Bubbles Wanted

Call it progress, call it laziness, or just call it bad business; regardless, broadcasting ain't what it used to be.

Look back a few years and recall the tremendous enthusiasms that had radio as a background or foundation evident in the public consciousness. Major Bowes was starting a thousand starlets along the Milky Way to fame—and people loved him for it. Recently, vast portions of our population had gone off the deep end about such personalities as Morton Downey, Crosby, Kate Smith, the Boswells, the Mills Brothers. There was even a popular song called "Crosby, Columbo and Vallee."

Today, where is our enthusiasm? Where is the noise of enjoyment we make when something extra specially swell tickles our appreciation-bone? Outside of the hubbub of the swing fans, ickies, and alligators, you don't hear a sound. To be sure, audiences are still large enough to pay advertisers big profits, and broadcasting remains a treasure-chest of good music and education and entertainment. But the bubbles are gone out of our listening.

Bubbles don't sound so important, but what is champagne without them? Or a coca-cola, for that matter? Try one sometime and see. The bubbles in broadcasting make us rave about the program we heard last night. They make us enthuse publicly and violently about the new personality who sang us into a state of happy enjoyment. They confirm our belief that radio is the greatest show on earth.

Radio this summer has become too matter-of-fact. Like the giant it is, it has set itself down in the sun and begun to drowse. While it drowns, other attractions beckon to its audience. Broadcasting must arouse itself. It has allowed its patterns to become too familiar and its programs too much alike. We need surprises, novelties, thrills. We need bubbles.

Even a giant, to be worth the time we are willing to listen, must stay awake.

Our Regrets, Mr. Boake Carter

Boake Carter is an old friend of RADIO GUIDE. He has done us many favors and we, in turn, have said some nice things about his radio work. It is therefore a matter of regret that our recent story about him and his business of news-commentating carried one vital bit of misinformation.

We unfortunately quoted him as stating that his name Boake, which is so unusual that it has mystified many people, was an Anglicized version of Baku, Russia, the town in which he was born. This was incorrect. The name Boake, according to Mr. Carter, is a family name. "Boake is pure Irish and comes from my forebears, who lived for centuries twenty miles south of Dublin upon an estate known as Shanganagh," he writes us. "When my daughter was born fourteen years ago she was christened Gwladys Sheleagh Boake Carter, showing that Boake had nothing to do with Russia or radio, for my daughter was born six years before I entered the radio field."

As we have said, Boake Carter is an old friend of RADIO GUIDE. Because of that friendship we hope that these lines prove that he broadcasts under a name that is honorably and legitimately his own.

Let Us Compare

On August 3, in 1492, Columbus sailed from Palos, Spain. His object was to reach India. He discovered America.

As we listen to programs that come to us without wires, as we hear newscasters exulting over the exploit of a flyer named Corrigan who flew a "crate" to Ireland, as we hear doctors tell us that where almost every other child born a few hundred years ago died now only a few per thousand born perish, as we listen to tales of scientific achievement and better standards of living and greater human happiness, let us balance these things with those of Columbus' time and consider how far we, as a human race, have come in such a short time.

Let us consider our achievements and take fresh hold of the hope that in time we may even learn an antidote for poverty, cruelty and warfare.

Miracle in a Studio

In a Kokomo, Indiana, home a weary mother sat beside her radio. It was a relief for the torment in her mind. Twenty-three years ago, a girl widow, she had been forced to give up her son. She had been unable to support the baby, so others took him. Somehow, she lost track of him. When she attempted to find him, the trail was blurred. After remarrying she continued the search. In those twenty-three years she had hunted through twenty-four states and Canada, she had written radio stations, had made broadcasts, had published advertisements, but the boy remained lost.

The program to which she was listening was the Salerno Question-Air, a WMAQ program conducted by Announcer Bob Brown. She heard a man's voice as he was being questioned by Mr. Brown. Something caught her attention and held it. The man's name was Gibbs, the name she had borne when her boy was a baby. After the broadcast, driven by some instinct she did not understand, she wrote a letter to WMAQ.

Believe it or not, the man whose broadcast she had heard was her son who had been lost for twenty-three years.

IT IS a lucky man who finds, early in life, the thing he does best and the thing he wants most to do, finds them together, and devotes his life to them, for he will have a happy and a useful existence.

Such a man is Cornelius McGillicuddy—Connie Mack to every American who knows the meaning of the word baseball—and just such a life is the one that he has led. No man in America is more respected by his fellows, and no American is more entitled to respect. For a solid half-century Connie Mack has followed the guiding star of his life, never faltering, never turning aside from what he knew to be the one true path for him, and today, at 76, he can look back over the way he has come and say, with the conviction of absolute honesty: "If I had it to live over again, I would not change a day in my life."

There are all kinds of achievements for which men may expect to be honored in this world—material gain, artistic success, popular leadership and a dozen others. But the greatest of all these is this: That a man live his life in such a way that it can be said of him, there walked an honest man—honest with himself, with his fellows, honest in his ideals and honest in his principles.

THERE is so much of solid achievement in the life of Connie Mack that it's hard to know where to begin to tell the story. A good part of it will be told on the air August 3, when the Grand Old Man of Baseball comes to Edgar Guest's "It Can Be Done" program for a guest appearance. The program goes on the air at 10:30 p.m. EDT, and everybody in America who loves baseball and what it stands for will be hunched over a loudspeaker when the clock ticks around to that hour. For Connie Mack doesn't make many public appearances, and it isn't often that baseball fans have an opportunity to hear him.

Connie Mack began to play baseball when he was nine years old, just a few years after the Civil War. He had been born in 1862—the day was December 23—and when he came to boyhood, baseball was in its absolute infancy. As a matter of fact, many authorities believe it originated with the Union soldiers during the Civil War. At any rate, the game that was in time to be called baseball was known as "round ball" when Connie Mack played it first, and no one in his right mind would have cared to predict that in a few decades the sight of 50,000 people storming a monster stadium to see a single game would be a commonplace. Connie Mack himself wouldn't have believed that, and much less would he have believed that when such a thing came to pass, much of the credit for it would be his.

When Connie Mack was sixteen—incidentally, the contraction of "McGillicuddy" to "Mack" was made by his father several years before Connie was born—he decided to make a catcher of himself. He went behind the bat and worked with a fingerless glove! Finally, when Connie Mack was nineteen, his team joined an amateur league, and he improved steadily against the new competition that was thus provided. He had been working in a shoe factory—Mack left school at fifteen, partially because his six feet of height made him self-conscious—and when the factory closed its doors in 1884 he started looking for a berth with a professional team. He was finally signed by Meriden, Connecticut, at the then impressive salary of $90 a month, a sum that would hardly interest a good batboy today.

THAT MAN McGILlicuddy

In 1885, Connie signed with Hartford for $125, and late in the season of 1886, when the owner of the Washington club of the series visited Hartford, he bought five players, including Mack and his pitcher, Frank Gilmore, paying less than $4,000 for the lot. Connie Mack made good, as was his habit.

The Brotherhood League, an offshoot of the National, was formed in 1889, and Mack went to Buffalo in the new league, and purchased stock in the club as well. One year was all the Brotherhood lasted, and Connie Mack, besides receiving but half of his salary, lost all he had invested in the club. And he had caught 123 games during that season!

Mack went from Buffalo to the Pittsburgh Pirates, stayed with them for six seasons, was appointed manager in 1894. He was released in '96, when a broken leg impaired his efficiency as a catcher, and signed as manager of the Milwaukee club of the Western League. Connie was still managing Milwaukee when the Western League became the American League in 1900, with four teams in the East and four in the West. Franchise for the Philadelphia team was awarded to Connie, with the late Benjamin F. Shibe as his partner, Shibe serving as president, Connie as manager, a position he has held ever since. Recently, after the death of John Shibe, younger son of his original partner, he became president of the Philadelphia Athletics as well as manager, climaxing thirty-seven years of continuous service!

Above everything else, Connie Mack is famed for his ability as a team-builder. Starting from scratch, he can get together a pennant-winning outfit while rival managers are wondering what he's up to. In 1902 the Philadelphia courts handed down an injunction forbidding Lajoie, Bernhard, Fraser, Duggleby and Elmer Flick, all ex-Phillies, from playing with the Athletics. To most managers, this would have been a crushing blow, but Connie Mack merely set about the business of rebuilding his ball club, and went on to win a pennant with it. The team finished in second place in '03, fifth in '04, but came back to win again in 1905.

Eddie Collins, destined to be one of the game's all-time greats, was signed by Connie Mack in 1906. In 1909 Connie signed Jack Barry and "Home Run" Frank Baker, and the team won the American League pennants in 1910, 1911, 1913 and 1914, taking the world's championship as well in '10, '11 and '13. The Athletics lost the World Series to the Boston Braves in 1914, and Connie Mack, sure they should have won, was at a loss to account for it. Soon afterward, however, he found that some of his players had negotiated with the Federal League and were planning on playing with that organization the following year. Furious, Connie Mack released the offending players outright and then began selling the rest of his high-salaried stars.

The reason? Mack made the announcement himself: "The fans did not come out in 1914 when I had a great team, figuring the opposing clubs were too easy, so I will distribute my best players among the other teams of the league and start all over again to build another championship team."

IT WAS a long, uphill fight, however, and from 1915 to 1924 were bad years for the Athletics. But Connie Mack never lost heart. Between 1924 and 1928 the Athletics began to move up strongly, and in 1929, '30 and '31 they took three pennants in a row and two world's championships, winning from the Cubs in '29, the Cardinals in '30.

In 1932 Connie Mack once again began to break up his club. Such stars as Al Simmons, Jimmy Dykes, George Haas, George Earnshaw, Mickey Cochran, Bob Grove, Jimmy Fojax, Frank Higgins and Bing Miller went to other teams. Once again Connie Mack started to rebuild.

Today the old master, his interest and ambition as keen as ever, has the best team he has had since 1933. He has nine championship teams behind him, and he wants to make it an even ten. Men who know baseball—and Connie Mack—say that he'll probably do it!

Green Pastures

A Broadway theatrical producer was once upbraided by an associate because he had refused to stage "The Green Pastures," a play that finally became a sensational success and a Pulitzer Prize winner. The producer had exhibited very bad judgment in the matter, his friend told him. His answer is a classic in theatrical legend. "I don't care if the play runs for ten years," he said, "I'll still think I was right in turning it down. No sane man would put $40,000 in a play that had sixteen Negroes on the stage, one of them in the role of God!" Most theatrical producers would agree, but the fact remains that Marc Connelly's great Negro fantasy was one of the biggest successes in the past decade of American theatrical history. Profoundly moving, deeply spiritual, it elicited unreserved praise wherever it was shown, and it must be given high ranking on any roster of modern classics. On Thursday, August 4, "The Green Pastures" will be broadcast over NBC networks as a presentation in the current series of Pulitzer Prize plays. The time: 9 p.m. EDT.

Four Corners Theater

Imagine a small town in rural America. Imagine the local constable, righteous and fearless; his middle-aged and very respectable wife, and a fortune-teller connected with a town fair, a lady of uncertain virtues whose name is Madame Reno de Beeno. Imagine that the wife of the constable, suspecting her husband of a closer interest in Madame Reno de Beeno than his duty necessitates, makes a pact with her supposed rival to change clothes with her and act as fortune-teller. Imagine, if you still can, a plot in which Madame Reno de Beeno has joined with the town's most religious inhabitant to steal all the money belonging to the fair. And imagine the constable trying to foil this plot, not knowing his wife is in Madame Reno de Beeno's costume. All this put together makes the story of "Aunt Jerushy on the War Path," hilarious comedy which will be presented by the "Four Corners Theater" at 8 p.m. EDT, Tuesday, August 2, over CBS.

