic story in his own life, knowledge and experience. Its object is not only to draw this story out from him in an entertaining way but to test an interviewee's knowledge in fields in which he should be particularly well informed.

For their unfailing ability to glean something of human interest and appeal from everyone who appears on this program, Radio Guide joins with millions of fans this week in applauding Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth by presenting to "Vox Pop" the Radio Guide Medal of Merit.

HAPPY LISTENING

Memo to the Boss

ONE day our James Street found himself reading a memo which said, "Find an average run-of-the-mill family and do a yarn on what radio means to them." Being a dutiful writer for Radio Guide, Mr. Street hied himself about on his assignment. But he had a bit of trouble, for he discovered that on closer observation the families he was considering were either too unhappy or too happy. Then, one day, his "littlest little Lou" looked up from her Brussels sprouts and across the supper-table brought him face to face with an unexpected reality. The result: One of James Street's best bits of writing—his answer to the boss' memo—on pages 2 and 3.

Meet "Mr. Butch"

HIS real name is Richard Jean Kret-singer and his mother is known as "Marge" of the radio team "Myrt and Marge." Young "Rikky" made his appearance in the Kretsinger household last May 14 and his arrival was duly heralded by Radio Guide. Since then he has developed an affinity for cutting teeth on full-sized milk bottles, as is recorded on page 19 in a picture titled "Tough Guy" which we know will go into many a clipping-book.

Abraham Lincoln

TOO many years ago, it seems, we were going to school. About this time of the year the entire class would be called upon to write essays on Abraham Lincoln—a welcome task which never failed to fire youthful imaginations or satisfy a penchant for hero-worship. Next Saturday, with a nation that has not forgotten its gratefulness, we'll be on hand for the radio observance of Lincoln's birthday (see page 4).

Happy Birthday

AMERICAN youth has had, outside of parental love and guidance, perhaps no greater driving force for good than that supplied by the Boy Scout movement, which, since its introduction into this country 28 years ago, has brought the ideals of a clean mind and a clean heart in a clean body to the appreciation of more than seven and a half million youths, now become men in all walks of American life. Scouting, too, has a birthday this week, and radio joins in a nationwide salute to the Boys Scouts of America. You'll find details on page 4.

RADIO FAMILY NUMBER ONE

BY JAMES STREET

TO: CM
FROM: JS
SUBJECT: RADIO

Dear Boss:

I've been rambling around a heap for RADIO GUIDE; so much that I feel like an epidemic of "hot-foot." And you recall you told me that during my roamings you wanted me to be on the lookout for a "typical" American family and to write you a piece about how radio affects their every-day lives.

"Find just an average run-of-the-mill family," you memoed me, "and do a yarn on what radio means to them. Let's get away from the tragic stuff for a while. Give us some homey stories, some fireside-and-hearth-and-house-slippers stories."

WELL, skipper, I sought a typical family for you—did everything but get out a search warrant and run an ad in the help-wanted column. But every time I located a likely looking outfit, I would probe around and find a sensitive spot that couldn't stand rubbing. Either the family was too unhappy or too happy. Yes-siree, a family can be too happy. Folks who are too happy too long soon grow intolerant of folks who are unhappy, and everything gets in a mess. Same is true of nations, boss. That's how come some of the unhappy nations are puffing out their chests and snarling at the happy nations. But we won't get into that.

I found your family tonight, right here in our Maison Mortgage. I found it at the supper-table, where our littlest little Lou—she's almost five, and we call her Annie Rooney—pushed aside her potato and Brussels sprouts in her Mickey Mouse plate and drank the last of her milk from her Shirley Temple glass, and faced me with a seriousness that comes only to inquisitive childhood.

"DADDY," said the littlest little Lou, the one we call Annie Rooney, "what does Mr. Rosy Belt do?"

"Huh?" asked yr. obdt. servant and your laborer in your vineyard. "Why, Mr. Roosevelt—er-er-er."

Well, what does Mr. Roosevelt do? I couldn't tell a child of five he's the head man, because she thinks I am. She wouldn't understand the word "president." And I do not want to think of him as boss, although I do not mind thinking of you as such.

Frankly, boss, I didn't know what to tell her.

"What put that in your head, Annie Rooney?" I said to the littlest little Lou. "Where did you hear about Mr. 'Rosy Belt'?"

Her little eyes looked at me in the strangest manner. I really believe she wanted to tell me I was a "dope." But with utter condescension she told me:

"ON THE radio. And if you don't know what Mr. Rosy Belt does, I'll find out on the radio. Mother and me listen all day. You oughta listen, too, Daddy. Then you'd know what Mr. Rosy Belt does. Why, he's the man that's gonna keep anything from hurting little girls like me."

It was then that I realized I had found the typical American family.

DOES RADIO REALLY RULE YOUR LIFE? YOUR FAVORITE AUTHOR, IN A MEMO TO HIS BOSS, TELLS HOW IT RULES HIS — AND HIS HOME

You have never met the defenders of Maison Mortgage, but here is a family to which radio is all things.

WE ARE seven, reading from left to right—Big Jim, the littlest little Jim, Little John, the two ladies known as Lou, and Democracy and Sidjets. The littlest little Jim is 13. Little John is 11. One of the ladies known as Lou is the Secretary of the Interior, and if I would tell her age she would quit the cabinet. Democracy is a cat—democratic as hash and his ingredients are just as uncertain. Sidjets is a little toy dog that belongs to the littlest little Lou, who thought up that one herself.

THERE are two radios in Maison Mortgage, a big one in the living-room and a little one in the boys' room. The boys' radio has fits and sputters and groans in its misery. It once was brown, but Little John painted it green to harmonize with the room and the pictures that hang on the wall—pictures of green seas and green lands.

The littlest little Jim and Little John study by their radio when it's not having fits. They listen to the quizzes and the lectures and the spelling-bees.

Boss, can you spell atrabilious? Well, I have to look at a dictionary even to write it. The littlest little Jim sprang that one on me the other night.

"Spell it, Pop," he said, and snickered.

"WHERE did you hear such a word?" I demanded. "You've been running around with the wrong people!"

"It's a nice word," he smiled tolerantly at me. "I heard it on the radio. It means morose."

That's what's wrong with the boys' radio—it's atrabilious!

"And say, Pop"—the littlest little Jim saw he had me groggy and began boring in for the knock-out—"did you know a Chinese 'junk' is more seaworthy than the Queen Mary?"

He heard that on the radio, too. Then he pulled his chair over close to mine and began talking down to me.

"Listen, Big Jim," he began. "What do you think of the Ludlow referendum? I agree with Boake Carter—we should allow Congress to thrash the thing out. We have a right to know what our government's going to have for a foreign policy."

THAT'S a thirteen-year-old youngster talking, skipper! He knows more at thirteen than I did at eighteen! And what did it? Radio! When I was his age I wanted to run away and make the world safe for democracy. Democracy is safe as long as we have 13-year-old boys and radios! The radio in America is going to keep this country democratic. For as long as men can talk and debate through free air and boys can hear, we need fear not Reds or Black Shirts!

At the age of thirteen, my father was my source of information. I quoted him, as you did your father. It was "Papa says this, and Papa says that." But now—well, listen some day to a group of boys talking. You'll hear "I heard so and so on the radio."

You and I used to get our gossip from the neighborhood drug store and our adventure from Dead Eye Dick and our excitement from hunting. Now the gossip of the world belongs to my boys. They would hoot me if I mentioned Dead Eye Dick. They get their adventure from "We, the People"—human drama. And guess what Little John told me the other day: that it's wrong to hunt, that the animal and bird life of our country must be conserved. He learned that from the radio! It took two game-wardens and a fine to teach me that.

MAISON MORTGAGE is run by radio. I never thought of it before. Funny, too, chasing over all the country for radio stories and here the routine of my own home is scheduled by radio.

The Secretary of the Interior is the first one awake at our house. The littlest little Lou has a habit of popping open her right eye at 7 a.m., including Sundays, and, finding the day to her liking, cocks open the left. Then she opens both eyes and her mouth and demands attention.

"Slip on your bunny slippers and turn on the radio," the Secretary of the Interior calls to her, and the littlest little Lou piles out of bed and runs to the living-room just in time to catch the beginning of the Morning Almanac.

AND by the time Phil Cook is singing the news of the day, eggs are being fried at our house and the littlest little Lou is eating her Grape-Nuts—the Burns and Allen influence. All the youngsters eat different kinds of cereals, each the sponsor of their favorite programs. And when they get a new favorite program, they get new cereals. We don't have to worry about any variety at Maison Mortgage; the radio sponsors fix that for us.

Yr. obdt. servant and the laborer in your vineyard usually is the last one up. My alibi is that I work or read late, but the truth is I naturally like to sleep. The littlest little Jim fetches the morning papers, and while I sip coffee I try to see what goes on in the world and I comment on such goings-on to the boys and the Secretary of the Interior.

"Oh, yes," says the Secretary of the Interior when I read aloud some particularly newsy item. "We just heard that on the 8 o'clock news broadcast."

THE close of the news broadcast is the signal for the boys to be off to school. They never look at the clock; they simply know by the radio that it's time to get going, and with a rush of hurried kisses and shouted "so longs" they are away, shoving and pushing each other and fussing a bit at times, but more often laughing.

Then I return to my coffee and papers, but the Good Morning Melodies begin and the littlest little Lou insists on prancing about in her bunny slippers and nagging yr. obdt. servant, which is always the way of a maid with a man.

Those Morning Melodies still are on when I try to shave. It's my inheritance, boss, to sing when I shave. That masculine privilege of dusting off the ceiling with a few notes from "Home on the Range" was passed to me from my father. He inherited the privilege from his father. It's my God-given right to sing while I scrape. But just as I sort of bear down on that "deer and antelope" stretch, the littlest little Lou invariably raps at the door and informs me that "Mother had rather hear the radio."

THE vacuum cleaner starts at Maison Mortgage at 8:30 a.m., at the sound of the gong, and it whizzes and huffs until 8:45, when the Goldbergs come on. Then the Secretary of the Interior and her co-conspirator fold up before the big radio and are quiet for fifteen minutes. If I ever own a radio station I'm going to keep those Goldbergs on all day!

I always stop whatever I'm doing and listen to Gabriel Heatter, but when the Menu Maker takes over the program I flee to my cubby-hole and try to hit a few honest licks of work while the Secretary of the Interior stands by the radio, pencil in hand, and copies down the recipes. John Brown it, boss, it's a fine come-off when a man hears the radio at 9 o'clock in the morning and learns what he's going to have for evening dinner!

After hearing the Menu Maker, the Secretary of the Interior compares the foods to the prices she heard on the Morning Almanac, and then she hurries away seeking bargains. If the green grocer's price is too high she tells him, "Why, I heard a different price on the radio!" Shopping by radio.

However, before she leaves on the potato-and-tomato tour, she always instructs the littlest little Lou to stay with me and warns her not to bother me "because Daddy has to work, and if he works a lot maybe he'll get the habit." The littlest little Lou is not allowed to shop with her mother during these cold days.

THE Secretary of the Interior scarcely is out of sight before the baby of the clan starts picking at me. She has a toy vacuum cleaner that she got for Christmas, and she bustles into my study and races that cleaner under my feet, sweeping ashes that have dropped to the rug. I have to hold up my feet while she works. Did you ever try to write, boss, with your feet in the air and a vacuum cleaner grinding under your chair?

It was only this morning that the littlest little Lou paused during her work, propped her hands on her hips and told me she didn't like her vacuum cleaner any more. Secretly I was glad and hoped she would throw the darn thing away, but absent-mindedly I asked:

"How come you don't like the vacuum cleaner?"

"It was made in Japan, and Japan is killing the China people."

I dropped a puddle of ashes on the rug in my amazement and glared at her so quickly that she jumped.

"Where did you hear that, Annie Rooney?" Oh, I can be stern, skipper.

"On the radio."

"You didn't hear on the radio that you ought not to buy anything from Japan, did you?"

"No, sir, but a man came to the door and told Mama we shouldn't buy things from Japan."

THEN I had to try to explain to the five-year-old child the dangers of a boycott. I told her that if we didn't buy things from Japan that the little Japanese children would be hungry, and then they would be mad with us. I didn't go into the right or wrong of Japanese conquest, because, boss, regardless of how I feel I refuse to teach the littlest little Lou to hate anything.

And when I told her of the Japanese children, her face brightened.

"I heard them on the radio." She was enthusiastic. "They talk funny and wear cute clothes. I'm not mad at them."

