A Challenge to Presidents

Dear President Lohr of NBC and
Dear President Paley of CBS . . .

A young man out in California named Peter Dixon has an interesting idea. He is a little sick of the thundering personal-conflict themes of such merchandise-movers as "Lone Ranger." He is fearful of what so much struggle is doing to the minds and souls of his own two sons. Other parents feel the same.

Being familiar with your requirements, namely, that a serial for children be the sort that will build an audience and sell merchandise, he does not ask you to stop them. Instead, he asserts that humor can build and hold just as big a crowd as blood-and-thunder. He insists that it is not necessary for men to die like flies.

We all know that action gets results, gentlemen. But it also gets kids into all sorts of mental stitches. Humor has also been successful. Without leaving scars, either. Remember the Mark Tidd series? Or "Two Little Savages"?

We think Mr. Dixon's idea is worth while and deserving of more than casual consideration. But here is the hitch, Mr. Presidents: It needs air time. Specifically, it needs fifteen minutes a day, five times a week, for at least thirteen weeks.

Now, gentlemen, the challenge is this: We of RADIO GUIDE propose to hold a contest to discover a fine humorous script provided one or both of you will put winning scripts on the air for the required time and pay the winning writer a fair sum for his work.

In the twelve years of network broadcasting not one great writing name has been developed. It is probable that radio's writing geniuses are still undiscovered in country towns and villages. Many amateurs will want to enter this competition. From their ranks and from the ranks of those who have already given thought to the problems of writing for radio will certainly come some fine things.

Mr. Dixon asks only that he be permitted to enter the contest. What do you say, gentlemen?

Why Not Television for Us, Too?

The English gentleman who had admitted that American broadcasting might be better than his own John Bull brand leaned back and asserted comfortably, "But, of course, we have television."

The argument was whether English or American broadcasting was more advanced. Of course, the English have television. Workable, practical, pleasing television. He said: "I saw a tennis match televised recently. One of the players looked familiar. I looked more closely and, by Jove, it was a chap I had met at a club just the day before."

Funny things have been discovered about television over there. It was thought at first that the waves which carry the picture images through the air would reach only to the horizon. Now they learn that they go considerably farther.

In the meantime, our own radio leaders are saying television is not ready. Which simply does not make sense. If it is available in England it is available here. American small-scale tests with a hundred or two receivers cannot possibly teach us so much of practical broadcasting results as we could learn in a month if we were to turn several thousand sets onto the market. Television is ready. We know that. But are the buyers? Cynics look from England to us and see a deliberate misrepresentation. They say Big Business is waiting for America to line her pockets with gold again. Then, and not until then, we'll have television.

Big Business has been seeking a stimulant to sales. Here it is. A new product creates business if the product is good. But lies and evasions and excuses create nothing but suspicion.

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

RADIO GUIDE: ". . . I belong to the submerged class of radio listeners who do not write applause-cards, enter contests or vote for popular radio stars. Unfortunately, there is no way to reach us. If anyone called me on the telephone and asked me what program I had been listening to, I would probably resent the impudence and give no answer.

"In spite of this, I am most enthusiastic about certain types of radio programs and would much prefer to see those types on the increase . . . I know many, many possible radio buyers and potential buyers of the products of radio sponsors who listen to the radio, if at all, only on certain evenings when they are not compelled to listen to the choices of the present applauders and voters.

"Can not we be heard?"—A. W. A., Charleston, S. C.

Most pathetic of radio's listeners are those "too proud" to make themselves and their wishes known, for they are at the mercy of more vociferous auditors. Radio's "box-office" cannot be checked as are theaters'; letters, votes, purchases reveal preferences, and those who won't take part in the game that makes radio have no right to ask "Can not we be heard?" In radio, anyone is heard—joyfully!—Ed.

RADIO GUIDE: "I should like to take issue with some of the critics of the British Broadcasting Company. I do not know when they listen in, but in the evenings I hear some excellent programs of organ and vocal recitals, symphony and dance orchestras, music-hall shows, dramatic and comedy sketches. Of course there are some uninteresting shows sandwiched in, but can one say there are none in American programs?"—Mrs. E. R. Peebles, Chicago, Ill.

A MEMBER of the great Rothschild family, czars of European finance, once said that if Joseph Pulitzer had not lost his sight and his health, he would have gathered into his hands all the world's wealth, so great was his talent for making money!

Great though his financial acumen may have been, it was the slightest of Joseph Pulitzer's incredible powers, and the one for which he had the least respect. Pulitzer was a genius in every meaning of the word; possibly the greatest genius the American publishing world has known, a Colossus among men, a figure that towered high over its contemporaries and left a lasting mark upon generations to come.

As long as men read, the name of Pulitzer will be remembered. It was typical of Joseph Pulitzer, who had such an implacable, impatient hatred for everything that was second-rate, to endow the Pulitzer Foundation for the purpose of stimulating every phase of literary excellence. Annually, money from this endowment rewards writers in every field who have, during the year past, attained to what the governing committee considers would be a standard acceptable to Joseph Pulitzer himself—to whom everything short of perfection was utter waste, intolerable, worthless.

Best known of the Pulitzer Prizes are those awarded to outstanding American dramas. To receive the annual Pulitzer Prize is the pinnacle of success for American playwrights. Unfortunately, however, even prize-winning plays are rarely performed extensively after they close in New York. Always, a Pulitzer play is a drama of great merit, but it is rarely as widely available to the American people as might be desired.

To remedy this deficiency, the National Broadcasting Company has instituted a series of broadcasts of past Pulitzer plays, and on this Thursday the 1927 winner, "In Abraham's Bosom," will be put on the air. The broadcast will begin at 10 p.m. EDT.

Genius that he was, Joseph Pulitzer best loved to foster genius, and it is high tribute to his vision that today, so many years after his death, genius still looks to him, rather than to any living man, for the final accolade. Joseph Pulitzer would have liked "In Abraham's Bosom," the moving, tragic story of a poor Negro's lifelong effort to bring enlightenment and learning to his people. Pulitzer was a keen student of drama. All his life long he read plays, and when he was blind, and could read no longer, he hired other men to read to him!

THE best illustration of Pulitzer's absorbing interest in dramatic writing is given by Alleyne Ireland, one of the amazing little group of secretaries that Pulitzer gathered from all over the world when blindness settled upon him, and whose duty it was to act as his eyes and to pour into his insatiable mind a never-ending stream of information. So acute was Pulitzer's memory, Ireland wrote, that it was impossible to deceive him. If, for instance, someone remarked in conversation that he knew a certain play, Pulitzer would name a scene and act perhaps half-way through the play, sketch the action up to a certain point, then remark, "Now take it on from there."

Everything that came to Joseph Pulitzer had to be stripped of non-essentials, reduced to its utter essence. This was so important that it was necessary for his secretaries to spend hours in preparing to read to him. He once said that no one had ever been able to read a novel to him properly without having gone over it twice in advance! Cruising in the Mediterranean on his snow-white yacht, Liberty, Pulitzer put into port almost daily to take on board huge bundles of clippings from the United States, copies of French, German, Austrian, Italian, English newspapers, and, of course, the copies of his own New York World rushed to him by fast steamer.

Joseph Pulitzer . . . genius who best loved to foster genius

ADVENTURES WITH GENIUS

PRIZE PLAY WILL BE "IN ABRAHAM'S BOSOM" OVER NBC THIS THURSDAY NIGHT

Joseph Pulitzer made the World and the World made Joseph Pulitzer. But it unmade him, too. He came to America at sixteen, without a penny and unable to speak a word of English. He died in America a millionaire, owner of the most powerful paper of his time, a giant in a country full of giants. But although his body was, as he often bitterly remarked, a broken wreck, though he was blind, though his nerves were stretched to such unbearable tautness that the click of a spoon against a dish left him in agony for hours, his mind never faltered.

Joseph Pulitzer's prime aim in life was the creation of a newspaper that would offer to the American public a degree of information and enlightenment that they could nowhere else obtain; and he succeeded beyond his expectations.

For that reason, Joseph Pulitzer would appreciate the Pulitzer Prize play that will be broadcast on Thursday night. For "In Abraham's Bosom" is the story of a man whose life was marked out in that same pattern, and whose greatness was not less because he failed.

Abraham McCranie is a Negro plantation worker in the North Carolina turpentine woods. Of slave ancestry on one side, on the other he is white—for Abe is the son of Colonel McCranie, his master, and a Negro girl. Perhaps it is this, perhaps it is something inherent in his soul, but at any rate, Abe McCranie is far above the level of the sodden field-hands with whom he worked. For generations, he knows, his people have lived and died barely better than the animals of the fields, with no one to tell them of the good and beautiful things in the world.

If no one else will do it, Abe resolves, he will. And he pleads with the Colonel for a chance to open a Negro school—not, he is quick to say, that he believes Negroes and whites should be made equal; no, not that. But surely Negroes have at least the right to learn about the world in which they live.

The years pass, and Abe, whose home is kept by Muh Mack, his aunt, marries an old sweetheart, Goldie. A child, Douglass, is born. But Abe, obsessed with his dream, takes little interest in the child, less in his crops. Finally Colonel McCranie, in a burst of generosity, gives him the deed to his little house and land, tells him that in the fall he will have his chance.

THE school is built, and Abe's dream at last seems to be opening before him. But the Colonel is dead now, the plantation is ruled by his son Lonnie. Abe disciplines one of the Negro pupils, there is trouble among the workers, and Lonnie closes the school.

Abe is forced to leave the plantation, goes to another town to work, loses his job because of an altercation with a white man. He is aging now. Goldie has stuck with him, but their son Douglass has turned out to be thoroughly worthless. Eighteen years after they left it, Abe and Goldie return to the McCranie plantation, and in time Abe succeeds in building another school. But on the night of its dedication a group of white men, inflamed by Abe's own shiftless son, refuse to allow the opening, and Abe is forced to run for his life.