Prohibition

Most Americans suppose that since the repeal of Prohibition, the question of militant activity against legal consumption of alcoholic liquor has become a dead issue. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The National Women's Christian Temperance Union, active in the passage of the prohibition law which made America

"dry" directly after the World War, took up the fight again immediately after President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the repeal law in 1934, and has since that time waged an unremitting battle for a more stringent form of liquor control. Although most impartial authorities hold that Prohibition was a disastrous failure in America, those opposed to the open selling of liquor point out that it has been a success in modified form in certain other countries, argue that the heavy toll of deaths annually attributed to the use of liquor makes some form of control imperative. To hear a report of the work of the W. C. T. U., tune in to CBS at 6:45 p.m. EDT, Wednesday, August 3. At that time, Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, head of the organization, will address a conference of fellow members in San Francisco.

The World Is Yours

Millions of Americans are today better educated, happier, because of the National Broadcasting Company's "The World Is Yours" program. For over two years, this program has brought to the air the tremendous background and resources of the world-renowned Smithsonian Institution. "These programs," says Commissioner of Education John W. Studebaker, "bring the research resources of the Smithsonian Institution to millions of citizens who never get to Washington or who can make only brief visits to the Institution's vast collections. They also supply behind-the-exhibits knowledge and stir the interest of listeners to further personal study." The subjects covered in "The World Is Yours" are of the widest variety. The stories of printing, steam, electricity, aviation, astronomy, astrophysics, have been told, as well as subjects in the fields of art, history, health, biology and botany. The work of the great expeditions sent to every corner of the world by the Smithsonian have been dramatized and broadcast on this program. On Sunday, July 31, at 4:30 p.m., a broadcast dealing with "The Potter's Art" will be put on the air.

"Men With Wings"

Something new and different in radio will be inaugurated on Sunday, July 31, when the Mutual Broadcasting System puts on the air a radio version of the film "Men With Wings." Although the picture was produced by Paramount, and although the radio series will be scripted by Paramount writers and played by Paramount stars, it will be non-commercial in every respect, and no credit will be given the film company on the air. In fact, the only similarity between the radio and the picture version of "Men With Wings" will be the title and cast. The details of the radio-script will be entirely different from those of the screen scenario. Thirteen episodes will comprise the series. On the air at 1:30 p.m. EDT, running time, thirty minutes.

Propaganda by Music

With the South American countries under an ever-increasing barrage of radio propaganda by the dictator-governed European countries, American authorities have recently sought means of strengthening the normal friendly relations between the Americas. There has even been talk of a government radio station to counteract Nazi and Fascist propaganda. A new method of tightening those bonds—an interchange of the musical culture of the two continents—will be tried by Andre Kostelanetz in three broadcasts from South America, the first of them on the air Sunday, July 31, at 5 p.m. EDT over CBS. Kostelanetz will lead a large symphonic orchestra placed at his disposal by Radio El Mundo, Buenos Aires station, in three works by noted Latin-American composers. In addition, "On the Trail," from Ferde Grofe's "Grand Canyon Suite," and "Lake Louise," from Kostelanetz' own "Canadian Impressions," will be aired. The South American compositions: "Guarany Fiesta," by Gilardo Gilardi; "Voices of the Pampas," by Floro M. Ugarte, "Sacred Dances of the Incas," by Alfredo L. Schuima.

"The Charge Is Treason!"

As strange and colorful a figure as America has ever produced was Aaron Burr, soldier, statesman, lawyer, duellist and political adventurer. Born in New Jersey, Burr served with distinction during the Revolution, resigned from the Army in 1779, and began the practise of law in New York City in 1783. Brilliant and audacious, he became a member of the state assembly, a U. S. Senator, and finally Vice-President of the United States. But by a strange twisting of the skeins of fate, Burr's path crossed and recrossed that of Alexander Hamilton, and tragedy for both men was the result. Hamilton, perhaps because he could not approve of Burr's character—he was unscrupulous, insincere, and of loose morals—perhaps on political principle, opposed Burr's ambitions at every turn, thwarted him more than once. At Weehawken, New Jersey, on July 11, 1804, the two met for the last time—with pistols. Hamilton was killed, Burr disgraced and indicted for murder. Around 1805, Burr visited the Southwest, became involved in a conspiracy that apparently had as its objective the establishment of an imperial dynasty in Mexico. He was arrested for treason in 1807, tried and acquitted, but found it convenient to live abroad for some years afterward. He died, embittered, in 1836. For a dramatization of the curious Mexican episode in Burr's life, tune in CBS on Wednesday, August 3, at 7:30 p.m. EDT.

Summer Politics

Suave, quick-witted Dr. Glenn Frank, one-time editor of famed Century Magazine, former president of the University of Wisconsin, now chairman of the Republican Program Committee, will address the American people over National Broadcasting Company facilities from Chicago on Saturday, August 6, at 8:30 p.m. EDT, at the conclusion of a six-day session of the committee. Approximately 150 members of the G. O. P. Program Committee will this week attend a series of round-table discussions on national problems, and Dr. Frank's address will include a summary of the work done at the conference. Problems relating to labor, agriculture, social security, finance, relief and the civil service will be discussed under the leadership of noted experts. According to Republican party officials, the session parallels the summer conference system utilized for years by British political parties.

The Chicken and the Egg

Greatest single market for poultry and eggs is in America. Most foreign housewives use eggs much more sparingly than do Americans, and the chicken is not generally reared for mass consumption as an article of food. Before 1900, for instance, the demand for poultry and eggs in England was so low that farmers who attempted to specialize in the field usually faced failure at the end of two years. But even at that time United States poultrymen were finding it difficult to meet the demand, and this, it must be remembered, in an era when game-birds were almost a staple item of diet. In the '90's, New York City markets could easily handle shipments of, for instance, 2,000,000 young wild pigeons! Still, it was in 1896 that an Ohio poultryman built a chicken-raising "factory" designed to house 22,000 birds at a time and produce 250 or 300 broilers daily. And that was only the beginning. To hear the story of today's chicken-and-egg industry, tune in "The Farmer Takes the Mike," at 4 p.m. EDT, Sunday, July 31. The network: The Columbia Broadcasting System.

Debate Diabolic

Daniel Webster was born in New Hampshire in 1782, of rock-ribbed pioneering stock, and during his whole life-time he stood fast by his principles, rigidly honest, painstakingly righteous, the very epitome of what was known during the nineteenth century as "the New England spirit." In a public career that stretched over forty years, the name of Daniel Webster was never shadowed by the faintest breath of scandal, and when he died, leaving behind him some of the most important and enduring work in American history, the people mourned him as they had mourned no man since Washington. In Daniel Webster's time, people thoroughly believed in evil spirits and the devil, but if Daniel Webster shared the common belief, we may be sure he shunned the devil as he would have shunned a rattlesnake. But Stephen Vincent Benet, famous writer, changed all that. Benet wrote a short story, a fantasy, called "The Devil and Daniel Webster," a story which is climaxed by an argument between Webster and the evil one over the soul of a New England farmer. The Columbia Workshop will dramatize "The Devil and Daniel Webster" at 7:30 p.m. EDT, Saturday, August 6.

B. I. O. N.

Bob Ripley, a young sports cartoonist, one day surprised himself with the discovery that the world was full of absolutely incredible places, things, and people. Since then, he has made a fortune and a life-work out of the simple business of telling the world about itself, backing everything he says with incontestable proof, topping the whole thing off with a laconic "Believe It Or Not." In his cartoons, his books and his radio program, he is constantly pricking the bubble of most people's disbelief and making them like it. On Tuesday, August 2, Bob Ripley promises something that he admits he can barely believe himself. On that day, on Ripley's regular program at 10 p.m. EDT, NBC, a young Hindu mystic, one Kuda Bux, is scheduled to walk across a ten-foot bed of white-hot coals in his bare feet, challenge a group of doctors and scientists who will be in the studio to find the slightest evidence of a burn! It is known, of course, that the trick can be done. Many impartial observers have seen it done before this. But a lucid explanation of how it can be done is yet to be produced.

Mad Dog!

Not so many years ago, when the hot days of July and August—the "dog days"—settled over the country in a sultry blanket, the sight of a panting dog trotting through the streets with a little froth on his jowls would send people racing for shelter, and the shout "Mad dog!" would rocket through the air. Perhaps the dog had nothing more dangerous on his mind than a wish for a drink of water, but usually he was killed, so great was the universal dread of rabies, a disease for which there was no known cure. Louis Pasteur changed all that. Pasteur didn't know the meaning of fear. He would stand in his laboratory with the open jaws of a dog stricken by rabies no more than half an inch away from him and remove a sample of its saliva for testing. The story will be told in "Men Against Death" at 8 p.m. EDT, Thursday, August 4. The network: The Columbia Broadcasting System.

"So You Want to Be . . ."

There are thousands of American boys who have been bewitched by the sound of the pounding surf on a long seashore, boys who would give anything they have in the world to sail the seven seas, eventually rise in their chosen work until they stand, bright in captain's braid, on the bridge of their own trim ship. Such was the ambition of John William Anderson, and John William Anderson is now captain of the S. S. American Importer of the United States Line. Anderson, forty years old, is a typical American sea captain. He'll be on the air Friday at 5:45 p.m. EDT to tell the secrets of his trade to American boys. It was Anderson, incidentally, who captained the ship aboard which the Lindberghs left America on Christmas Eve, 1936. The network: Columbia.

Movie-goers the country over will applaud "Alexander's Ragtime Band," a $2,000,000 drama spectacle built around the life of Irving Berlin. Starred are Don Ameche, Alice Faye, Tyrone Power

$1,000 A MINUTE

WORLD-FAMOUS HEADLINERS WILL HONOR IRVING BERLIN IN FULL HOUR PROGRAM TO BE AIRED OVER CBS THIS WEDNESDAY

IRVING BERLIN can't read a note of music. He can't play the piano. He can't write down his own songs. But his creative genius is so great that in the face of these obstacles he has composed 600 songs, among them some of the greatest melodies this country has ever seen. Irving Berlin's songs cover a span of more than a quarter of a century, and a simple listing of their titles sounds like a recital of musical milestones. He wrote "Ragtime Violin" in 1911; "When the Midnight Choo-Choo Leaves for Alabam'" in 1912; "That International Rag" in 1913; during the war years he wrote "This Is the Life," "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," "In the Y. M. C. A.," "For Your Country and My Country." For Florenz Ziegfeld, master showman, Berlin wrote "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" and dozens of other classic ballads. Irving Berlin wrote "All Alone," "Blue Skies," "Top Hat, White Tie and Tails," "Cheek to Cheek," "This Year's Kisses," and "Let's Face the Music and Dance." And Irving Berlin wrote "Alexander's Ragtime Band"—one of America's first great song-hits, as popular a tune as this country has ever known, and justly its composer's favorite; out of all the 600 songs he has written.

"Alexander's Ragtime Band"! What memories that song must stir in the heart of Irving Berlin, and in the hearts of the hundreds of thousands of Americans who have known its gay, lilting strains all their lives. There'll be a new thrill for Irving Berlin and those far-flung thousands on the night of August 3, when for one solid hour, over the networks of the Columbia Broadcasting System, a program eulogizing the composer who can't write music, the pianist who can't read it, will be broadcast Coast to Coast. It will be an hour packed solidly with Berlin melodies, jammed with the greatest stars in America. Men and women whose superb talents have thrilled millions will crowd—literally crowd—around microphones in New York, Chicago and Hollywood, to play their parts in an unprecedented carnival of honor for a man who richly deserves it.