There you have it! There's a bond between my littlest little Lou and all the Lous of the world. It's radio! What other medium in the world can bring to a child the story of peace and good-will as well as the radio? I would to Heaven, skipper, that the littlest little Lous of Japan and Germany and all the world had radios so they could know my littlest little Lou. Then we could put our diplomats to plowing and beat our swords into aerials.

every dad in the world gets flustered when he tries to sit down and tell his boys about the flesh-pots. That's because the time never seems appropriate. Radio solved that problem for me, too, for the boys heard some things about life on their radio one night when it wasn't having a fit, and they came to me and the opening was there and it wasn't hard to talk any more.

Little John likes music. He can explain the classics. Walter Damrosch taught him that.

THE littlest little Jim wants to be a newspaperman. He tries to spot real news during the broadcasts. He even runs a radio paper, and takes notes on the broadcasts. Then he dummies a page, and "plays" the stories he has heard as though he were publishing a paper. And I noticed this: He puts only enough news freaks on his page one to make it bright, but most of his stories are taken from serious broadcasts.

He knows more about newspapering right now, boss, than I did during my cub days. You ought to fire me and hire him.

Radio even runs the calendar at Maison Mortgage. Monday is no longer Monday at our house—it's Burns and Allen day. Tuesday is Jack Oakie day. And on down the line until Sunday. And that belongs to Charlie McCarthy and Jack Benny.

Incidentally, that McCarthy guy has a spell over my house. Regardless of what I'm doing, the littlest little Lou runs to me with news that Charlie is on. And I must put aside my work, and the clan gathers before the big radio and laughs. Little Annie Rooney laughs the loudest.

Where did she get that name? From the radio, boss.

Well, good-night, I'm turning in. And on a radio bed, because RADIO GUIDE bought it.

Regards,
Jimmie.

LINCOLN, ILL., TO AIR BIRTHDAY BROADCAST IN HONOR OF THE GREAT EMANCIPATOR—SAT.

TWENTY-THREE cities and towns in the United States bear the name of Lincoln. Most of them are named for the martyred President. But only one—Lincoln, Illinois—claims the distinction of having been named for him during his lifetime, before he became famous, and before he was even expected to.

This week engineers of the Columbia Broadcasting System will go to Lincoln (population 12,855 by the last census) to arrange for a special Lincoln's birthday broadcast from the city which took the name of Lincoln in 1853, at a time when Honest Abe was a political has-been, engaged in the practise of law in Springfield.

Lincoln had served four terms (1834-41) in the Illinois legislature and one term in Congress (1847-49). He was comparatively obscure. His career in Congress had been so undistinguished and so unsuccessful that he had returned to Springfield deep in despair about his future. Politics had been unkind to him.

In Washington he had been the only Whig from Illinois in the House of Representatives. His denunciation of the popular Mexican War and of President Polk, a Democrat, had aroused a storm of wrath at home. Lincoln, while campaigning, had not opposed the war and, like many Whigs, he had even joined in voting funds for supplies, all of which constituents remembered.

So dangerous was anti-war sentiment that Lincoln's friend, Herndon, wrote to him to tell him that his political career was ended. Some newspapers in Illinois even assailed him as a "Benedict Arnold." Herndon's reports had convinced him that his hopes for re-election were slight. He announced that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself.

He took no very active part in the congressional campaign in Illinois in 1848. Instead, he stumped Massachusetts. The Whigs won nationally that year, but in Lincoln's own district slid down to defeat, which some writers interpret as a repudiation of Lincoln's record in Congress.

His term in Washington ended, he returned to Springfield, a sad and melancholy man. "He thought his political fortunes were ended forever," Beveridge writes, "and so did his wife, that 'most ambitious woman I ever saw,' as her sister describes her." Back to circuit-riding he went, depressed not only by his political failure but by his poverty and the poverty of his relatives.

The city of Lincoln, in Logan County, Illinois, where Lincoln had worked as a surveyor, was laid out in 1853. Its promoters were Robert B. Latham, John D. Gillett and Virgil Hickox, all intimate friends of Lincoln. Naturally they turned to him for legal advice.

In Lincoln's office, in Springfield, the promoters of the new town met on August 24, 1853, to discuss their project. At this conference Latham suggested that the town be named for their friend, Lincoln. The others approved heartily. But Lincoln was doubtful. "All right," he said, "but I'm afraid you're making a mistake. I have never known anything bearing the name of Lincoln that amounted to very much."

Nevertheless, with his consent, the town was named Lincoln. A year later he had begun his rise to fame, recalled to politics by the Kansas-Nebraska Act opening the northwest territories to slavery. Eight years later he was President of the United States.

Featured on the Lincoln's birthday broadcast from the city of Lincoln will be the Lincoln College a capella choir, directed by E. J. Laughlin; former Congressman Lawrence Beaumont Stringer, an authority on Lincoln and regional history; 94-year-old Lindsey Zollars, a Civil War veteran, who in his boyhood in the early 1850's heard Lincoln speak on several occasions; and Governor Henry Horner, of Illinois.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT OPENS "BOY SCOUT WEEK" IN A NATION-WIDE ADDRESS—MON.

BIGGEST, best known and most highly praised of all boys' organizations is the Boy Scouts of America. There are exactly 1,684,172 Boy Scouts, Cubs, Senior Scouts and Scout leaders in the United States today. More than 7,500,000 American men in various walks of life have had Boy Scout training.

This week, from February 6 to 12, the Boy Scouts of America celebrate as Boy Scout week, setting it aside to commemorate the twenty-eighth anniversary of the establishment of the organization in the United States, to which it came from the British Isles, where it was founded in 1908.

Prime aim of scouting is to develop good citizenship, to teach through the medium of self-expression, rather than through more formal and stilted methods. To this end, scouting offers athletic competition, an enticing knowledge of outdoor life, and vocational and civic training of all kinds.

Scouts this year plan to conduct during Boy Scout week a strenuous campaign for public safety. Their method will be to focus attention upon the causes of accidents and upon the hazards that lead to death by fire, drowning, freezing and in highway crack-ups. Their weapons will be "living" demonstrations, staged in improvised settings in store windows, on sidewalks, in hotels and bank lobbies.

PRESIDENT Franklin D. Roosevelt, himself once actively interested in Boy Scout work in New York City, will inaugurate radio's part in the celebration of Scout Week on Monday, February 7, when he goes on the air over three networks (NBC, CBS, MBS) in his capacity as honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America. On the same program will be Walter W. Head, president of the organization, and Dr. James E. West, chief Scout executive.

Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. EST, NBC-Blue, an even more elaborate birthday party has been arranged. Scouts will take part in a radio celebration linking Honolulu, the United States and Greenland through National Broadcasting Company facilities. Participants will assemble before microphones in San Francisco, New York, Denver, Chicago and Honolulu, and will be in touch, by short wave, with Robert Inglis, an Eagle Scout accompanying the MacGregor Arctic Expedition, now in Greenland.

This program will feature a Boy Scout drum-and-bugle corps from Racine, Wisconsin, an organization which holds the National Junior Championship; the San Francisco Scout Band; Hawaiian boys, singing songs of the islands; three hundred New York Scouts in a program of American Scout songs; Sea Scouts with bos'n's pipes; and mountain-climbers from the Rockies.

On one occasion during the week the Mutual Broadcasting System will run lines into the National Headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America, at 2 Park Avenue, New York City.

STARRING BERT LYTELL,
"ALIAS JIMMY VALEN-TINE": BRINGS EXCITING
DRAMA—THIS TUESDAY

DRAMATIZING THE LIFE OF COR-NELIUS VANDERBILT, "FAMOUS FORTUNES" MAKES IT BOW-TUES.

OUT of an average population of approximately 120,000, prisons in the United States discharge about 60,000 men each year by parole, pardon and expiration of sentence. Theoretically these men have paid their debt to society. Actually, for many of them, their punishment only begins once they have returned to the outside world.

The problem of readjusting themselves to a new environment proves too weighty for some. Many develop what criminologists call "recidivist" tendencies, become "repeaters," second offenders, habitual criminals. Last available statistics (1936) show that 30.3 percent of the persons arrested in the United States that year had been convicted previously of crimes—on an average of three times each.

A favorite source of worry for sociologists and public officials is the problem of reforming criminals and restoring them to their places in society. Likewise it is a theme beloved of novelists and playwrights. Probably the best-known hero of the legend that crime will always dog its author's footsteps was Jean Valjean of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables."

This struggle of a former prison inmate to redeem himself and to find a secure niche in the world is the theme of a recently inaugurated radio dramatic series, "Alias Jimmy Valentine," an adaptation of the adventures of the famous stage and fiction hero created by O. Henry in his short story, "A Retrieved Reformation," which appeared in a volume entitled "Roads of Destiny," published in 1909.

WRITTEN and produced by Frank and Anne Hummert, and starring Bert Lytell, veteran of both stage and screen, the show was graduated from the transcription class last month, became a "live" half-hour feature, heard every Tuesday evening over the National Broadcasting Company's Blue network. Featured opposite Lytell, in the feminine lead, is Elizabeth Day.

O. Henry (William Sydney Porter), himself a one-time convict (he served three years and three months of a five-year sentence to the Ohio Penitentiary, for embezzlement, before he had his sentence reduced for good behavior), wrote the story of Jimmy Valentine as the story of a man who had been paroled and who was attempting to go straight. The climax of the story is the mischance that forced him to reveal that he had once been a burglar. It is a vivid picture of the struggle that a reformed convict must often make, and of the persistence with which a criminal past can haunt a man.

Lytell has played the title role both on the stage and in motion pictures. The part is a favorite with him. "I challenge anyone to forget Lee Randall, alias 'Jimmy Valentine,'" he told an interviewer. "There is too much of every man in him. It is almost impossible for us not to accept his problems as our own."

WHEN Secretary of the Interior Ickes, recalling the depression of 1929, cried bitterly last month that "out of their divinely claimed genius as managers of private enterprise . . . sixty families promptly led the American people into the worst peacetime catastrophe ever known," he focused popular attention sharply once more on a problem that has troubled the last two generations of Americans.

Who controls the country's wealth? Just how highly is it concentrated? What is the source of the great fortunes of America? Whence comes the money which polo-playing scions of the nation's famous families spend so lavishly? Ferdinand Lundberg, in his widely quoted "America's 60 Families," argues sternly that "the United States is owned and dominated today by a hierarchy of its sixty richest families, buttressed by no more than ninety families of lesser wealth."

It was this work to which Ickes referred, and which Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson last month used as a basis for a vigorous assault on monopoly. There is nothing new in the Lundberg thesis. It has been stated and restated by generations of trust-busters. But this fresh outburst shoves squarely into the limelight again a problem which will always be of interest to the average citizen. Who really owns America?

All this lends particular timeliness to the inauguration of a new series of radio programs entitled "Famous Fortunes." Scheduled to open on Tuesday, February 8, over the facilities of the Mutual Broadcasting System, the new program, to be heard weekly, will consist of dramatizations of the lives of the American millionaires—the men whom one school acclaims as the builders of the nation, another denounces as plunderers.

First subject on the list, which includes such figures as Rockefeller, Carnegie, Wanamaker, Morgan and Astor, is Cornelius Vanderbilt, best known to the traveling public as the creative genius behind the New York Central Railroad system, to social historians as a man who typified almost exactly the hero of the success story which has become one of the glowing traditions of America.

Born on a Staten Island farm, a few miles from New York City, in 1794, Cornelius Vanderbilt, at the age of sixteen, was given $100 by his mother for plowing and planting a stony eight-acre field. With this money, and in the best tradition, he went into business for himself. Before his death, in 1877, he had multiplied his original capital by one million.

Short on formal schooling but long on ambition, he took the $100 he had earned from farm work, bought a sturdy little sailboat, and established a ferry service between Staten Island and New York, shrewdly reasoning that a dependable, regular ferry to the city would make money. It did.

At eighteen, young Cornelius married his cousin, Sophia, a healthy, attractive country girl, accustomed as he was to thrift and hard work. Already, and likewise in keeping with the American tradition, he was contributing largely to the support of his mother and younger sisters.

At sixty-nine, an age when most men have retired, Vanderbilt startled the business world by going into railroading. Quietly, and with a minimum of fuss, he had been selling his ships. Now he bought the Harlem Railroad, then the Hudson River Railway, and eventually came into control of the New York Central and Michigan Southern.

He died in 1877, worth more than $100,000,000. His story is typical of the story of most of the builders of the great American fortunes. He had been shrewd, courageous, quick-witted. He had created vast wealth. Had he also created evil? It is a question which puzzles every student.

JUST after the opening of Weber's overture, we hear a lovely horn quartet with a theme not included in the opera itself. Later the clarinet intones the love of the heroine, repeated before the ending by full orchestra.

Beethoven's "Emperor" concerto, although a truly majestic creation, derives its title from the fact that it is dedicated to Archduke Rudolph. At its first performance the solo part was played by Czerny, the miscreant who made piano-practising children unhappy with his finger exercises. (Both Czerny and Rudolph were pupils of Beethoven.) The "Emperor" concerto expresses the perfection of the composer's striving to make that form not a solo display but a symphonic whole.