Cowering in the fields, broken, bitter, his every illusion lost, Abe is discovered by Lonnie McCranie, who tells him that he is going to take his fields from him because he has neglected them. Rising in uncontrollable wrath, Abe kills him, then goes back to his cabin. There he finds Muh Mack, Goldie, and Douglass telling of his exploits out in the world. The mob has found Lonnie's body now, they are baying on Abe's trail, and as they approach the cabin, Muh Mack and Douglass run away. Only Goldie, faithful to the last, is in the cabin when Abe is shot and left to die on the floor.

That is "In Abraham's Bosom," awarded the Pulitzer Prize in 1927—and worthy of it. Written by a man who knows Negroes, a man born and reared in the South—Paul Elliot Green, now a professor at the University of North Carolina—the broadcast of "In Abraham's Bosom" should be one of the notable events of the season.

"THIS WEEK," WHICH FORMERLY APPEARED ON THIS PAGE, IS NOW A PART OF THE NEW FEATURE, "HIGHLIGHTS OF THIS WEEK," ON PAGES 4-5

Louis...

JOSEPH LOUIS BARROW showed no signs of the ferocity that was to make him famous when, a little light-brown piccaninny, he worked manfully in the cotton fields near Lafayette, Alabama. He was just another little Negro boy, one of a family of nineteen.

When Joe was seven—he was born on May 13, 1914—the family moved north, to Detroit. Joe went to school with the rest of the children, played sandlot baseball, still his favorite diversion, and in general took life with the same calm detachment that is his prime characteristic now. At fourteen he abandoned the idea of further formal schooling, decided to learn cabinet-making.

Never a pugnacious boy—he still does not actually like fighting, as Dempsey, for instance, liked it—Joe fought his first real battle in a Detroit boys' club.

Joe Louis was a pretty good fighter at seventeen, and in 1933, when he was nineteen, he entered the National A. A. U. championships. He didn't win, but he learned a lot, and in 1934 he won the light-heavyweight championship in the Golden Gloves tournament, the National A. A. U. light-heavyweight title as well.

Jack Kracken, whom he beat by a one-round knockout in Chicago, was Louis' first professional victim, and his reputation grew so fast that by the time he met Levinsky and Max Baer they were beaten as much by fright as anything else. And so far Louis has lost just one important fight—to Max Schmeling.

Joe Louis is almost emotionless, takes little interest in things around him. He likes to sleep about twelve hours at night, nap during the day. His appetite is prodigious. He once ate half of a 20-pound turkey for a bedtime snack. He likes horseback riding, golf, baseball.

His Wife...

Mrs. Joe Louis is the First Lady of American Negro circles. Young, pretty, a good dancer and a tasteful dresser, she is generally well liked.

Marva Trotter before her marriage to Louis an hour before he fought Max Baer on September 24, 1935, Mrs. Louis was a Chicago stenographer. She was introduced to her future husband by another Negro fighter with the remark, "A very sweet girl would like to know you." Louis was indifferent at first. Rumors of impending divorce have appeared recently, but they are untrue. There are no children.

His Manager...

John Roxborough and Julian Black, of Detroit and Chicago respectively, share Louis' managership. Roxborough, who first saw the potentialities of greatness in Louis, requested that Black, associated with him in other enterprises, take a hand in this one.

Roxborough is a wealthy man, prominent in Detroit Negro circles, with a reputation for absolute honesty. It is generally agreed among boxing authorities that it would be impossible to "fix" a Louis fight.

THIS WEEK'S BIGGEST

This series of action pictures reveals what actually took place when Max Schmeling (right) knocked down the great Brown Bomber in the fourth round of their famous battle in New York in 1936

Greatest battle of the century, the Louis-Schmeling melee Wednesday night will hold two continents breathless. Tickets ranging upwards to $30 may be obtained at New York's great Yankee Stadium

Measurements...

	Louis	Schmeling
Weight:	198 lbs.	192 lbs.
Reach:	76 inches	76 inches
Neck:	16 1/4 inches	17 1/2 inches
Forearm:	12 1/2 inches	12 3/4 inches
Wrist:	7 3/4 inches	8 inches
Biceps:	13 inches	16 inches
Chest normal:	41 inches	41 inches
Chest expanded:	43 inches	45 inches
Waist:	34 inches	33 inches
Thigh:	20 inches	23 1/2 inches
Calf:	15 inches	16 inches
Ankle:	10 inches	10 inches
Height:	6 ft. 1 inch	6 ft. 1 inch

These were the measurements of the two when they fought in 1936.

Predictions...

TED HUSING—I pick Joe Louis to win.
BILL STERN—Joe Louis to win by a decision.

GRAHAM McNAMEE—Because Schmeling is a better fighter and a smarter man he will win by a decision.

JACK BENNY—Louis will win.

EDGAR BERGEN—Louis will win.

CHARLIE McCARTHY—I pick Schmeling because Bergen says Louis.

GEORGE BURNS—Louis will whip Schmeling.

FREEMAN GOSDEN (Amos)—Louis will win in the seventh.

CHARLES CORRELL (Andy)—If Louis doesn't knock out Schmeling by the fourth, the fight will go the limit. But Louis will win.

BING CROSBY—I think Joe will be too strong for him.

JIMMIE FIDLER—The fight depends on Louis' form the day of the fight. Of all the champions I have seen, he is the most erratic. At top form he's unbeatable, and when he's off form, a ham could take him. I believe the Louis that beat Max Baer could win all the way from Schmeling. On the other hand, if Joe isn't up to form on the day of the fight, Max will win.

ROBERT TAYLOR—I pick Schmeling.

EDDIE CANTOR—Louis by decision.

GEORGE McCALL—Schmeling by decision.

EDWARD ROBINSON, JOE PENNER, and PARKYAKARKUS—Louis by KO.

OSWALD—Schmeling to win by decision.

CHESTER LAUCK (Lum)—Schmeling by decision.

NORRIS GOFF (Abner)—Louis, if Lum says Schmeling.

PAUL DOUGLAS—I pick Joe to win.

PETER VAN STEEDEN—I'll put my money on Schmeling.

PHIL BAKER—Max Schmeling has the Indian sign on Louis.

BEN BERNIE—Joe Louis seems better to me than at any other time of his colorful career.

ROBERT RIPLEY—I pick Max Schmeling because of past performances.

PHIL HARRIS—Louis will win.

BOB BURNS—Granpaw Snazzy picks Schmeling.

RADIO BROADCAST Schmeling...

The Crowd...

The first Louis-Schmeling fight attracted an audience of 60,000,000 listeners. For purposes of comparison, it is figured that King Edward's abdication speech was heard by 12,000,000 listeners. Experts predict this week's battle of the century will break all records for sets tuned to a sporting event.

Broadway's betting brokers are astute gentlemen who never give a sucker an even break. Their odds are usually a mirror of public belief in a fighter. As we go to press, they are offering 7 to 5 in favor of Joe Louis. Both men have amazing knock-out records behind them. Joe Louis has fought thirty-nine times. Thirty times he has left his opponent stretched on the canvas. Max Schmeling has fought sixty-three times and he has knocked out thirty-seven opponents.

Since his previous meeting with Louis, Schmeling has fought three times, once in 1937 and twice in 1938. His last fight was April 16. On the other hand, Louis has fought eleven times since. After being knocked out in June of 1936, he returned in August and knocked out Jack Sharkey in three rounds. In September, October and December he fought again. In 1937 he fought five times, notably with Tommy Farr, the talkative Englishman who succeeded in staying fifteen rounds and thereby surprising everyone, particularly himself. This year Louis has fought twice.

The Yankee Stadium, which will be the scene of this broadcast and battle, has witnessed some stirring events. Last Memorial Day 83,000 persons attended a double-header between the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees baseball teams. This was the biggest baseball crowd ever seen in America. It was here that Louis kayo'd Carnera. In 1933 the Army-Notre Dame football game was such a sell-out that some tickets sold for fifty dollars. During the game Notre Dame was behind, 12 to 0, but in the last five minutes of play scored thirteen points to win the game.

Arranging for time for this super-broadcast, the Buick Company has bought every National Broadcasting Company station available. No one knows exactly how many will be able to clear their time of previous commitments. The cost to the Buick Company, because they want complete coverage, will be considerable. If the fight runs for fifteen rounds the cost will amount to between $30,000 and $35,000 for time alone. Though the cost of radio rights is not available at this time, radio rights for the Louis-Baer fight held in 1935 were $27,500.

Everyone wonders what fighters get out of these million-dollar gates. Here are figures for the biggest gate ever received at the Yankee Stadium, the Louis-Baer fight. Total attendance was 95,000. Gross receipts were $932,944. Radio and movie rights brought another $52,000. The Twentieth Century Club, which promoted the fight, paid out for park rental $64,000; to the Federal government for taxes, $93,000; to the State of New York for taxes, $46,000. Joe Louis and Max Baer split $430,000 equally between them. When Schmeling and Louis met before, the total receipts were $547,000 and Schmeling and Louis split $252,000 equally.

It is understood that private contracts for this fight stipulate that the winner is to get 40% or close to $400,000. The loser will get 20% of the gate, which "ain't hay" either.

This significant picture is published to show how Big Joe reacted when he got his first foretaste of doom. With fear glistening in his eye, will that be the Joe who'll swoon to Schmeling's mighty right Wednesday?

His left eye completely closed, Max earned his victory over Joe two years ago. Should Joe be able to find his way to that spot again with a harder wallop, the story may be different. But can Joe do just that?

This picture was taken as workmen rushed completion of the ringside seats, put finishing touches on the ring. A—Announcers' stand. B—Ring-side seats, $30. C and E—Lower stand seats, $5.75. D—Lower Boxes, $20

IN 1925, Jack Dempsey came to Cologne, Germany, on an exhibition tour. A youngster named Schmeling, a middleweight, was one of the volunteers. Then, as now, Max Schmeling bore a striking facial resemblance to Dempsey, and this fact, plus the German boy's courage and willingness to fight, impressed Dempsey. Jack gave Schmeling much good advice.

Though he is German to the core, Schmeling owes most of his success to Americans and things American. Born in Kluin Lucklow, near Berlin, on September 28, 1905, the son of a steamship captain, Max was a restless, adventurous youth, unusually strong. He ran away from home when he was sixteen, wandered over Germany, doing the hardest kind of manual labor. Before he was a fighter, Max was a printer, a professional strong man, a farmer, a canary-bird merchant, a factory worker, a coal miner, a railway office clerk.