AL JOLSON will be on the air. So will Eddie Cantor, and Belle Baker, and Walter Winchell. Ben Bernie and Phil Baker will broadcast, as will Jack Haley, Guy Lombardo, Tommy Dorsey, Rudy Vallee, Ethel Merman, Kate Smith, Sophie Tucker, and Paul Whiteman. John Steele will sing "Say It With Music," and the Three Brox Sisters, internationally famous fifteen years ago for their interpretation of Berlin songs, will come out of retirement to do the old favorites again. Tyrone Power, star of the 20th Century-Fox film "Alexander's Ragtime Band," built around Berlin's life, will go on the air from New York, as will Louella Parsons, famous movie columnist, and Darryl Zanuck, 20th Century-Fox executive who produced "Alexander's Ragtime Band." In the history of radio, no comparable honor has ever been paid a living man. The cost? It can't be exactly estimated—but $1,000 a minute is a conservative guess!

Irving Berlin is today at the peak of his powers. "Alexander's Ragtime Band," his first big hit, was written in 1911, when he was a struggling, unknown composer working for a Tin Pan Alley publishing house for $25 a week. From that day to this, for more than 25 years, the name of Irving Berlin has stood for the best in American popular music. More incredible than his inexhaustible font of beautiful melodies, more astonishing than the mechanical difficulties under which he composes is the fact that Irving Berlin has never found it necessary to confine himself to any one style of song. When his name first began to attract attention, the ragtime craze, which he of course helped to father, was sweeping the country. Irving Berlin wrote the best ragtime songs. After the war, ragtime was forgotten, abandoned, and nothing mattered but the fox-trot. Irving Berlin's songs in fox-trot tempo are classics of their kind. The clattering, break-neck music of the '20's he handled as deftly as if the style were his own creation. Soft and sweet or hot and fast—it mattered nothing to Irving Berlin. However the public wanted its songs, he would write them. And when swing music stormed America, leaving stranded by the wayside dozens of composers whose professional history by no means extended as far back as Berlin's, he sat down at the battered upright piano which he bought in 1910—carrying a special keyboard, it's the only piano he can play—and wrote such hits as "You're Laughing At Me," "Slumming On Park Avenue," and "The Girl on the Police Gazette."

Irving Berlin was born Isadore Baline in Teumen, a little town in South Russia, on May 11, 1888. He was the eighth child of the village cantor, and the family was extremely poor. When he was four years old a terrible fire swept the whole village, utterly destroying the Baline home. The family, without friends or finances, wandered from town to town, finally came to America and settled in New York's East Side. Every member of the family, from Cantor Baline himself down to little Isadore, the youngest, had to work and fight for a living from the first day they set foot on American soil. Little Izzy made the least of all, and when, at the end of the day his brothers and sisters brought to their mother the few pennies they had made running errands, doing sweat-shop sewing, or selling papers, he was ashamed because he could contribute so little. Finally, when he was fourteen, Izzy decided to run away. He could at least relieve his family of the necessity of supporting him.

Selling papers, he had decided, was no way to make money. There ought to be a more lucrative business than that for a bright young man. And he found it. He began slipping into saloons and singing for the chance coins kindly patrons would toss to him. He had a pleasant, sad voice, and he was such a tiny, pitiful-looking fellow that people found it hard to refuse him. Later, he fell in with a famous Bowery character, old Blind Sol, who also sang for pennies. The two of them—the boy barely into his teens and the old man nearing his seventies—found that together they could earn more than the sum of what they made separately.

But just as newspaper-selling hadn't been profitable enough for young Irving Berlin, so was street-singing unsatisfactory, and before long he had a job as a singing waiter in the Pell Street saloon called "Nigger Mike's." It wasn't much of a job, but it was considerably better than the street, and for a little while it partially satisfied the sum of what they were able to make separately.

The first time Irving Berlin's name ever saw print, incidentally, was when he was at "Nigger Mike's." Lord Louis Mountbatten, one of the outstanding figures in contemporary British life, was visiting in New York, and with a party of friends and newspapermen went on a "slumming" tour of the East Side. The idea of finding a genuine member of the British nobility in his restaurant so excited the proprietor of "Nigger Mike's" that he decided all drinks must be on the house. Mountbatten, attempting to return the courtesy, offered a fabulous tip to his waiter, who happened to be Berlin. But the boy was so embarrassed that he refused it, and a reporter, almost overcome at the sight of a New York waiter refusing a tip, wrote the incident and Irving Berlin's name into his story.

From "Nigger Mike's," Irving Berlin moved uptown to Jimmy Kelly's famous old saloon in Union Square, and it was while he was working there that he decided to try his hand at writing songs instead of merely singing them for a none too appreciative audience. He made just thirty-seven cents on his first published composition, but he had better luck—and luck is the word—with his second. He wrote the words to this second song and took them to a publisher without any music. The publisher read the lyrics over and said, "I'll give you twenty-five dollars for it. Take it in the other room and sing it for an arranger." The young composer was much encouraged. Of course, it was true that he hadn't the vaguest notion of a melody to go with the lyrics he'd written, but he wasn't going to miss this opportunity, melody or no melody. He went into the arranger's office, took a deep breath and began to sing—composing the melody as he went along, note by note!

NOT even the frigidly exclusive atmosphere of Tin Pan Alley in those days, a tightly closed corporation as far as outsiders and newcomers was concerned, could stop Irving Berlin after that. Song followed song, and finally he was given a job as staff writer for the Ted Snyder publishing company. Then came "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and the beginning of a heady success story that will reach its glorious climax on the night of August 3, with a whole nation paying tribute to Isadore Baline, once of Monroe Street, the East Side.

Irving Berlin's story is a legend on Broadway, and no listing of the greats of the world of entertainment is complete without his name. Many of the twice-told tales concerning Berlin are centered around his famous partnership with Sam Harris. Sam Harris and Irving Berlin built the Music Box Theater, pouring thousands of dollars into it. Berlin had, by this time, formed his own song-publishing company, and he and Sam Harris were enthusiastically planning the first of their historic "Music Box Revues." They spent money so lavishly in preparation for the first "Music Box Revue" that rival managers on Broadway were freely predicting that the new partnership would collapse and go into bankruptcy before the first curtain rose. But they were wrong, and the first staging was an overwhelming success. It contained two big hits, "Say It With Music" and "Everybody Step." The second "Music Box Revue," presented in 1922, brought "Lady of the Evening," and the third, "An Orange Grove in California," a song that is today one of Berlin's top-ranking favorites.

BY THIS time, Irving Berlin was the acknowledged peer of American popular composers, and a Broadway show with music by Irving Berlin was a guaranteed hit before it got into the dress-rehearsal stage. Radio and the sound-film, two fields that were to add fresh luster to Berlin's reputation, were not yet of great importance, and it seemed that he had reached the peak of his career. On January 5, 1926 Irving Berlin married Ellin Mackay, daughter of Clarence Mackay, New York social leader and communications magnate, in the face of strong parental opposition. Close friends say that the Irving Berlins are and have always been completely in love with each other and thoroughly happy. They should be happier still on the night of August 3, listening as a parade of great stars brings to the microphone so many of the songs that have made American musical history.

At least thirty of Irving Berlin's greatest hits will be heard on the hour-long program, many of them presented by the performers who first brought them before the public. Al Jolson, whose life, together with Eddie Cantor's, has for years been entwined with Berlin's, will act as master of ceremonies. Cantor is returning from his vacation in Europe in order to appear on the program. Jolson will sing "This Is the Life," which he introduced in 1914 at the Hammerstein Theater in

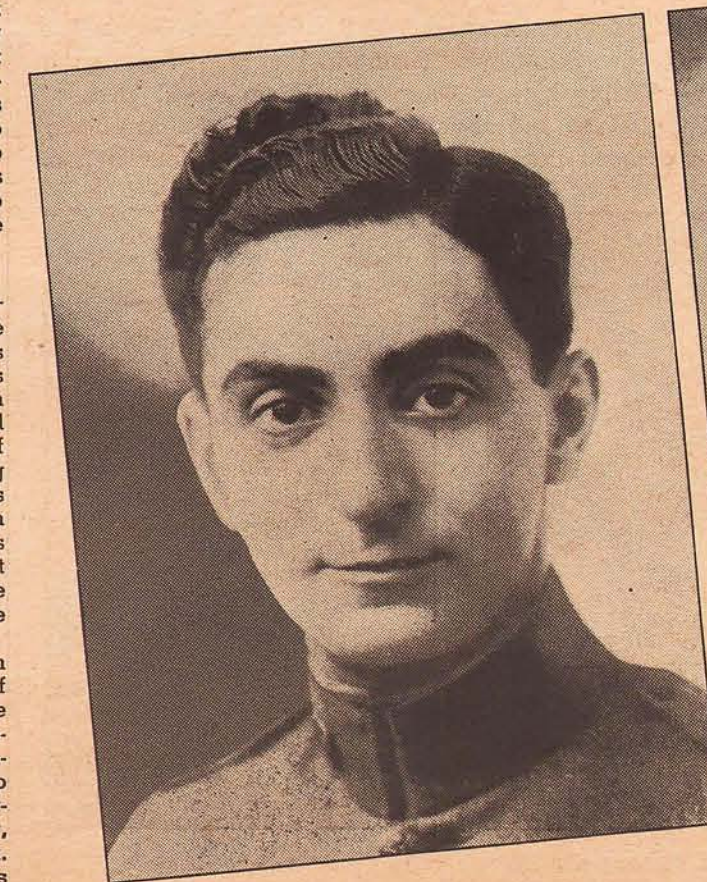

New York, and Cantor will do "My Wife's Gone to the Country," a Berlin song he first sang in 1909. Paul Whiteman's contribution will be "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," with John Steele singing—a repetition of their presentation of the number in the Ziegfeld "Follies" of 1919. Al Goodman's orchestra will be under Whiteman's baton. Belle Baker will sing "Blue Skies," the song that is indelibly associated with her name, and the Brox Sisters will do "Everybody Step," which they introduced in 1921. Sophie Tucker, perhaps greatest of the "hot" songstresses, will sing once more Berlin's "International Rag," and Ethel Merman, top-ranking blues singer of today, will present "Walking Stick," a brand-new Berlin song from the soon-to-be-released film, "Alexander's Ragtime Band." Bandleaders Ben Bernie and Phil Baker, once vaudeville partners, will do "That Mysterious Rag," a routine for which they were famous in 1912. "Easter Parade," a Berlin hit introduced by Guy Lombardo in 1935—it was written almost twenty years ago, called "Smile and Show Your Dimples"—will be his contribution to the program, and Rudy Vallee will play "Say It Isn't So," introduced by him in 1932. Tommy Dorsey will do a swing arrangement of the Berlin waltz, "Marie." Morton Downey, the great Irish tenor, will present a Berlin song, and finally Irving Berlin himself will be heard, playing, as he always does, on the black keys only of his specially designed shifting-keyboard piano, an instrument which allows him always to use the key of F sharp, the only one in which he can play.