Brahms introduces us in his first movement to a sort of Old World contemplation, serene yet gently melancholy. The second part, of haunting beauty, is tenderly romantic. A joyously vigorous scherzo precedes the towering finale, architected into a climax of full-toned magnificence.

WITH the "Prometheus," one is reminded that the serious Beethoven unbent to compose a ballet, although the subject is taken from Greek mythology. The work was written (1801) for Salvatore Vigano, a dancer as famed in his day as Nijinsky or Pavlova more than a century later. My favorite section of the overture is the short impressive opening, and the immediately following melody for oboe. The chief theme, denoting the hero, was used by Beethoven also for the leading motif in the finale of his "Eroica" Symphony.

Mozart's contribution is an unbroken curve of pure melody; Wieniawski's, a scintillating episode in dance rhythm.

The March of Music

Edited by Leonard Liebling

"... An ampler Ether, a diviner Air..."—Wordsworth

A LETTER from Mr. F. Van Overbeke, of Louisville, Kentucky, scolds me for suggesting Toscanini ought to play more familiar music at his Saturday evening broadcasts. The communication continues: "How do you expect us outsiders to learn to enjoy the more important compositions if Toscanini gives us the kind of kindergarten stuff you propose? It is very annoying to tune in to a program by the NBC Orchestra, New York Philharmonic or any other first-class group, and have them waste time with trivial music. One does not learn to enjoy the good by hearing the lesser."

"I am making four week-end trips to Cincinnati to attend the all-Brahms series by the symphony orchestra there. I have learned to enjoy those works by hearing them on the radio. Please use your influence for so-called 'highbrow' music, and don't try to throw a scare into people by telling them that it is above their heads. They have too many such ideas without your adding to them."

I can understand Mr. Van Overbeke's heat, and it does him credit. However, he seems to misunderstand the purpose of my article, which stated the case not for him or others as well-informed but for the average listeners who might be dialing music of which not a single note would mean anything to them. That is the real way to frighten "beginners" from trying the Toscanini experiment again. They are benefited most by being led stepwise from the sheerly melodious good music to the higher romantic and classical examples.

Meanwhile, however, Toscanini has seen the light himself in recent programs and mixed such "lesser" matter as Saint-Saens' "Danse Macabre," Tommasini's "Carnival of Venice," and Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" excerpts, with serious symphonies by Haydn, Sibelius and Beethoven. It even would not surprise me to see Toscanini do Ravel's "Bolero" before the Maestro leaves our land. What would Mr. Van Overbeke say then?

I admire him for traveling hundreds of miles to hear Brahms symphonies. Not many persons would do that. I wish they would.

Rudolf Serkin, young German pianist, is one of the most-absorbed performers imaginable when he faces the public; his heavy spectacles, shock of disordered hair and awkwardly angular gestures add to the picture of intense concentration as he crouches over the keyboard, his nose sometimes almost touching the ivories. However, there is nothing awkward about Serkin's pianism, for he commands fluent technique, tone of fine texture, and deep knowledge of style in the classics. Those qualities showed amply in his recent New York recital, and in the series of three piano-violin recitals which he gave there with Adolph Busch. They furnished elevated readings of the duo sonatas by Beethoven. On Sunday, February 6, Serkin plays

Scherzo and Finale Symphony No. 4
(Tchaikovsky)

HERE Brahms concerns himself with putting through various transformations (nine, to be exact) a simple, hymn-like air by Haydn. Aside from enjoying the endless skill and charm of the separate divisions, and the massive, stately finale, the listener may test his ability as a tune-detective by picking out the theme in spite of its changing character, rhythms and decorations. Variations Nos. 5 and 6 are markedly brilliant and No. 7 is especially gracious.

Smetana (Czech compatriot of Dvorak) is rightly known as the father of Bohemian music, for his operas and symphonic poems are the first which employed the musical characteristics of his country. The Moldau is a river and Smetana traces its course through forests (hunting horn), villages (a rustic wedding with dancing), past ruined castles, and finally, the majestic flow to the sea. Delightful melody graces every page of the colorful score.

Of Tchaikovsky's two symphonic movements, the first, "Pizzicato Ostinato" (Obstinate Pizzicato) is the more original, with its continual plucking of the strings and a quaint middle diversion in which the piccolo gets one of its rare chances to shine in the concert-hall.

The present roster, using only the string department of the orchestra, nevertheless exhibits diversity in period and style.

Here Handel speaks with accustomed classical dignity and strength. His "Concerto" parades small groups of players instead of one solo performer.

Herman Sandby, noted cellist of the Philadelphia Orchestra, is gifted also as a composer of amiable and well-factured music.

The late Enrico Bossi, too, was doubly talented, for he functioned in Italy as an organist as well as a creator of symphonies and choral works. Our program ends with his set of entertaining pieces inspired by episodes in the comedies of Goldoni, early Italian playwright.

A GERMAN-RUSSIAN program, wide in moodal variety, from devotional Bach to glittering Rimsky-Korsakoff! The former's choral preludes are a relatively recent discovery for the general public. Only well-informed organists had previously known them as short but inspired solos, before adapters made the now familiar piano and orchestral versions.

Tschaiakowsky's music embodies what he said of himself, "Russian in the fullest sense of the word." Nothing more vivid, soaring, exciting exists in all piano music than the beginning of the B flat piano concerto. In fact, the whole movement breathes gusto, propulsiveness, passion. Today it is a standard and beloved composition; nevertheless, in 1874, Nicholas Rubinstein (pianistic brother of Anton) declared it to be "worthless." Time, the best critic, tempers all artistic injustice.

Lucie Stern, our soloist, is a pupil of the mighty Josef Hofmann.

The Worried Drummer (Schreiner)

Saul Goodman

Victory Ball (Schelling)

The Orchestra

A NOTHER instructive and entertaining juvenile matinee, with helpful spoken hints by "Uncle Rudy." He will doubtless tell the comic story of Abu Hassan; that Liszt fashioned radiant piano-dressing for bright Hungarian folk-tunes; that the "Nutcracker" music goes with a ballet about the wonderful dream of a little girl, after the Christmas party (with too much candy and cake, perhaps), when she envisions as coming to life all her presents and the toys from the festive tree. Too, the youngsters will learn why the drummer was worried in Schreiner's composition; and they are sure to shudder over the story of the military ball at which the ghosts of brave soldiers who fell in the World War mingle unseen with the happy dancers celebrating victory.

Madame Elisabeth Rethberg does some last minute rehearsing for her role in "Otello" with the assistance of Dr. Herbert Graf, "Met" stage director with the Philharmonic, under Enesco, and we may look for that virile soloist and understanding conductor to make memorable Beethoven's prodigious E Flat Concerto.

Jascha Heifetz' every return to radio is a delight, for he is unique in his field, not only for the style of his interpretations and execution but also because he never falls below his best performances. In the Heifetz almanac of art there seem to be no bad days, not even cloudy ones.

I first heard Heifetz when he was eight years old, and even then his musical sense was as keen as his fingers and his bow manipulation were skilful. Mentally, too, the youngster was remarkably developed. I asked him, "Who is your favorite composer?" and he answered, "Every great one." When I wished to know what he did for recreation after his hours of practise, his reply was, "I practise some more."

It is not every child prodigy whose early promise comes to full fruition, but that of Heifetz is now in its ripest flowering.

One of the most valuable of Fritz Reiner's baton contributions is his training of the student orchestra at the Curtis Institute of Music. His players become so expert in symphonic playing that many of them, when they graduate from the Philadelphia institution, immediately receive engagements as members of major orchestras.

Not generally known is the fact that Saint-Saens' "Danse Macabre" (Dance of Death) was written originally as a setting of Henri Cazalis' grisly poem ending with the words "Long Live Death and Equality." The French public and literary critics condemned the Cazalis product as "too morbid" and singers were afraid to deliver the gruesome words. So Saint-Saens eliminated them, and made his composition exclusively orchestral. Now it is an abidingly popular number everywhere, especially in the Parisian cafes.

When Benny Goodman recently gave his Carnegie Hall (New York) concert of swing music, union pickets paraded outside that auditorium. Everybody wondered why. My guess had it that Professor Goodman was being unfair to classical music.

The Metropolitan Opera Company

Presents
"OTELLO"

by Giuseppe Verdi

The Cast:

Otello	Giovanni Martinelli
Iago	Lawrence Tibbett
Cassio	Nicholas Massue
Desdemona	Elisabeth Rethberg
Emilia	Thelma Votipka

Conductor, Ettore Panizza

Arrigo Boito, Verdi's librettist, based this operatic story on Shakespeare's drama "Othello" concerning the trusting hero and his villainous friend, Iago.

Those two characters and Desdemona, gentle wife of Otello, are the main three protagonists who sing and act the imperishable story of ambition, jealousy and murder.

Verdi wrote "Aida" in 1871, when he was fifty years old; after a lapse of sixteen years came "Otello"; and at the age of eighty (1893) the incredible genius composed his "Falstaff," last opera from an inspired pen.

What makes the chronological order remarkable is that "Otello," with its absence of the old-fashioned display arias, concerted numbers and sugary tunes, represented a complete change of style on the part of the composer. He abandoned the old Italian methods of "Aida" to follow in the footsteps of Wagner, by making the orchestra an eloquent factor in relating the action of the libretto.

ACT I

The Isle of Cyprus. Late fifteenth century. A vista of stormy sea. Otello's ship arrives and that hero announces to the watching crowd his complete victory over the Turkish fleet. Soldiers celebrate in drink, joined by Iago, vengeful not only because he has failed to receive the military rank bestowed on Cassio by Otello but also on account of that Moor's own rapid rise to power. Iago's confidant is Roderigo, in love with Desdemona. The two men ply Cassio with wine, incite him to a duel in which he wounds his antagonist, and then fan the disturbance into a small riot. Otello returns from the castle and demotes Cassio for the disorderly conduct of himself and his troops. Otello sings a duet with Desdemona, the librettist using the Shakespearian lines describing her love for the Moor and how she came to marry him. As Otello and she kiss, the orchestra plays an impassioned phrase heard again as the opera ends. Peaceful night closes the act.

ACT II

A room in the castle. Iago, weaving his intrigue advises that Desdemona might aid in moving Otello to restore Cassio to his lost post. Iago, alone, sings his cynical and cruel "Credo" (Creed) one of Verdi's loftiest descriptive creations. When Iago sees Cassio in converse with Desdemona, he slyly arouses the romantic jealousy of Otello. When she pleads for Cassio, the Moor's suspicions strengthen. She drops her handkerchief and Emilia recovers it for the tricky Iago, who, following Otello's heartbroken song, tells him that he has seen Desdemona's handkerchief in Cassio's room. Otello swears vengeance.

ACT III

Great Hall of the castle. Otello accuses Desdemona violently, and is sure of his ground when Cassio shows the ominous handkerchief to Iago, declaring that he found it in his room, and wondering who placed it there. Cassio also boasts lewdly about a woman of the town, Otello not hearing her name and assuming it to be Desdemona. Now insane with jealousy, the Moor, at the suggestion of Iago, determines to strangle his wife in her dishonored bed. The Venetian ambassador announces that Otello has been elevated to higher honor in Venice. Unheeding, he insults Desdemona in public, and falls in a faint. To the multitude, Iago, pointing at the fallen hero, shouts with fiendish glee, "Behold your Lion of Venice."

ACT IV

Desdemona's bedroom. The sad drama courses to its finish. Desdemona, preparing to retire, remembers a childhood ditty which she sings to Emilia, and later intones the celebrated "Prayer," another melodic highspot of the opera. The brooding Otello enters and in spite of Desdemona's protestations of innocence, chokes her to death. People rush in, Otello shows them the handkerchief, and then learns from Emilia how he has been deceived. Otello stabs himself after declaring his grief and immortal love for Desdemona.

ALMANAC OF CROP NEWS & HOMEMAKING NAT'L FARM AND HOME HOUR

Daily, Monday-Saturday.
12:30-1:30 p.m. NBC-Blue.

A drop in the rainfall over Russia—and fifty million extra dollars line the jeans of America's farmers!

Gauchos strike in the Argentine and the cattlemen of Texas buy ten thousand more new trucks.

Fantastic? . . . How? . . .

These statements are neither news nor prophecy—but they can come true. Just such events as these in far corners of the globe affect the agricultural pocketbook of the nation quite as much as trade treaties and congressional legerdemain—and the farmer needs news—fast, complete, accurate.

He gets that news Monday through Saturday on the nation's almanac of housewives and husbandmen, the National Farm and Home Hour. Monday, the program opens on Weekly Chapter 487, Broadcast 2917—an enviable record in "the public interest, convenience and necessity."