In 1924 Max fought the first of sixteen amateur bouts, a year later he turned professional, and in 1928 he came to America. After a few fights against comparative unknowns he stopped the supposedly unstoppable Johnny Risko, took the heavyweight championship from Jack Sharkey. When he went back to Germany he had a trunkful of American money, an American manager, a great appreciation of everything American.

Schmeling is cold, reserved, no spender, and hence unpopular with the ordinary fight follower.

Today the greatest figure in German sport, a friend of Adolf Hitler, a national hero, Schmeling stands at a crossroad. If he wins, he will rise to new heights. If he loses, he will be disgraced. Few fighters have ever had so much at stake as Max Schmeling will have on June 22.

His Wife...

Max Schmeling is very much in love with his wife. She is beautiful Anny Ondra, German movie actress. No great star, Anny Ondra has the virtue of considerable beauty, pure Aryan ancestry, and Hitler has named her Germany's official actress. When Max Schmeling beat Joe Louis, Der Fuehrer sent Anny a great mass of red roses.

Some say Anny Ondra cooled toward Max after he lost to Baer, that the breach persisted until after the Louis victory. Anny Ondra may fear the fruits of failure in Germany, but Max doesn't know the meaning of fear.

His Manager...

Shrewd, enterprising Joe Jacobs became Max Schmeling's manager in 1929. Despite differing temperament, race, nature, Max and his manager get along well together.

Joe Jacobs knows all there is to know about the fight game, has an eagle eye for the unwary dollar. A born opportunist, he can adjust himself to any situation. After he gave the Nazi salute in a German ring, friends upbraided him. Jacobs' reply was classic.

"I kept my fingers crossed," he said.

Swing Singer

Maxine Sullivan is a tiny, vibrant Negro girl with a high-flying imagination and an amazing sense of rhythm. First and best of the swing-singers, she began a career that will, on Tuesday night, bring her to a starring guest appearance with Benny Goodman, in the old Onyx Club on New York's famed Fifty-second Street. Long a musicians' hangout, the Onyx Club was attracting devotees of hot music when the word swing had no musical meaning. And Maxine Sullivan is one of the brightest of the stars who have come out of the Onyx Club. Famous for her swing version of "Loch Lomond," which she first sang at the Onyx and which was popularized by the college students who were her real "discoverers," Miss Sullivan stands today on the peaks, and the combination of her singing with Benny Goodman's playing should be memorable. You'll find her on CBS, at 9:30 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

Invisible Man

First Nighter is going to put an invisible man on the air, come Friday the 24th. And not only that, this same invisible man will appear on the floor of the U. S. Senate, clad only in red flannels! It's all a part of the play, of course, titled "Oh Say, Can You See," and broadcast from the Little Theater Off Times Square at 10 p.m. EDT over an NBC network. The story concerns a scientist's experiment with a radium-eye machine which renders people invisible. Les Tremayne, as Dr. Slade, learns how to make his assistant, Muggles, invisible, takes him to Washington in an effort to interest the War Department in his device. But something goes wrong, and Muggles finds himself in the Senate, minus his dignity and most of his clothes.

Night Court

In the front rank of the forces working toward a higher type of radio drama is the Columbia Workshop. Experimentally inclined, this little group of writers and actors and producers, unhampered by commercial sponsorship, has broadcast some of the most notable dramas ever put on the air. "St. Louis Blues," "Night Patrol," "Hassan," and a dozen other Workshop productions have marked milestones on the road of radio dramatics. On Saturday, June 25, at 7:30 p.m. EDT, an experimental stream-of-consciousness play, "Courtroom Obbligato," will be put on the air. Written by Hilda Lawrence, with a musical score by Tom Bennett, the play tells the story of a group of ordinary citizens haled into night court.

Men and Books

Greatest problem facing America today is not the threat of European war, not the imminence of fascism or communism, but a matter known and familiar to all of us: the problem of relief and unemployment. In his "Of Men and Books" program, to be heard at 4 p.m. EDT on Thursday over CBS, Professor John T. Frederick of Northwestern University will discuss two current non-fiction works bearing strongly on this problem: "We Too Are The People," by Louise Armstrong, and "The Right To Work," by Nels Anderson. Both are books of the utmost importance. "We Too Are The People," a straightforward account of the experiences of a relief administrator, has created widespread controversy.

PREVIEWS OF SOME OF THIS

Country Correspondent

For years the backbone of American journalism was the country correspondent, the man—or, just as often, the woman—who noted in minute detail the little happenings of the community, the parties, the visits, the births and deaths and marriages, and sent a full account to the weekly county-seat newspaper. With the coming of extensive wire services, the general enlargement of news-gathering facilities, the country correspondent lost much of his once great prestige. But the country correspondent still flourishes in America, and every year the best one is selected by the Country Home Magazine in cooperation with the National Editorial Association. For an interview with the 1938 champ, tune in NBC Monday, June 20, at 9:30 p.m. EDT.

Yales and Harvards

Both unbeaten this season, the Yale and Harvard crews will meet to maintain an ancient rivalry on the Thames River, New London, Connecticut, on Friday, June 24. It will be the seventy-first running of the race, and the winning crew will share honors with the winning shell at Poughkeepsie, although neither Yale nor Harvard is entered in that race. Harvard swept the river last year, taking the varsity event after beating the Yale freshman and junior varsity crews. Description of the four-mile upstream race will be broadcast by MBS and NBC at 6 p.m. EDT.

"Hotel" Says Good-bye

Hollywood Hotel goes off the air for the summer on Friday, June 24, and appropriately enough the last play to be put on the air by this top-ranking dramatic program will be "Always Goodbye." Barbara Stanwyck and Herbert Marshall will have the starring roles. The play goes on the air at 9 p.m. EDT. "Hollywood Hotel" will be back in the fall, of course, bigger and better, no doubt, than ever before.

As we go to press, another important piece of Hollywood Hotel news comes in. For on June 4, Frances Langford, singing star of the program, and Jon Hall, who played the male lead in "Hurricane," were secretly married at Prescott, Arizona. No surprise to intimates of the newlyweds, this news is something of a joke to Louella Parsons, Hollywood Hotel producer. For in her syndicated newspaper column of June 7, Miss Parsons prophesied that the marriage would take place in December, boasted that this secret was exclusive with her!

150th Anniversary

At no time in U. S. history since its ratification 150 years ago has the American Constitution been of greater interest to the mass of the people. The document which the great English statesman Gladstone called the greatest ever struck off by the hand and mind of man has, in a way, gone on trial, torn between two groups of thinkers. One faction holds that the Constitution is outmoded; the other, that it is an institution that should guide America always. Of special interest, therefore, is the special program in observance of the 150th anniversary of the ratification of the Constitution, to be aired by MBS on Sunday, June 19, at 3:45 p.m. EDT.

Proud Fathers

What does a new-made daddy think about? Columbia Broadcasting System special-events announcers are going to find out, and that very soon: on Sunday, June 19, as a matter of fact. On that day, they'll track five- and ten-minute veterans of parenthood through the labyrinths of hospital corridors, corner them, demand to know just how it feels to be, at last, a proud father. The occasion, in case you've forgotten, is Father's Day, and the broadcast will be put on the air from several large cities. Only fathers whose first babies have been born on Father's Day morning can qualify.

Billy and Bobby

The fabulous Mauch Twins—Billy and Bobby—in the East for the first time in more than a year, will return to the program that gave them their start in radio and brought them eventually to radio fame for the second of two broadcasts over CBS on Thursday, June 23, at 5:30 p.m. EDT. The program will originate in New York.

Fourteen years old now, the Mauch boys did their first dramatic work in radio under the direction of Miss Nila Mack, famed director of children's programs, whose "Let's Pretend" is a universal favorite. On Thursday they return to Miss Mack's juvenile stock company of the air to play leading roles in "Prince Darling" on the stage of CBS Playhouse No. 1. Over 1,000 children will be in the audience. The twins have starred in such films as "The Prince and the Pauper," "The White Angel," and "Penrod and Sam."

WEEK'S BETTER PROGRAMS

Violin King

In every art there is one man who stands above his fellows, indisputably supreme. In the incredibly difficult and complex art of violin-making, that one man is Antoni Stradivari, who was born in Cremona, Italy, in 1664, and died there in 1737, leaving behind him instruments of such perfection that for 200 years they have been the despair of lesser craftsmen. There are almost as many theories to account for the perfection of Stradivarius violins as there are genuine Strads in existence. For years it was believed that the master of Cremona used a secret varnish that had a mysterious power to enhance the beauty of a violin's tone. But chemical analysis has proven that theory to be false. Stradivari's materials were the ordinary materials of his day—but his craftsmanship was extraordinary. A rare opportunity to hear a string quartet composed entirely of Strads will be presented on Sunday, June 19, when the Stradivarius String Quartet comes to the Radio City Music Hall over NBC. The time, 12:30 p.m. EDT.

Lock-Picker

The greatest safe-cracker alive today is no criminal! His name is Charles Courtney, and he has yet to be arrested for the delicate business of opening up a tightly-closed bank vault, or persuading a locked safe to give up its secrets. Internationally famous, Courtney is the world's foremost authority on locks, safes and keys. And in the course of his career he has had completed assignments ranging from the opening of a centuries-old safe to the untangling of a jammed zipper on a lady's pajamas! He'll tell all when he goes on the air as a guest of "It Can Be Done" on Wednesday, June 22, at 10:30 p.m. EDT, CBS.

Propaganda

There never was a time in the history of America when news was of such great importance as it is today, unless, possibly, it was during the period just before the World War. All of us, in this year 1938, work and live under a constant barrage of untruthful news, of supposed-to-be-news. It is utterly dangerous. Some of the dangers of propaganda will be pointed out by Col. Frank Knox, publisher of The Chicago Daily News and once candidate for the vice-presidency of the United States, in an address before the National Editorial Association to be broadcast from White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, at 8 p.m. EDT, NBC, Wednesday, June 22.