INTERSPERSED throughout the broadcast will be scenes from the Alice Faye-Tyrone Power-Don Ameche film, "Alexander's Ragtime Band." This picture, a $2,275,000 production, was inspired by Irving Berlin's life but is based much more closely upon his music than upon the actual circumstances of his career. Laid in pre-war San Francisco, it concerns the struggles of Roger Grant (Tyrone Power), a young orchestra-leader, to achieve the success he knows is due him, and to find happiness with the girl he loves. Alice Faye, of course, plays the heroine, and Don Ameche has the role filling the third point of the triangle. The glamorous Miss Faye, generally regarded by song-writers as the best feminine "plugger" in the country, will present "Now It Can Be Told," one of the three brand-new Irving Berlin songs to be featured in the film. She'll sing this same number on the Coast-to-Coast broadcast, too, accompanied by Tommy Dorsey's orchestra. The two other new Berlin compositions, to be heard both in the picture and on the broadcast, are "Walking Stick" and "Marching Along With Time."

CONCEIVED weeks ago, the August 3 broadcast has had more than a month of intensive, day-by-day preparation. Because of the fact that some of the stars involved must broadcast from Hollywood, some from Chicago, and some from New York, the most minute details required endless attention. In addition, it has been impossible to bring together everyone involved for a full-dress rehearsal. The time of such stars as Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, and the others on the program is so valuable, and their previous commitments so pressing, that it is only with the greatest difficulty that they can be brought together at one time. Bill Bacher, famed Hollywood radio producer who is in charge of the broadcast, will have to rely on the skill and experience of his stars to insure a smooth, even performance. But with a veritable Blue Book listing of entertainers at his command, Bill Bacher's faith is certainly not misplaced, and "Alexander's Ragtime Band" should prove to be a highspot of the 1938 radio season.

FIVE scores are to be done at the Stadium by Henry Hadley, Arthur Gutman, Morton Gould, John Powell and Randall Thompson.

The late Henry Hadley's overture "In Bohemia" (1900) was written at the request of the Bohemian Club in San Francisco, for one of its summer festivals in the Redwood Grove. The title is not geographical, but refers to that mythical domain in which true artists dwell.

Gutman's symphony is his first (1932) and has had fourteen hearings in various localities. I have not heard the composition, so I expect you to be your own annotator.

Twenty-four-year-old Morton Gould is a veteran, for at fifteen he graduated from music school and at twenty-one had his "Choral and Fugue in Jazz" premiered by Stokowski. In three movements, the Gould Symphonette utilizes swing in the classical manner. Milton Kaye playing the familiar Powell pages, is a pianist of unusual accomplishments, a Juilliard graduate and an M. A. of Columbia University.

Thompson's symphony is in a distinctly American vein. Asked whether it has jazz intentions, he answered: "No; and I am not competing with Broadway. I have tried to write frankly in my own tonal dialect, formed by my musical associations since childhood."

The March of Music

A Weekly Preview Edited By Leonard Liebling

"... An ampler Ether, a diviner Air..."—Wordsworth

Farewell to Plaudits

THE marvelous Menuhin family and the world have lost Miss Hephzibah (now Mrs. Lindsay Nicholas) as a public performer. She married recently and decided to retire from the concert stage, to become (in her own words) "a good wife, sacrificing everything I have loved up to now, to go with my husband to his Australian home, to cheer his solitude, to play piano for him and (as he is an owner-shepherd) to join his several thousand sheep, innocent little animals chorusing 'Baa-baa' and impatiently waiting to know their mistress."

Having a betting-streak, I wager a 69-cent dollar or two that Hephzibah will some day be heard again in concert. If not, her too-soon retirement shames many a public artist who quits too late.

The Easiest Way

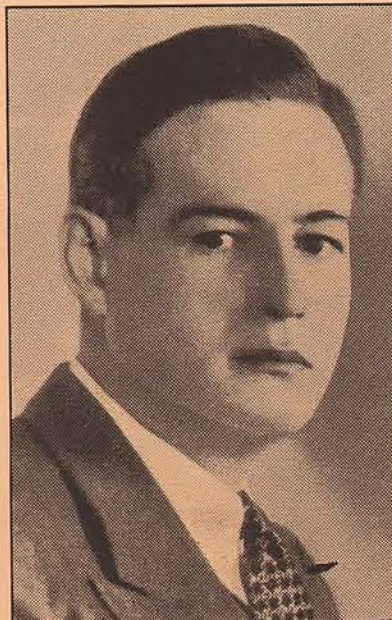

Probably the least-trained musician in America and nearly its worst pianist and singer, Irving Berlin nevertheless has reached the universe with his popular pieces.

Berlin's fame was gained solely through his ability to pick out tunes on the piano and to supply them with simple and catchy lyrics. The picking was done with not much more than two fingers, and the lyrics were typical of Broadway's primitive sentiment and comedy. To this day he is ignorant of harmony, cannot bring his pieces to paper, always devises them in the same key, and has an arranger to do the amplifications and accompaniments. Berlin is a musical tyro compared to his well-grounded colleagues like Kern, Gershwin, Porter and Youmans. Nevertheless the nation has sung and danced his tunes, and put a large fortune in his pocket.

On August 3 (CBS, 9:30 p.m. EDT) there will be an Irving Berlin Cavalcade, reviewing his activities of the past twenty-five years or so, and he is also being glorified at present in a film called "Alexander's Ragtime Band." One thinks of MacDowell, Chadwick, Foote, Parker, Kelley, Griffes and the living younger Americans and murmurs "What price real musicianship and artistic eminence?"

Not For Everybody

It is to be hoped that the second of the Columbia Composers Commission works, Leo Sowerby's "Theme In Yellow," will be more impressive and appealing than the Russell Bennett orchestral "Etudes" which opened the series and struck some of us as being chiefly skillful modern orchestration, lacking in melody and imagination.

BEEHOVEN'S early quartet needs no special revelation in these lines, nor need you and I discuss the ingratiating voices of Mendelssohn and Schumann.

However, just a note about Karl Dittersdorf, who died about thirty years before Beethoven and was for a while looked upon by many connoisseurs as superior to the mighty Ludwig. Karl won signal honors throughout Europe as violinist and composer, wrote 28 operas, over 50 symphonies, and a veritable mountain of other works, nearly all of them now gone where the woodbine twineth. Dittersdorf's chief value lies in the fact that his symphonies influence Mozart, who greatly admired their easy brilliance, melodiousness and skilled craftsmanship.

Ignace Strasfogel, talented Polish pianist, is Lauritz Melchior's accompanist and was also at one time assistant conductor at the Berlin Opera.

HERE is a fine example in program-making and Barlow is to be heartily commended for his skill in warming our souls with Bach and Haydn and then titillating us with the bold American proclamation of Sowerby. In the front rank of our composers, he has written in the modern classical manner and also experimented with jazz as a symphonic medium, although more seriously than Gershwin. ("Theme in Yellow" companions well in title with "Rhapsody in Blue").

That provocative poet, Carl Sandburg, wrote the stanzas which inspired Sowerby, and the excellent commentator who explains the Barlow concerts will detail what Sandburg set down. Suffice it to say now that his subject is a pumpkin!

"On the Trail" from "Grand Canyon" Suite (Grove)
"Lake Louise" from Canadian Impressions (Kostelanetz)
Sacred Dance of the Incas from "The Incas" Symphonic Poem (Schuima)

THESE South American composers are not familiar to me—or to most of my readers, I'll warrant—and therefore all of us should approach them with keen curiosity and alert ears. Latin America has made no inconsiderable contributions to the musical enjoyments of the rest of the world, and we shall have a basis of national comparison, with Grove and Kostelanetz furnishing works of Anglo-Saxon character.

Kostelanetz describes his program as an attempt to picture the varied character of the southern continent, with its extremes of climate and scenery and human passions.

The "Guarany Fiesta" is from an opera based on the old Paraguayan folk-legend of the Urutau bird, who is supposed to be a reincarnation of an evil Indian chieftain, burned alive as a punishment for his sins. Even today, the bird is a harbinger of bad luck and his cry is believed to spell death to those who hear it.

"The Incas" is a symphonic poem describing the visit of an ancient prince to Cuzco, Inca capital, in search of a bride. This excerpt is from the ballet scene.

"Voices of the Pampas" is an evocation of the breezes that ruffle the flat plains of the Argentine, bringing a vague echo of bird-calls and the scampering of insects and numerous tiny animals.

"HELLO, old friend," I feel like saying to the Johann Svendsen number, for it has not appeared hereabouts for many a moon in spite of its tremendous popularity during the turn of the century, when this Norwegian contemporary (1840-1911) of Grieg conquered also with his symphonic legend "Zorahayde," three "Norwegian Rhapsodies" and the long famous "Romance" for violin solo. Svendsen was fertile in airs, orchestral invention and piquant harmonies. His output still has charm for those whom modernism has not weaned from music designed purely for beauty's sake.

This whole program, in fact, glows with that quality, as exemplified in the sensuous "Sakuntala" and "Mlada" and the lovely melodic curves and scintillating piano writing of the concerto by Grieg.

On tour of South America are Andre Kostelanetz and wife Lily Pons. Kostelanetz will broadcast from there over CBS Sunday

Kostelanetz to Broadcast Music from South America

IT SEEMS that RADIO GUIDE readers have but to express a useful wish regarding broadcasting, in order to have it granted. Not long ago this department published several requests for the performance of certain compositions. Shortly thereafter they were heard on the air. More recently a correspondent suggested that not enough programs of music are microphoned from South America. His Aladdin words found print on this page, and lo and behold, the good genie brings him what he desired, for on July 31 the ether will offer a Sunday afternoon concert from Buenos Aires on CBS at 5 p.m. EDT.

In this case, the genie is Andre Kostelanetz; the medium, the best symphony orchestra in South America; and the means, a rebroadcast by CBS from short-wave transmission. Hitherto only the last-named carried programs from our Latin sister republics, and that meant only a limited audience in the United States.

Kostelanetz adopts our correspondent's published thought with his statement that "the purpose of the concert is to enable the music-lovers of both Americas (the program will be of course heard also in South America) to become better acquainted with each other's tonal output. My broadcasts will present compositions popular on both continents, and bring the favorites of the North to the South and vice versa."

This latest bands-across-the-continent development is another step in the laudable plan to foster better understanding with our good neighbors south of the Caribbean. Improved travel highways, airplane communication and commercial rapprochements are now to be supplemented spiritually and artistically, for, of course, the Kostelanetz start is sure to be followed by other presentations along the same lines.

You might know that somewhere Lily Pons would be mentioned in any article on Andre Kostelanetz. Well then, let me close with the information that the new Madame Kostelanetz is singing at the Colon Opera in Buenos Aires. In case he broadcasts more than one concert, she will be his soloist.

Stadium Concerts Feature American Composers Night

ONCE upon a time the American composer was a downtrodden creature, due to our native adoration of everything European in art, but all that has changed markedly in this century. In fact, the pendulum swings so much the other way that the American composer seems in a fair way to being considerably coddled. After all the years of neglect, however, no one should begrudge him that delightful comfort.

One of the outstanding recognitions coming to him currently is the CBS series of commissioned and non-commissioned works by the creative sons and daughters of our land. Another auspicious effort in their support is the "American Composers Night" to be held at the Lewisohn Stadium on July 31 under the sponsorship of Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians, whose chairman of the music committee, Arthur Gutman, induced the Stadium directorate to accept the idea enthusiastically.