Man behind this manual of market facts, agricultural information and general hints for homemakers, both urban and rural, is William E. Drips, ex-dirt-farmer, county agent and farm journalist. Behind him are fifteen years of intimate contact with rural life, work, ambitions. Before him, a confused vista of continuous shift in farm methods and economies.

Listening to learn of the things that make life tick beyond the city limits, Main Street and Side Street can enjoy good music, informative advice on homemaking and the wit and substance of guest speakers on subjects of current interest.

Scout President Walter W. Head will speak.

On Wednesday evening short-wave will link the nation's 500,000 Boy Scouts from Reindeer Point, Greenland to Honolulu, in council.

Listening to Learn

"And this cuff was but to knock at your ear, and beseech listening."—Shakespeare.

"That Is a Good Book Which Is Opened With Expectation and Closed With Profit" . . . Radio?

—Louisa M. Alcott.

TAKE a smart Chinaman's word for it . . . if you are $R_3D_2H_3S_2$ you are practically perfect! We quote this novel formula for the well-rounded human being from that provocative best-seller, "The Importance of Living." Authored by a philosophic upstart, Lin Yutang, this breezy essay on the foibles, frustrations and fundamental goodness of homo sapiens is a refreshing restatement of our capacity to make life fascinating even if we can't make it flawless.

Lin Yutang tunes up the old theories of how to make living freer and fuller. He plays a requiem in swingtime for many of our pet principles. He presents a stimulating series of suggestions for happy, harmonious existence that is mental red-meat for moderns. And he points a way of living that tosses another challenge for us who spin the dials for enlightenment as well as enjoyment.

Sensible Symbols

"R" stands for a sense of Reality. "D" for Dreams, or Idealism. "H" for a sense of Humor. And "S" for Sensitivity. The little figures, lifted for convenience from chemistry, stand for relative amounts of each. And there you are—high on Realism and a sense of Humor, medium on Idealism and Sensitivity—and you're armed and armored for the battle of living.

"So then, wisdom, or the highest type of thinking, consists in toning down our dreams or idealism with a good sense of humor, supported by reality itself" . . . add the leaven of Sensitivity and you have "first, a gift of seeing life whole in art; secondly, a conscious return to simplicity in philosophy; and thirdly, an ideal of reasonableness in living."

This is the language of the books—thoughtful, strong, but slow. Translated for use at our speaker-sides it means: hitch your hopes to the stars but keep your feet in the earth that you feel and know—temper enthusiasm with a sense of humor to ease disillusionment. "Reality plus Dreams plus Humor equals Wisdom."

Applying the Formula . . . Here's How!

Let the digesters of the news keep you close to Reality. Follow "Headlines and By-Lines," "Hendrik Willem Van Loon," the daily news commentators, "People in the News—with Dorothy Thompson" and such solid speaker-stuff as "Science in the News" and the controversies of "Town Meeting of the Air."

Let the serious dramatists and the speakers for truth-as-they-see-it support your dreams—follow the midday musings of "Time for Thought," the brilliant, inspiring pledge of a "Brave New World" and the urge to practical dreaming of "New Horizons."

As for the sense of humor—that must grow in whatever mental soil you yourself can provide. A good spread of realism and dreams will nourish that growth. And sensitivity sprouts wherever these three thrive.

The Book of Radio is a diverse thing. There's the literature of fact—news and history; the literature of fancy—music, story, drama. But from this book we can lift most of the elements that build us toward the ideal of $R_3D_2H_3S_2$. . . and from it we take this week's design for listening—"Literature." You can "open it with expectation and close it with profit."

Walter Damrosch, fatherly director, makes "Music Appreciation Hour" a game for millions, Fridays

APPRECIATION HOUR DEFINES "SYMPHONY" MUSIC APPRECIATION HOUR

Every Friday.
2-3 p.m. NBC-Red & Blue.

Sluggish indifference or deepest devotion marks the average American's attitude toward good music.

One of the most potent forces overcoming this indifference, fostering appreciation through understanding, the Music Appreciation Hour launches its twentieth "semester," one hundred fiftieth broadcast on Friday afternoon.

"The Symphony," as a major form of musical expression, is the subject for this week's radio classroom of music. You will hear the symphony defined and illustrated with the playing of selections from Beethoven's Symphony No. 2 in D—great work of the composer who created many of his most passionately expressive works after going deaf in 1815. You will hear the masterpiece dissected for simplicity of understanding, then remolded by Walter Damrosch and the orchestra for appreciation as a whole.

The second half of Friday's program draws its text from Schubert, and excerpts from his "Rosamonde," the "Moment Musical in F Minor," and the first movement of the "Unfinished" Symphony in B Minor, to illustrate how a composer and his music reflect his life and times. You will hear of Schubert's struggle for recognition; how his remarkable musical talent survived the anguish of poverty and obscurity to create for us a heritage of melody, romantic, majestic, cheerful.

The Damrosch Idea of Music Appreciation

The Music Appreciation Hours present a fourfold musical study. The series is divided into four parts; two each are heard on alternate Fridays. Series A deals with the orchestral family—the instruments and the essential parts they play in the physical make-up of music. Series B is concerned with the imaginative aspect of music—the ideas expressed in musical forms. Series C deals with the intellectual aspect or structure of pure music. Series D is devoted to the spiritual aspect of different composers' music as an expression of their lives and times.

The enjoyment and understanding that constitute music appreciation is built on a grasp of these essentials—and under the informal tutelage of Walter Damrosch enjoyment and understanding are as easy as beating up a cake or writing a casual letter.

RELATIONS FORUM TO FEATURE SOCIAL ISSUES

Every Monday, 2:30-3 p.m. CBS.

"Do unto others . . ."—and nineteen centuries of history paint a grim burlesque of a tarnished golden rule.

"Blame, bitterness, hatred . . . thirst for retaliation and revenge" . . . these are constant headline reminders "of our failure to tolerate human deviations."

Socrates — deviation — hemlock!
Christ — deviation — cross! Race and color credos — deviation — bloodshed, ghettos, exile! New political ideals — deviation — war! Personal aspirations — deviation — despair! . . . Must man be forever heir to such stupidity? Why these continuing maladjustments in a life so full of potentialities for calm, accomplishment and harmony?

The "Human Relations Forum" that supplants the School of the Air "Exits and Entrances" on Mondays will endeavor to clarify, if it cannot answer, such questions.

The Forum objectives: "To relieve personal distress and to shift the angry trend"—its method: "to help each other to see ourselves, to understand the motives and urgencies which lie behind human behavior, to build broader tolerance, and to realize the universality of personal problems which, in our curious isolation, we think to be unique tragedies of our own."

All "Forum" questions stem from the individual's point of view. Monday's discussion group will take up the inquiry, "What are some of the problems we face in being accepted and making our own way as adults?"

APPRECIATION HOUR

"Only gradually can . . . ears become more and more capable of perceiving and enjoying combinations of musical tones."—Walter Damrosch.

This is the philosophy that molds the appeal and governs the efforts of the man behind the baton of the Music Appreciation Hour.

Steeped in musical tradition and accomplishment, Walter Damrosch nevertheless abjures the brittle, exclusive point of view of many professional musicians—makes appreciation for all a game to be enjoyed, an experience to be assimilated.

Perhaps the mellowing effect of seventy-five years' devotion to music has leveled his perspectives without affecting his standards. Whatever the cause, his "Hour" is a result that ranks as one of radio's finest accomplishments.

Design for Listening

Theme of the Week:
Literature on the Air

"Some books are to be tasted, others, swallowed, and some few to be chewed and digested" . . . Bacon.

In the book of radio there is much to be tasted, more to be chewed, some to be digested, and none to be swallowed. Idea-swallowing causes dyspepsia, fatal to mental health.

Literature on the air offers abundant opportunity for tasting ideas, chewing those that seem good, digesting at leisure. This literature is many-sided. It consists not only of books but of that broad literature of music, fantasy and fact that is the real book of living. Much that we hear is still-born. Enough is lively, vital, challenging to warrant serious listening.

The following suggestions are recommended for tasting and chewing. Savor them for fun and stimulation. There's idea-gristle for sharpening your mental teeth (realism). Spice for flavoring your points of view (humor). And sweetmeats for your heart's growth (dreams) . . . and these are the elements of wisdom. Masticate (listen) well and digestion will perfect their proper combination.

Sunday. Taste the literature of travel. Malcolm LaPrade, 2:15-2:30 p.m. NBC-Red, goes down to Bulgaria and the Black Sea over the route of the ancient Argonauts.

Monday. Open the book of social issues to "Human Relations Forum," 2:30-3 p.m. CBS. Chew on the factual literature of nature—"New Horizons," 6:15-6:30 p.m. CBS, presents Dr. Wm. K. Gregory on "Men vs. Monkeys."

Wednesday. Hear Philosophy as News with Hendrik Willem Van Loon, 7:30-7:45 p.m. NBC-Red, (also Friday, same time), and another page from medicine, "Your Health" — "Healthy Hearts," 2-2:30 p.m. NBC-Red.

Friday. Go up in the sky with the Science Club, 2:45-3 p.m. CBS, for a page from meteorology. Legislation—in "Current Questions Before the Senate," 3:30-3:45 p.m. CBS.

Saturday. Literature from Economics and life—"The Story of Industry," 5-5:30 p.m. CBS, dramatizes the story of "Home Building."

HOLLYWOOD SHOWDOWN

BY EVANS PLUMMER

HOW can you get a pair of those gilt-edged Chase and Sanborn tickets? Frankly, you just can't. They aren't available officially to the public. The reason is that the broadcasting-room occupied by Charlie McCarthy and Ed Bergen, Don Ameche, Dorothy Lamour and guest has but 248 seats. 173 tickets go to grocers and the grocery trade and the balance are given to advertising officials and the press—and the gentlemen of the press have to stand up on occasions.

That's the most difficult show in Hollywood for which to obtain tickets. But there are twenty-one others of national importance providing for studio audiences. The tickets to most of these may be obtained under similar conditions—by writing to the program in care of the Hollywood studios of the network over which the broadcasts are heard—that is, if you wait long enough.

Probably the next hardest show to see—and one which is equally popular—is the Jack Benny Jell-O show. Benny does his program twice the same day from a studio which duplicates that used by Chase and Sanborn. There are about 350 tickets in all available to listeners—and you may put your order in for these by writing to General Foods, in care of the NBC Hollywood Studios.

Enclose a stamped, addressed return envelope and try to limit your request to two tickets. In fact, that statement is a good rule in writing to any show for tickets. Sometimes the larger studio shows will fill requests for as many as six tickets to one listener, but not so rapidly. And you might be interested to know that the Benny ticket requests are weekly fifteen times as many as are available. That'll just give you an idea of the letter line in which your request will have to wait.

Here is a general resume of some of the Hollywood audience shows and your chances: Rudy Vallee, Kraft Music Hall and Feg Murray's Baker's broadcast are not open to the public, are filled by invitation. Lux Radio Theater, using the 1,000-seat Music Box Theater, has 900-odd seats open for application. Address Lever Brothers or KNX, Los Angeles. Joe Penner, with a repeat broadcast in the 1,040-seat Vine Street Playhouse, isn't difficult, nor are Al Jolson's show and Eddie Cantor's Texaco Town, which have a preview and two broadcasts, all from the big Vine Street Playhouse. Write to the Penner, Jolson and Cantor programs, care of KNX, Hollywood, for tickets. Remember, however, that the Cantor troupe is now in New York. Big Town, Ed Robinson's and Claire Trevor's play series, occupies the roomy Wilshire Ebell Theater, may be addressed care of KNX, Hollywood.

Hollywood Hotel is in its own class. While 1,100 tickets are available weekly, these must be traded for by submitting six of the sponsor's labels for each requested ticket along with one stamped envelope to F. Wallis Armstrong Co., Hollywood. But even so, you'll have several months to wait!

Haley Log Cabin Jamboree has very few seats open. Write General Foods, 775 Terminal, Los Angeles. Maxwell House "Good News," in the large El Capitan Theater, is open to requests to the same address as for Log Cabin. For Burns and Allen, ditto, but here's another tiny studio.

Hollywood Mardi Gras is a tight studio, but if you must, write to Packard Motor Car Co., Hollywood.

For Phil Baker, write Gulf Oil Co., care of KNX, Hollywood. Seats aren't too difficult. Same holds for Oakie Show, addressing the show, care of KNX. Only a few tickets are open for Tyrone Power's Woodbury Playhouse, but apply to Lennen & Mitchell, Hollywood. For Mickey Mouse Theater, address Lord & Thomas, or Mickey, care of NBC, Hollywood, but there aren't many seats. Lord & Thomas is the address likewise for Your Hollywood Parade—but right now this show is 3,000 seats behind. Finally, George Jessel's "Thirty Minutes in Hollywood" tickets are given out by Gaffers and Sattler, Los Angeles.