Chinese War

An echo of the "undeclared war" now raging through China will be heard over U. S. receiving sets on Friday, June 24, when Dr. Hu Shih, famous Chinese scholar and author, speaks from 10:45 to 11 p.m. EDT over the network of the Columbia Broadcasting System. Dr. Hu Shih, who was educated in American

Tennis Abroad

The greatest tennis star the game has ever produced, Bill Tilden, will be on the air at 1:15 p.m. EDT for Columbia on Saturday, June 25, to bring to U. S. listeners an account of the international tournament at Wimbledon, England, where top-ranking stars from all over the world are gathered in their annual struggle for supremacy. Until a tennis star has played—and won—on the famous Centre Court at Wimbledon, he is hardly considered to have amounted to very much! The tournament started on June 20, will continue until June 30.

Man and Wife

Thoroughly happy in each other and in their work, Fredric March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, are two of the best—and best-liked—actors that Hollywood knows. Although Florence Eldridge has done little stage or screen work since her marriage, leaving the starring role in the family to Fredric March, his infrequent appearances are usually notable. When the Marches appeared last season in a Broadway effort called "Yr. Obedient Husband," their individual work attracted considerable praise, even though the play itself was a quick failure. When the Lux Radio Theater comes on the air at 9 p.m. EDT Monday night (June 20) over the CBS network, Fredric March and Florence Eldridge will be together again, this time in a radio version of "Manslaughter." Well known as a play and as a film, "Manslaughter" tells the story of a spoiled rich girl, sent to prison after killing a man in an automobile accident, and how life behind bars brought her to the realization that her philosophy had been wrong.

Robin Hood Dell

On June 23, the Ninth Summer Concert Season begins at Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia, with the famous Philadelphia Orchestra playing a series of concerts under the batons of internationally famous conductors. The first broadcast will go on the air at 9:30 p.m. EDT, MBS.

The programs, which will give to a national audience what is recognized by leaders in the musical world as America's outstanding summer concert series, will be broadcast direct from a vast outdoor amphitheater in Fairmount Park on the banks of the Schuylkill River.

The Dell concerts are a unique institution. Begun in 1930 in a natural open-air theater, walled by huge trees, the concerts this year will be played from a huge acoustically perfect stage, before audiences ranging up to 8,000 persons. At one time—in 1934—there was talk of abandoning the project, but the musicians of the Philadelphia Orchestra took over. During the season opening on Thursday, such conductors as Wallenstein, Van Hoogstraten, and Smalens will be on the podium.

on Friday, June 24, will see the broadcast of a talk from Washington, by S. H. McCrory, Chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Engineering of the United States Department of Agriculture, entitled, "The Farmer Takes a Robot." Unfortunately, this little broadcast, scheduled as a feature of the "Adventures in Science" series, has been cancelled. But we thought we'd call it to your attention any way, because it will undoubtedly be put on the air in the fall, and it should be well worth watching for.

ATTUNE yourself for serious contemplation of ancient classics, as none of these composers except Leoncavallo, who died in 1919, lived later than 1828, the year of Schubert's death.

Krebs was the best organ pupil of Bach; C. P. E. Bach was the master's third son and functioned as court musician to Frederick the Great. Radio auditors are becoming instructively familiar with the superior harpsichord playing of Ernst Victor Wolff.

Howard Barlow, conductor

La Rosiere Republicaine (Gretry)
Les Aeolides (Franck)

Symphony No. 3 (for organ and orchestra) (Saint-Saens)

"LES AEOLIDES," as its title indicates, has to do with the winds, and Cesar Franck (1822-1890) found his inspiration in Leconte de Lisle's poem of the same name. The sentiment of the lines is beautifully reproduced in the composer's delicate and impressionistic symphonic score.

The generously named Andre-Ernest-Modeste-Gretry (1741-1813) was founder of the school of French comedy-opera. His music is light, simple in harmony and orchestration.

Saint-Saens, dead seventeen years, would be practically out of the orchestral repertoire were it not for his third symphony, his best work in that form. Aside from its sustained and lofty merit, the score offers unusual effects with parts written for piano duet and organ.

The March of Music

A Weekly Preview Edited By Leonard Lieblich

"... An ampler Ether, a diviner Air..."—Wordsworth

More or Less Comment?

A WRITER in Modern Music complains of the kind of spoken comment that accompanies most of the music programs on the air. He says that he gets too many elementary and over-familiar facts, and pokes fun at the commentators who tell him solemnly that the opening motif of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony is "Fate knocking at the door"; that Bach had innumerable children; where Saint-Saens traveled in his busy life; and what Franck said to his wife after finishing a symphonic score. The same writer also ridicules such phrases as "the great German master"; "sublime in its . . . etc. . ."; "the Finnish genius" (this one has been worked to death); "brilliant young Americans" (when applied to our native composers), and concludes, "Maybe your experience with musical knowledge has been limited to the amazing fact that Beethoven crossed Napoleon's name from the fly-leaf of the 'Eroica' symphony, or that Brahms wished he could write a waltz like Johann Strauss. But don't tell me that you haven't heard how old Mendelssohn was when he wrote the 'Midsummer Night's Dream' music!"

The foregoing abashes me down to the ground, for I too have been guilty of setting down some of the ABC's for readers of RADIO GUIDE. However, I was not moved by a spirit of condescension, but only by the belief that many older dialists never came across those items and that many younger ones have not yet heard them. Am I right or not? It would interest me to know just what the radio listeners think of the music-commentators, and what kind of comment they prefer: factual or romantic, weighty or light?

Prophets and Profits

Whenever I think about the chief problem of American composers I am reminded of the anecdote about old Dr. Johnson, who was one of a standing crowd at a London musicale, when the hostess asked him: "Haven't you a seat, Doctor?" "I have, madam," the author snapped back, "but I have no place to put it."

American creators have enough music but don't know where to have it performed. Radio offers the solution, as exemplified by CBS, which has commissioned six Americans to submit new compositions written especially for radio hearing. Their works will be premiered this summer through the medium of "Everybody's Music" (Sundays, CBS), conducted by Howard Barlow. As the composers are to be paid, radio can point with proud scorn at those who accuse it of operating for profit only.

The Stradivarius String Quartet will be heard on the "Radio City Music Hall" over the National Broadcasting system this Sunday afternoon

The Goldman Band Concerts

Edwin Franko Goldman, conductor

Grand March in F (Fletcher)

Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla"

Excerpts from "Die Walkure"

Overture "Masaniello" (Auber)

Echo Waltz (Trio for Three Cornets)

Polka; Gavotte (Nahan Franko)

Birthday March (Goldman)

Overture "1812" (Tschaikowsky)

GOLDMAN admirers are favored with a list most unusual at a band concert, and it should be arresting to hear how the wind instruments fare with the customary string parts of the overtures and operatic episodes. Clarinets have the task of substituting for the violins of the symphony orchestra. Goldman, himself a skilful cornetist, contributes a three-cornet novelty from his pen. I shall follow it with interest, but feel glad the trio of performers was not my neighbor when practising the piece.

Symphony No. 1 (Boyce)

Romeo and Juliet Overture

Festivals (Debussy)

BACH'S jaunty Prelude, originally for violin solo, precedes Schumann's "Toccata," one of his early opuses for piano solo. To play it at proper speed, Mr. Stewart is called upon for the possession of canny fingers and resilient wrists.

The harmonically simple melodies of the early English composer, William Boyce (1710-1779), and the exciting, sophisticated orchestration of Debussy's "Festivals" provide a striking frame for the romantically lovely "Romeo and Juliet" overture, to be heard on the air twice this week. It will be interesting to compare Mr. Stewart's interpretation with that of Alfred Wallenstein on Saturday evening with the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Prelude to "Die Meistersinger"

Symphony No. 1 (Brahms)

Four Waltzes (Johann Strauss)

HOMAGE to Ormandy for a program which brings the best in every department! Of his selections it may be justly said with the poet that age does not wither nor custom stale their infinite variety.

Wagner offers me a recurrently funny experience, and maybe others share it with me. Whenever I hear much of his music within a given period, I imagine I am tiring of it. However, deprive me of him for a time and then bring him back—lo and behold! he conquers me afresh with the magic of his melody and the lure of his orchestration. I fear that I exist in lifelong thrall to the radiant Richard.

Strangely enough, while I have heard the Wagner operas no oftener than the Strauss waltzes, the latter never surfeit me even temporarily, doubtless because they ask for lesser emotional drain.

"What neat repeat shall feast us,
Light and choice,
Of Attic taste?"—MILTON.

BROTHER WALLENSTEIN has summoned some typical "Pop" favorites for this occasion, but how did he overlook Brahms' Hungarian Dances, Chabrier's "España," Grieg's "The Swan" and Weber's "Invitation to the Waltz"? Yet the program is ingenious, for while it pleases the many it should not displease the few.

Apropos, a number of gracious compositions which used to be regular visitors at "Pop" concerts years ago seem to have fallen by the wayside of recent seasons; for instance, d'Albert's "Improvisator" overture, Dvorak's "Scherzo Capriccioso," Ibert's "Diversissement," Rubinstein's "Feramors" and Victor Herbert's "Irish Rhapsody."

Nearly all the leading composers have written at least one number which endears them to the multitude. Remember Bach's "Air," Beethoven's "Minuet," Schubert's "Ave Maria," Schumann's "Traumerei," Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," Rubinstein's "Melody in F," Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in C Sharp Minor," Chopin's "Funeral March," Ravel's "Bolero," Dvorak's "Humoresque" and Liszt's "Liebestraum."

The Wallenstein program ends on an elevated note with the sublimated romanticism of Tchaikowsky.

Goldman's Band Ushers in Summer with New York Open-Air Concerts

Sunday, June 19 at 9 p.m. EDT on CBS

MANY years ago—for diplomatic reasons I shall not say how many—I used to go to the Irving Place Theater in New York, where an excellent little orchestra held forth between the acts. My ear was caught by the music, but my eye wandered often to two performers in the pit, one of them the mature conductor, the other the very young cornet player. They drew attention because of their strong facial resemblance and their extraordinary crowns of luxuriant, wavy black hair, worn in the pompadour manner. They were uncle and nephew. In later years, the former became first violinist and assistant conductor at the Metropolitan, and the cornetist founded and led his own band of brass and woodwind performers. The names of the uncle and nephew? Nahan Franko and Edwin Franko Goldman.