Five scores are to be done at the Stadium, by Henry Hadley, Arthur Gutman, Morton Gould, John Powell and Randall Thompson. But strangely enough, while accomplished Milton Kaye plays a piano concerto by Powell, the other soloist, Joan Field, at this writing is slated for a violin concerto by Camille Saint-Saens. How come? According to all reliable records, Monsieur Saint-Saens was born 1835, in Paris, France, and saw America only on the occasion of two short visits when he held the baton and played the piano at performances of his own works during his professional tours in our country. I might add maliciously that when the old gentleman was last here, I interviewed him for the New York American, and asked him what he thought of American music. "American music?" echoed the distinguished master, "I didn't know there was any."

Why not, Miss Field, the concerto by Powell or his "Virginia Suite," the concerto by Ernest Schelling or the recently finished one by John Alden Carpenter? They are not entirely loathsome music.

Geographically, Gutman is a New Yorker, Morton Gould hails from Staten Island, N. Y., John Powell is a native of Richmond, Virginia, Randall Thompson was born in New York, and Henry Hadley in Somerville, Mass. The shade of Saint-Saens should be astonished!

Raymond Leslie Buell tells of needed cooperation, Fri.—CBS

Economist Tells Need of Cooperative Action

Friday, CBS, 4:45-5 p.m.

At a time when action—in the form of military force and social upheaval—is rampant throughout the world, militant economists and students of international affairs feel that action is more than ever before desirable as the keynote of world economics. This form of action, however, in direct opposition to the political conniving and military meddling prevalent in many sections of the world, looks toward the objective of real cooperation.

In line with this policy, Raymond Leslie Buell, head of the Foreign Policy Association, will speak on "The Economic Situation in Central Europe and the Need for Action in the Field of World Economic Cooperation," thereby presenting a picture of the section which has often been the victim of territorial aggrandizement and the scene of social and political vicissitudes.

Buell, Chicago-born publicist and political science expert now living in the East, lends to the subject the authority built upon his experience as professor and lecturer in many of the foremost universities of the United States, as well as the authorship of a number of books on history, economics, government and international relations.

This talk is another in the CBS series of educational feature programs dealing with international economics, and should be of particular interest to those actively concerned with one of the most vital international problems of our time.

Villanova President Catholic Hour Speaker

Sunday, NBC, 6-6:30 p.m.

Education is a great gift, but unless it is tempered with the sobering influence of the spiritual viewpoint, it may do more harm than good.

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, on Sunday, will begin a series of five broadcasts, taking "Education" for the general theme of his discourses. Rev. Stanford, member of the Order of St. Augustine, is president of Villanova University, the responsible office he assumed in 1932 when he was but thirty-five years old. His sermons will attempt to show the advantage of approaching the vital problem of education from the religious standpoint.

This series on the "Catholic Hour," beginning on the last Sunday in July and continuing through the month of August, will be followed by a cycle on "Education and Youth," with the Rev. Dr. George Johnson as speaker.

Dr. Glenn Frank addresses G. O. P. confab, Sat.—NBC

Glenn Frank Summarizes G. O. P. Conference

Saturday, NBC, 8:30-8:45 p.m.

Dr. Glenn Frank is a very active man . . . and has been for the past quarter-century. During this time he has not missed the upbraiding that are the predetermined lot of active men, and the circumstances surrounding some of these reversals have brought his name to the public's notice on several occasions. One outstanding incident that found him in the headlines took place when Wisconsin's Progressives crowded him "off the political fence" and left him outside the gates of the university he had headed as president. His most recent clash brought him to the front to defend the policies of the free-distributed rural magazine of which he is the guiding light. This run-in is still to be settled in Washington. Thus Glenn Frank is a man whose activity has involved three very lively fields—education, publication and politics.

When he is heard over NBC on Saturday, Glenn Frank will speak in his capacity as one of the leaders of the Republican party. As chairman of the Republican Party Program Committee, he will give a summary of the committee's six-day conference in Chicago. His address will come at the conclusion of the conference.

The questions to be considered at this meeting in Chicago are the country's vital problems of the day—labor, agriculture, social security, finance, relief and Civil Service, questions at which most of the haranguing of the coming presidential election will be directed.

Norman Vincent Peale Talks of Habits

Saturday, NBC, 6:45-7 p.m.

There are tricks to all trades . . . and it is the master tradesman who knows them well and uses them to his best advantage. Man, in attempting to be master of himself—that is, master of the art of living—should learn the tricks of this art, the short cuts away from his faults and the simple methods of developing his virtues. A weekly series devoted to the cause of teaching Americans to cultivate the art of living brings Dr. Norman Vincent Peale to the air every Saturday over an NBC network.

The title of Dr. Peale's lesson this week will be "How to Break Bad Habits and Form Good Ones." A distinguished student and teacher of human behavior, Dr. Peale will attempt to point out the best ways of cultivating a very powerful influence in the lives of men . . . the force of habit.

JUSTLY proud is the National Broadcasting Company Hollywood office for its scoop-airing July 18 of the family of young Doug Corrigan, trans-Atlantic "reverse" flier. To accomplish the feat, Don Gilman, West Coast NBC chief, routed Special-Events Mikeman Buddy Twiss from bed and had him rounding up the aviator's family, living in Santa Monica, at 7:30 a.m. Having located the relatives, the networkers "kidnaped" them and held them incommunicado in a studio until the two-way broadcast linking Corrigan in Dublin could be arranged. Even newspapers, feuding with radio as they are, depended upon the aired interview for facts about the flier. A United Press staff-writer in Hollywood, composing his story as he tuned in the broadcast, phoned NBC to ask Corrigan his nationality. He was asked, and answered. The U. P. man took down the facts, and, in appreciation of NBC's scoop, credited the network for the information in his story! . . . Radio again scooped all other enterprises by making the first offer to the thirty-one-year-old winged prankster. The latter feat was an immediate request by Robert Ripley to Corrigan that he make his first appearance on Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" program.

Despite its speed, radio still has an educational job ahead. Witness a certain Los Angeles furrier who was horrified last week, after he had sought a radio celebrity to model his new furs, to have "Amos 'n' Andy's" Genevieve Blue offered for the job. "But," he objected, "is she white?" . . . Hah!

Tiring of Charlie McCarthy's full month of birthdays, Karon Rhodes, San Francisco astrologer, showed the horoscope chart of Edgar Bergen to pupils in her astrology class and asked, "Who is this person?" Her students variously answered Franklin D. Roosevelt, a great statesman, a great teacher—and one came close by saying: "This man has a very dual personality; if I were talking to him, I wouldn't know which of his selves would answer." None guessed Bergen's name, because, Miss Rhodes feels (Bergen, please skip this), "the chart of Charlie's creator shows such remarkable mentality that it might not be recognized as belonging to an entertainer." The star-gazer found the ventriloquist's chart closely akin to Harry Houdini's, that Charlie "is plainly visible—sitting in Mr. Bergen's first house (hah, they moved the other day into their second house) in the form of an isolated conjunction of Saturn, which rules magic, and Mercury, which rules speech."

Be that as it may, Bergen and Charlie recently impressed their foot-and-hand-prints in the Grauman's Chinese Theater for McCourt, a signal achievement for McCarthy, who thus becomes the first inanimate Hollywood dummy so honored . . . The others, you see, were animated, sometimes peculiarly, but animated regardless.

Rom-Antics: Tyrone Power's Janet Gaynor is more interested in Adrian—and Ty's Annabella has shipped abroad . . . Billy Halop and Judy Garland really mean it . . . Rosemary Lane's head man is Bob Thatcher . . . The Robert Taylor-Barbara Stanwyck pal-sying continues at the tropics . . . Has Wendy Barrie tossed off her eastern heart? Maybe Lee Bowman knows . . . Tommy Lee, the Don Lee radio baron, likes to look at Maxine Gray while she sings with Skinnay Ennis' band . . . By the time this is read, Claire Trevor will be Mrs. Clark Andrews. Ceremonies were set for July 27 at All Saints' Church, Beverly Hills . . . Hollywood Showcase Writer Everett Tomlinson will wed Wanda Webster, sis of CBS Announcer Maurie, early in August in Tacoma . . . Ex-"Hymns of All Churches" Singers Kenneth Stevens and Betty Pietsch are now a duet.

When Al Pearce takes over for Grape-Nuts October 10, there will be certain revisions to eliminate the monotony, I hope, I hope! . . . Incidentally, the Burns & Allen Chesterfield fee will be $12,000 weekly.

Answering Connie Bennett's $250,000 damage suit against him, Jimmie Fidler charges that the actress once countenanced and encouraged the type of publicity she now calls defamatory—and he should know, since he once was her press-agent. Miss Bennett objected to Fidler's air remarks that she had tiffed with newspapermen and had been other than courteous to Patsy Kelly; likewise that she once kept occupied the one vacant chair on a movie set by utilizing it as a seat for her pet pooch!

Veteran Batoneer Leo Reisman, who vainly looked for Indians on this his first trip to Hollywood, anyway has discovered a nifty luncheon spot located on the roof of Saks Fifth Avenue, where the open-air courses are punctuated and highly spiced by mannequins parading in play- and swim-suits.

Jovial Hal Raynor, Joe Penner writer, was wreathed in smiles the other day when I bumped into him at the CBS studios. "Joe's been signed," he explained, "for the fall by General Foods, and I'm set for several more pictures at RKO studios." Reason enough to be happy, but Raynor, who only writes as an "avocation" and wears the cloth each Sunday when he preaches to his congregation of Grace Episcopal Church in Glendora, is always happy, brilliant, refreshing. Raynor thinks bankers, ministers and lawyers grow stale on the job—especially bankers who eventually have a perpetual "no" engraved in their faces. Believes his jokesmithing and lyric-writing tends to keep him more alive for his church besides affording hundreds, of thousands of people needed healthy laughs. Asked if his radio work influenced him in the pulpit, he admitted that the microphone had taught him one principle which he applies to his sermons. "Now," he explained, "I make them short and entertaining. My wife times me with a stop-watch. After fifteen minutes, she coughs, and if I go twenty minutes—she faints!"

A movie lot here has imported an MBS radio network cowboy group, the Northwesterners, from IOWA, to sing in Tex Ritter's next picture, "Starlight Over Texas," leaving that state

When Leo Reisman's band opened at Hollywood's Cocomanut Grove, many stars turned out for the fun. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman (Amos of "Amos 'n' Andy") Gosden came with Charlie McCarthy's mouthpiece, Edgar Bergen no choice but to fill out its cornhuskers, come harvest time, from Montana.

Visiting Hollywood with her secretary and young Radactress Lucy Gilman, prolific Radio Writer Irna Phillips amazingly is turning out her three air-scripts each morning, seeing the sights each afternoon and week-ends. First of latter was spent with new Warner Brothers Star Gale Page at Lake Arrowhead. Miss Page is eternally grateful to Miss Phillips for having interceded when she was offered a screen test. Scheduled to make a singing test, Gale, then cast in one of Miss Phillips' daily serials, told the author, who, indignant, sought out network officials who were arranging the screening. "Will you," she asked, "show Gale as I would like to have her shown—as an actress?" NBC agreed. Miss Phillips wrote the screen-test script, and Miss Page was tested as an actress, not a singer. Result, she won a starring Warner Brothers contract, and is well on her way to celluloid fame! . . . Miss Phillips, who writes "Road of Life," "The Guiding Light" and "Women in White," is now being sought by several motion-picture companies.

After watching her daddy, Jack Benny, do a movie scene three times on the Paramount lot the other day, Little Joan piped up: "Do you think you'll ever get it right, Daddy?" Director Leisen laughed.