But please—dear readers—be patient. Don't phone the sources given.

Speaking of Rudy, last week the American Airlines wished to demonstrate to him that they could ship two barrels of fresh, live Maine lobsters to him in twenty hours with ample life and snap left. Mr. Vallee accepted the kind and tasty offer—and began promising his friends a treat. He rushed to Bing Crosby, rehearsing at the next-door studio. "Sure," replied Bing to Rudy's generous gesture, "I'll take two goats Harris had killed at Catalina. Just then the gun went off, and one goat head fell and a pane of glass adjoining the mantel disappeared in small pieces. "Gosh, Phil," Andy commented, "I'll betcha that's the first wild goat you ever got twice."

Judy Garland and Betty Jaynes, two "Good News" singing stars, are having birthday trouble. The inside story is that Judy's movie studio, M-G-M, feeling Judy looked younger than her years, marked her down from an actual fifteen to a fictional fourteen years. But the same studio felt that Betty Jaynes should play more mature parts; therefore they added a mythical year to Betty's sixteen, calling her age seventeen. All was very well with the Judy markdown, but Betty Jaynes' mother is quite embarrassed. It seems that Betty is a first child, and Mr. and Mrs. Jaynes have barely been married seventeen years!

Scoop! Disney's next full-length feature-cartoon picture, in Technicolor, will be "Pimochio"—as everyone knows—but the dicker is on heavily to use Edgar Bergen's Charlie McCarthy voice for that of the title role—which no one else knows!

Just how the movie lots function is illustrated by the yarn which is being whispered about regarding Jack Benny's next picture (maybe). The studio coaxed Jack to make another film; if he would they'd promise him a voice in the selection of the story, and they'd give him an ace director. Benny had a good idea, he thought, in the story woven about a hypochondriac (to be played by Jack) abroad, who could speak only English but who always was trying to buy pills. Next, the studio put their "ace" director on the job. He read the synopsis of the story, studied it over, and called Benny. "You know, Jack," the brainy one commented, "I like the story, but I think it would be better if we made the setting America instead of Europe" . . . Jack called for some pills.

Most pathetic scene of the week: Paul Whiteman consoling himself in a dark corner of the Brown Derby over his fate of being turned into a "radio comedian."

Backstage Stuff: Even prima donnas' feet hurt. Jeanette MacDonald arrived at her January 23 airing resplendent in a brown and silver ensemble with brown shoes, took off her shoes, and slipped into a pair of brown mules trimmed in silver! . . . John Frazer, NBC sign-off mikeman for Your Hollywood Parade, on January 19 stood facing the control-room window, his back to the microphone, awaiting a cue to turn about and say "This is the National Broadcasting Company." Came the cue, John turned, and saw a property-man, who, thinking the show was over, was walking across the studio with Frazer's mike over his shoulder. All Frazer could do was sprint after the workman and announce as he ran! . . . Two minutes prior to the ending of a recent Hollywood-in-Person show, on this occasion emanating from a Paramount Studios sound-stage, the stage door was suddenly opened and a raucous stage-hand voice shouted in, "Hey, Elmer!" Then, observing his error, he shouted equally loud, "Pardon me, folks, I thought Elmer was here."

Speaking of Chase and Sanborn tickets, a pair of them saved a Mexican storekeeper on Los Angeles' Olvera Street the other night. The Stroud Twins, getting playful, knocked over a tray of miniature glass souvenirs. Loud were the proprietor's cries until the mystical ducats were handed him, then all was forgotten.

George McCall, "Hollywood Screenscooper," is well equipped to report the news of the screen capital from all angles. Former newspaperman, producer and actor, he's heard each Tuesday and Thursday night telling the stars' latest doings and giving reviews of picture productions Songstress Dolly Dawn helped the veteran and debonair George Hall celebrate his eighth consecutive year recently as orchestra leader at New York's Hotel Taft. CBS listeners hear Hall, whose original contract at the hotel was for four weeks, every Mon., Wed. and Thurs.

They can't accelerate your request, and already they are amply harassed. Make it easy for them. They WANT you to have tickets. Really . . . and there are no permanent ticket mailing-lists. Don't be piggy.

Rom-Antics: Dave Rose was carrying a torch for his busted romance with Martha Raye at Ted Fio-Rito's "Melody Shop" airing January 23 . . . Pinky Tomlin's fiancée, Joanne Alcorn, is proudly showing a 20-diamond, 18-sapphire engagement ring. The nuptials are set for February 17 at Santa Barbara . . . While Wendy Barrie's heart is still in the East, her tennis racket is most frequently crossed with that of Rudy Vallee.

for me, a pair for Dixie, and one each for the kids—say an even dozen in all." Rudy made a note of the order. He kept making notes of other radio and movie-lot friends promised, including Bette Davis . . . Next day the American lobster flagship roared in. The lobsters were delivered alive. Then Crooner Vallee delivered and went to the bottom of both barrels before all his friends had been covered. But Rudy—he had none left for himself, so he borrowed a pair of Bing's to have a picture taken, anyway.

It happened in Bandleader Phil Harris' den. He was showing Andy Devine his brand-new shotgun. Above the mantel were a pair of heads of

AIRIALTO LOWDOWN

BY MARTIN LEWIS

ALTHOUGH most of the big radio shows originate in Hollywood, I'd like to predict here and now that in 1939 a good majority of them will be back in the East. It is my feeling, based on letters received from readers, that the tuner-inners are pretty well fed up with the big-name movie stars appearing on radio shows who are built up to a terrific let-down. One of the reasons for this prediction is the fact that the New York World's Fair in 1939 will be responsible for the exodus of many radio shows from the West to the East. A great many national advertisers will be represented at the fair, and they will certainly want their radio shows in full view of the large, potential, visible audience.

Another fault listeners find with the Hollywood radio shows is in the numerous plugs given to the pictures in which the stars appear. Then again, when a movie star appears on a radio show, credit is given to the movie company. For instance, on one recent West Coast airing the listeners heard, "Don Ameche appeared on this program through the courtesy of Chase and Sanborn, Andy Devine through the courtesy of Jell-O, and Tyrone Power through the courtesy of Woodbury's." Another similar case, "... that was Tony Martin, 20th Century star, singing 'True Confession' from the Paramount picture of the same name." Say the listeners, "So what?"

It wouldn't surprise me if the Federal Communications Commission put through a ruling prohibiting a microphone's being brought into the ring after a prize-fight for the winner to tell the radio audience that the fight was a tough one, or words to that effect. Listeners undoubtedly recall the remark made by Maxie Baer, after the fight, which caused the faces of the radio moguls to turn crimson. After the recent Jimmie Braddock-Tommy Farr fight the mike was put in front of Jimmie's face and he uttered, "Tommy Farr is a helluva great fighter." Such a remark is against all rules and regulations, but of course nothing can be done about it after it is made. However, steps can be taken to prevent such remarks over the air by not allowing the microphone in the ring.

Racing fans will be interested to know that CBS will broadcast the $20,000 added Flamingo Stakes and the $50,000 added Widener Cup on February 26 and March 5, respectively. These are the highlights of the racing season at Miami's Hialeah Park.

Thirteen men have been added to Mark Warnow's orchestra for his "Magazine of the Air" show heard Sundays over CBS. Another new feature includes Lyn Murray's choir of 20—twelve men and eight girls. This Sunday program, which is built around the inspirational talks of Channing Pollock and additional entertainment provided by guest stars, is gaining in popularity each week.

Paging Mr. Fred Smith! The Fred Smith banquet will be held on the 16th of February at the New Yorker Hotel and will be broadcast over the NBC network at 9 p.m. EST—just in case you cannot be one of the Fred Smiths who will be on hand for the event. Great plans are under way and a good time is expected to be had by all.

Requests are still coming in as to the whereabouts of Joan Blaine. At the present time Miss Blaine is heard locally over WGN, in Chicago, Mondays to Fridays, in a dramatic skit. However, before long it is expected that her program, which is more or less in the trial stage, will replace one of the four units of the Gold Medal Hour.

Several weeks ago I mentioned some programs that had previews of their broadcasts for a visible audience. That is, an audience is invited to attend the dress rehearsal of the program. Ben Bernie tried it out for the inaugural program of his new series and liked it so well that he is going to make a regular practise of doing this. Each Monday night Bernie and the cast of the show do their stuff and the audience's

I was amazed at the number of letters he receives from listeners each week. The program is Kyser's original idea.

There's a New York cab-driver who's going to see one of the New York broadcasts of "Big Town" as a guest of Edward G. Robinson, star of the show. Robinson, in from the Coast, hailed a cab at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. As he sat back he noticed the Attending the recent Hollywood premiere of "In Old Chicago" was "Chase and Sanborn's" popular master of ceremonies, Don Ameche, and his wife. A 20th Century-Fox film, the epic picture is now being shown all over the country and movie-goers see Don in an important role in it

To versatile Phil Spitalny goes the duty of directing thirty-two feminine instrumentalists and star performers on the all-girl "Hour of Charm" series. Just completing a three-week personal-appearance tour, Phil and his "charmers" return to New York for their broadcast this Monday reaction to the various portions of his program is noted. After the show, a conference is called to take out the weak spots, which is the reason for his very entertaining broadcasts. The producers of "Double Everything" are doing the same thing. Their weak spot, in my opinion, is the so-called comedians whose double talk is very unfunny to the ears.

I was glad to learn that Lucky Strike had taken over Kay Kyser's Kollege of Musical Knowledge. I'd like to make another prediction: That his show will bring more mail than any other program of its type. During my recent visit to the Windy City, Kyser took me up to his private office and driver's registration card, with the name, "Steve Wilson." Oddly enough, that is the name of Robinson in "Big Town." Struck by the coincidence and with a touch of superstition from his stage days, Robinson issued an invitation to the real Steve to attend the broadcast and see the scriptural Steve—and was the cabby thrilled!

There was great excitement in Columbia's publicity department the other day when Robinson and Claire Trevor came in to have their pictures taken at the news-desks. Both Mr. Robinson and Miss Trevor demonstrated their editorial abilities for the camera, Robinson sitting in a swivel chair and firing rapidly into a telephone, "That you, Will? Say, is this Will? Been trying to get you, Will"; while Miss Trevor sat at a typewriter and typed out, "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party" over and over again.

IN THE MAIL: "I meant to write you before regarding an incident on a recent Jerry Belcher program in which he asked Captain Nelson whether he was Jewish or not, as he was using his hands to explain a point. I am sure that Mr. Belcher was just ad-libbing and it was not in the script, but I certainly feel that he was clear out of line in making this remark. I have been a listener to Jerry Belcher, even from the old 'Vox Pop' days, and I will continue to listen to him as I enjoy his program, but I feel he certainly stuck his neck out with this remark." And so do I, Mr. F.

Radio has even invaded the stamp-collectors' columns... looking through that department of my newspaper the other day, I came across this item: "Russ Morgan, the bandleader, was elected president of the Airways Stamp Club, an organization of collectors engaged in radio work."

For a long time now, Ben Bernie has been telling radio listeners at every available opportunity of his great admiration for Myrna Loy. But the one story he doesn't tell is how he acted when he met Myrna. It was at the Trocadero Cafe in Hollywood one night. Ben was dancing, when suddenly Myrna Loy and her husband, Arthur Hornblow, Jr., danced up right next to him. Myrna stopped when she saw Bernie, and leaning over toward him, said sweetly, "Don't you think it's about time we met?" And Bernie muffed his big moment, after all his months of ether raves about her. He got so excited all he could do was stammer and stutter. He grew red all over, just like any other fan.

Out in Chicago a group of radioites, actors mostly, are producing stage plays and presenting them on a non-profit basis, just as a hobby. The personnel of this group includes many well-known radio names located in the Windy City. They call themselves "The Little Theatre Off Bug-House Square." At the present time they are writing and rehearsing their next show, which will be presented some time in February. It is entitled "The Devil Passes." I think NBC would be wise in putting it on the air for the benefit of the radio listeners. They tell me it's that good.

Muriel Wilson, better known as Mary Lou of the former Show Boat program, was married to Fred Hufsmith on Friday, January 28, at the Faith Presbyterian church in New York City. The couple had two preachers to tie the knot. They'll live in the big city.