The older man has passed away, but the younger—with head now capped by snowy-white but still luxuriant hair—last summer celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his inauguration of the annual summer concerts by the Goldman Band in Central Park, New York. June 19 will witness this year's opening broadcast of the series, seven years ago named the Daniel Guggenheim Memorial Concerts, to commemorate the public-minded sponsor who made them possible from the beginning. His family continues generously to finance the enterprise that affords free musical enjoyment for hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers during the hottest period of the summer. They find seats facing the specially constructed bandstand, scatter themselves over the lawns or sit in their parked cars crowding the drives near the concert enclosure. Always they are regaled with programs featuring the masters, led and performed with understanding and finish.

"Here comes the band!" A cry that has thrilled people since 3000 B. C. or so, when the Egyptians paraded to the shrine of Serapis, god of healing, and made music upon reeds, pipes, tambourines and drums.

A harmonious summer to Goldman, and happy hearing for the armies of Central Park visitors and their fellow listeners at the loudspeakers!

Robin Hood Dell Commences Its Annual Rustic Series

Thursday, June 23 at 9:30 p.m. EDT on MBS

PHILADELPHIA, too, offers its citizens outdoor musical delights when the new season of Robin Hood Dell concerts begins June 23 (9:30 to 10:30 p.m. EDT on MBS) at the forest-fringed amphitheater in Fairmount Park, on the banks of the Schuylkill River.

In such picturesque surroundings the famed Philadelphia Orchestra started its summer ministrations in 1930, and since then as many as 8,000 persons have at times crowded the natural open-air auditorium to hear symphonies under the stars, with human stars serving as soloists. The radio audience of millions is especially favored, too, because experts declare that the nature of the Dell site offers splendid acoustics not normally found in al fresco amphitheaters.

Inaugurated by public-spirited Philadelphians, the Dell project developed slowly at first, and was about to be abandoned in 1935, but the men of the orchestra stepped forward with a proposition to run the series on a cooperative basis, and since that time its artistic and financial success has been continuous. Today a huge stage replaces the original canvas-covered platform, and spacious dressing-rooms instead of tents offer hospitality to the assisting artists.

Distinguished guest conductors are scheduled for the present course, Eugene Ormandy (regular leader of the Philadelphia Orchestra) batoning the opening concert. The following evening Alexander Smallens has charge (9:30 p.m. EDT), and Saturday Alfred Wallenstein conducts (8:30 p.m. EDT), followed in later broadcasts by Willem van Hoogstraten and others. The series will be broadcast regularly through the summer on Friday evenings at 9:30 and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. EDT.

Music-loving dialers who feared their pleasures were to be few this summer have fumed needlessly, what with the generous list of shows.

HOLLYWOOD PITCHERS' BATTLE

A million dollars' worth of talent earned $1,000 for Guild charity headed by Mrs. Abraham Lehr

SANDLOT baseball grows in popularity every year, yet almost nowhere does it occasion any comment. Bucking that apathy when a team of Hollywood radio stars recently played a team of movie stars in exactly the sort of game that bank-tellers play with filling-station attendants every night, the "names made news" again. Staged as a benefit for charity, the game attracted hundreds, earned over a thousand dollars. The radio stars' team of "Almost All-Americans" was headed by Frank Parker, who had behind him such stalwarts as Norris Goff (Abner of "Lum and Abner"), Jon Hall ("Hurricane" movie star who was ousted by his cinema colleagues because of his romance with radio's Frances Langford), Milton Berle, Tony Labriola (Ken Murray's "Oswald") and "Slapsie" Maxie Rosenbloom, former light-heavyweight fighter. George Raft captained a team of movie stars, the "Nine Not-So-Old Men," won 24-22. With him were Jackie Coogan, Henry Fonda, Alan Mowbray, Mickey Rooney and many others belonging to cinema's great. After the game, even star-struck fans agreed that stars (1) have a lot of fun, (2) are lousy athletes!

Exclusive Radio Guide Photographs by Ted Allen

Tony Labriola, Ken Murray's "Oswald," who made "Oooh Yeah" famous, admitted to Radio Guide's reporter he got to bed at 4 on the morning of the game, but this picture proves he connected with at least one fast one!

Frank Parker injured a finger on his right hand in the second inning of the game, was replaced by the umpire—everything being very informal that way. Before that, Frank pasted one (above) to the outfield for an easy two-bagger

Only batter to get four strikes was Comedian Berle (rising from ground at right) who outtalked Abe Roth, fight referee who umpired, then replaced Frank Parker, on a close decision. After that Berle swung hard, popped out!

Jon Hall revenged himself on the cinemen who made him play with the radio team by scoring so many home runs he had to bat left-handed after the sixth inning. Result: Ardent fans mobbed him at the gate (above) for autographs!

Col. Knox addresses editors convention Wednesday—NBC.

Propaganda Discussed By Col. Knox

Wednesday, NBC, 8:00-8:30 p.m.

Propaganda has many names and grins at "what fools we mortals be" from many places. A powerful force, it exerts, directly and indirectly, a sordid influence on the lives of all people, taking an immense toll from the ranks of the innocents. Being powerful, struggles for the control of the agencies that circulate it have often upset governments. There was one such struggle in Germany, and the Nazis now control German reading-matter; another such struggle took place in Italy, and now the Fascists dictate the Italian press; today we read of editors and publishers in this country being challenged the right of what they term "freedom of the press," and of a proposed bill aimed at the suppression of that freedom. So it is with a topic loaded with dynamic possibilities that Col. Frank Knox addresses the annual convention of the National Editorial Association.

Col. Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News and Republican candidate for the vice-presidency in the 1936 presidential election, is regarded as an international authority on forces and trends which mold public opinion. He chose this topic for his address before 500 editors and publishers of small-town daily and weekly newspapers because of the important bearing it has on the lives of all citizens of the United States. Its appropriateness is further enhanced by the fact that propaganda is a subject with which newspapermen should be well acquainted, for it has been by newspapers that most propaganda has been circulated.

Anniversary Celebration At Valley Forge

Sunday, MBS, 3:45-4:30 p.m.

Addresses by Governor George H. Earle of Pennsylvania and Associate Justice H. F. Stone of the United States Supreme Court will highlight a special Reverence Day program in observance of the 150th anniversary of the ratification of the Constitution of the United States and the evacuation of Valley Forge by George Washington's troops. Over 10,000 people are expected to make the pilgrimage to Valley Forge for the ceremony.

In this display of devotion to our democracy and those, now long dead, who were closely associated with its early history there is a bright ray of hope for its continuance in spite of the threatening antagonism in many foreign quarters. Americans should remember on occasions like this that many heroes and several events, now celebrated and symbolized, passed without honor in their own day.

"Wild Bill" McGovern Tells of the Orient

Tuesday, NBC, 7:45-8:00 p.m.

Bringing to the air a wealth of experience in subjects of which he speaks, William Montgomery McGovern, author, explorer and lecturer, will be heard Tuesday in the third of a special series of six broadcasts titled "The Roving Prof." In this series Professor McGovern tells the American public something of the little-known human sidelights of family life in the Orient. His commentaries are based on interesting anecdotes taken from his own experiences.

In presenting this series by Professor McGovern, NBC, in cooperation with the University Broadcasting Council, brings to the air one of the most colorful figures in the field of education in America today. Although he is professor of political economy at Northwestern University, he is known on the campus there simply as "Bill." He returned to Northwestern this spring after a year of study in North China, where he was frequently in the war zone.

His career as a traveler started when he was only six weeks old. He started traveling then and he has been traveling ever since. Outstanding among his unusual journeys is one he took with his mother to Mexico just to see a revolution. At sixteen he went to Japan, where he later entered the Buddhist priesthood. From here he went to Oxford for more study and then to the Field Museum for a curatorship in anthropology. He also found time to explore the Forbidden City of Lhasa, the Inca ruins of Peru, and the Amazon River.

Professor Frederick Airs Comments on Books

Thursday, CBS, 4-4:15 p.m.

Recently added to Columbia's series of Adult Education programs was one titled "Of Men and Books," conducted by Professor John T. Frederick. In this series, now in its fifth week, Professor Frederick reviews books which impress him as significant interpretations of American life, with particular stress on regional literature. Besides reviewing from one to three books on each broadcast and including interesting biographical information about their authors, Professor Frederick, from time to time, has prominent writers as guests.

John T. Frederick, recognized as one of America's leading short-story critics, is professor of modern letters at the Medill School of Journalism of Northwestern University, director of the Illinois Writers Project and lecturer on contemporary literature at Notre Dame University.

Homer Canfield, Hollywood newspaperman, embarked upon the strangest mission of his career recently when he undertook to escort Gracie Allen's surrealist paintings to be exhibited in Chicago, and then to a second exhibit in New York City. RADIO Crown Princess Joan Benny went along with Papa Jack and Mother Mary Livingstone to the Jell-O show of June 5—but wouldn't leave the studios until she had met Charlie McCarthy. Edgar Bergen, told of the request, unpacked the dummy from his summer-weight suitcase and obliged, but Joan insisted upon talking solely to Bergen until Charlie's voice interrupted with, "Do you have a stick of chewing-gum on you?" Then Joan talked to Charlie; invited him to her fourth birthday party, June 17. Bergen, stopped by that one, received the nod from Jack and Mary, so Charlie accepted, and to seal the bargain, asked the Benny heiress for a kiss. "May I kiss Charlie, Mother?" Joan asked. Given an official okeh, she did . . . Little Joan also showed off her ability to read brand names on cigarettes and distinguish one kind from another, then sang "Loch Lomond" for Charlie, the Jell-O cast and other friends. Papa Jack promised that he'd let her sing the number for the studio audience of next week's broadcast. So ended one of those little backstage scenes that sometimes are better than the programs one hears.

Fred Allen, incidentally, has Paramount Studios in a dither. Asked for a legal release to permit Benny to refer to him in his next picture, Fred wired: "Jack Benny has my permission to use my name, my jokes or my toothbrush, if such will advance Jack Benny or the motion-picture industry" . . . but Paramount wonders about that "if"!