Another ex-radio moviemaker is having name trouble. Gene Morgan, right name McDonald, has completed his first "Dick Tracy" serial picture for Republic under the name Michael Kent. The lot's renamers at first had planned to tag the former "Gang Busters" and "Myrt and Marge" actor as Stanley Joyce . . . Which reminds that a few days after he hit Hollywood, Morgan decided to call on his old pal, Jack Arnold, of RKO studios, former name Vin Haworth and originally Vinton Hayworth. So Morgan pushed the Arnold-Haworth door-bell, announced himself to Jean Haworth, "Is Vin in? I'm Gene McDonald." Not recognizing him by his correct name, Jean escorted McDonald to her husband's study. "Hello there, Morgan!" came Arnold's shout . . . Jean, dizzy, asked for a glass of water.

Now that "Hollywood Hotel" has folded, Hollywood will have its first real Orchid Room—but in the Hollywood Plaza Hotel instead. The much-publicized room existed previously only in the "Hollywood Hotel" script.

Tag Lines: Not missing a trick, Song-Writers Freddy Rose and Johnny Marvin have dedicated their new "Silver Wings in the Moonlight" to Doug Corrigan . . . Margaret Sullivan is bassinet-buying again . . . The Bing Crosbys have moved to Del Mar for the races, which will be lightened by a theme song and picture previews! . . . Lanny Ross is undecided about three radio offers.

LAST week I told you of my inside information regarding Seth Parker's return to the airlines. If you're interested in hearing this show, make a notation on your calendar pad for October 2. The first of the new series will be aired on that date over the NBC-Blue network at 7:30 p.m. EST. Phil Lord will portray the role of Seth Parker, and as he stated, this is the only radio show in which he'd take an ACTIVE part in the future. He will, however, continue to produce other shows.

You may have read elsewhere that Comic Henny Youngman has been signed for four consecutive guest appearances on the Monday Night Show, starring Connie Boswell, Ted Husing and Richard Himber's orchestra. Well, you can take my word for it that you will continue to hear Youngman on this show indefinitely, and that comes right from the program's Mr. Big. This weekly airing is steadily increasing in popularity, according to the program surveys, and with the addition of Youngman, who can be depended on for many laughs, it should become one of the best bets of the week.

Incidentally, I was present in the studio last Monday night, and after the program I went backstage to pick up whatever I could for this pillar. Just as I opened the door I saw a has-been vaudeville actor take a swing at Youngman because he claimed Henny was using his material. Undoubtedly this guy, who is all washed up but doesn't realize it, flatters himself greatly.

I feel sorry for Don Ameche . . . he had been working for a coffee-and-cake salary for years before his big break came. In his early days he just dreamed of a European trip. Before sailing he said it was to be his second honeymoon. It was a tough break for him having to be operated on for appendicitis in Holland and interrupting a grand trip. Last report states that he is doing nicely and will be back on the air as per schedule, the latter part of August.

Major Bowes met with an accident while resting on his yacht. He jammed a finger of his left hand in a sliding door and had to have the tip removed.

It is common knowledge that when Fred Allen left for Maine, only a very few intimates knew of his hideout. They tell me the place is in an isolated part of the woods. Fred and Portland decided to hike to the village one day to do some shopping. The proprietor of the grocery store (it wasn't Hodge White) recognized the comic and it wasn't long before a whispering campaign got under way and every resident of the burg knew the Allens were in town. One villager came running into the store out of breath, approached Fred and told him he had a smart talking parrot and would like to get on the program in the fall. I haven't found out whether

Fred has moved to another hideout.

In the last issue, on this page, you saw a picture of Arthur Godfrey with his colt, "Betty Lou," which was named after Tommy Rigg's imaginary radio character. That picture was taken several weeks ago. The day Tommy and Betty Lou went off the Vallee show, Tommy received word from Godfrey that the colt died.

KILOCYCLE CHATTER: Gabriel Heatter has been elected to conduct "We, the People" again when it returns in the fall . . . Movieactor Bill Powell will be the first guestar on "Silver Theatre" when it debuts October 2 . . . Is Gloria Swanson being tempted for radio work? She has been seen at one of the network's studios several times . . . Colonel Manny Prager has returned to the Ben Bernie fold. You may recall he popularized "The King's Horses" . . . Another Colonel—Stoopnagle—will desert radio for a few weeks in order to work on his new movie short, "Cavalcade of Stuff," which is a burlesque of the newsreels . . . Jane Martin, game expert on the Town Hall Big Game Hunt, claims she has lost 15 pounds since she started her radio work. I'd like to lose weight that way. Is there a sponsor reading?

PURELY PERSONAL: Punster Lewis has a suggested theme song for Frances Langford, "I'll Be Loving You HALLways." Don't throw that! . . . Ork pilot Johnny Messner, who is making music at the McAlpin Hotel Roof, has been passing out cigars to his friends. It's a boy . . . I don't know what Actress Ruth Russell is passing out, anyway she presented Hubby Charlie Range, NBC sound-effects man, with a baby girl . . . Papa says the baby makes plenty of sound with very little effect, and that's a fact . . . Bob Guilbert, leading player of the Don Winslow cast, will take a walk to the altar in the fall with a gal he met at college . . . Lenore Kingston, who plays Mercedes on the same show, had her tonsils yanked out last week . . . Teddy Duane, sax-tooter and arranger, is the boy in Nan Wynn's life. They met last summer when Teddy played in the Hudson-DeLange orchestra and Nan was the vocalist . . . Les Tremayne returned from his vacation five pounds heavier and a couple of shades browner.

The Mauch Twins, Billy and Bobby, did a special "Let's Pretend" broadcast from the Montefiore Hospital in New York a couple of weeks ago. At the start of the broadcast the announcer mentioned the broadcast was coming from the hospital. Apparently every radio in the neighborhood must have been tuned in, as when the twins started to leave, they were mobbed by autograph hunters. They tried to dash out of another exit, but it didn't take them long to realize every exit was surrounded.

BANDNOTES: Kay Kyser has clicked so big at the Pennsylvania Roof that he has been signed by the hostelry to open their "Madhattan Room" in the early fall . . . Benny Goodman will be back from his European vacation in time to take over the baton for his broadcast of August 2 . . . Glen Gray, whose real tag is Knoblauch, has had his name legally changed to Gray . . . Xavier Cugat is on his way to San Francisco, from where his tango and rhumba rhythms will emanate . . . Peter van Steeden has to rush out of the Town Hall Treasure Hunt studio before the program is over, because he also leads the orchestra on the "For Men Only" program, which follows immediately in another studio down the hall . . . George Hall and Dolly Dawn are back in New York after a triumphant tour of the Southland. It isn't hard to understand why George and Dolly are so popular with the tuner-inners . . . Donna Dae, a blue-eyed brunet of seventeen, will sing with the Fred Waring band when the ork pilot returns to the air in the fall. Donna was formerly with Frankie Masters at the College Inn in Chicago . . . Hal Kemp's last movie had his band playing "I'm Taking a Shine to You." Now Hal is featured on the "Time to Shine" program.

Harry von Zell told me he can't take his kid to a radio program. Last time he tried it, his youngster yelled, "That's my daddy" when Harry walked out on the stage to make his prebroadcast speech. Harry was nervous throughout the broadcast fearing another outburst that would get into the mike and out over the air.

ODDS AND ENDS: This Sunday Jerry Belcher's "Interesting Neighbors" program will come from a camp for blind children, 6½ miles from Hardwick, Vermont. It will cost the sponsor $750 extra for the line charges from Hardwick to the camp . . . Lum had to be at the BBC Studios at 11:45 p.m. for his international broadcast with his partner Abner, which was heard in this country at 6:45 p.m. . . . Anne Jamison, spending a little time in New York, is excitedly happy about her opera debut with the San Francisco Opera Company in the fall . . . Richard Maxwell is happy because his publisher advised that his book, "Cheer and Comfort," is selling so well.

Radio programs are helping songwriters to think of titles for their tunes. "We, the People" has just been recorded by RCA-Victor and "Hi-Ho Silver" is another of the new popular tunes. Up at the Pennsylvania Hotel roof, Kay Kyser holds a contest for the diners. The man and woman yelling, "Hi-Ho Silver" the loudest wins a Lone Ranger fountain pen.

A show that leaves a bad taste in my mouth is the Sunday night "Good Will Hour" with John J. Anthony presiding. A recent broadcast hit a new low when Anthony allowed a woman in her forties to come to the microphone and admit she lived with a man for eleven years, then went off and married another man. After a short time her husband left her and she went back to live with the first man. Later, her husband showed up and she went back to him. Again he disappeared and again she went back to the first man. The husband returned the third time and wanted his wife to come back to him again. She didn't

On Short Waves

President, International DX'ers Alliance

Times indicated on this page are for Eastern Daylight Saving Time. For EST and CDT subtract 1 hour; for CST, 2 hours; for MST, 3 hours; for PST, 4 hours

NOT many listeners know that in the heart of the Belgian Congo at Leopoldville, a short-wave station called "Radio Leo" (6.14), owned by two Jesuit priests, the Reverend Fathers Comelieu and Mols, is on the air each Sunday from 6:25 to 8 a.m. EDT, with a broadcast consisting of phonograph recordings and a twenty-minute address. About once a month this station, which is constructed of American equipment and has a power of 25 watts, broadcasts a band concert on Sunday mornings at 10 a.m. EDT.

VUC of Calcutta, India, has apparently received its powerful new short-wave transmitter, since an initial test broadcast on Wednesday, July 6, was received with good signals from 8 to 10:30 a.m. EDT, on 6.109 megs.

SHORT-WAVE SHORTS: CSW4 of Lisbon, Portugal, has been heard irregularly during the mornings on a new frequency of 15.1 megs. . . . Experimental Short-wave Station ZR06 (15.3), broadcasts daily from 1:10 to 3 p.m. EDT, with the news in English given at 2:36 p.m. EDT. . . . ZRH (9.523) of Roberts Heights, South Africa, is again broadcasting setting-up exercises each morning from 12:45 to 1:45 a.m. EDT. . . . The Spanish and Portuguese news periods, heard respectively at 8:30 and 8:45 p.m. EDT, nightly from Daventry, England, are now being radiated by GSO (15.18), as well as GSB (9.51). . . . GSE (11.86), quite often replaces GSD (11.75), in transmission VI from Daventry, heard daily from 7:20 to 9:30 p.m. EDT, when code interference from an unknown station interferes with GSD. . . . W3XAL of Boundbrook, N. J., is now broadcasting the following foreign-language periods daily: In Italian, 2 to 3 p.m. EDT; in German, 3 to 4 p.m. EDT; in French, 4 to 5 p.m. EDT; in Spanish, 5 to 6, 7 to 8, 9 to 10 and 11 p.m. to 1 a.m. EDT, and in Portuguese, 6 to 7 EDT, and 8 to 9 p.m. EDT.

A remarkable reception is that reported by Harold Clein of Los Angeles, Calif., who on Monday, July 11, at 5:55 a.m. EDT, picked up direct transmission from KHRH, the personal 15-watt transmitter of Howard Hughes aboard his plane, which at that time was far out over the Atlantic wastes on the first leg of his flight from New York to Paris. KHRH was weak but intelligible on 8.655 megs.