KILOCYCLE KOMMENTS: Grace Moore takes over the singing assignment from Lawrence Tibbett on the Wednesday night Andre Kostelanetz programs beginning March 31. It was my understanding that Frank Parker was to follow Tibbett, but no explanation has been given as to the reason why he will not. (Just as I was pounding the keyboard writing that line, Parker's praise-agent walked into the office and assured me that any day now Frank will sign up for one of several programs offered to him.)... CBS Saturday Night Swing Session is being seriously considered by a sponsor who is dissatisfied with the program that he now has on the air... Carl Hoff's appearance on next Saturday night's Hit Parade will be a one-time shot only. Hoff leaves with Al Pearce for a vaudeville engagement opening in Cleveland on the 18th.

ENCHANTING STRINGS

TO HEAR Jascha Heifetz play is to hear one of the world's greatest living violin virtuosi—a true artist who has a lifetime of playing behind him. Sunday night of this week CBS listeners will be afforded this rare treat, for Heifetz will be the "Ford Sunday Evening Hour" star.

Born in Russia in 1901, Heifetz made his debut in his native country at the age of five and was playing solos with the Berlin Philharmonic before he was twelve. After playing with the Leipzig Gewandhaus and the Vienna Symphony, he appeared in America in concert in 1917. It was one of the most sensational New York debuts ever recorded. Since then he has circled the globe four times and played in almost every civilized country in the world. He is a donor of a concert hall in Jerusalem and one of the founders of the Guild Theater in New York. In 1926, he received the Chevalier Legion of Honor, is a member of the Beethoven Association, the Bohemians, and many other organizations.

When not on a concert tour, Heifetz hies himself away to the seclusion of his California home with his wife and two children. Mrs. Heifetz is remembered as the former movie star, Florence Vidor.

So You Like Contests?

THE world seems to most of us to muddle along without organization or purpose or reason. Often it is hard to stand off and see the causes and effects of the very things which influence us. "The world is so full of a number of things," doesn't necessarily mean that we should all be as happy as kings, because the "things" often won't fit into the jig-saw puzzles of our own lives.

All this is an overture to an explanation of this department's program. To prevent readers' believing that there is little rhyme or reason to what they see here, let's go over it together. Here's the way it's organized:

The editors want to provide: (1) announcements of all the important contests, on the air and off; (2) publication of non-winning entries, and criticisms which show why they didn't win; (3) winning entries which have overcome the faults of the non-winners; (4) a constant supply of contest facts and background material on which entries can be built and on which a sound viewpoint toward contesting can be crystallized; (5) personalized service through the medium of correspondence.

For a long time the editors have wanted to explain what we're about. We hope that an understanding of the general purposes of the department will increase its value to its readers—and that those readers will try to correlate for their own uses the material presented under these heads.

Winning Entries Some of 1937's Best!

Five weeks ago and two weeks ago we printed non-winning entries for readers' criticisms. Three weeks ago we printed the criticisms of the first set, and the second set of criticisms is now being examined. To provide a basis for comparison with these, in practically every issue we print some winning entries. This week, since the non-winners have been printed so recently, a review of 1937's winners is presented.

The entries below are reprinted from a compilation of 105 winning entries written during 1937, as collected by the Townsend-Friend Contest Service. Here they are:

The makers of Listerine cough-drops offered major prizes of radios for last lines to this limerick:

Said a coughing young fellow named Green,
"Those cough-drops they call Listerine
Sure taste mighty fine,
And relieve every time,

These last lines were among the big winners:

I demand this new brand, best I've seen!"

For that 'drop' on the market, I'm keen!"

For the cough and the coffer they're keen!"

The Shell Oil Company offered cash prizes for last lines to this jingle:

The 'gator's tough and mighty rough,
Jack Rabbit's never last
Mix 'em well—like Golden Shell—

Both of these last lines were winners:

Stands Up—Stands Out—Stands Fast!
TWO needs . . . ONE oil . . . AT LAST!

The Quaker Oats Company asked for titles for a picture of Dr. Dafoe and the Dionne quintuplets. These were among the major prize-winners:

"The Prince of Wails."

"The Wise and the Winsome."

"Hits of Today; Misses of Tomorrow."

Several companies asked for names for products and advertising devices. "Abradella," a coined word made up

"Be safe, be sure, be thrifty—buy Rexall!"

The most important lesson for a contesteer to learn is how to write short statements. Here are some of the best winning entries recorded in 1937:

I buy Pillsbury's Best because I've tried them all, and learned what "bal-are for gently sudsing my fine silk underthings.

Governor Leslie Miller, of Wyoming, won a thousand-dollar sport-kit with this statement:

Ten years of wearing Wright Arch Preserver shoes have made me worth millions in comfort and health—in them, mine are again the feet of Youth!

The following three statements won $100.00 Longines watches for their writers:

I like Woodbury's Soap best for my skin because it takes the best care of my skin. Though I am past forty, my complexion is always radiant and youthful, smooth, fine-textured, vigorous and alive.

Woodbury's keeps my skin so youthful and attractive no one would guess I've had two more birthdays than my husband.

I feel that it is a real "youth insurance," cleansing, softening, protecting always, and preserving that young, fresh glow we all strive for—truly a soap for the discriminating.

Proving that soap-makers think their products have about the same merits, this entry won $1,000.00 from another company:

I like Palmolive Soap because it kept my complexion unblemished, healthy and lovely to look upon throughout the difficult, skin-dangerous adolescent years.

One of the statements we consider unusually excellent ourselves is this Wildroot Shampoo entry, which won a wrist-watch:

I like it because it affects my scalp like mountain air affects my lungs—stirs sluggish depths, puts youth into it—at 50, by George, I like that feeling!

These statements won wrist-watches from Pebecco:

With teeth free from stain . . . mouth from acid . . . and gums from disease, Pebecco gives me a "clean excuse" for "The Smile That Won't Come Off."

I like Pebecco Toothpaste because Pebecco adds so much sparkle to my smile I'm having a thrilling new experience—by golly, I'm attractive!

I like Pebecco because friends STOP, they LOOK, and I LISTEN to compliments on my whiter, brighter teeth—and besides, dental policing by Pebecco means greater SAFETY for them.

These prize-winning entries are representative of the kind of work that is always in the money. Nobody can be sure he's going to win every time—but with such concise, clear, simple entries that paint pictures of product service and consumer satisfaction, anybody can win some kind of prize in at least one of every five contests he happens to enter.

The entries presented above should not merely be read over. Judges don't pick prize-winners that way. Study them, compare them with the non-winners published during recent weeks; apply the criticisms of non-winners to be printed next week to these, and note in what particulars these are superior. Make your reading of this department a conscientious study of contesting. Then—you'll have our hopes for your good luck, but you won't really need them. You'll win anyway!

Three Weeks' Vacation

PRIZE: (Grand) Trip to New York with three weeks in best hotel; complete course of beauty treatments; limousine and chauffeur during visit; wardrobe styled by Elizabeth Arden; all entertainment free.

TO ENTER: Answer in a letter to Elizabeth Arden the question, "What is your most personal beauty problem and why haven't you overcome it?" Mail letter on or before February 8—Tuesday of this week—to "Elizabeth Arden, Fifth Avenue, New York." All entrants receive sample powder-puff and two kinds of powder.

For more facts, listen to the "Hour of Romance," MBS, Tuesday, 10 p.m. EST.

TO WIN: The sponsor refers to this contest as a search for a "modern Cinderella," and indicates that personal beauty is the only real problem women have. Concentrate on it in your letter! The "why haven't you overcome it?" is confusing in the question. You can dodge that by saying you have just discovered Elizabeth Arden, or avoid it in some such way. The first part of the question should concern cosmetics, and some difficulty that can be overcome by cosmetics. There is no word-limit, but it is a good idea not to write over 100 words.

anced" means. To the manufacturer it may be a wheat-blending formula, but in my kitchen it just means an all-purpose flour that never fails. If I were a millionaire's wife I couldn't buy anything better.

That statement won $1,000.00. Another winner of the same amount in another contest was this one:

I like Oxydol for washing clothes because I, a new mother, with six wash-days a week and little extra time or strength, can depend on Oxydol for clean, sweet-smelling clothes.

This statement won a Pontiac automobile in an Ivory Flakes contest:

I like Ivory Flakes for washing silks and woolsens because they are as thoroughly efficient for washing my son's heavy, soiled camp-blankets as they

WHICH IS WHICH?

Dear VOL: Many criticisms are being made of the mispronunciations by broadcasters and announcers. It seems to me they are entirely too frequent. The following list has been noticed recently, not from local stations where we might expect them, but from networks:

Quin'tuplets	Quintup'lets
Roosevelt (long o)	Like "oo" in loose
Inquiry	In'quiry
Research	Re'search
Elix'er	E'lixer
Lab'oratory	Labor'atory
Romance	Ro'mance
Com'batant	Combat'ant
Address	Ad'ress
Accessory	Assess'ory
Kil'ometer	Kilom'eter
Pect'oris	Pector'is

The first two are mispronounced more than 50% by those who should know better.—J. S. Stevens, Orono, Maine.

We have taken a poll of RADIO GUIDE's editors, office employees, and autocrats of the proofroom, and we must confess that there is a wide variety of opinion concerning the correct pronunciation of the words in the above list. Mr. Stevens neglected to inform us which of his columns carried the correct pronunciations, and our associates insisted there are incorrect ones in each column. Suppose we leave it up to you—mull over the

After 20 Years Of ASTHMA ATTACKS GETS REAL RELIEF!

(From Boulder, Colo.) "I had been a sufferer from Asthma paroxysms for 20 years. I am 54 years old. In December, 1933, I had a bad attack. My husband and children didn't think I could live. I was weak, couldn't walk across the floor. I choked with every breath. We saw your medicine advertised and sent for a bottle. I haven't had any Asthma paroxysms since taking the first half bottle. I am feeling fine." SIGNED—Mrs. T. L. McFarland. (Jan. - 1935) words, consult your authorities, and then advise this department of your findings. It will be interesting to tabulate the results. May we hear from you soon?—Ed.

ANOTHER CRITIC

VOL: I listen to most all radio programs, but what burns me up is the way in which some of the best programs are spoiled by a mispronunciation of words ending in "ing." They seem to think there is no "g" in the alphabet. Some of the offenders are Warden Lawes, Bing Crosby, Mary Small, Aunt Jenny, Breen, and DeRose.

Warden Lawes says "listenin'," "worryin'," and "comin'." Kipling would feel very bad if he heard Bing Crosby say "Kiplin'," as he once did. Mary Small sings all her songs without the "g." Breen and DeRose the same, Aunt Jenny with her "shortenin'."—W. K. Hontzm, Leighton, Pa.

PAGING MR. LIEBLING

Dear Mr. Liebling: Highbrow, my foot. That's how I say "amen" to your recent article in RADIO GUIDE.

Now, a few words on the classical viewpoint. I firmly believe Jascha Heifetz is at least three-fourths wrong about commentators. I teach school in a little village nestled in the foothills of the Allegheny Mountains (Huntingdon County). My salary of $800 does not permit travel or extensive music education. Why am I sitting here beside my wife now, and my children on the floor, listening to the General Motors Concert and the Ford Hour? If great composers and musicians would stop acting stuck-up, I wouldn't have so hard a time teaching music in the school. Grand opera and the classics have been kept from the masses. Naturally, they think it is not up their alley. I have lived in this village of 800 all my life, and can say that with all their ignorance, they still could be taught to appreciate Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C-Sharp Minor, if told something about the composer and composition itself. . . . Away at school I learned a lot from commentators or descriptive programs at recitals. And, mind you, I am not a born musical genius. Yet, I nearly missed my dinner this noon to listen to Dr. Charles Courboin's organ recital. How I wish I could take his place when he passes to his reward. But, I never had a piano lesson in my life. Courage to you.—Miles E. Corbin, Mapleton Depot, Pa.

TECHNIQUE OF A KISS

Dear VOL: With all their experience both behind the mike and in front of it, it seems that radio stars have not yet perfected the technique of a perfect kiss sufficient to send it over the air as such. Most of the radio kisses, especially those between lovers, sound like the proverbial cow pulling her hoof out of the mud. Others give one the impression of a baby pulling at his bottle, while still others closely resemble the escape of the last half-inch of water from the bath tub. Then, there is the gentle, long-drawn-out breath-taking kiss with no holds barred, each participant reluctant to break for fear they will never be able to obtain the same hold again, accompanied all the while by many little half audible sighs and snorts which lead the listener to think one has dragged the other under water and is slowly engaging in a strangling act.

Yes, if radio stars want to broadcast a genuine kiss, let them come out with a good old resounding smack that will wake up Fido on the rug and make Grandma drop three stitches in her knitting.—C. C. Rose, Wayland, Iowa.

Mr. Rose's complaint is perhaps justified, but fortunately the problem is not likely to be a permanent one. Television is just around the corner, after which little will be left to our imagination.—Ed.

Copy this girl and send us your drawing — perhaps you'll win a COMPLETE FEDERAL COURSE FREE! This contest is for amateurs, so if you like to draw do not hesitate to enter.