Closing day at Tanforan brought out the celebs, including Bing Crosby and Alice Faye. Bing socked $1,500 on the nose of his Argentine steed, Ligaroti. A friend remarked, "I like Whichcee." Crosby countered with, "None of those other pigs have a chance against Ligaroti. Did you bet on Whichcee?" "Yes," answered the friend. "I've half of a two-dollar ticket." After the race, Crosby sought out his pal, offered to trade tickets—for Whichcee won! . . . At least that's what the judges thought, so Alice Faye kissed Whichcee's rider, Jockey James, and hung a floral wreath on the horse's neck. Two races later the judges announced Indian Broom had won—in a photo finish. But Rider Harvey Elston missed his kiss. Alice wouldn't repeat!

Rom-Antics: The Tyrone Power-Janet Gaynor palsy-walsying, temporarily stymied by a 20th Century-Fox "romance" between Janet and Richard Carlson, is steady again . . . Shirley Ross and Agent Ken Dolan are keeping the 17 Club warm.

Greetings, Noble! The Shriners have done a neat job of getting into Hollywood's hair during the past week. On Monday of their convention, Lum 'n' Abner were greeted by the Little Rock Ark., delegation when they arrived at the CBS studios with about one minute to spare before airtime. The organ theme had died away and opening commercial had been read before L&A were able to dash to the microphone almost too late . . . Jolson Show played host to six hundred of the fezzed visitors . . . and Don Wilson, in the role of a Spanish caballero, joined the Shrine parade astride his huge Apaluce horse, resplendent with silver-mounted saddle, and laid claim to being the biggest attraction in the caravan.

Cecil B. DeMille has politely rejected the bid for him to accept the Republican nomination as candidate for U. S. Senator from California. Recalling his Lux sponsor, he is inaccurately reported to have declared, "No soap!"

Recalling those very funny "if men were like women" sketches on the Maxwell House "Good News" airing, your Hollywood peeper was in stitches after eavesdropping on Robert Taylor, Robert Young, Meredith Willson and "Snooks" Writer Phil Rapp at rehearsal. The group—of all things—were discussing THEIR BARBER! It seems that Taylor and Willson are trimmed by the same tonsorial artist —whereupon Young decided definitely to stay away from him "if Meredith's cut is any sample" . . . Hah!

Back to her alma mater, Convent of the Sacred Heart at San Francisco, went Gracie Allen with George Burns to attend the graduation of her niece, Jean Boyston—who, strangely enough, headed the class despite her silly Auntie Gracie. The latter spent most of her time attempting to learn why schools call the finish of their courses the commencement . . . and by the way, Bea Benedaret, the actress-stooge on the June 6 B&A show who had to giggle continuously, had not the least trouble with her giggles at rehearsal—but on the show she just couldn't deliver until she sat on a stool . . . Is there a doctor in the house?

Johnny Weissmueller is going to teach Fannie Brice a few new swimming tricks at the pool on the comedienne's new Holmby Hills estate. Perhaps Fannie is planning to outswim Eleanor Holm Jarrett—or just duck her a couple of times.

Elaine Barrie Barrymore is trying to keep it secret that she is playing the role of a "muggie" peddler in the West Coast "Candid Lady" script-show—but this ends that trial. Oddly enough, while Elaine is enacting the part of a marihuana-passing criminal on the air, a Los Angeles movie house is double-billing the films "Marihuana, an Expose" and "How to Undress," which Elaine made prior to her marriage to John Barrymore . . . Miss Barrie is a good radio actress—too good for minor parts, especially when her acceptance of such takes jobs away from young actresses whose financial needs are acute.

Her motion-picture studio is building up Martha Raye by referring to her as "Glamour Legs" . . . Why not just "Glam Gams"?

The Don Ameches and Chester Laucks (he's Abner's Lum) are planning their European jaunts together and expect to sail July 6 on the Queen Mary, and when "Lum" agreed to travel with Don, the latter presented him with a cocktail-shaker in the form of a ship's bell. Momentarily Abner, or Norris Goff, is batching it while both son Gary and wife Elizabeth are in the hospital, the former for a broken arm which he sustained in a fall from a wagon and which has had to be re-broken twice by doctors, and the latter for a visit by Dr. Stork.

Irene Dunne's reported $5,500 fee for her Lux Theater acting on June 13 is said to have set a new high for that show. Previous top was $5,000, paid Mae West some time ago.

Live Mikings: Jack Oakie isn't drinking; has reduced to 160 pounds—on studio orders . . . The double-barreled W. C. Fields and Nelson Eddy guesting June 5 on Chase and Sanborn Hour was to meet the growing rival coffee Maxwell House "Good News" competition . . . That instructor who's teaching Marion Talley the Big Apple Sundays at the NBC Hollywood studios is Jean Sablon.

THIS past week has been quite a hectic one for this space-filler. Besides the regular rounds of the studios, we were among those present at the Kay Kyser debut at the Pennsylvania Hotel, Richard Himber's opening night at the Essex House and Ben Bernie's birthday party. Let's take them one at a time.

Ben Bernie, Benny Goodman, Fred Waring and a host of others were at the Penn Roof to pay tribute to Professor Kyser, who has taken New York by storm. So much so that NBC reports they get more requests for tickets to Kyser's Lucky Strike program than to any other show on their network, which gives you a rough idea how popular he is. It was three ayem when we left the Penn, and a good time was had by all.

Next night at the Ben Bernie broadcast, which was in celebration of the Ol' Maestro's birthday, we find a long row of tables on the stage, all set as though a big meal was about to be served. They didn't miss a trick; flowers were on the table and they even had champagne buckets, but on close investigation we found the bottles to be empty. Everyone in the audience was handed paper caps to wear during the broadcast. After the program Ben was tendered quite a party at Jack Dempsey's restaurant. Bernie was called on to make a speech, which turned out to be very brief. All he said was, "It couldn't happen to a nicer guy." If you listened in, you know that Kate Smith, Phil Baker and this Dempsey fellow were Ben's guests. Someone mentioned to Ben that the program that night was exceptionally good and he should hire the same guests for the rest of his series. Ben agreed that it was a good idea and added that the price was right. These famous guests appeared on his show that night for free; in other words, without pay.

We had lots of fun at Dick Himber's opening. Dick, as you may have read here before, is quite a guy when it comes to card tricks. He modestly introduced himself as the world's greatest magician, but three stooges planted at the ringside showed him up every time he attempted a trick. Himber has a new gag that has everyone breathless. It is a pump, which delivers any drink (including milk) by asking for it, and mind you, no hand touches the pump. I'm still trying to figure out how it's done. Later in the evening Himber urges Fred Waring to get up and sing. Fred agrees to do so if Dick will also agree to sing. Himber goes through with his end of the deal and surprises everyone, including your reporter, with a voice that isn't bad. Waring agreed to lead the band in an arrangement of his theme song,

Host at this informal affair was Orchestra Leader Dick Himber of the CBS "Monday Night Show." This scene took place at the Casino-on-the-Park, exclusive romance room of the Essex House in New York, where Himber's orchestra had a preview opening May 28. The girl is Judy Starr, vocalist with Hal Kemp's band

"Sleep," but the music-makers double-crossed him and started to play "Don't Be That Way" for about the sixth time that evening. Fred tried to get "Sleep" out of the boys, but it was no use—all he got was D. B. T. W. Finally, he gave up in disgust and turned the baton back to Himber and returned to the dance floor to strut his stuff with his attractive wife. The fun hadn't ended though, by a long shot. Every time Waring approached the bandstand, he'd jump up, lift his arms in the air, and no matter what number the boys were playing, they'd stop and jump into "Don't Be That Way." This happened at least a dozen times and the place was in an uproar.

Jimmy Foss, Lefty Grove and Moe Berg, those three great baseball players, were Ted Husing's guests on his program the night we presented the ace sportscaster with the medal for coming out on top in this division in RADIO GUIDE's Star of Stars poll. The producer of the program forgot to tell the ballplayers they would have to do a repeat show at midnight for the West Coast listeners. The trio politely informed him they would be unable to return because the rules and regulations insist they be in bed at midnight. For a time it looked as though professional actors would have to be hired to substitute, but the boys finally got their boss on the phone and he gave them special permission to stay up an extra hour.

If you're a regular reader of this department you are aware of the fact that we have been campaigning for the return of Franklyn MacCormack to the networks. We have continued because you have kept writing and wiring asking us to do so. It is very gratifying to learn from a confidential source that his former sponsor received over 30,000 protests for letting him go, and asking for his return. There was one petition of 4,000 names, which is evidence of MacCormack's popularity. We also learn that on Wednesday, May 25, the popular star was called into the CBS headquarters in Chicago to discuss things and things, so keep your fingers crossed and maybe Mr. MacCormack will be back with you again real soon. Incidentally, we've been asked to inform you a Franklyn MacCormack Fan Club has been organized at 7832 Champlain Avenue, Chicago. If you care to join, send your name and address on a post card. No dues or duties to perform, only your loyalty to the star.

When Victor Bay raised his baton on June 1 to rehearse his "Essays in Music" orchestra for a piece by Rachmaninoff they were going to play on their next broadcast, he didn't get the reaction he expected. Instead, as one man, the musicians broke into the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March. Bay had suddenly gotten married the night before to Hanna Moore, a dancer, whom he met in Hollywood while he was working on Columbia's Shakespeare cycle last summer and she was in "The Goldwyn Follies."

Saw Howard Clancy in the studios the other night, and during our conversation I asked the popular announcer if he was doing any painting, which is his great hobby. Much to my surprise, Howard told me he was doing a painting of Arturo Toscanini. While he sat in a private booth off the stage during the maestro's concert series, he made some sketches from which he is doing the painting. When he is through with this one, he is going to make paintings of other conductors.