Ashley Walcott of San Francisco, Calif., writes that T. Y. Woo, director of the Central Broadcasting Administration, Chungking, China (formerly located at Nanking before the Japanese invasion), informs him that the station which relays XGOW, the Hankow Municipal Broadcasting Station, is XGX, a small transmitter with a power of 150 watts. The assigned frequency is 9.2 megs, "but this," says Mr. Woo, "is sometimes purposely varied to avoid international interference." Actually the frequency varies from 9 to 9.25 megs. XGX is still being heard in the West daily from 6 to 11 a.m. EDT, or later. A powerful short-wave station which will have a power of 35,000 watts, under construction at an unnamed location in China, will be testing within the next few months. This broadcaster will obviously be used to counteract the vigorous propaganda campaign of the Japanese stations. . . . VHPM at Port Moresby, Papua, has been heard testing on announced frequencies of 8.08 and 6.54 megs, between 6:30 and 7:30 a.m. EDT. . . . ZHP of Singapore, Straits Settlement, was heard on the morning of July 12, to 10:45 a.m. EDT, on its new frequency of 9.68 megs. The station signed off with the customary "God Save the King."

Beautiful Laura Suarez, young Brazilian soprano, who has sung her way to fame in the U. S. over networks of the NBC, will begin a series of four special programs for listeners in South America on Tuesday, August 2, at 7:30 p.m. EDT, over Short-wave Station W3XAL (17.78), Boundbrook, N. J. She will sing in Spanish on August 2 and 16, and in Portuguese, on August 9 and 23.

Listeners to the Daventry stations will hear commentary on some of the events in the International Athletic Meeting to be held in London Monday know what to do and that's the advice she wanted. Our advice is to keep this sort of thing off the air. It is definitely not educational, nor is it entertaining or helpful.

CANDID KILOCYCLE COMMENT: Fred Utall, emcee of "For Men Only," does a grand job of putting his gueststars at ease. Most of them never appeared in front of a mike before... Joe Williams, sports editor of the Scripps Howard papers, told some interesting sports yarns on this show the other week and for a couple hours after the program this scribbler was convinced Williams has many more to tell... No less than four sound-effects men were used on Orson Welles' adaptation of "Treasure Island." No question about Welles being a splendid actor, but he shouldn't try to impress the other players and the few visitors in the control-room with all the unnecessary gestures with his body and hands... All members of the cast rehearse most of Saturday, Sunday and Monday for this weekly airing... NBC was given a trimming by the other networks on the Howard Hughes flights and one of my informants tells me twelve men were dropped from the payroll as a result... The big laugh of all the Hughes special broadcasts was when the official timekeeper was being interviewed. He started to say that he was using a Longines watch. That was as far as he got. The program was switched to another point because the alert engineer realized that one of his network's best customers is competitor Bulova.

AN INNOCENT PEOPLE SUFFERS BECAUSE MAD GANGSTERS RUN GERMANY

Men who in democratic nations would be behind bars or listed as public enemies run the government of a world power. Because the warped mind of Adolf Hitler is obsessed with an unthinking hatred of Jews, the Nazis are sponsoring the most horrible anti-Semitic drive since the Middle Ages. When it seems there are no physical or economic tortures left to visit on Jews, Hitler steals Austria and opens a new field for his sadistic excesses. Meanwhile he sends a network of spies to sneak the defense secrets of our free nation. The rule of the trigger-men marches on!

Authority on large dynamite blasts, Samuel Russell will tell all on "Americans At Work" Thursday. Above: Russell placing charges of nitramon preparatory to a shot at quarries of cement company in Pennsylvania

DANGER HIGH EXPLOSIVES

A DYNAMITE charge, blasting out a rock section, will be heard over CBS when "Americans At Work" devotes its broadcast Thursday at 10:30 p.m. EDT to the dynamiters of the country. Each year thousands of men risk their lives dynamiting, yet no single job for the furtherance of many construction projects is more important than that of the dynamiter. Through the use of dynamite, stone is brought down in quarries, currents in rivers are changed and ice jams which threaten floods and other damage to property are broken up. Hear two of America's foremost authorities on large dynamite blasts tell their own experiences Thursday.

In some quarries dynamite shots are used to bring down the stone. Tunnels are driven into the side of a hill and dynamite is placed in the tunnels. This picture shows such a tunnel-shot as dynamite explodes

Extensive use is made of dynamite in tearing down old buildings to be replaced by new ones. In blasting the old lifeguard quarters (above) at Orchard Beach, Pelham Bay Park, New York, 60 pounds of dynamite was used

—Acme

One of the most interesting jobs ever done by dynamite has been the use of it in many parts of the country to make new courses for streams. Above is a dynamite blast which built a new channel for a stream in Mississippi

AT EASE!

EVERYONE who has listened ga-ga to Bing Crosby's Thursday night soirees certainly recognizes that much of the charm of his Music Hall springs from his habit of joshing opera stars and concert artists who might be expected to rebel at such railery. Truth is, as revealed there, that serious musicians are most often pretty regular people. Take, for example, Miss Helen Jepson, Metropolitan Opera star since 1934. As such she was the first woman ever to win an engagement with the distinguished company as a direct result of radio. That happened when Giulio Gatti-Casazza, "Met" head man at the time, heard her on NBC sustaining programs. That was after the little Pennsylvania girl had trouped in Chautauqua and lent her soprano to the Philadelphia, Montreal and Atlanta Grand Opera Companies, in addition to radio. Now established as one of our greatest contemporaries on the air and in movies and opera, Miss Helen doesn't snub a good time any more than she did when she toured the country in a broken-down Ford years ago. She is now Mrs. George Possell, and vacations with her husband at their summer home at Wurtsboro, N. Y., spending her time dabbing paint (above, left), tooting an antique trombone, one of her collection (above), and greasing up her face and car (left)!

THIS WEEK'S STRANGEST STORIES

Mary Margaret McBride never broadcasts from script; in the immense bag she's carrying in this picture she has notes to guide her in rambling, chatty remarks about things that interest her—and millions of others!

NEW YORKERS always say that strangers in the city know more of its lore and see more of its interesting hideaways than do the natives. This week a lady from Missouri will tell the stories of some of the intriguing things she's come on in her jaunts about Manhattan. The complete stories of the oddities shown in these pictures will be told on Mary Margaret McBride's informal chats on CBS Monday, Wednesday and Friday of this week at 12 noon EDT. Listen to them!

Exclusive Radio Guide Photographs by Gus Gale

Negroes in New York's Harlem wish at "The Tree of Hope," named by Percy Verwayne, Harlem actor. The tree's stump was removed to its present site at 131st St., 7th Ave., by Bill Robinson, Negro dancer

John Joseph Flynn is a "subway sniffer." He travels through the tunnels, sniffs in, under and around trains for escaping gas. This week Miss McBride will tell the complete story of his job and his methods

In the year 2001 some sculptor will carve this uncut stone in the parapet of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The subject will be the person who has contributed most to progress in the twentieth century!

Millions of New Yorkers have walked over the city's only sidewalk clock and some have stopped to get the correct time from it. Miss McBride stopped—but to get its story for one of her CBS programs this week!

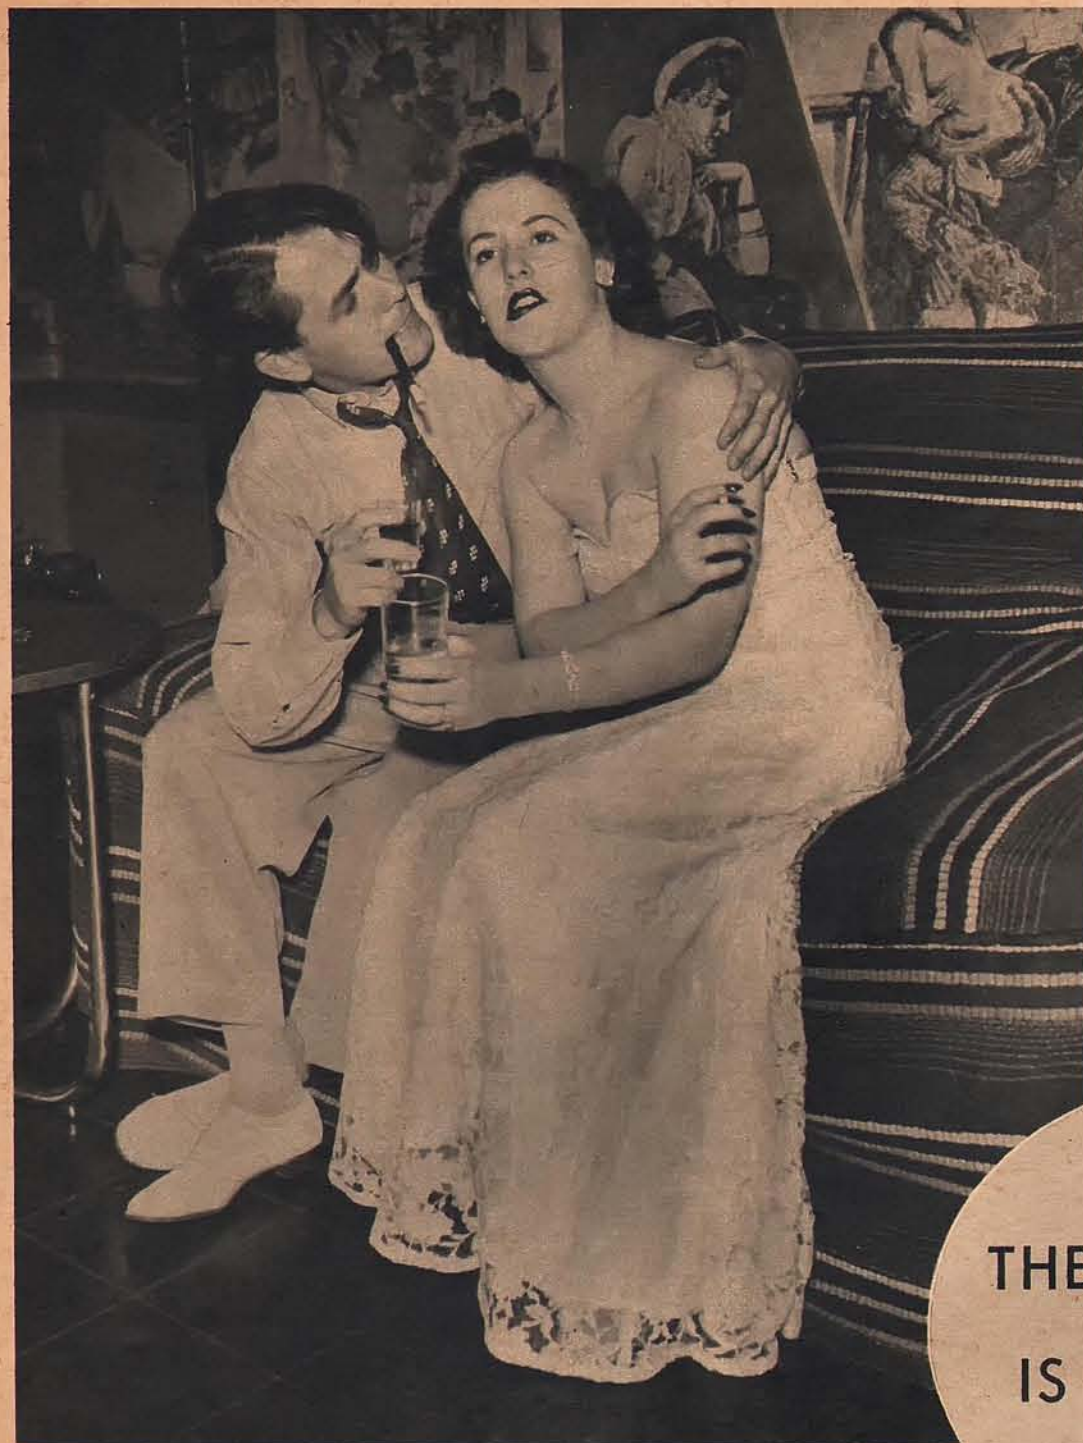

The Hess Estate in New York is the reluctant owner of the world's smallest piece of real estate—this tiny triangle. Miss McBride will tell its story, explain why its owners have to pay enormous taxes on it!