Prizes for Five Best Drawings — FIVE COMPLETE ART COURSES FREE, including drawing outfits. (Value of each course, $215.00.)

FREE! Each contestant whose drawing shows sufficient merit will receive a grading and advice as to whether he or she has, in our estimation, artistic talent worth developing.

Nowadays design and color play an important part in the sale of almost everything. Therefore the artist, who designs merchandise or illustrates advertising has become a real factor in modern industry. Machines can never displace him. Many Federal students, both men and girls who are now commercial designers or illustrators capable of earning from $1,000 to $5000 yearly have been trained by the Federal Course. Here's a splendid opportunity to test your talent. Read the rules and send your drawing to the address below.

RULES

This contest open only to amateurs, 16 years old or more. Professional commercial artists and Federal students are not eligible.

1. Make drawing of girl 5 inches high, on paper 6 inches high. Draw only the girl, not the lettering.
2. Use only pencil or pen.
3. No drawings will be returned.
4. Print your name, address, age and occupation on back of drawing.
5. All drawings must be received by Feb. 28th, 1938. Prizes will be awarded for drawings best in proportion and neatness by Federal Schools Faculty.

Next Ten Prizes, $10.00 Each.	100.00
Next Ten Prizes, $5.00 Each..	50.00

TOTAL $1,000.00

NOW and again most of us think of a "snappy comeback." Sometimes it's too late to do any good; sometimes there's no one around to appreciate it. Well, here's where it's appreciated. Here's where it pays cash rewards. In this fascinating contest RADIO GUIDE is giving away $1,000.00 in prizes for the best "snappy comebacks."

Think what one of those awards might mean to you—a car, a vacation trip, unexpected cash in your pockets, any one of a dozen things you've always wanted. Prizes range from $5.00 to $500 in this contest—and there's no rule against your winning more than a single prize.

Here's the way it's done. Above are two scenes from the smash movie hit, "Hollywood Hotel," now showing at theaters all over the country. Be sure to see "Hollywood Hotel." You'll like it. It's swell entertainment, but more than that it may even pay you profits in cash. For RADIO GUIDE, over a period of eight weeks, is publishing a set of sixteen pictures like those on this page—pictures in each of which one of the characters is standing silent, apparently at a loss for words. Your job is to put in the artist's "balloon" above that character's head a "snappy comeback" to the remarks of the other person or persons in the picture.

To start you on the right path, sample comebacks are printed beneath every scene. Your own entries will be judged on their wit, appropriateness and originality. Technical knowledge and writing ability cut no ice. The wittiest comebacks win.

RULES: 1. In each of eight issues—January 15, through March 5—Radio Guide will publish two photographs of scenes from Warner Brothers' motion picture, "Hollywood Hotel." Each picture will have a blank conversation "balloon" to be filled in with a "snappy comeback" to remarks printed in other "balloons." Sample "comebacks" will accompany each picture.

2. A complete set of sixteen filled-in photographs or reasonably accurate facsimiles of them, constitutes an entry. Replies must be written in spaces provided on pictures. For the sets of pictures selected by the judges, prizes amounting to $1,000.00 will be paid according to the schedule on this page.

3. Entries will be judged on appropriateness—in consideration of the story of the motion picture—neatness, originality, and directness of thought. Elaborate entries will receive no special consideration.

4. Do not send in any entries until your set is complete—sixteen pictures in all. Back issues of Radio Guide may be obtained from the Circulation Dept., Radio Guide, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill., or examined at its offices or in public libraries. Sign your name on each picture or affix it securely in some way. Send entries to "Snappy Comeback" Contest Editor, Radio Guide, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.—first-class postage, prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will not be accepted by the addressee.

5. To be eligible for prizes, entries must be postmarked before midnight, March 13, 1938.

6. No entries will be returned. In fairness to all participants in the contest, judges will not enter into any correspondence concerning any aspect of this contest. All entries become the property of Radio Guide.

7. This contest is open to everyone in the United States and Canada, except employes of Radio Guide and their families. The editors of Radio Guide will be the contest judges. All persons agree by entering to accept the decisions of the judges as final. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

8. Anybody eligible to compete may enter as many times as he likes—and may win more than one prize if his entries merit such consideration.

BUXOM BELLES BATTLE . . .

PLAINTIFF: Vaughn De Leath contends she alone is entitled to use the title "First Lady of Radio" and asks the Court to prohibit Kate Smith from using the phrase

JUDGE: Before New York's Supreme Court Justice Philip McCook will go the buxom belles for their decision

DEFENDANT: Kate Smith, her manager and CBS are charged with planning a "base, malicious and fraudulent scheme to usurp" the title which Miss De Leath claims

ON FILE in New York's Supreme Court, presided over by Justice Philip J. McCook, is the case of Vaughn De Leath vs. Kate Smith, the Columbia Broadcasting System, Columbia Artists Bureau, and Ted Collins, Miss Smith's partner and manager. The complaint seeks to forbid the defendants, and all others connected with them, from using the title "First Lady of Radio" in any way. Contending that she has been known since 1919 as "The Original Radio Girl" and since 1932 as "The First Lady of Radio," Miss De Leath says: "Kate Smith has herself publicized generally as the 'Songbird of the South.' Now the defendants deliberately attempt to misappropriate my property with full knowledge of the fact that I am the 'First Lady of Radio.'" She further charges "that it is the intent and purpose of the defendants to defraud and spoliage your deponent of her right, title, and interest in the property 'First Lady of Radio,' and have concocted a base, malicious and fraudulent scheme to usurp my property, not being satisfied with the property of Kate Smith, 'Songbird of the South'."

Now comes Kate Smith's attorneys to contend that Miss De Leath may be the first lady of radio as she was the first lady on the air, but that Miss Smith is the first lady of radio in the sense that she is the premiere lady of the air.

In arguments to support the contention that Kate Smith is first in popular favor, attorneys may point to the fact that she is the only mistress of ceremonies on a Coast-to-Coast night-time commercial program; may point to the large salaries she has drawn on previous shows and is now drawing from her baking-powder and cake-flour sponsor; may point to such popularity polls as those conducted by the New York World-Telegram, Radio Daily and Radio Guide, all of which placed Miss Smith in the top ranks; can refer to the Crossley report, radio's measuring-stick.

In supporting Miss De Leath's contention that she is now the first lady in terms of years of service, it can be pointed out that she appeared on the "World Tower" program with Dr. Lee De Forest in December, 1919; that since that time has made many appearances, including those on local stations in 1920, on the Wrigley show in 1926-27, on Firestone Tire for nineteen months in 1929 and 1930, worked on the air for Dodge, RCA, Battle Creek foods; and is currently appearing on the National Broadcasting Company networks from its Radio City studios in New York.

Radio Guide takes no sides; merely attempts to present news of the case. As to who's who and why—that is Mr. Justice McCook's problem.

Similar to the De Leath-Smith affair was the case of disputed social precedence between Mrs. Dolie Gann (above) and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth

The question was whether Mrs. Longworth (above), as wife of the Speaker of the House, should have precedence over the sister of the Vice-President

If Edward VIII had married Wallis Simpson (above) without abdicating, would she have been England's first lady? She now ranks last in royalty

Unaware of any trials over radio claims is Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, whose right to title "First Lady of the Land" is undisputed in America

SCHOOL FOR SCALPERS . . .

Any major performance for which admission tickets are required brings out what is known as "scalpers," otherwise petty racketeers who obtain free tickets and sell them for whatever they can get. In radio, only legitimate distribution is by advertising agencies and networks. Girls, like the one above, are employed mainly to handle the multitude of written requests, proper procedure in applying for broadcast tickets. No one should have to pay to attend a broadcast

After begging extra tickets from those who have them, the young scalpers market them for whatever the traffic will bear, ranging from ten cents to a dollar or more. A typical scalper (above) tries unsuccessfully to stimulate sales

Three members of the young racketeers movement gloat over the receipts gained only after much persuasion of naturally cautious persons. The boys have little fear of authorities, brazenly ply their trade close to studio doors

Two Radio Guide staff members go to "the front," where rival gangs try to outdo each other in "sales," attempt to "sell" whoever appears to be without a ticket. They found that scalpers are highly suspicious of trade-ins

This Radio Guide staff member, photographed while buying a Kate Smith broadcast ticket, had to pay a dollar for the bootlegged ducat. Although they are marked "Void if sold," authorities find they can do little to curb the traffic

Nancy Sheridan, actress, finds that an oxygen bath offers complete relaxation. The constant pressure of the oxygen bubbles against the body, plus the warm water, makes the body feel almost lifeless and detached. A wooden mat on which she sits makes it possible for the bather to lie back and relax without fear of slipping. For those who do not find it convenient to take this treatment, a substitute is a hot tub-bath with a soap powder that gives abundant lather

Lucille Manners of the "Cities Service Concert" lies flat on the floor and grips her ankles with hands; then rocks back and forth like a rocking-chair. After rocking for five minutes, she lies flat on her back for about ten minutes. The exercise stretches the spine, relieves nervous tension

Kitty Carlisle, ex-star of "Song Shop," folds her hands, sinks well into a soft chair. Then her maid, Mary, massages her shoulders and neck with a circulatory motion

HOW TO RELAX: Busy Radio Stars Demonstrate Methods Anyone Can Use

Bess Johnson of "Hilltop House" advocates a "head down" position; blood rushing to the head has refreshing effect

ONE of the greatest demands of the time in which we live is the knowledge of the ability to relax. Radio artists, screen stars, and entertainers the world over realize the importance of making every moment of relaxation count to refresh the mind, relieve nervous tension.

Relaxation is complete muscular and, if possible, complete mental inactivity, whether rest period is five minutes or an hour. This can be attained standing, sitting or lying down. Even when engaged in active work, the process of going "limp" or relaxing can be practised. Entertainers learn the best methods suited to their particular case, cultivate habits of rest essential to youthful appearance and sparkling performance.

To attain the degree of relaxation necessary to overcome nervous tension, performers practise each day until the system becomes a habit and they can relax at will. Relaxation can be practised by persons of all ages. It is essential that so-called "nervous" children be taught early in life the habit of taking time out from studies and play to become mentally and physically inactive for a few minutes each day. Businessmen realize constant working at fever-pitch brings on contracted muscles, tense nerves. Many have found it helpful to join gymnasiums and massage institutes, going regularly for treatments to relieve this tense condition. Irritability, quick, jerky nervous manner of speech and jumpy movements are the penalty for an overactive nervous system, which can be helped and cured by practising various forms of relaxation as demonstrated by radio stars.

Every movement of the body contracts muscles. Muscles contain double sets of nerves carrying messages to the brain. When those become overactive, "tenseness" develops and persons become known as "nervous." Recognizing centers that are causing the most discomfort will help considerably in overcoming this condition, but care must be taken to avoid overconcentration on these centers, thereby defeating the purpose.

Though some persons find it helpful to lie down when they relax, this is not necessary and should not be practised unless complete quiet is possible. Relaxed muscles and nerves can be so trained while sitting in a chair. Allowing the hands and arms to hang limp at sides a few minutes every few hours soon trains those muscles and nerves to relax. The next step will prove very simple and can be worked out by the person himself. The pictures following demonstrate methods employed by Bess Johnson, Curtis Arnall, Nancy Sheridan, Lucille Manners and Kitty Carlisle to relieve nervous tension, and can be practised successfully by persons of all ages.

Photographed by Charles Seawood

Curtis Arnall, who plays "Pepper" in NBC's "Pepper Young's Family" serial, visits a Radio City gymnasium for a scientific nerve-relaxing massage. The masseur works along the spine—center of the nervous system; relaxes stiff muscles by rubbing; stimulates circulation of the blood in the skin. Preparatory to this treatment, Arnall takes a hot shower, spends fifteen minutes in a Turkish bath at a temperature of 165 degrees to open pores, then takes a cold shower

Shown above, part of Jane's attic demonstrates her interest in radio and screen stars; autographed pictures, back issues of magazines and letters from the idols compose collections. Jane has almost 100 various pictures of Lane sisters

Men Look First at a Woman's Eyes; Women Notice Masculine Nose

NEW YORK, N. Y. (U.P.)—When a man looks into a woman's face the first thing he notices are her eyes.

When a woman scans a man's face she pays most attention to his nose. These conclusions were drawn by the beauticians of America after a three-month survey in which 25,000 men and women were asked to explain what interested them most in the facial features of the opposite sex.

Forty-three per cent of the women said they looked first at a man's nose, 19 per cent at the mouth, and the remainder scattered votes for the eyes, hair, ears and appearance of the skin.

Approximately 51 per cent of the men said they looked first at a woman's eyes.