While I was sitting in the reception room at CBS headquarters one day last week, Actress Betty Garde went rushing past me three or four times, dashing between two studios. Finally my curiosity got the best of me. I stopped her and, between breaths, she revealed her broadcasting schedule for the week. That afternoon she was dividing her time between rehearsals for "Gang Busters" and Helen Menken's program, "Second Husband." She had done her usual "Mrs. Wiggs" and "Lorenzo Jones" broadcasts that morning. The next day she would do her regular morning shows, rehearse with Al Pearce all p.m., and in the evening dash from the Pearce show over to the "Second Husband" broadcast. Wednesday she would rehearse and broadcast with "Gang Busters." Thursday she would be on with Kate Smith... continuing her "Wiggs" and "Jones" broadcasts every morning! I wonder what Betty does in her spare time?

Twin sisters met for the first time when Robert Ripley presented them on a recent "Believe It Or Not" broadcast. Adopted by different families as babies, they have different names, but both are nurses

Short-wave programs of American stations are shown along with the regular listings beginning on page 25. These are indicated, for example, by (sw-11.87) in parentheses following a program listing. This means that on 11.87 megacycles the same program may also be heard over an American short-wave station. Please note that foreign stations do not always adhere precisely to their announced program schedules.

INSTEAD of allotting fixed periods in the Davenport transmissions to commentaries on the All-England Lawn Tennis Club Championship Meeting at Wimbledon, the programs will be interrupted for broadcasts from the center court whenever the matches then in progress have reached an exciting stage. This arrangement will remain in force throughout the entire period of the Championships—Monday, June 20, to Saturday, July 2—but during the last three days electrically recorded sound pictures of episodes during the day's play will supplement any commentaries that may be given. . . . That colorful bit of old London bounded by Oxford Street, Regent Street, Shaftesbury Avenue and Charing Cross Road—known as Soho, and as John Galsworthy once said, "untidy, full of Greeks, Ishmaelites, cats, Italians, tomatoes, restaurants, organs, colored stuffs, queer names, and people looking out of upper windows," will be described in a broadcast from Davenport, on Saturday, June 25, at 6:30 p.m. EDT, over GSP and GSD.

Ray Shaffer of Waterloo, Ia., reports a new station, TIEM of San Jose, Costa Rica, testing in early evenings on 10.04 and 10.2 meg.

NBC's International Station W3XAL (17.78) is now presenting news reports to foreign countries each Sunday as follows: At 1:45 p.m., in Italian; at 3 p.m., in German; at 4 p.m., in French; at 7:30 p.m., in Spanish and at 7:45 p.m. EDT, in Portuguese. The Latin broadcasts are also heard weekdays at the same time. . . . A Broadway air column, devoted to news about the theater, motion pictures, night clubs and fashions, with Miss Carmer Castelo as the Spanish commentator, is now directed to Latin-American listeners each Friday night at 7:15 p.m. EDT, over CBS International Station W2XE (11.83). . . . A sparkling luncheon concert by the Golden Palm Marimba Band may be heard daily from 1:45 to 2:45 p.m. EDT, over TGWA (15.17) of Guatemala City.

According to Radiocorriere, the new 1,000-watt short-wave station which was inaugurated at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, on May 9, is now operating daily on 9.553 and 4.75 meg. A third optional frequency of 12 meg will be added soon.

SHORT-WAVE SHORTS: OZF (9.52) of Skamlebak, Denmark, is now beaming on South America daily from 9 to 10:30 p.m. and on North America and Greenland daily from 10:30 p.m. to 12 mid. EDT. . . . COCM of Havana, Cuba, has shifted to 9.82 meg, assumedly to escape interference from EAQ, Madrid. . . . Other stations that have shifted frequencies lately are: YV5RC, Caracas, Venezuela, to 5:97 meg; TIWS, Puntarenas, Costa Rica, to 6.375 meg; HC2CW, Guayaquil, Ecuador, to 9.19 meg, and HCJB, Quito, Ecuador, heard testing on 6.225 meg. . . . R. B. Oxrieder of State College, Penn., writes that a new Chilean station on 11.78 meg, believed to be CB1180, is being heard evenings from approximately 7 to 11 p.m. EDT, where it receives considerable interference from HP5G (11.78), "Radio Gonzales," P. O. 1121, Panama City, Panama, which went on the air officially with an inaugural program on Wednesday, May 25, and is now being heard from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. EDT. . . . Plans are under way for world transmissions from Delhi, India, which beamed on various parts of the world, would seek to impart general knowledge about the languages, culture and principles of that country.

Listeners should be on the lookout for PK6XX (14.2) in New Guinea. The power of this station, which was first heard with very loud signals, on June 2, by John DeMyer of Lansing, Mich., was given as 300 watts. PK6XX is believed to be the base-camp station of the American Museum of Natural History's Expedition to New Guinea, and as such should provide some very thrilling moments of reception from the land of "head hunters."

TALENT QUEST

UNCLE DON FEATURES A HOLLYWOOD
TALENT CONTEST OVER WOR-MUTUAL

ABOUT five months ago, preparations were started to find the two most-talented children in the entire Metropolitan New York area, Uncle Don, pioneer children's entertainer of WOR-Mutual who has conducted a talent-night idea for Metropolitan kiddies for eleven years, organized his forces and a Hollywood Talent Quest was under way. Paramount Pictures through their New York representative, Mr. Al Wilkie, said they would be only too happy to play host on the Coast to the lucky winners and Bob Neff of United Airlines came to the front with airplane trips to take the winners to Hollywood and back.

With the prizes ready, auditions were held in Westchester, Long Island, in the five boroughs of New York City and in New Jersey and northern Pennsylvania. After auditions, the better reading, diction and natural dramatic ability; Part five: The children were asked ten questions on general topics of the day according to their age.

In the finals twenty points or parts thereof were given for each part. The winners were picked according to this point system. The boy winning, Tommy Hamilton of North Bergen, N. J., age 10½, had the highest, 86.5 points out of a possible 100. The girl, Harriet Heller of New York City age 12½, had 77.6. It was found that the girls fell down in natural dramatic ability and the general questions.

Uncle Don found that members of every children's program in Metropolitan New York had entered his contest: Horn and Hardart Sunday Show; Hearn's Children Variety Show; Nick Kenny's Gang; Bob Emory's Rainbow House; Juvenile Actors Club of New York; and several out-of-town shows entertainers were brought to the WOR-Mutual studios in New York and put under an elimination test, and out of some 3,100 children who entered the contest, sixteen were picked to appear at the Mutual Playhouse in New York City on Decoration Day to vie for national honors.

The judging committee at the Auditions, Eliminations and Finals included the following personages Benay Venuta, singing star of radio, stage and screen; Pat Barnes, director of the Barnstormers; Hal Gordon, romantic tenor of the Cities Service program; Bill McCune, nationally known orchestra leader; Leonard Farley and Jack Rosenthal of Palisades Amusement Park, N. J.; Walter Thornton, well-known model agent and child beauty expert; Jules Stone, representing the dancing teachers business association; Miss Grace Langdon, musical comedy and dramatic actress; Miss Dorothy Howe, radio actress and singer; Arthur Cremin, director of the New York Schools of Music; Malcolm Atterbury, actor and managing director of the Tamarack Playhouse, Lake Pleasant, N. Y.; John Turtill, professional accountant, was the referee. The question part of the contest was handled by Al Mitchell WOR's Answer Man.

The various parts of the contest included: Part one: Singing, dancing or musical ability; Part two: Memory and dramatic work; Part three: Physical appearance; Part four: General on the smaller stations.

The children leave New York with Uncle Don's right-hand man, Bill Treadwell, on Tuesday, June 21. A Mainliner will fly them to Los Angeles and from there they go by car to Hollywood. Paramount Pictures have made lavish preparations to tour them around the studios, dine them at the studio commissary, and even give them a screen test.

SPECIAL material has been written for the children by Bill Treadwell for their many Coast-to-Coast radio shows and when they return from the Coast they go on a vaudeville tour. Already they have been set for Rainbow House, Benay Venuta's Varieties, Pat Barnes' Barnstormers, Radie Harris Theatrical Program, Bide Dudley's Gossip, with auditions set for Eddie Cantor and Bing Crosby. On the West Coast they will appear on several children's programs.

Tommy and Harriet are products of New York radio stations. Tommy's dad is a cop and Harriet's is a restaurant owner on Broadway. Tommy got his start on Uncle Don's program two years ago and Harriet has been acting, singing and dancing on Rainbow House.

This contest has started out to be a yearly affair with the officials at WOR-Mutual behind it and already Uncle Don is getting requests from children to enter them in the next Hollywood Talent Contest that he is to hold.

A FAMILY AFFAIR

HOLLYWOOD hills and bridle paths know no better or more enthusiastic riders than Chester Lauck and Norris Goff—"Lum and Abner" to their millions of radio listeners. Chester (Lum) Lauck owns seven horses, three of them brood mares, plus two colts; Norris (Abner) Goff stables two fine riding-horses. Their children are equally enthusiastic about the sport. Little Nancy Lauck and Gary Goff learned to ride almost as soon as they were big enough to get a leg over a horse—or even their own fathers, who obligingly saddled themselves for a lesson! There is no pride equal to that of the proud father, whether he be radio star or not. Left, Nancy Lauck riding "Dukie" and Gary Goff on "Bobby." Both ponies, broad-backed and gentle, were carefully chosen. Gary Goff's saddle is a replica of the one his father has

WHILE HUBBY BROADCASTS

Mrs. Wally Butterworth, whose husband is one of the mainstays of the Vox Pop program, makes a recording of every show. Here son Wallace, Jr., indicates marked disapproval of one of the finished recordings!

Boake Carter's secretary, general assistant, and second-in-command is Mrs. Carter, shown here with the CBS commentator, in the library of their home in a Philadelphia suburb. Carter broadcasts directly from this room to the Columbia network stations

THEY also serve who only stand and wait—in radio as in everything else. And many are the long hours of waiting that must come to the wives of radio's favorites. But it is waiting that is tempered, of course, by the near presence of the beloved one. No one can be entirely absent if his voice is in the room! Endless are the methods of whiling away time utilized by radio stars' families. Many wives amuse themselves—and please hubby, by making transcriptions of the program with home apparatus. Others read, or play cards, sew or knit or write. Many of them, pressed closely, would admit a tinge of nervousness, whether, like most radio wives, they wait patiently at home, or, like a favored few, become members of the studio audience!