Francesca La Monte of the New York Museum of Natural History is probably the world's only woman "fish detective." The story of her search for the breeding-place of swordfish will be part of one of the talks

Miss McBride stops off at the library's "summer book bar" in Bryant Park. Radio Guide pictures the subjects of her talks this week to help listeners visualize the oddities whose complete stories she will tell

ARE MUSICIANS

JUST as legend has it that all newspapermen are confirmed drunkards, so do most people believe that the life of a jazz musician is one long bacchanalian orgy, a continuous round of drinking and marihuana-smoking. There may be a certain amount of glamour in that picture, but it just isn't true. Of course there are musicians who drink, just as there are shoe salesmen and filing-clerks

Photographs by

Of course, musicians smoke marihuana! Here are Carl Bean, Marian Francis, Norval Price, "high," listening to records who drink, but by and large, musicians lead quiet, normal lives—and for a very good reason: to play the fast, complicated arrangements of popular songs, a musician must have his wits about him! Herewith is both sides of the story: the true and the false, with members of the orchestra of Frankie Masters serving as models.

Max F. Kolin

Here, at last, we have the real Frankie Masters—hard-working young businessman whose favorite beverage is—milk!

Nothing more degenerate than a hard game of baseball often occupies the attention of Frankie Masters and his boys. Working long hours at night, indoors, musicians are eager to take any opportunity for outdoor play

THE PUBLIC IS TOLD—

Alack and alas! Here, in a low den, against a background of bawdy pictures, we find Songstress Marian Francis, her mind reeling in the fumes of drugged liquor, lost in the amorous clutches of her employer, the villain Masters!

That low villain Frankie Masters has no scruples at all! Would he lure away an innocent high-school girl? Yes, he would!

At home, forsaken and alone, wait the wives and little children of these disreputable musicians, drunk again, and gambling away their huge earnings throughout the wee small hours of the night!

So! Jumping the hotel bill again, eh? It's Trombonist Kahn Keene, ducking down 19 flights of fire-escape stairway

—BUT DON'T BELIEVE IT

My, how you've changed! It's Marian Francis pictured in the kitchen of her apartment. The girl can really cook!

All but one member of Frankie Masters' orchestra are married. Here are typical wives and children: Mrs. Walter Fellman and Suzy-Q; Mrs. Carl Bean and Patty, and Mrs. Harold Wright with her daughter, Sandra

Does this look like dissipation? Jay Matthews' father once made him learn plumbing—now it's Jay's No. 1 hobby!

THE RADIO PLAYBILL: THIS WEEK—"VALIANT LADY"

—Maurice Seymour

RADIO GUIDE'S "Radio Playbill" is a weekly review of outstanding dramatic-serial shows. "Valiant Lady," second in the series, is a story of Joan Barrett's self-sacrifice. Her mother died at Joan's birth; she was raised by Jim, her father, a contractor. At the opening of the story last March she left Pine River, her home town, for New York and a stage career. That ambition was almost achieved when Joan won the lead role in a play, but it "flopped." However, a producer, Edward Curran, saw her, offered her $50 a week while he coached her for a year. While in Pine River for a visit before starting, her father was injured; she resolved to nurse him, forget her career. Working in a local store, she was "framed" by a crooked real-estate agent, who wanted to get their home, to make it appear she had stolen $42. Current action revolves around Joan's fight to prove her innocence after demanding that she be brought to trial.

—Ray Lee Jackson

JIM BARRETT is Joan's father and thus at present the object of her sacrifice of a career. Between them there exists a love and understanding far deeper than that between most fathers and daughters. He is a carpenter-contractor, but at times when he was raising Joan, after his wife died bearing her, he was reduced to odd jobs for little money. When Joan was a baby, he built a house for them himself, put its title in Joan's name. It has been the object of Carson's conspiracy. Recently Jim pushed an old man out of the path of a car, was hit himself, paralyzed below the waist. He is dependent on Joan's ministrations entirely, and his infirmity may be permanent, frustrating Joan's career hopes. Richard Gordon (above) portrays Joan's father.

JOAN BARRETT, twenty-three, attended grammar and high schools in Pine River, made good grades, participated in school dramatics, yearned for a theatrical career. When her father was crippled in an accident, she gave up an opportunity for that success. Working in the Pine River Emporium, she was dismissed by Wright, the manager, after Grace Wilson, a salesgirl who disliked her, and Carson, a real-estate promoter, made her appear a thief. Unable to get another job, she demanded a trial. Mike Hagen, Joan's friend, invited Norman Price, an old friend and famous New York attorney, to defend her. He saw her, fell in love, agreed to defend her. But Joan finally won her own case by making Grace admit the frame-up! Joan Blaine (above) plays the starring role.

—Maurice Seymour

—Maurice Seymour

DR. BILL SCOTT ("Tubby") is twenty-six, blond and blue-eyed. He and Joan were childhood sweethearts, and when she returned to Pine River on her visit just before her father's accident, he proposed, was refused. He is taking care of her father, says a sudden shock might cure him. Although he is as much in love with her as ever, Joan regards him not as a possible husband but as her oldest and dearest friend. Charles Carroll (above) portrays kindly and understanding Dr. "Tubby" Scott in "Valiant Lady."

MR. WRIGHT, manager of the Emporium who dismissed Joan without trial, is fiftyish, a typical "self-made man" and "stuffed shirt" who considers himself the town's leading citizen. He is so sure of his self-righteousness he will lie to prove a point. Teddy Bergman (above), versatile character actor, is "Mr. Wright" and he also plays MIKE HAGEN. Mike has been a friend of Jim's since childhood and loves Joan as if she were his own daughter. Mike was responsible for getting Norman Price to defend Joan at the trial.

EMMA STEVENS ("Stevie") was once a Follies girl, later a character actress, now a plump and fifty-year-old stage matron. When Joan was in New York she met "Stevie"; they became close friends. When Jim was hurt, "Stevie" was glad to come to Pine River, help Joan take care of him. She is sentimental and jolly by turns, is efficient and "knows all the ropes," but not bossy or hard-boiled. Now living with the Barretts, she is friend, nurse and housekeeper in one. Judith Lowry (above) portrays lovable and humorous "Stevie."

—W.G.N.

MRS. AGNES WESTCOTT is store detective at the Emporium, found the stolen money hidden in Joan's glove, is convinced of her guilt. She is a heavy-set, masculine sort of woman in her late thirties. Norman Price surprised her into confessing a prison term at the trial. Linda Carlon plays the role.

—Ray Lee Jackson

EDWARD CURRAN, world-famed theatrical producer, promised to make Joan a great actress; she had to give that up after Jim was hurt. A smart, hard businessman, he understands Joan's decision since he visited Pine River to try to take her back to New York. Santos Ortega (above) plays Curran.

ESTELLE CUMMINGS is regular cashier at the Emporium. During her absence the money was missed. Thin, forty-five and spinsterish, she is not vindictive, is more certain the loss was no fault of hers than that Joan took it. Elsie Mae Gordon (above) enacts the role of the over-efficient Miss Cummings.

MILDRED FARRELL is a sob-sister for a New York paper, sent to Pine River to report the trial. Cynical and hard-boiled, she turns on the tears when she writes about the girl who was almost a Broadway star. The role is played by Adelaide Klein (below).

MR. COLLINS is president of the Pine River bank, and a kind and fatherly old man. He lent Joan $2,000 of his own money to finance her defense and clear her name so she could get another job to take care of Jim. Dwight Weist (below) portrays Mr. Collins.

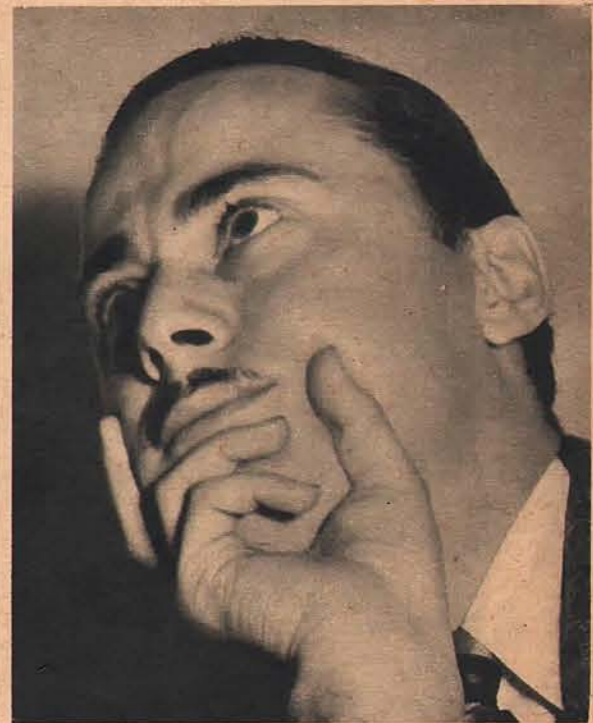

MR. BARCLAY is editor of the Pine River Review—a character much like eminent William Allen White, of Emporia, Kan. He is about seventy, a friend of Jim's for years. Maurice Tarplin plays the man who helped Joan force Wright to bring her to trial.

—Walter Seigel

—Herbert Mitchell

OTHER lives have impinged on Joan Barrett's as she courted dramatic glory in New York and as she faced her life of sacrifice and trouble in Pine River. Those are: NORMAN PRICE, New York lawyer who was invited to Pine River by Mike Hagen ostensibly for a fishing-trip, but in reality to get him near Joan and to try to persuade him to defend her. He did. Albert Hayes plays that role. MR. CARSON is the real-estate man who will go to any length to get Joan's home because he knows it will be valuable soon as a right-of-way. He was behind the plot to have Joan dismissed—thus force her to sell her home to him. Bernard Lenrow plays Carson. GRACE WILSON, homely "runt," had her job at the Emporium saved for her by Joan but instead of gratitude she feels only jealousy. She hid the stolen money in Joan's glove. Jeanette McGrady plays Grace. JUDGE KRUGER, played by Jerry Macy, is the stern and dignified barrister who presided at the trial, and MR. TRENT, played by Sidney Slon, was the prosecuting attorney whose caustic denunciations ran the gamut of procedure from innuendo to accusation as he tried honestly to do what he considered it his job to do. Milton Herman plays the part of MR. LILIENTHAL, producer of the first play Joan was in in New York. When his leading lady became ill, he gave Joan her chance. There Mr. Curran saw her. All these characters parade in highly realistic formations through "Valiant Lady's" chapters. Meet them, Monday through Friday at 2:30 p.m. EDT on NBC. Their adventures are as real as your own life!

NEXT WEEK:
"BETTY AND BOB"

AN INTERNATIONAL INCIDENT

CRITICS have about decided NBC was right after all! Imported by the network early in 1937 and billed as "The Bing Crosby of Paris," Jean Sablon failed to make much impression in his first year as an American crooner. Now in a regular Sunday series, though, response to his soft songs is growing apace. His programs on NBC-Blue at 5:30 p.m. EDT follow immediately after Marion Talley's on the Red net. Perhaps that explains the friendship that makes them the international "good neighbors" shown in these pictures!