FAN CLUBS: How They Work

ARDENT admirers by the thousands have formed organizations for the prime purpose of boosting favorite entertainers. These people, whether justly or unjustly, have been called hero-worshippers, autograph hounds, scoffed at as curiosity seekers. But to the profession they are "fans" and their clubs are known as "fan clubs." They began to develop in the days of silent movies, when "matinee idols" caused feminine hearts to flutter, became an important part of entertainment when fans began to make demands in behalf of their favorites, bombarding studios with so many letters and wires that producers often had to yield. As radio developed, fans started forming clubs named after their microphone favorites. They spread rapidly, became so potent that one club boosting Muriel Wilson kept her on "Showboat" as "Mary Lou" long after the sponsors intended dropping her from the cast. Despite the general impression, they are not solely for "silly schoolgirls"; they often enroll many successful businessmen interested in good radio fare. Typical of this kind of organization is the Melody Lane Club formed for the Lane sisters, Rosemary of "Your Hollywood Parade" radio program, and Priscilla, soon to be starred with Dick Powell in "Dude Rancher." This club was formed by Jane Greenberg of New York at the time the Lanes were a song-and-patter team with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians. Radio Guide here offers you a pictorial survey of this typical club.

Beauteous guiding-stars of Melody Lane Club are Rosemary (left), who sings every Wednesday at 10 p.m. EST with "Your Hollywood Parade" over NBC, and Priscilla, soon to be starred in the movie "Dude Rancher" with Dick Powell

Chief booster for Lane sisters is Jane Greenberg, seated at her desk in her home, 189-32 45th Road, Flushing, Long Island, N. Y. From the Lanes' secretary she secures prospective members' names and edits a bi-monthly club publication

TOUGH GUY

Nine-months-old Richard Jean Kretsinger came into the world May 14 last, was first introduced to his public by Radio Guide, whose cameraman "shot" him 12 hours after birth. He has come a long way since then—has jumped from 7 pounds 3 ounces to 18 pounds. But that causes him much less concern than the problem of getting at the milk in the bottle from which his mother, Marge Kretsinger, of the team "Myrt & Marge" (on CBS daily), wisely has refused to remove the cap. In following his career, Radio Guide notes with pride that "Rikky" can now wave bye-bye, shake hands

SINGING COMMENTATOR

BY GEORGE MARSHALL

IF YOU want to be a radio commentator, be a singer first. Sounds like senseless advice—and to almost anyone else it would be, but to Mildred Murray it's a cinch that if she hadn't been a singer, she never would have been a commentator—and she swears by that.

Mildred Murray handles Pittsburgh's foremost woman's show as commentator on Hollywood, fashions, beauty hints, and interesting news in general, which she broadcasts from Station WJAS, basic member and outlet for the Columbia Broadcasting Company at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

To say that being a commentator is a surprise to Miss Murray is putting it mildly. But it's a most pleasant surprise; and now as she looks back at the time before the idea took seed, she realizes that all the time it was really one of the things she'd wanted to do and didn't realize it.

"Perhaps," she says, "fate, in its ingenious way, helps us solve our happiness problems, because always the love of books and literature and reading has been an integral part of my make-up; and now, instead of wondering how I'll find time to get that reading done, my job demands it—and so I can combine pleasure with work."

Two years ago Miss Murray decided to take up singing again, an art she had given up after considerable voice training. With a zest for living and a love for everything life had to offer, she couldn't seem to settle down to any one thing. After studying voice for awhile, she decided she could do better in the business world, and so went to school in preparation for it.

She was not considerably wrong about this, for she had no difficulty in working into a top secretarial position with one of the country's large investment brokerage houses. A few years in the business world, however, and again the old love for singing returned.

ing down her secretarial position all the while. During this time she became so adept at writing scripts that many people, instead of mentioning her singing, spoke of her script and speaking voice (she handles her entire programs with only the aid of an accompanist). A good many more told her to try announcing.

Finally she thought of becoming a commentator on Hollywood and fashions. She prepared a program and asked for an audition and a third spot. She got them both. As a commentator she was an instant success.

In no time at all she was given an enviable spot on WJAS, Columbia's outlet for the vast industrial area of Pittsburgh and vicinity. From Hollywood gossip and fashion news, she expanded to current topics and interesting people and events, so that now her broadcasts cover a variety of subjects.

She pleases the Pittsburgh ladies. Versatile Mildred Murray, of WJAS

ONCE more she started studying, and then the radio bug bit—and hard! Her parents contended that it was a hopeless task to crash radio, so there was double opposition to overcome. However, since Mildred Murray finds that overcoming opposition is one of the most fascinating problems in living, she was more determined than ever.

She auditioned and made the grade. After several months as a guest artist, she decided she was getting no place rapidly. To be a real radio personality was her ambition, not just another singer, and unless she had a spot of her own where consistent work before the microphone could develop that personality, how, she decided, was she going to get anywhere? So, to the program manager she went with a sales talk. Another audition and said he: "You can have a fifteen-minute spot, but you'll have to write your own script." Well! Write her own script! Oh, she'd love to do that, but how? How could she write script without the slightest idea of how to proceed or what to say.

"This," she thought, "finishes it. Why, I wouldn't know how to begin." But to the program manager she said, with an air of confidence: "All right, I'll write it." As if that were going to stop her! So she took a good hold on the idea and went to work. Soon she found that what the public wanted most over the radio was naturalness.

Then came two programs a week instead of one—and Mildred was holding down her secretarial position all the while. During this time she became so adept at writing scripts that many people, instead of mentioning her singing, spoke of her script and speaking voice (she handles her entire programs with only the aid of an accompanist). A good many more told her to try announcing.

Finally she thought of becoming a commentator on Hollywood and fashions. She prepared a program and asked for an audition and a third spot. She got them both. As a commentator she was an instant success.

In no time at all she was given an enviable spot on WJAS, Columbia's outlet for the vast industrial area of Pittsburgh and vicinity. From Hollywood gossip and fashion news, she expanded to current topics and interesting people and events, so that now her broadcasts cover a variety of subjects.

AS FOR her singing, she hopes she may also be a radio singer of note. She sings in French, German, Norwegian and Italian, and likes best to sing the songs most people like to hear. These, in her opinion, are the romantic songs. Music is a vital part of her existence and she enjoys any kind of music that is done well.

Since taking over her commentator's job on Radio Station WJAS, she has given up her business career, now devoting all her time to radio.

Real success to her would mean one important thing: she would be in a position to help others, which would bring her her greatest happiness. She is an intensely sincere person and loves this business of living.

A tribute to Lincoln's Day with a dramatic sketch of his life, written by Georgia Backus, will be presented. The technique used in the drama is that which is often used in stage presentations of the life of Christ, telling the story without the main character ever actually appear-

It is hard to believe that Feminine Hygiene can be so dainty, easy and Greaseless

BUT IT IS TRUE. Zonitors, snow-white, antiseptic, greaseless, are not only easy to use but are completely removable with water. For that reason alone thousands of women now prefer them to messy, greasy suppositories. Entirely ready for use, requiring no mixing or clumsy apparatus. Odorless—and ideal for deodorizing. You'll find them superior for this purpose, too!

• More and more women are ending the nuisance of greasy suppositories, thanks to the exclusive new greaseless Zonitors, for modern feminine hygiene.

There is nothing like Zonitors for daintiness, easy application and easy removal. They contain no quinine or harmful drugs, no cocoa butter to melt or run. Zonitors make use of the world-famous Zonite antiseptic principle favored because of its antiseptic power combined with its freedom from "burn" danger to delicate tissues.

Full instructions in package. $1 for box of 12—at all U. S. and Canadian druggists. Free booklet in plain envelope on request. Write Zonitors, 3212 Chrysler Bldg., New York City.

Each in individual gloss vial.

On Saturday, February 12, Daventry listeners will hear two outstanding sports events, the first of which, to be broadcast at 9:35 a.m. EST, will be the annual Rugby football match between Ireland and England. Last year's match was one of the most exciting games of the series. England won by a single point, scoring a penalty goal and two tries to a goal and a try. . . . At 3 p.m. EST the Ice-Hockey World Championship matches will be transmitted direct from the Zimni Stadium in Prague, Czechoslovakia. It is hoped to broadcast the final Britain vs. Canada match and the final. Canada is represented this year by the Sudbury Tigers.

A special Lincoln's Birthday Broadcast, sponsored by the International DX'ers Alliance, will be heard over COGF (11.805) of Matanzas, Cuba, on Saturday, February 12, at 11:30 p.m. EST.

VP2LO, the 500-watt short-wave station of ICA Radio Sales at Basse-terre, St. Kitts, B. W. I., which was first mentioned in this column several weeks ago as being under construction, went on the air for initial tests on December 18 and, according to a letter from R. D. Stewart of the station, is now testing daily from 4 to 4:45 p.m. and on Sundays from 10 to 11 a.m. EST, on a frequency of 6.38 megs. R. B. Oxrieder, of State College, Pennsylvania, the first listener in this country to report VP2LO, writes that he has been hearing the broadcasts between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m. EST. The programs open and close with the anthem, "God Save the King," and include such items as Puerto Rico weather reports, world news and musical selections. The station authorities are very anxious to receive reception reports from listeners throughout the United States and Canada, and state that all letters addressed to them at P.O. Box 88, St. Kitts, B. W. I., will be answered promptly. In writing, kindly give make, model and type of receiver with which you heard VP2LO.

The next concert of the Berlin State Orchestra, which will be heard in this country as an international offering of the NBC-Red network, on Monday, February 7, from 2 to 2:30 p.m. EST, will be the third, in a regular series of fortnightly broadcasts. The concerts may be heard direct by tuning in DJL (15.11) of Zeesen, Germany.

On Sundays, from 9 to 9:45 p.m. EST, a very interesting English broadcast entitled the "Friendship Hour," is being heard over Quito, Ecuador, Station HCJB, on 4.107 and 8.84 megs. This period is also relayed occasionally by Amateur Transmitter HC1JB (14.43), which is mounted in a truck. Clarence Jones, a missionary, formerly of Chicago, Ill., is the owner of the above stations.

HIG, "Radio La Opinion," Trujillo

City, Dominican Republic, is now broadcasting simultaneously on dual frequencies of 6.29 and 9.29 mcgs, daily from 7:50 to 9:50 a.m., 12:20 to 2:50 and 4:20 to 9:20 p.m. EST.

After announcing upon several different occasions that they were breaking up and dismantling Transmitter VP3THE preparatory to storing it for eventual shipment back to New York, Hungerford and McMillan, the "Two Homesick Explorers" of the Holden Expedition, finally made their last contact from Isherton, British Guiana, on the morning of January 14, and not having been heard since, are apparently on the way home, via a 500-mile hike to Georgetown. They expect to be back in New York City about April 1.

The Pacific Alaska Airways, Inc., of Bethel, Alaska, has been granted a license for the operation of a 20-watt aeronautical station on any one of the following frequencies: 1.638, 3.082, 5.692 and 8.22 megs. The call-letters are KINF.

A mysterious short-wave station, apparently owned by Alderney Radio Ltd., on Alderney Island, Channel Islands, is being heard on a frequency of approximately 6 megs by various listeners. This broadcaster, which is not licensed by the British General Post Office, and which uses the French language only in its transmissions, comes under the authority of the ancient Duchy of Normandy, according to its owners.

The new short-wave transmitter at Delhi, India, the first of several which will eventually be in operation in that country, is now broadcasting test programs on frequencies of 3.49 and 6.085 megs respectively.

On Fridays at 4 p.m. EST, Buenos Aires, Argentina, Short-wave Stations LRX (9.66) and LSY (18.115) transmit a special resume of world news in several different languages, one portion of which is in English. . . . Because many listeners believed such a change would result in improved reception and a larger available listening audience, the Swiss Overseas Hour, which has previously been heard on Saturdays at 6:45 p.m. EST, was moved up to Monday nights at 7 p.m. EST, on January 24. . . . These broadcasts, which are now radiated over the League of Nations stations at Prangins, Switzerland, will be broadcast over the new 20,000-watt station of the Swiss government at Berne, as soon as it is completed.

According to Alfonso Velasco of Mexico D. F., Mexico, Short-Wave Station XEBF (6.09) of Jalapa, Veracruz, Mexico, may be heard, at present, almost any time between 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. EST.

For those listeners who would like to explore the fascinating ultra-high-frequencies without the necessity of purchasing an entirely new receiver for this purpose, a device called a "Frequency Expander" has just been placed on the market that will extend the range of any good all-wave super-heterodyne receiver from 27.8 to 70 megs, which frequencies cover most of the activities of interest. . . . Pioneer Ultra-Short-wave Broadcast Station W8XWJ (31.6), owned by the Detroit News of Detroit, Mich., is now radiating a program of short-wave news and tips, Thursdays at 10:15 p.m. EST.