Photographs by Gene Lester, Gus Gale, CBS

Mrs. Parks Johnson—her husband's another Vox Pop star—makes a recording of the show on her home transcription machine

When Buddy Clark is broadcasting, Mrs. Clark with son Tommy listens avidly. Son Tommy, who is nine and a half months old, listens too, but not very enthusiastically

Professor Quiz' wife fixes his collar just before a broadcast. She is her husband's top assistant, helps him with every program

AIRED FROM THE AIR

HIGH-RANKING among novel broadcasts is the one recently arranged by the Columbia special-features department as a salute to the 1939 Golden Gate Exposition. In a plane flying 3,000 feet above Treasure Island in San Francisco Bay, instrumentalists of Joe Sanders' Nighthawks played "Gold Mine in the Sky" while lovely Jane Kaye, on the ground, sang the lyrics. Short-waved from the plane, music and voice were rebroadcast to CBS net from the ground. Picture above, made dur-

FOR THE SAKE OF A SONG

Little Jackie Heller, singing star who became famous as a member of Ben Bernie's band, and then branched out for himself, is a firm believer in the efficacy of eggs as a before-performance throat aid. Jackie uses only the white of an egg, cracking both ends to "drink" the sticky fluid straight down

Gargling with clear, warm water is the pet idea of Edward Davies, Chicago baritone. Some singers use a mixture of water and lemon juice, others gargle with unadulterated fruit juice of various kinds. All gargles aid in producing complete relaxation of the throat, which is vitally important

A SINGER'S throat is his fortune, and the best care he can give it is none too good. Endless are the formulas used by radio's ranking stars to keep their throats in tip-top condition. In the big broadcasting studios, as the "on the air" signal approaches, star singers produce a weird variety of throat-soothers. Raw eggs, lemons, dill pickles, candy drops, gargles and sprays are commonplace. Some singers adopt even more stringent safeguards for their precious voices. The great John McCormack, for instance, would not speak a word on the day preceding a concert, no matter what the situation might be. McCormack used a special spray to protect his vocal cords from the strain of day-in-day-out singing. Radio Guide on these pages shows in exclusive photographs a few of the methods used by throat-conscious stars of today.

*Exclusive Radio Guide Photographs

Frances Allison sings on the "Club Matinee" program. Here she is waiting her turn on the air, busy with a fresh lemon, out of which she'll suck all juice

No gargles for Jack Fulton! The handsome singing star of the "Just Entertainment" program believes in the value of good old deep-breathing exercises!

Annette requires less effort than gargling, produces the same benefits. Most people gargle rather than use an atomizer because it's simpler, requires no equipment save a glass of water, pinch of salt!

Oddest of all throat-aid remedies is this one, the favorite of Opal Craven, "The Lullaby Lady." Before going on the air, Opal chews a fresh dill pickle!

Marian Francis, singer on the Columbia "It Can Be Done" program, finds that she gets the best results from a careful massage of her throat muscles just before going on the air. The massage loosens and relaxes the muscles, tones the vocal cords, gives her the ease and confidence she needs!

STARS ARE GOOD SPECTATORS

Jack Haley brought not only his own little boy, Jack Jr., but two cousins who happened to be visiting the Haleys at the time. Here they are entering the circus grounds: Donald Dornan, Jack Haley, Jack Jr., Bobby Dornan

ENTERTAINERS love to be entertained, and the busman's holiday is nowhere more popular than in Hollywood. Highly critical, but generous with approval and applause for real merit, the stars of screen and radio constantly flock to watch the stars of other fields at work. Dance orchestras, comedians, singers—all recognize the value of the stars' attendance at their performances, strive to make them as nearly perfect as possible. When the stars are watching, hot dance bands are a little bit hotter; singers try a little harder for that high note; ace comedians are funnier than ever. Anything, from a midget automobile race to a great symphony concert; from a championship boxing-bout to grand opera, may draw a big audience of radio stars. But of all the incredibly varied entertainments that come to Hollywood, nothing under the sun is more popular than an old-fashioned circus! When the "big top" goes up, the stars become just kids again!

Exclusive Radio Guide Photographs by Jack Albin

The stars always take their children to the circus! That's their own best excuse for going! Here is the Benny family applauding the antics of one of the clowns. Little Joan Benny thinks the circus is the world's best fun!

Gravel-voiced Andy Devine holds son Tad aloft, the better to see what is going on. Little Tad doesn't appear to be amused, but actually he is trying to watch four animal acts at the same time, and he's a pretty busy boy!

Al Jolson is a circus-lover of the old school. Here he shows Al Jr. the wonders of the chimpanzee cage. But Jolson Junior is not quite sure, apparently, that the chimpanzees are going to stay safely locked inside!

Because Husband Jackie Coogan was busy with details of the lawsuit he is waging in an effort to collect childhood earnings, Betty Grable came to the circus with Ken Murray. Here they are watching a juggler

Little Gale, Allan Jones' daughter, is an ardent circus fan, and her proud father sees to it that she doesn't miss very many of them. For a better view of the proceedings, Gale watched the circus from the singer's lap

It takes six tickets to get the Phil Regan family into the big tent! Left to right: Phil, Joan, Joseph, Phil Jr., Mrs. Regan. Marilyn is sitting in the clown's lap. Remember when Phil Regan sang with Guy Lombardo's band?

"Look, they're taking your picture!" shouts little Diana Eckley, daughter of some friends of the Joe Penners. Evidently no one ever told Diana that a celebrity never, never looks at the camera when a picture is being made!

THEY DANCE TO THE SUN

Frances Adair and Hollace Shaw, radio singers, watch as Arthur Murray demonstrates the basic Sun Dance step, then try it themselves. Beating the drum is Swift Eagle, featured dancer in one of the Murray troupes

Hollace Shaw and Swift Eagle do the turkey step of the Sun Dance. The man starts on the right, the girl on the left foot. At right, they begin the first movement of the circle step of the dance on opposite feet, knees bent

Continuing the circle step, Hollace Shaw and Swift Eagle turn all the way about, using the basic step, until they meet face to face again

NEWEST dance craze to sweep America is a modification of the ancient Indian Sun Dance, introduced recently by Arthur Murray, famed New York dancing-teacher. All primitive peoples are dancers, and the variety of the steps they use is endless. Because of their high intelligence, and splendid physical development, most of the American Indians developed dances of unusual grace and significance. The Sun Dance, practised in various forms by nearly all the great tribes, and perhaps brought to highest perfection by the Indians of the plains country, is an excellent example. The steps, or divisions, of the Sun Dance represent important events or beliefs in the Indians' every-day life. Worship of the sun is, of course, common with most primitive peoples. The Indians go much farther than mere sun worship, however. There are four steps in the Sun Dance: the turkey, the war, scalp and eagle steps, each with its own separate meaning and significance. The tempo of the dance is very fast, with two beats taken on the same foot—one on the toe, one on the heel. As in the Big Apple, couples form a circle, dance first to the right and then to the left, breaking up the individual steps in pairs. Slightly modified for ballroom use, the Sun Dance reveals attractive formations, appealing rhythms, may well be highly popular with dance-lovers of the good old U. S. A.

Frances Adair and Swift Eagle in the eagle step. This represents the soaring of the eagle, revered by many Indian tribes as a guardian of their welfare. From this position dancers leap upward and backward

A variation on the eagle step is shown here. Although done in this side position, it is the same basic step. Eagle feathers are used

The scalp step is similar to the circling movement in the Big Apple, dancers following each other in a circle, using the basic step with heavy accent. The squaw-man leering in the background is Lew Lehr!

"Courtroom Oblivato," an original musical play, written by Hilda Lawrence, with a musical score by Tom Bennett, will be dramatized. An experiment in the rhythms of the American language, the drama tells, in stream-of-consciousness style, the story of a group of ordinary citizens who are haled into night court.

End of Saturday Programs

In the twelfth division of the Star of Stars Poll, listeners chose "We, the People," directed by Gabriel Heatter, as the best human-interest show

BEST HUMAN-INTEREST PROGRAM IS "WE, THE PEOPLE," SAY VOTERS

GABRIEL HEATTER'S SHOW TOPS "VOX POP," "PROF. QUIZ" IN CLOSE RACE

AMERICANS, as is well known by one and all, like to speak their minds on a wide variety of subjects. In addition to that, Americans like to listen to others of their own sort speaking their minds. The every-day Americans who attract the largest audiences, and the most enthusiastic, are those who tell their own stories and tell them well—stories which in themselves are noteworthy. Next to these unusual first-person story-tellers, Americans, as represented by radio's listeners, like to hear the average man on the street reveal what he thinks about matters of common current interest. After listening to those recitations, listeners like to hear others having their wits tested.

Such are the conclusions occasioned by the tabulation of votes in the twelfth division of RADIO GUIDE's fifth annual Star of Stars Poll. That division included the human-interest programs which have been the year's most interesting radio development—the audience-participation programs which draw on the public for their talent and constantly stimulating variety of viewpoints. The winners were in order: "We, the People," "Vox Pop," "Professor Quiz," "Kay Kyser's Musical Klass and Dance," "Interesting Neighbors," "Uncle Jim's Question Bee," "What's My Name?" "Information, Please," "America's Town Meeting" and "Hobby Lobby."

"We, the People," the winner in one of the most thoroughly contested polls of the year, was a program conceived by Phillips Lord but this year directed by Gabriel Heatter. Each week it brought several persons whose own experiences had been extraordinary to the microphone to give them a chance to tell their stories to the public.

"Vox Pop," conducted by Parks Johnson and Wallace Butterworth, presents questions to the general public. Many of them are humorous or of merely passing interest, and parallel in great degree an average person's light conversation; some are of more consequence, and answers to them have given an index to popular sympathies.

"Professor Quiz—the one, the only, the original," as Bob Trout introduces him, taps uncounted founts of common interest and uncommon knowledge in his weekly question-fest. Voters proved that such entertainment has lost none of its grip on them with their hearty support.

One more poll is yet to be tabulated. That is the super poll, the Star of Stars Election itself, the poll which names the outstanding star of the year, as named by the listeners themselves. The results of that election will be printed in next week's RADIO GUIDE.
